SOME ACTION

Well, maybe you think the Lockney Chamber of Commerce is not getting action. If you have an idea like this we suggest that you attend the next regular meeting of the organization and you will change your views.

Since chambers of Commerce were first instituted it has been a custom for the members to meet and "resolute" and it didn't make very much difference about results. The fellow with the best line of "hot air" was considered a shining light in commercial circles, and the air gauge was the only one needed. But conditions have changed, and the chamber of commerce of today is one destined to get results.

The Lockney body does not suffer materially from other organizations and that is why the local chamber of commerce is getting the support of local citizens—it helps them.

The meeting Monday was attended by 17 members and two visitors, and the business session that followed the luncheon proved an inspiration to every member present. If you were not there you missed an opportunity to put your shoulder to the wheel of progress.

The hotel committee made a report, and an additional committee or sub-committee, was appointed to aid the regular committee in raising funds. There was plenty of enthusiasm and no one doubts for a moment but that Lockney will have a modern hotel before the end of the present year, and there is a probability that it will be open for business before another six months shall pass.

The railroad committee had no report to offer other than that needs for the right-of-way were being prepared and signed.

H. B. Adams reported that at a joint session of the Lee Highway association Floyd, Hale and Motley county representatives will call another election about May 1st, at which time it is hoped a bond issue for paving will be voted. The annual banquet was then discussed and it was decided that the chamber of commerce would give a banquet on Tuesday, January 25.

A number of new committees were appointed and two vice-presidents were elected.

There are a number of projects to interest Lockney people during the coming year, and these projects are going to be put over. There will be an extension made to the city limits more paving is needed and it is a well known fact that a sewer line and water extensions must be made. Engineers are already looking over the field. If you have any plans you might suggest them to the chamber of commerce, for this body will serve as a directing unit for improvements made in the city. If you fail to cooperate it will mean that you are allowing others to represent what you might have done yourself. Some important announcements will be made at the next weekly meeting Monday, and it is hoped that a representative attendance may be had.

ANOTHER BANQUET

A banquet is a banquet, but some banquets are better than others. Tuesday night, January 25, (which is next Tuesday night) the Lockney Chamber of Commerce is going to give a banquet of the better kind, and if you fail to be present you will regret it for many months to come. The tickets will be given free to the members of the chamber of commerce and their wives, but it is necessary that you have the ticket, and you must get it before Tuesday at noon. Tickets may be had at the Beacon office at the secretary's office and at the Baker Mercantile. Get yours. The feed will be one of the best ever served in this city, and the program is sure to please.

Just remember if you are a chamber of commerce member, or you wish to work with that body during the year you are entitled to a free ticket.

FIRE TO CONTROL 1927 INSECTS

By R. R. Peppert, Entomologist, Extension Service A. & M. College At this time of the year the farmer has presented to him one of the best means of reducing insect pests for the coming season. Very few insects are active during the winter season, but have sought shelter from rain and cold in whatever coverings are available to them.

Ideal shelter thus provided them is found in trash along well drained fences and along ditch banks. Weed patches that catch and hold banks of grass, are sought out as winter quarters.

Fire applied to these waste places at this time kills insects in two ways: (1) many are killed outright; and (2) others that do not actually die, are unable to seek shelter on account of their individual sluggish condition, they quickly succumb to the cold and damp. Since the individual insects now lying dormant multiply their present numbers by hundreds as soon as the growing season opens, it will readily be seen how important are control measures practiced at this season.

Examples of insects so controlled are the boll weevil, squash bugs, chinch bugs, tarnished plant bugs, various kinds of stink bugs, and many others. Many of these cannot be controlled by any other means and so the method here advocated is important.

Not many insect pests hibernate in the open fields under conditions that make burning there of any great effectiveness, and since burning the crop residues removes organic matter crops, it is not to be advised except that is of great value to growing in particular cases. A community campaign of burning trash in waste places, however, is urged as early as possible now, and should greatly reduce insect damage next season where ever practiced.

LETTER FROM J. R. VANDERGRIFF OF FT. WORTH

The following is a letter received by the secretary of Chamber of Commerce, Ray B. McCorkle, from J. R. Vandergriff of Fort Worth, Mr.

Vandergriff was formerly a resident of Lockney: Fort Worth, Tex. Jan. 17

To the Chamber of Commerce of Lockney, Texas. Gentlemen:

I see from the newspapers you boys are doing a wonderful work in the securing of the Fort Worth & Denver Railroad, the Compress, oil mill, wholesale groceries, business houses, the $100,000 hotel and here's hoping you secure the textile mill, a canning factory, and I believe the rewards of your labors are just started, since you are getting new life, and are getting new blood (capital) in your town, and new capital will bring more capital, therefore, a busy Lockney.

I hope the Chamber of Commerce will continue to be up and doing, bringing in more capital till you have a real live town, till all this business is represented in your town, then each and every man will have more and better business than you have now, so that I suggest that every man with in the corporate limits at least join the Chamber of Commerce, and put your shoulders to the wheel and push, yes, push for more and bigger businesses to come to your town, yes, bigger business men to make better business for the little business men. You have the ground floor laid to work on, so now get cheap electricity, good high ways, especially the Lee highway That will bring untold numbers of people to your country, and when you procure cheap electricity to pump your water with, you will have another Colorado. And settle people on twenty and forty acre tracts and you will have business, yes, cash business, for the eyes of the U. S. are on the South Plains.

One thing more I would suggest, and that is have a live reporter to the Record-Telegram to report what you are doing, and what is being done in and around Lockney.

I am with you in spirit if absent in body. Let's go.

On to greater and better things, J. R. Vandergriff, Fort Worth Texas.

MOCK BANQUET

A mock banquet was given in the English room, of Lockney High School Monday, Jan. 17, 1927. Bill Moseley, president of the Senior Class, presided as toast master. In his short talk he told the purposes of the banquet and announced that speeches were in order concerning the upbuilding of Lockney High School.

Eddie Hammit, the first speaker on the program, gave a talk on the English department. She said that this department has greatly improved in the last four years. English, as a subject is no longer hated as it has been, but the English department is considered one of the best. Mary Collier expressed the Senior's opinion of Miss Bridges. Mary said that Miss Bridges deserved a great deal of praise for her English department work.

The Home Economics department was discussed by Irene Ritchey. She said this department was a help to the school as well as the girls.

Annetta Johnson said that the greatest needs of our history department were the needs of new maps and fiction books. She also said that the school should take a monthly current historical magazine.

A reading was given by Bonnie Micky.

Earl Rives gave a good talk on the consolidation of schools. Venera Norris and Carl Meriwether also made interesting talks on this subject.

The Spanish department, the Mathematics department and the Science department were discussed by Mable Anderson, Lillian Powell, and Joe Mewshaw.

Joseph Nall talked on the educational improvement of our school.

Irene Williams gave the needs of our library. She said that not only needed new books but we also needed a larger library. Ernest Tanahill and Jaunita Cowart gave the means by which we could enlarge our library. Joe Golden also added a few interesting points to this discussion.

The greatest need of Lockney high school was given by R. L. Orman. He said that in his opinion a gymnasium was out greatest need. Fred Mullins agreed with him because he was then wearing a blackeye as a result of outside practice.

"Football" Listen, at "Son and Girl". They said that we had the best team in this part of the country.

Bertha Hall was discussed by Travis Cowart, Lydia Mann and Lucy Ewing.

Margie Anderson told us the significance of the Pop Squad. A special doll of yours was given to our sponsor, Mrs. Gethner.

Edwin Rooder gave a poem in honor of the Senior Class. The program was discussed by the boys. One of the speakers said the boys there were three necessary things to beautify our campus and they were grass, trees and flowers. Last, but not least, the ukelele girls sang two selections.

FERGUSON PARDONS NORFLEET SWINDLER

AUSTIN, Jan. 15.—Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson has signed a proclamation granting a full pardon to W. B. Spencer, sentenced to eight years from Tarrant county in connection with the swindling of J. Frank Norfleet of Hale Center by a group of confidence men.

Spencer was convicted in March 1924, after Norfleet had brought all the accused men to trial. He was pardoned partly because of chronic rheumatic trouble it was learned.

Benjamin Hollings has been pardoned on condition that he remain with James E. Ferguson for six years. He was convicted in Van Zandt county in 1919 for murder and given a 99-year sentence.

Hollings under the terms of the proclamation is to be given his board clothing, and $15 per month for six years which he must serve Ferguson. At the end of the time he will be free.

Hollings is a negro, unmarried and a chauffeur by trade and it is understood that he will serve Ferguson in this capacity. His home is in Neches.

MOVE TO BUILD A HATCHERY HERE

Realizing the importance of the poultry industry in this section of the State, and knowing that the absence of a mammoth hatchery in this city can hardly retard progress, members of the Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring a movement that will, if successful, guarantee the erection of a modern 25,000 egg hatchery in this city.

P. B. Hill, an experienced poultry man, will probably be chosen to manage this plant.

Subscription lists are on the streets this week and it is thought that it will not be a difficult task to raise the necessary $5,000 of which $2,000 must be cash. The plant, if purchased will be in operation in less than thirty days which will make it possible to handle at least five large spring hatches.

Both farmers and business men and professional men are subscribing for stock in the new company.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On Fifteen Per Cent Bonds

Mrs. Norris beamed as she greeted Aunt Emmy and exclaimed, "Now I know all my financial worries are over! I wanted to tell you right away..."

"What have you bought this time?" Aunt Emmy demanded suspiciously. "Well, I haven't paid the money over yet, but I have found the levellest investment where my money will be perfectly safe and will earn a nice income for me right away..."

"Don't jump at conclusions so fast!" said Aunt Emmy. "I did not say that a bond is as safe as a church if the company that issues it is financially sound..."

Mason County Michigan, bankers are pushing hard to replace scrub stock with pure-bred cattle. The plan as outlined by the county agent is to purchase young pure-bred sires and place them wherever a farmer is found who is willing to co-operate in the proposition...

Housework Worth $900 a Year, but—

Nine hundred dollars a year is the value of the average housewife's services in the home, and statistics show there are 20,700,000 women engaged in housework according to Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, prominent Chicago woman lawyer and economist.

"The wife," said Mrs. Meder, who was formerly commissioner of public welfare of Chicago, "is an executive, purchasing agent, budget expert, and producer rolled into one. The successful home maker studies food values. She arranges her budget so that the food she buys will have all the necessary body building qualities."

"Milk, food experts say, is the most nearly perfect food. Science solved the problem by inventing evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk sterilized in cans and with sixty per cent of the water removed. Because evaporated milk is of double the richness of ordinary market milk, many housewives dilute it half and half with water for cooking purposes. Keeping longer than ordinary milk, there is no waste from souring. Then, too, it is cheaper."

"Savings also can be made on meat. Cheaper portions of beef skillfully cooked are highly nutritious and often better tasting than portions which cost more. The shoulder, breast and stew meat of lamb are excellent. Pork shoulders, feet, tails, heart, spine and hocks are in the same category."

Suffered weak, nervous

"I WAS in a very weakened, run-down condition, surely in need of a tonic and builder," says Mrs. J. R. Wrenn, of Anna, Texas. "I was so weak I had to go to bed, and kept getting weaker. I suffered with my back so much. I was very nervous, couldn't rest good at night. I couldn't eat anything—I just wasn't hungry. I had read so much of Cardui, I thought best to use it. I took seven or eight bottles, and by the time I had taken them I was stronger than I had been in several years. I can highly recommend Cardui." Thousands of other women have found that the tonic effects of the purely vegetable ingredients of Cardui were just what they needed to help restore their appetites, to help bring them easily and naturally back to normal health and strength. Its action has been found to be of great benefit in many common female ailments. Buy it at your druggist's.

HALE COUNTY FARMERS BUY JERSEYS

The development of the dairy-farming industry in Hale County and the Plainview country made another big advance recently with the importation of sixteen pure bred Jersey bulls from Ohio, the pioneer dairy state of the Union, to be used in the formation of three additional bull circles in Hale County. County Agent Paul Huey of Plainview, working in cooperation with the bankers of Hale county, sixteen dairy farmers, The Hale County Dairy Association, numerous Jersey enthusiasts of the county, the extension department of A. & M. College of Texas, and the various Jersey clubs of the State and Nation including The American Jersey Cattle Club and its affiliated organizations, handled the importation of the animals, and personally selected them from herds visited on Ohio farms.

Contract will likely be awarded for these improvements before the close of the present year.

MOODY IS NOW THE GOVERNOR

SOME OF THE THINGS THAT THE NEW EXECUTIVE WILL BE IN FAVOR OF

By Silliman Evans
Staff Correspondent Star Telegram
Moody made more than 100 speeches during his preliminary campaigns. His demand for a responsible government, administered by those accountable to the law and responsible to the people was the principle burden of the speeches he made, but from time to time he discussed his views on general governmental policies.

Often Expressed Views.
Frequently he talked informally with newspaper correspondents who travelled with him, and frankly spoke his views on State affairs. It is therefore, possible to make a fairly accurate forecast of what he is likely to recommend to the Legislature.

Probably the outstanding question for all Legislatures to consider is that of revenue and taxation, and if Moody incorporates, as it is predicted he will, his independent ideas on these affairs, the Fortieth Legislature and the Moody administration may go down in history as marking a new epoch in revenue reform. Moody's message will not haggle over dollars and cents. There will be no jingle of demands for new taxation measures, and an increase in taxes. It will be notable for a lack of taxation demand, either punitive or revenue raising.

Moody's conception of the revenue policy of the State is known to be in favor of a radical reform in the whole taxation machinery of the government. He would have a constitutional amendment passed, which would permit the Legislature to subdivide the tax-raising functions of the State between the county units and the State so that all the ad valorem taxes would go for the maintenance of the county governments, the amount to be determined by county authorities, while gross receipts, occupation and franchise and intangible tax revenues will be exclusively for the benefit of the state government. Such a plan has long been in the new governor's mind.

Its adoption would cut the gorbian knot of tax equalization. If Tarrant county needed $200,000 a year for the upkeep of Tarrant County's political machinery the ad valorem taxes would be levied so as to produce just that amount of money.

It would not have to pay a part of the expenses of some other county. The constant inducement would be, both because of the fact that county levying officials would be closer to the people and more directly responsible to their wishes than the State officials, and because of civic pride in a low tax rate, in favor of as small a tax as possible. Economy would be practiced by the county officials. Extravagance of county officials in Southwest Texas counties under the present system would, in a measure offset the tax rate of North Texas counties and vice versa, but under the Moody reform proposal which, if he carries into his message his known views on tax issues, every county would stand on its own merits.

Is Not Committed
A railroad which runs from Texarkana to El Paso pays taxes in each of the counties on an ad valorem basis. It would be a state wide railroad. Could it not more easily, render its tribute to the State at large than to each of the counties through which it operates?

Moody is not irrevocably confirmed to the seperation, although it might not be surprising to see him bend his every energy to this reform. He has always been committed to a tax survey. He proposed it in his resolution was passed during the special session of the Legislature but Moody is now in favor of a tax survey not as a primary proposition he would favor it as an alternative if the other plan failed to commend itself to the Legislature.

The likelihood is that the new governor will openly propose a revenue session. He might not in so many words, tell the Legislature that it should take the present session for general, a special session on revenue and an extraordinary session for appropriations, but his message may tell the Legislature that the membership may be prepared for special sessions, if such are necessary to a calm deliberate consideration of legislation.

Things He Admits.
Principal things advocated by Moody in his campaign and which would be predicted, he stressed in his message to the Legislature, are—economy in government, correction of the evils of taxation and a general fiscal reform, court reformation, a classified civil service, election reform, a change in the highway laws, a more liberal libel law and higher salaries for State officials.

The State is facing a certain deficit of $2,000,000 in September—the end of the fiscal year. Moody has been apprized of this by the State officials who have made the closest survey of the financial affairs of the state. He contended in every speech that he made that the need was not new revenues but for a careful contraction of the machinery of the state government. He is likely, in the very first part of his message, to make public the financial condition of the State, and to implore of the Legislature its assistance in making a more economic administration of the government. He would like to see a reduction in the number of the State employees.

Pledged to Reform.
Moody, in his opening speech, and many other addresses during the campaign, frankly stated that he believed in the radical reform of the judiciary. In the first place he would see an amendment to the constitution which would permit nine, instead of three members of the Supreme Court of Texas. As a lawyer he has never believed the present Commission of Appeals as satisfactory. After all the Supreme Court must finally pass on all decisions, and so frequently must do so when they have never heard the arguments, or gone over the motion for appeals. The commission acts in a way, as a clerical body, going through the routine for the court.

The Governor-elect's first introduction to Texas was as a prosecuting attorney. He is therefore deeply interested in criminal law. He has always believed manslaughter should be eradicated from the statute books of the state and if he carries into his message his views on the matter he will recommend it. He would bring about a radical reform in the processes of appeals in criminal cases, so that technicalities can not be so easily made available to the convict. He would furthermore reform the statute books covering joint indictments so that severance would be a matter of the discretion of the court rather than a demandable right of the accused.

Would Swap Judges.
Instead of the creation of new district judges, for which there is an inevitably large demand at every session of the Legislature, Moody would provide for the swapping of the district judges, or the assignment of judges from idle courts to busy ones. He has so often expressed the views in private conversation that he thought that, every clerk should keep the supreme court advised, say quarterly, of the condition of the docket the court could when the docket became congested, assign some idle district judge to the busy court.

Of course there will be remarks in his message about pardons. The right of pardon is sovereign to the governor. It would be foolish to discuss removal or limitation of it. However, Moody will make it clear that during his administration there will be no wholesale pardons. He would have it so that when application for pardon is made the prosecuting attorney in the case where the convict was sentenced would be notified, as well as the sheriff, and full opportunity given to pardon. Moody believes that where a convict has been found guilty and convicted, the presumption should be that he is guilty of the offense, received a fair trial and an adequate sentence.

For Highway Reform.
Governor-elect Moody has contended through the campaign, and up to the present time, that there should be highway reform. There will be no bitterness of recrimination in his message. He could hardly go into any extensive discussion of the highway situation, however, without laying the blame at the door of the former administration. The name of the Fergusons will not be mentioned in the message, it was predicted Saturday by a Williamson county man who remarked that Moody has always been fair in victory and that he desires the administration to look forward rather than backward.

Principal points in the highway reform, if his message contains—as it is confidently predicted it will—the symposium of his views as reflected during the campaign:

First—A commission of sound discretion and judgement, and not hindered by lengthy and elaborate statutes.

Second—Competent and well paid engineers and technical experts.

Third—The retention of the the state department of maintenance, but the suggestion that, so much as possible, and if found practical, that the counties be used to carry on maintenance 1-8 under State supervision.

Fourth—The complete reclassification of the highways under first, second and third division, the first to be the important through-state highways serving the whole state; the second to be the less important regional highways, and third the inter-county but not vital highways.

Fifth—Greater power of counties and the sitting in by Commissioners Courts with the State Commission, in the letting of contracts and the selection of types.

Sixth—More liberal provision for the construction of lateral roads.

Moody is faced, as a practical proposition and will say that in a future message, he will not go into details on this matter.

He is in favor of reasonable amendments to the libel laws—a platform demand, and one that he has so frequently made.

In his message, is it reasonably sure Moody will not go into the Ferguson matter. He has never been a partisan and never carries grudges. But he will go fully into an elaboration of the views he expressed in these introductory remarks.

Moody said in every speech that he was opposed to any raise in taxation, but in his Greenville speech he declared that rather than see the public school of highway system suffer, he position, with the fact that there has been a literal multiplicity of designations. So great has been the mileage of designated roads, that if they were all to be properly maintained, the burden of finances would overwhelm the tax pays of the State. Division of the designated highways into three different kinds is therefore necessary. No designation would be withdrawn, under the Moody plan, if he incorporates his ideas about it in his message. Instead the really important highways would be taken care of first; the less important later along.

Statutes prescribing policies and limiting the authority of the commission, and seeking to say what it can and what it can not do, is Moody's belief, would result only in a mass of misunderstanding, and really hamper the efficiency of the commission. He would not have the Legislature make such laws. He would rather have the confidence in the administration of the commission by really efficient men.

For the financing of the system, he urges the closest consideration by the Legislature. If it is necessary for an immediate new tax he would raise the gasoline tax. One cent is regarded as Moody's plan, although he probably would not go as far as suggesting the amount to the Legislature. He is certainly opposed to the plan proposed formerly would change the present division of license fees while raising the gasoline tax—which would really result in a loss.

State auditing and accounting system He is opposed to the creation of any new commissions, and in his Beaumont speech he suggested that the board of control do the auditing. He is for a classified civil service. In his second Tyler speech he made it clear that he would not have any of whose duties are discretionary placed in the civil service, but the sub-ordinates clerks etc., so that they would be free from politics. He would not have, he said at Tyler, and he is reasonably sure to make this suggestion in his message, have a new commission, but would have a commission of clerks composed of clerks of higher courts. Fees for examination would finance the commission.

Election reform must come. He is in favor of that. He said so in that short resume he made in every one of his campaign speeches. Moody will not discuss, this it is believed, in his first message, further than to point out the demand and the need for a tax, and suggested a gasoline tax. The need of new revenue will be discussed, it is likely, in only one phase of his message, and that will be relative to highways. In the face of needs for funds, Moody will probably propose a gasoline tax, but will not mention how great an increase. It is likely that a one cent raise might be agreed on.

SANTA FE STATION NOW HAS NEW OPERATOR

How to Keep "Kids" Off Street

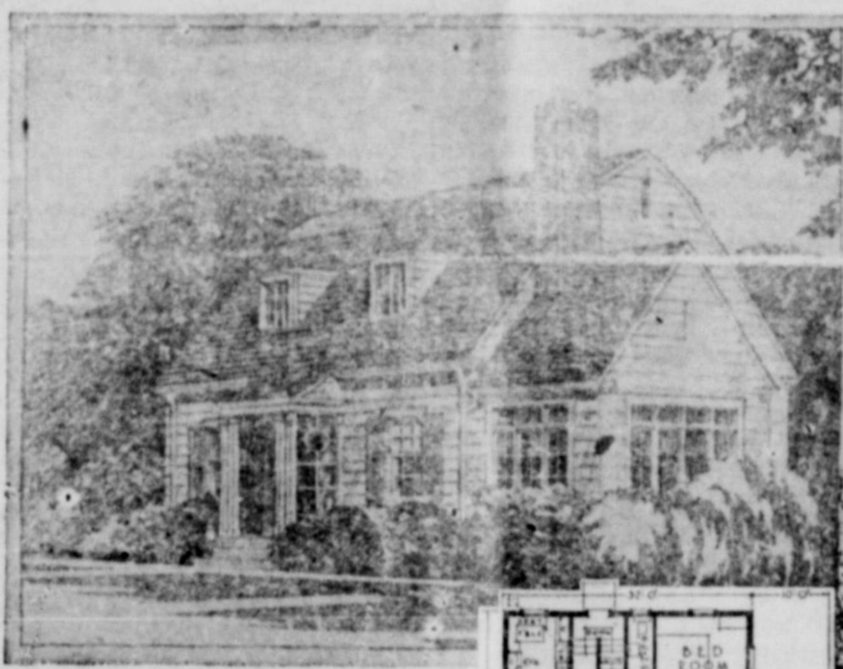

When the Dadson family out in Vancouver, B. C., bought two cornets and a trombone for their three children—the eldest of whom was then but six—the neighbors viewed the musical project with decided skepticism.

"Father" Dadson, however, had ideas of his own, and the doubts of the neighbors worried him not one iota. He believed that children "run the streets" because there is nothing in the average home to hold their interest. He believed that with a definite something in the home it would be the home, and not the streets, that would see the most of his children. Further, he believed that music could supply that definite something. At least it was worth a trial.

The above picture, from the Com Music Center files, goes far toward telling the rest of the story of his experiment.

His three children—Billy is now eight, Hector is six and Mona is four—are now real musicians. Recently they tried their instruments on a nationally known vaudeville circuit. "Just to see what it was like," critics pronounced that act the feature of the bill. "Father" Dadson, however, is more interested in the fact that the act is the feature of the home.

Every Inch a Real Home Is This Colonial Type

A LIVING-ROOM forty feet long—that is practically what one has in this exceptionally well planned Colonial house. The living-room extends on one side into the dining-room, set off only by two small china closets, and on the other into the sunroom. The whole effect is one of spaciousness and hospitality.

Another outstanding feature is the downstairs bedroom, which can be used as sickroom, guest chamber, playroom or sewing room, as occasion arises. The stairways are compactly arranged and well out of sight. There are closets and storage space enough to please the most acquisitive housekeeper.

White, cream or grey paint may be used on the siding with shutters, trim and roof in harmonizing colors. The walls and roof are made to resist heat and cold by insulating with celotex. The cost of building may be kept down by excavating only half of the house, taking care to insulate the unexcavated half with a layer of celotex in order to keep the house easily in the coldest weather. A further saving may be effected by finishing off the walls of the second floor rooms with celotex instead of lath and plaster.

Left either plain painted, stained or finished with a dainty stencil such walls are extremely effective and durable. © Celotex Institute, Chicago, 1926.

Music for "Sissies"? Listen to These Boys

Elkhart, Ind.—The age-old contention that boys consider music as something for "sissies" is exploded in a survey brought to light by the Com Music Center here.

More boys want to study music than do girls, questions put to 5,000 children between the fourth and ninth grades revealed. Forty per cent of the boys announced a willingness to study music if given an opportunity. Thirty-seven per cent of the girls manifested interest.

Parental influence was seen in the fact that while only 18 per cent of the musically interested expressed a preference for the piano, 50 per cent were studying that instrument. Only 12 per cent were interested in the violin, yet 20 per cent were taking lessons on the bow and fiddle.

The saxophone, the banjo and the cornet took honors for preference among the boys. None studying these instruments was dissatisfied. Among the extremely young boys the lowly harmonica ranked high.
