BULLETIN. ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 16. — Five minutes after Gov. Arnall left his portable rotunda office in the capitol today, a loud explosion echoed through the rotunda at 4.30 p. m.

A wisp of smoke floated down from the second floor of the capitol building and some shotgun pellets sprinkled down from the capitol dome.

It appeared some kind of shell without a gun may have been set off in some manner in one alcove which opens down into the rotunda, one floor above and 75 feet away from where Arnall had been sitting.
