LEGISLATURE IS SANE

Some years ago a law was passed in Texas, demanding that insurance companies doing business in the state be required to invest a certain percent of th revenues derived from the business done in the state, within the state. This law was known as the Robertson law, and was passed for the purpose of furthering the institutions of the State of Texas, and to keep foreign companies from collecting premiums here, and using the money to build up cities and communities outside of the state. Seventeen large insurance companies withdrew from the state when this law was passed, and at every session of the legislature since that time they have made an effort to get the law repealed, with the same result each time, complete failure. These companies want Texas business but they are not willing for Texas to get anything out of their business, and as a result of their action home insurance companies have been organized and prospered, becoming strong institutions, with practically every dollar they have invested in Texas securities and institutions. Last week the legislature killed the bill offered which would have permitted these companies to re-enter the state, and we think the legislature acted wisely. These insurance companies want our money to build a greater New York, Philadelphia, or some other place, and say by their action they have no confidence in Texas, its securities or institutions, and all that they want to do is sap the people of Texas out of premiums, and it is immaterial whether Texas ever builds and develops. These companies should never be allowed to enter the state, if it is possible to keep them out. There has been a bunch of Down-East Yankees that have continually been trying to tear down the insurance and home-stead laws of the state, and their interests in the state would be detriment, instead of an asset, should they ever succeed in their dollar grabbing methods. Texas don't need New York or some other foreign city to tell her what and how she should do, and the sooner that Texas lets such concerns know that we don't want or won't have none of their interest paying schemes, unless they can toe the mark according to our own laws, the better off Texas will be.

ANOTHER NUISANCE LAW

The legislature has passed and Gov. Miriam has signed, and it will be a law 90 days after the adjournment of the legislature, the glaring headlight law. This is another one of those crazy laws that proves to be of no value for anything but petty graft. Each car owner will be required to make a trip at least once a year to some station (perhaps in the county seat town) of each county and have his headlights on his car tested and set at just the right angle, and as the law requires this only done once each year, if he happens to get them out of line, after he has got the official report that day, he will not be troubled any more for the 364 remaining days of the year. The glaring headlight is a nuisance alright, but regulating it by having each car light examined each year is a mighty poor way to get shut of it. The better way as we see it would be to make the automobile manufacturers put non-glaring headlights on their cars before they are allowed to be sold in the state, then all cars would have the non-glaring lights and there would be no need of such a law. Of course, most any kind of a foolish law can be passed, when it carries with it a fee that will feather the pockets of a few more office seekers, and what does it amount to them whether the law is enforced or not so long as they get the fee each year. Once there was a law introduced in the Kansas legislature to force the chickens to go to roost at 7 o'clock and stay on the until 7 o'clock the next morning, but it wouldn't work. There are many of these nuisance laws, and it always seems that they have precedence over all real constructive legislation when it comes to getting by in a hurry. This law, like the one passed some years ago, will no doubt be held unconstitutional, but never the less the taxpayers of Texas paid the bill for the time the legislature spend passing it.

PATRIOTISM AND EDUCATION

This is the month of Lincoln and Washington, the two great emancipators; the transformers of the early ideals of this nation into tangible accomplishments. In commemorating the respective birth anniversaries of these commanding figures of our history, men, women and children of the present vision with renewed appreciation our nation's struggle for liberty and democracy and the resultant equality of opportunity to all—the opportunity to emerge regardless of environment or circumstances. Abraham Lincoln, the child of poverty and democracy; George Washington, the seion of wealth and aristocracy, yet both arose in this freedom-loving land to the highest office within the gift of the nation. The month of February may, therefore, be well termed the patriotism-rejuvenating period.

It has been said that 'Civilization is in a race between Education and Castastrophe.' The nation that cherishes the memory of Lincoln and Washington shall not fail in its duty in civilization's race and will rear its childhood in the environment of the ideals as established by these men. We did not fail on Flanders Fields—neither shall Castastrophe triumph. The heritage of our heroes we will eternally treasure. We are accomplishing this by setting up an education which gives inspiration to our patriotism, that stimulates ambitions and ideals for service. This system we shall jealously guard and foster as a memorial to these men; it thus becomes a patriotic factor; it eliminates class and engenders a universal love of country; it becomes a foremost proponent of national ideals; it evaluates truth for truth's sake, concerning itself with equality of opportunity and measuring results in terms of ability to serve.

In the World War, through those who stood for it, this same force proved a citadel to national morale. It is now knocking at the doors of legislation seeking laws where laws are not to carry the American flag into every school; it is the motive power which has led thirty metropolitan newspapers to initiate a nation-wide oratorical contest on the interpretation of our Constitution, a national movement which President Coolidge has outspokenly endorsed. It is making Americanism the foundation-stone; it is untiring in its advocacy of universal culture, irrespective of origin, status or environment.

The work of our YESTERDAYS has been done. The task of TOMORROWS is still in our hands, in which education must be recognized as the foundation of future progress, the enemy of crime, the backbone of morals, the conservator of the home and the essential of citizenship. This is our task—the translation through education of these ideals into realities. Lincoln and Washington—"May more such men be ours."

Plainview Defeats Floydada

The girls of the Plainview high school basket ball team defeated the girls of the Floydada high school team in a game played at the high school court in Lockney last Friday afternoon by a score of 32 to 15. The victory made the Plainview team the champions of Hale, Motley, Floyd Lamb and Bailey counties, and they are to represent these counties in the district meet to be held at Lubbock.

Plant That Spring Garden.

An east Texas editor writes that some of his subscribers have requested him to ask me to write something about spring gardens. He did not say so, but I have a suspicion that the subscribers are overstocked on garden seeds for which they are finding poor sales because of the continued dry weather. East Texans have so little dry weather that, when it fails to rain for a few weeks, they are inclined to think "It Aint Gonna to Rain No Mo'." Therefore they sit down and wait to see what is going to happen. West Texans, having gone through repeated drouths, know that a rain is sure to follow every dry spell, and they plant crops just as though they are expecting rain the next day. There is no drag in the garden seed market in West Texas, I am guessing, and there should not be any where else.

Plant Now and Plant Often.

I am not an authority on gardening. Like most city gardeners, of the back-yard variety, I plant nearly as much as I harvest. The spring gardening fever usually hits me hard with the first mild spring days and dies in the heat of the early summer. The vegetables die along with my garden fever. Often there is a race to see which will die first. I have a farmer friend, though, who used to sell me vegetables, and he gave as the rule of his success that he began planting his garden early, planted in small quantities, and at intervals of about two weeks. He pays no attention to the weather or the moon when he thinks it is the time of year to begin planting certain things. The frost gets his vegetables sometimes and occasionally the ground is too dry to bring them up, but he soon has more on the way. The seed cost might be little in proportion to the returns, and by planting often he keeps supplied with fresh crisp vegetables.

Prepare to Live at Home.

Even a town man of average business ability knows one thing with enough certainty to give practical advice in regard to it. He knows that the less he has to pay out of his income for living expenses, the more his profits will be and the more cash he will have to show for his work. He also knows that if he spends more than his receipts he will soon be broke. That statement is so simple that it really sounds foolish, yet some people do not appear to have learned the lesson. The farmer who can produce meat and vegetables and corn and hay and syrup and honey and milk and butter and turkeys and chickens and eggs and fruit and berries and many other things on his place, while also growing cotton, is more than foolish to grow nothing but cotton, leaving the other things to be bought with his cotton money. The farmer who follows the one crop method lives poorly because he has to pay for all he eats, and an occasional crop failure wipes out the little profit he makes.

Advertise Your Surplus Products.

Most farmers are poor salesmen and do not know how to dispose of perishable products and other things for which they have no need, leaving them to go to waste. Why not profit by the example of the most successful business men and place a small advertisement in the local newspaper? If you have an extra horse, cow, hive of bees, machinery that is not needed, there is sure to be some one who would like to have it, if only he knew about it. A small advertisement will help to sell surplus fruit, butter, chickens, eggs, and dozens of other things about the place that you do not need. It has been said that there is somebody wanting and ready to pay for everything one can find to sell, if only the seller and the buyer can get together. The small newspaper reading notice is the best way to get them together that has ever been found, and the cost is small, not usually more than a quarter or half dollar. The farmer who uses this selling plan regularly will find that it pays well. In many states a large part of the country papers is filled with such advertisements, but the advertising idea does not seem to be used much by Texas farmers.

Automobiles and Good Roads a Boon.

A few years ago the farmer who lived as much as eight or ten miles from his trading point was at a great disadvantage, because it took a day to get anything to market. Good roads and automobiles are changing that. A ten mile trip is now a half hour's delightful drive instead of two or three hours of hard toil. A telephone call from a merchant or a neighbor a dozen miles away may close a trade in a few minutes and delivery can be made almost as quickly as a merchant can deliver goods in his town. The world is fast putting away its former-day methods, and the farmer who would succeed must keep abreast of the times. He must use the methods of the modern successful business man and not trust to chance, as so many have been doing. What would you think of the merchant who would say, "I sold more over the hill than anything else last year, so I will handle nothing but overalls this year, and will sit down and wait for the people to come and buy them?"

Radio Program Heard

On February 16th from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m., there was broadcast from station WFAA, Dallas, a singing program given by the music pupils of Gunter College, under the direction of Mr. J. Frank Copeland, voice teacher.

Mr. Copeland, formerly of Lockney, is teaching at Gunter College this season.

The program was enjoyed by many of Mr. Copeland's friends in and around Lockney. This program was the best the writer has ever heard over Radio. Many others have made the same statement. Several have said that it was the most distinct they have ever heard. They also stated that they would have known Mr. Copeland's voice anywhere by it being so clear and distinct. Of course, there is a reason for this.

As many of you know Mr. Copeland has spent several seasons in Chicago, studying voice culture. When he went there he was very, very, careful in selecting his teacher.

After much consideration, he decided on Mr. D. A. Clippingee. Mr. Clippingee is one of the very best teachers in the land. It is always best to get the best teacher, although the tuition is higher. Mr. Clippingee now charges $6.00 for a half hour lesson. Seems rather high to us Western folks (who are always broke) however, this is a very reasonable amount considering the fine instruction you get. When one has studied under Mr. Clippingee, it is always easy to get the highest position without being questioned further than you are a pupil of Mr. Clippingee. He is known as being one of the leading teachers in voice.

Some listeners mentioned the smoothness and steadiness of the songs. That is due of course to proper training. The Legato Sostemito (musical terms meaning bound together and sustained) played a great part in the program. You noticed, if you heard the program, that the rhythm was very regular throughout the songs sang. That was due to the hours of practice the singers did before program. A little instruction and lots of practice makes the musician. Now, surely there is as good material in West Texas as there is any program. So let's get together all who are lovers of good singing and get up a class for Mr. Copeland, and possibly we can keep him here next season as a teacher. The writer has already done some local work under Mr. Copeland and realizes the value of voice training more than ever since having the program broadcast. Some time in April there will be another program broadcast by the same singers. So if you enjoy music of the better kind tune in on station WFAA, Dallas, on the night of this material in West Texas as there is any program. So let's get together all who this paper later.—A Pupil.

TRYING TO REGAIN THEIR INHERITANCE

Wayward Sons Are on Back to the Farm Movement in Order to Receive Benefits

Floyd (Fatty) Teaff and Bill Whorton have decided that the place they should be is at home on the farm with dad and ma, and they are trying to leave the impression that it is a back to the farm movement, that their hearts have been melted and that they have come to realize that father and mother needs their manly figures to help them with the hardships of the farm life, and therefore they are going back home to relieve the burdens and try to pay their parents some of the interest they are due them for the many heartaches and pains they have caused them during the years of their wild out sewing. But this is far from being the case with Fatty and Bill. The Teaffs and the Whortons live five north of Lockney, and within a few miles of the greasy well, that has created some little stir above town, and the true facts are that Fatty and Bill have smelt a rat, and think that before the good luck happens, and should the greasy well prove to be a gusher, pa and ma might forget that they ever had such sons and cut them out of their wills, and they would lose a great inheritance, and in accordance with this line of thoughts they have decided that the time to act is now, and that it would be far better to get the good will of the old folks at home save them from flinging the old story of "you've come home to see what you can get out of us" in their faces.

We are afraid that if the oil well does not develop pretty soon, however, that these young men will tire of the slow farm life, and again return to the bright lights of the "center of the best farming section of the Plains."

E. G. Langford of Lockney has received a letter from his brother-in-law C. W. Bailey, who is spending the winter months at Point Isabel, Texas. Mr. Bailey states in his letter that he had caught a man eating shark on the 16th of February, that measured 9 feet and 8 inches in length and weighed 618 pounds. Mr. Bailey says it was the largest fish he ever saw, and he is having this big fish mounted. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will leave Point Isabel about March 10th for their home in Duncan, Okla., and they will come by Lockney and spend a week or two with kinfolk, and old friends. Mr. Bailey is going to bring his man eating shark back with him and show the people of Lockney and Duncan, Okla., how large fish grow down at Point Isabel.
