

Many Good Letters in Hidden Word Contest

Ralph Mosley Wins First; Margaret Collier, Second; and Mrs. Elmer Giesecke, Third

In response to the "hidden words" contest, which ran in a page advertisement in the Beacon last week, we received many answers, from which to pick the winners. After a close survey of the letters, we have awarded the three prizes as follows: Ralph Mosley, whose letter was first to arrive at the office, was given first place. It covered the subject thoroughly, was brief, and to the point. Second place went to Margaret Collier, and third place was awarded Mrs. Elmer Giesecke.

All letters received, with the exception of two, had the wording right as the letters in the advertisement spelled "The New World," therefore the decision was given on the best explanatory letter as to why the words were correct.

Below we print the three prize winning letters and checks will be mailed to the contestants this morning:

Dear Sir:
When Columbus looked thru his telescope that October day in 1492 he saw, "The New World," a land that had up until that time had not been known to exist. Columbus was seeking a shorter route to India and perhaps did not realize that the land he had found was destined to become greater than India ever could be.

I am sure the three words, "The New World" are the correct answer to this contest because the eleven letters given make up the words perfectly using no one letter twice.

Trusting this wins the five, I am,
Hopefully yours,
Ralph B. Mosley.

Dear Sir:
Our American History states that on April 17, 1492 Columbus set sail searching for a shorter and safer route to India than the one previously used.

On October 11, 1492, according to history, Columbus sighted land which later proved to be America or, "The New World."

Since "The New World" has the exact number of letters in it that you printed in the Beacon, I believe that I am correct in stating that "The New World," was the discovery Columbus made on the eleventh of October, 1492.

Yours truly,
Margaret Collier.

Answer to your contest in the Lockney Beacon of September 22, 1927 "THE NEW WORLD"

Every school-boy and girl know the story of Columbus; his three shiploads of released prisoners, gamblers, etc., as they sailed from Genoa, Spain, searching for a nearer route to India. On one memorial October day, he discovered what he thought, was the eastern coast of Asia. But we understand very clearly now, that it was not India he saw, but "THE NEW WORLD."

Water Superintendent Is Employed

WILL BEGIN DUTIES ON FIRST OF MONTH; NEW WATER PLANT NOW IN OPERATION

At the meeting of the City Council Monday night, H. A. Harris of this city, was employed as water superintendent, to begin his duties on the first day of October. The duties of the new superintendent will take care of the pumping station, run the water works system, act as fire chief, read all water meters and keep strict account of collections, the installation of all connections and look after and keep in repair all fire plugs and keep all fire fighting apparatus in first class condition.

The new engine and pumps have been turned over to the city, and from now on there should be no shortage in the water supply, as the capacity of the water works system is sufficient to take care of a town several times the present population.

The Council ordered that City Marshal Cope to put signs in the center of the street between Locust and College streets on Main, warning that they would allow no parking in the center of the street. Parking in the center of the street of late has caused congestion of traffic until it is almost impossible to get through, and the City Marshal has been ordered to enforce the parking laws of the city.

The work will begin on the sewer system of the city just as soon as the bonds are approved and the money paid to the city by the bond buyers, which should be within the next few days. The city has already a big sewer ditcher on the ground, and it is being used at the present time putting in a water extension on North Main Street. This machine will be put to work digging the ditches for the sewer just as soon as the money for the bonds is received.

Making Improvements At Farmers Elevator

FARMER'S GRAIN CO., BUILDING WAREHOUSE AND DUMP FOR HEADED GRAIN

The Farmer's Grain Company of this city are now building a modern warehouse and dumping device for headed grain at an expenditure of about $8,000. According to R. C. Ayres, owner and manager of the company.

The compressed air dump for headed grains is one of the newest and most modern devices known to this section of the country for the handling of headed sorghum grains. The dumping machine works on practically the same plan as the wheat and threshed grain dump. "It is one of the most practical and efficient labor saving devices, on the part of both the laborer and farmer I have ever seen," Mr. Ayres stated.

The headed grain warehouse which is being built in connection with the headed grain dump is 26 x 100 feet and is twenty-six feet high.

Mr. Ayres, who was formerly in the grain business at Plainview, has been one of the outstanding grain men of this section for the past several years. He was the first man in this section of the country, to ship in a carload of poultry feed, which was shipped to Plainview in 1917; the first to install type registering truck scales; the first to install the compressed air truck and wagon dump for threshed grains; and now the first to install in the entire Panhandle section what is known as the compressed air dump for maize and kaffir heads.

1.10 Inches of Rain Every Lockney Country

Slow Rains of Monday and Tuesday Reach All Parts of Lockney Country

Slow rains fell over the Lockney country Monday and Tuesday of this week. On Monday a half inch rain was recorded at the weather gage in Lockney, and on Tuesday the rainfall was .50 of an inch, making a total of 1.10 inches for the two days.

The rain was of much value to the farmers of this section, as it will be sufficient to bring up the wheat that has been dry planted, and will put the ground in good shape for planting where the wheat has not yet been planted.

First Bale of 1927 Cotton Arrived Friday

E. C. BROWN, 7 MILES NORTH OF TOWN BRINGS IN FIRST BALE

The first bale of 1927 cotton was brought to town by E. C. Brown, farmer living seven miles northeast of Lockney, late Friday afternoon. There were 1440 pound of seed cotton, and the bale turned out 485 pounds of lint cotton, which graded middling cotton and sold for 21 cents per pound.

The bale was ginned at the West Texas Gin Company's plant on North Main street, Mr. Cox, manager, ginning the bale free of cost, and bought the bale of cotton paying 21 cents per pound.

A subscription list was circulated by Fay Guthrie, secretary of chamber of commerce and a premium of $46.50 was raised, making the bale total $148.35.

The cotton was picked off nine acres which was planted on the fifth day of May, Mr. Brown stating that he expected his cotton to make about a half bale to the acre this year. The staple of the cotton brought in was good, being probably an inch long.

Lectures to School Children Thursday

FAMOUS EX-MIDDLE WEIGHT RING CHAMP SPEAKS TO SCHOOLS ON CLEAN LIVING

"There is not a good man, physically speaking, alive, who smokes cigarettes," was the fiery words hurled by Tommy Ryan, ex-middle weight boxing champion of the world, to the children of Lockney Public schools last Thursday. And he proved it beyond doubt to those present—proved it by doing at the age of seventy-eight what the physically strong cigarette smoker cannot do in his prime of youth. Lifting a two-hundred pound weight with one or both hands at arm's reach above his head. Something which he challenges a cigarette smoker to do, with a prize of $100 in addition.

His lecture was entirely on the subject of clean living and cigarette smoking. A lecture very plain and forceful in every respect, with feats of strength and endurance given throughout the lecture. Mr. Ryan explaining the benefits of clean living to the children, both young and old, did more for the student body, in both a moral and physical way, according to one of the ministers of the city, than a month of preaching on the subject would do.

Mr. Ryan was also the trainer of Theodore Roosevelt when he president of the United States, and the trainer of Jeffries, ex-heavy-weight champion. At the age of seventy-eight he is a physically perfect man, and attributes his being so to the fact that he has never touched tobacco, or intoxicating liquor in any form in his life, and his motto is: "Three squares a day, and no more, plenty of exercise, and fresh air."

Methodist Church

At the eleven o'clock hour we will observe Communion Service. During the summer months we have been irregular in this, the most precious of all services. Be on hand Sunday if not providentially hindered.

Geo. Truett says, "No minister, however gifted can build up a church without the enthusiastic co-operation of the membership. Any minister however limited can do it if he has that co-operation."

We know from experience that the Lord loves a cheerful giver, and find our faith in Him much stronger when we live up to our church vows.

Come and bring some one with you.—T. J. Rea, Pastor.

Missionary Society

Let all members be present next Monday in business and social meeting. Our pledges are due. It will soon be time for annual report. Let us be in our place and close out a good year.—Publicity Supt.

We are anxious for a large Sunday school next Sunday and we are praying for good services at both hours. If you have been hindered or careless in your attendance won't you make your plans to be with us regular? We are always glad when you are with us, but we are sorely disappointed when you fail to come. Let's make this the best year in the history of the church! Let's do everything with an eye single to God's glory! —C. J. McCarty, Pastor.

Isis Theatre Keeps Ahead of Surrounding Towns in Presenting New Pictures

Again the Isis Theatre is to show during the coming year the very latest Paramount pictures, and show them while they are new. Mr. O'Hearn, the owner and manager of the Theatre, has in the past shown the newest and best pictures released by the Paramount Corporation, and in most cases the pictures were shown in Lockney several weeks before they are exhibited in the towns surrounding. Mr. O'Hearn states that he has booked a number of the best pictures to be produced during the coming year by the Paramount Corporation and that these pictures will come to the Theatre early after they are produced, giving the people of Lockney an opportunity of seeing the pictures before they are shown in nearby towns. Mr. O'Hearn is very careful in the selection of the pictures he exhibits in Lockney, and generally the pictures he shows here are the very best pictures that can be obtained, and the very latest productions.

AUTO HEADLIGHTS

Auto headlight law enforcement resembles the measles or chickenpox. We read of epidemics of enforcement activities in various parts of the country occasionally and then the usual condition of lassitude comes back and headlights appear on the streets and the country roads again.

Texas has a headlight law. It is an unseemly statute—a toothless law—but our own. It might be enforced. It never has been—but it might be. No one ever knows just what miracle is just around the corner. If all the country road motor cycle policemen all the policemen in the cities and even a respectable modicum of non-violators of traffic laws and signals would combine an effort, the thirteenth wonder of the world might be erected in our well known midst.

The streets and country roads are a conglomerated mess of variegated lights at night. It reminds us of nothing quite so much as the ancient story of the baldheaded man, the flies and the bee. Strung along a stretch of country roads there will be a dozen or more of different powered lights getting along with each other with or less adjectived success, until suddenly a pair of searchlights will come swooping over a hill and, in effect, say, "Now you can all get off." And the place that many of them get off is the ditch by the side of the road. Nobody stops the bully. If he were questioned, he more than likely would show a light certificate. It wouldn't apply to the present lights on his car but it will take a trip to a certified light inspector to determine that and there is nobody at hand to escort him there. So the blinded car driver drags his car out of the ditch and paves the return trip with highly justified anathema.

It would be interesting to know when the last arrest was made for violation of the headlight law; what per cent of car owners are keeping their lights according to inspection certificates; what percent of the car owners will not secure an inspection certificate until they need one to secure a new license plate for 1928? In the meantime, all drivers having a blinding headlight are endangering their lives.—Fort Worth Record Telegram.

We believe that the automobile headlight law is possibly the greatest farce that has ever been put on the statute books. It is a law that is absolutely impossible to live up to. No one can do it. You are required to have your lights tested and adjusted before you can pay the license on your car. That is all well and good, but this is only done once a year, and probably the test does not last thirty minutes after you leave the testing garage. If a man happens to but into another car or have a head on collision with a garage door, or something that will throw the light out of plumb, then they are out of line for the balance of the year. There are hundreds of ways by which the lights may be changed, and the adjustment is not made more than once a year. We do not believe there is one bit of benefit to be derived from it, and that is the reason we call it a farce, and we believe it should be repealed. It is a needless expense to the car owner, and of no benefit whatever to the public.—Lubbock Avalanche.

The above articles show distinctly the right and wrong attitudes toward law enforcement. The Star Telegram is correct and every sane man that drives an automobile will verify the fact. If you drive a car on the roads at night, you know just how mad you get when a car meets you with flaring headlights and forces you to either stop or risk your life by driving blindly toward the flaring headlights. You cannot see whether you are going into the ditch or going to run into the approaching car, and you take your life and lives of the people in your car in to your hands when you fail to stop to let the car with the flaring headlights by. The law should be enforced for it would be a protection not only to the man who keeps his lights adjusted, but also to the person with the blinding headlights, because a blinded driver is just as apt to run into the car with blinding headlights as he is the ditch. The contention taken by the Lubbock paper shows one of two things, he either changes his lights after they have been inspected, or else he has no car and does not know the curse of flaring, blinding headlights to the car owners of this country. Narrow highways, deep ditches and blinding headlights is a terrible chance that every driver of an automobile faces every time he goes out on the roads in this section of the country after dark. Putting the ban on blinding headlights is a good step toward safety. However, the state should see that the lights are tested by capable men, and that they are really tested and not just merely a receipt issued by the inspector, and any time a flaring headlight shows up, the highway and traffic officers should warn the car owner to quit running the car until he could show a new receipt from the inspector, and if he failed to comply with the warning immediately, take his automobile license away from him, and force him to pay a fine for using the highways in such a dangerous manner. Lights will go out of adjustment occasionally, but the driver is the first person to find this out, and he can tell very quickly when his lights are out of adjustment by the action of the cars he passes on the highways. Safety should be the first consideration of all car drivers, and those who are reckless and do not care for the other fellows' rights on the highways should have the attention of the hand of the law.

WHAT'S DOING IN WEST TEXAS

More than 250 farmers, business men and their families took part in the annual gathering. An Open Letter to the Editor

From the President of General Motors

LAST SPRING I wrote you that my belief in the country newspaper had led us in General Motors to decide to advertise our products together in the small-city press of the country.

The returns from the series of the messages recently published have justified that faith; and we shall continue to advertise in your community through your newspaper this fall.

It occurs to me, however, that some of your readers may be asking: "What is General Motors?" and "Why is General Motors?" These are fair questions and I should like to answer them as frankly as I can.

General Motors was organized some years ago on the theory that a group of large companies, working together, could render a better service than they could separately. In this we simply applied to industry a principle that is as old as civilization as regards the human family and human progress.

Original members of the General Motors family were Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile, together with the Delco-Light Company and other well-known companies manufacturing automotive equipment. By joining together their resources, we were able to establish great Research Laboratories, a 1245-acre Proving Ground and the GMAC Plan of credit purchase; to effect vast economies in purchase and manufacture and distribution; to assure and maintain the quality of every product in the General Motors family.

Has the General Motors family principle proved itself in practice?

The best answer, I think, is to compare the Chevrolet, Buick, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Oakland of today with the models of five or ten years ago.

Then add Pontiac, a General Motors creation. Add LaSalle, another General Motors creation. And then consider how General Motors has developed these cars into a complete line, within which any family may find a suitable quality car at the price it plans to pay: "A Car for Every Purse and Purpose."

Another example is Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator. General Motors had the resources to spend millions to develop a satisfactory refrigerator, and then to apply to its manufacture the same processes which have increased the utility and lowered the cost of the automobile.

We believe that this record justifies General Motors as an economic institution. Its products are quality products, first of all. Their prices represent the economies of united effort passed on to the purchaser. In the last year one in each three automobiles chosen by the public has been a General Motors car. The service of Delco-Light electric plants has extended to more than a quarter million homes, while Frigidaire has become the world's largest selling convenience of its kind.

We believe also that the values now offered in the current General Motors products (which are listed below) prove anew that "many minds are better than one" and that a family of companies, working together, can produce results which are decidedly in the public interest and of increasing benefit to the individual family.

Very truly yours,
Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President

DEVELOPMENT OF LOCKNEY

An era of development unrivaled in the history of the city; that is the opinion of the old timers as they exclaim, "I told you so."

Business men state production and prospects for future development are the two factors responsible for the coming of the railroad, and most people realize that farm diversification and faith in the country are the main factors in both production and development of the section. Building permits nearing the million dollar mark are no small matter for a city of 2,000, while the most conservative are prone to estimate that mark doubled in Lockney for the coming year with the first passage of Denver trains over the new Fort Worth and Denver South Plains tracks.

The building of an adequate railway system into this section has caused foreign capital to become interested. The Anderson-Clayton interests of Houston, Texas have practically completed one of the most modern oil mills in the state, and according to general manager, H. M. Mason a mixed feed mill designed to cater to the needs of the dairyman and cattle raiser will be operated in connection with the cotton oil mill.

The Texas Compress and Warehouse Company of Houston, Texas have purchased a block of ground at the intersection of the Santa Fe and Denver railways upon which they intend to build a compress large enough to handle the immense cotton crop that is usually produced in this section.

Distribution mains of the West Texas Gas Company are practically complete at this place and gas service is expected to be rendered by October 15th. This added convenience and economical fuel supply will tend to promote to the best advantage the coming of more enterprises and citizens into the city.

Business building and residences are now the order of the day, several of which are already completed, while other will start within the next few weeks.

In keeping with the development now taking place, the City of Lockney has expended $30,000 in the extension of its water mains, thus taking care of the industrial and additional resident districts. Lockney's municipal water system is now valued at $100,000. A sewer bond election has been held and passed favorably with only three dissenting votes, and with the passing of the issue the Attorney-General's department, contractors will start with the construction immediately of an adequate sewer system that will practically parallel every water line in the city, thus giving the residents a more convenient disposal plant and making the city a more sanitary place in which to live.

The above building program has been dependent upon the coming of the new rail line and the general development of the country complemented by a wheat crop unparalleled in the history of the Plains and very bright prospects for a good feed and cotton crop. Along with the bright prospects, this section is well stocked with hogs, poultry and dairy cows, thus making the development of the section a surety.

The building program for next year will overshadow the present program as one enterprise and development leads to another. A few of the mafor factors outlined in next years program are, a new high school building that will take care of a town of 5,000 population, a new church building, a canning factory, an ice plant, an adequate paving program, and the construction of more permanent business buildings and residences.

Third Tunney-Dempsey Fight Looms

DEMPSEY THINKS HE CAN WHIP TUNNEY; GENE THINKS VICE VERSA

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—Jack Dempsey has emerged from his second championship beating riding a new crest of popular favor, which, if he elects to ride it out, may carry him to a greater ring earning power than he ever knew before.

Definite talk of another battle of the century has been subdued and unofficial but there has been almost from the moments at Soldier's Field Thursday night that Gene Tunney's arm was raised to mark his second victory over Dempsey.

Tex Rickard, a shrewd diagnostician of public opinion, has shown signs of actual enthusiasm over a third Tunney-Dempsey fight and Tunney has indicated his willingness to meet Dempsey or anyone else the public may think is a match for him.

Dempsey's first reaction after the Soldier's Field fight was that it marked the end of his career. A day's seclusion and rest, with its inevitable retrospection, made him less certain. Today his attitude as reflected by his close associates seemed to be that Jack Dempsey might go back to the war trail again—and with a vengeance.

The picture of a new Tunney-Dempsey fight is sketched in the comment of three persons who could make such a fight possible—Tunney, Dempsey and Rickard.

Rickard: "I would be willing to promote another match if Jack would go over the same route as he did for this one—meeting some of the outstanding contenders."

Tunney: "Why shouldn't I? I could beat Dempsey every day in the week."

Dempsey: "I still think I can whip him. I am willing to meet him again."

The fourth and most vital element involved in a third fight between these two is the public, which paid $2,648,000 for Thursday night's spectacle and which might be called upon for as much or more for a third fight. There were signs today that promoters believe this public is not yet convinced that Dempsey is through.

Indicative of the Dempsey popularity even in defeat, Leo Flynn, manager of the former champion, announced today that he had received two offers for Dempsey to fight. Purposes for the two fights would be only $75,000 short of the sum Dempsey was paid for his ten rounds at Soldier's Field.

One offer, Flynn said, came from Cleveland promoters. They offered Dempsey $125,000 for a ten round fight with the Ohio heavyweight, Johnny Risko. Another offer, the source of which Flynn did not disclose, was for $250,000 if Dempsey would meet Jimmy Slattery, the Buffalo scrapper.

Statements attributed to Dempsey and saying that he acknowledged Tunney as the best man ever characterized by Dempsey as "the bunk."

"Tunney is a great boxer," Jack said. "I don't think there is a better one in the heavyweight division. But I still think I can whip him."

Says Dempsey "I read in the papers that the public does not want to see us fight again. He may be right, but I don't think the public is any too well satisfied with a champion who gets knocked down for a count of from 13 to 16 seconds and then dances around the ring three times trying to keep out of the challengers way."

"I don't think I am through fighting. Of course I may never get another fight. I can't tell about that. But I feel that I am in as good condition as I ever was and if a fellow will stand up and fight with me I can whip him."

Dempsey in his talk since the fight has been careful to reiterate that he has not and does not intend to be a "squawker."

"Get me right," he told one newspaper man. "I am not complaining about the fact that Tunney outpointed me, or that I didn't make as good a showing as my friends thought that I would."

Dempsey's own version of the seventh round at Soldier's Field, appeared in today's Chicago Tribune in these words:

"When Tunney fell I did go into a corner. Not a human being in Soldier's Field had even a faint suspicion that I would hit Tunney when he was down. No one in that crowd had any idea I would hit him when he was rising."

"I repeat that I did go into a corner. I was behind Tunney as the pictures will show. In spite of these things, the referee made me go into still another corner."

"All this took time. Second were years then. Those second used up in making me perform useless acts gave Tunney time to recover. That cost
