WHAT THOMASON STANDS FOR SPLENDID REPORT FOR LOCKNEY HIGH SCHOOL

> Lockney High School, A. L. Foster. Superintendent, visited April 19, 1920, by Mrs. R. L. Ragsdale.

The public school of Lockney consists of 462 pupils and eleven teachers Of these, 85 pupils and four teachers are in the high school. All of the teachers of the high school have degrees.

The school building is a two-toned brick in excellent repair. In it are seven rooms for the grades, three for the high school, one for library, one for office, one for laboratory, and an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500. The building is heated by steam and the lighting is standard.

The grounds are ample, and contain all kinds of apparatus and courts for various forms of athletics.

The general equipment is adequate. except for source books in history, elementary books for the grades, and satisfactory blackboards.

Four sciences are taught in this school, biology, general science, physics and chemistry. The chemistry labatory is quite well arranged and provided for, but the other three sciences have laboratory work on tables in the rear of the ninth grade study hall, and this is far from satisfactory.

This school is asking affiliation in American History 1-2, commercial arithmetic 1-2, biology 1, Latin 2, and chemistry 1, so it was in these classes that the supervisor spent her time.

The American History class was engaged in discussing the reconstruction period and was being ably directed in this by a teacher who understood his subject. The work was creditable to both teacher and pupils. If the school possessed an adequate number of sourbooks, and the work showed that these had been carefully used, there would be no doubt in the mind of the supervisor of the advisability of grant ing the half unit additional credit asked for.

The commercial arithmetic class was working out somewhat complicated problems in insurance, and particular attention was being paid to expressing the work in correct form. This work has been continued for the greater part of the session and has included everything in a large, advanced text book. Of the two sciences, biology and chemistry, in which affiliation is being asked, only the biology recitation was observed. This was entirely satisfac-

Debbs is a con vict in the Federal penitentiary serv ing a 10 year sentence for violation of the esponage act. stance that a convict has nated for office in this country. We do not doubt but there are politicians out of the penitentiary that ought to be in, but this is the first case when a party has nominated a man who ha been convicted of a fellony. The socialists do not believe that Debbs is guilty, in fact they do not believe in this government or its laws If they do not believe in our government it is natural for them to conclude that there are no laws to be violated. They could not have made a bolder statement in referrence to the overthrow of our institutions than in their nomination of Debbs. The Socialist party had other men they could have nominated without going to the pen for Debbs, and if they had nominated a man out of prison, and without a criminal charge against him they could have denied they meant to overthrow this government. There is but on conclusion to be drawn from the ac tion of the socialist party, and that is they mean to overthrow the American government if they get in power

Note the following from a body of noted educators in session in Chicago iast February: "Deans of 21 universifies here in connection with the meeting of national educators have gone on record in demanding that girls wear more clothing. The present dress of girls is entirely too scant. Indorsement was made of the action by the Federation of Women's Clubs of New York City. In the International Conference of Women Physicians, held in New York last September, Dr. Edith Hale Swift, a woman, found the origin of the extravagant and unwholesome styles, in apparel in the women who makes "an exaggerated sex appeal for trade pur-The models produced for this poses.' type of women, asserted Dr. Swift, "are sanctioned by the unthinking woman of leisure in search of the easiest way to charm and show off her unearned money. Preachers have, for a long time, been hinting at the origin of these outlandish styles but, somehow many have failed to take the hint.

Last November the national training conference of the Interchurch World Movement of North America, sitting in Atlantic City, N. J., stated as follows: "The indecent dress of some women in our churches makes it tremendously hard for a young man to keep his thoughts clean and pure. In public these days you can scarcely the difference between a street woman and a church woman." My! My! what a charge! And yet every thinking man in the country knows it is true. I am so sorry we have to admit it.

Writing recently in a national journal, a mother said: "There is never going to be a winning fight against vice in the United States of America until women face the fact that present styles of dress, or to speak more accurately, undress, decreed largely by men design ers and manufacturers, are absolutely inimical to purity of thought and action. It should not surprise us to find lax morals among our young boys and girls, when mature women go to the extremes that georgette and similar fabrics have carried them."

The University of Illinois has published the following statement: "Decency is fundamental in dress. Waists so thin that a woman must shave in order to wear them are not decent. Evening dress, described in our fashion magazines as not having much above the waist and very little below, are not rare. Why should a woman desire to show her dress shields and underwear to the public?

Why should garments be so thin as to reveal the bare body beneath or as to bring limbs distinctly into outline when a woman steps between a man and the shining sun? Why should the waist be worn so low at the neck that least bending forward exposes organs private and sacred to womanhood? Why should dress be worn in so many ways to rob the wearer of modesty? These are plain questions, but is not the madness of fashion of the times such as to demand plainness of speech and bravery of action?

UNHEALTHFUL AND INDECENT DRESS (By Rev. Jas. II, Tate)

I shall say some plain things about some of the modern and extreme styles of dress for women and girls. Do not hesitate to say or quote such statements as I shall use in this article, over my own name; for I am perfectly willing—rather anxious—for the public to know my position relative to a matter of such vital and far-reaching significance.

I think I should be untrue to the cause of health and good morals if I did not speak—yea ery aloud in sounding a note of warning against some of the extravagant, indecent, and ungodly styles of dress in all too common use. I do not mean to say that all who adopt such styles, as are here alluded to, have any sort of bad intention: I am sure—perfectly sure—that very many do not; nevertheless, the effect is unquestionably bad. No sound defense of such indulgence can possibly be made.

For the most part, I shall let others speak on this weighty subject. Note the following:--"The New York City Federation of Women's Clubs has gone on record as regarding the present styles of evening dress indecent, and calling upon Club women to dress moestly. This movement should become nation-wide and result in the abolition of the sleeveless and low cut gowns and extremely thin waists, which latter are fully as indecent as if the wear-

Ten Months of Work VS. Ten Minutes of Hail

It takes ten months of work and care to raise a crop, from the breaking of the ground, on through the planting and tending, protection from stock and pests-before i ti sready for the harvest.

It takes ten minutes of hail to utterly destroy the result of all this season's work, and leave the farmer unable to meet his obligations, and face to face with want and suffering unless he has shown business judgement and foresight by protecting himself with an insurance policy against Hail in one of our tried and tested companies.

The cost of such protection is small. The benefits are large.

Our companies have millions behind them and an unblemished record for fair and honest adjustments properly and cheerfully paid.

The OilPull Never Overheats

INVESTIGATION has proved that one of the big troubles developed by the average tractor is the overheating of the engine due to the heavy work which the tractor is called upon to perform.

This is because the average tractor is cooled with water.

The reason the OilPull never overheats, and is entirely free from all the ordinary cooling troubles, is because it is cooled with oil. This is an exclusive Oil Pull feature.

Unlike water-oil does not evaporate-there is no boiling in the hottest weather.

The temperature of the OilPull engine is held within correct limits at all times under all loads and climatic conditions. . When the OilPull is working at top speed the oil is automatically kept cooler than when it is working at light load or running idle. There is absolutely no possibility of the OilPull overheating. And not only that, but the proper temperature for perfect kerosene combustion is maintained at all times.

Oil does not deposit scale or sediment-the OilPull circulating system is always open. Oil does not rust the system parts-the OilPull radiator will last the life of the tractor.

There are four sizes-12-20, 16-30, 20-40 and 30-60 H. P. Which do you need?

Is now owned and managed by C. R. Gallegly, who will be glad to do your hauling. Meets all trains with bus. Phone us your hauling necessities.

THE FOUR DOOR SEDAN We will have to arrive in a tew days 3 OAKLAND SEDANS

THE rapidly increasing popularity of closed cars of Oakland character is strong proof of the comfort, convenience, and practical everyday utility of this type of car. These features in unusual measure, due to advanced design and correct construction, typify the Oakland Sensible Six Sedan.

The highly developed design of the Oakland Sedan provides for a long wheelbase, long springs, and a low center of gravity-factors which insure comfortable riding. The Oakland standard practice of placing the body directly upon the frame side members and he use of long, semi-elliptic springs which ride almost flat, eliminates the sensation of top-heaviness often experienced while riding in many closed cars.

The resulting low center of gravity makes the Oakland Sedan ride steadily and smoothly at all speeds. There is no side sway and the car handles easily in heavy traffic or on the open road, up hill or down.

Another advantage of the low placement of the body is found in the ease with which passengers may enter or leave the car. The running boards are broad and low and it is but a short step from them nto the car through the wide, free-swinging doors. Ladies and elderly persons especially appreciate these features whch add so much to the pleasure of motor travel.

Still another feature of the akland four-door Sedan which has caused many buyers to select it in preference to higher priced cars is the unexpected roominess, both in size and width of seats and in the front-to-rear roominess of the body.

Ample inside capacity is secured by the compact motor design and the use of very long springs which allow a greater body length on the 115-inch Oakliand wheelbase than is possible with the shorter frame and shorter springs used in many cars of even greate wheelbaso.

A half turn of the window regulators opens or closes the four door windows easily and quickly. An easily regulated heater keeps the interior warm on cold days and avoids the necessity of heavy wraps. Silk roller curtans afford and additional sense of privacy and protection and a dome light provides interior illumination when needed.
