Home Comforts Reflected Here

Ties of Family and Domicile Keep the Residents Vivaly Interested in the Home Community

"Be it ever so humble, There no place like home." You cannot translate it into terms of money, for the meanness but may breathe more the true spirit of home than the richest palace, but when you talk to a half-headed business man about such tangible things as "love" and "patriotism" you have to "show him." Mere words do not go very far when it comes to a matter of separating him from his money, yet no man who maintains a home and does not respect those in it need hesitate about approaching such a business man for an extension of credit in case of necessity.

Where there is a large percentage of home-owners, as here, the community spirit is as strong as the combined "home" spirit of its respective citizens. The pride they take in their homes is only a part of the pride they take in their city. When lawns are neatly kept and houses well painted, there you will find good streets, corner lights, fire protection and honest officials. The presence of women and children spells schools and churches, libraries and clean civic life. The man who owns his home is the best booster a town can have—he is never sick of his bargain, and he is a living argument why a man should lose no time in acquiring a home of his own.

The men who own their homes are the backbone of a community as Lockney. They must own them, because the business of renting habitations to others, which has been largely developed in big cities, has happily not spread to communities the size of ours. The home-owning citizen is the bulwark of the nation. The home-owner and the home merchant are the hope of Lockney. As long as we have a home-owning citizen, we have a sound social and financial future. The one who will keep the business active and attract to its bound new enterprises. These two are interdependent. If we want Lockney to be a city of homes owned by those who occupy them, we must provide the magnet to attract them. The independence of a town that is largely self-sufficient that patronizes its home merchants and that owes no divided allegiance to a distant metropolis, is just what provides this attraction. A man who builds a home of his own is no "bird of passage," for if he did not expect to remain permanently he would defer building until he reached some place he liked better.

Lockney faces a glorious future. It is in the midst of no less glorious present. The way is plain, so that all who have the welfare of Lockney at heart may do their "bit" in making this period of reconstruction a permanent step forward in the up-building of Lockney.

LOSES LIFE IN WADING STREAM NEAR CANYON

Wade Beyond Depth and Attempts to Swim to Husband—Rescue Impossible

Canyon, June 2.—Mrs. W. A. Dyer, 610 Parker street, Amarillo, drowned in McFadden's lake near here late today, and W. V. Westfall, also of Amarillo, narrowly escaped drowning when he attempted to rescue her.

Mrs. Dyer had been fishing in the lake and had started to wade across it when she got beyond her depth. Her husband, a floorsander in Amarillo, was on the opposite side of the bank and when he saw she was in deep water, shouted to her to go back, but she told him she was going to swim across.

Westfall and several other men saw the woman struggling in the water and S. D. Turner, Jr., of this place, brought a horse which Westfall rode into the water. He attempted to pull Mrs. Dyer onto the horse with him, but in her struggling she pulled him from the horse.

Glen Griffin and G. C. Carter then threw him a rope which he fastened about Mrs. Dyer and she was pulled in.

Attempts to resuscitate her, after she had been brought to the shore, were futile.

Mrs. Dyer was 35 years old and is survived, besides her husband, by a year-old daughter and her father, C. Word of San Antonio.

A. Harris and family have moved back to Lockney from San Angelo, as they have been living for more a year. Mr. Harris is improving place near Irick, and the family make their home there in the

SAYS ESTIMATE ON WHEAT IS SET TOO HIGH

Santa Fe Expert Predicts Price Improvements As Harvest Advances

Topeka, Kans., June 1.—Encouragement to those looking for advanced wheat prices was given today in the monthly Santa Fe railroad crop report which envisions smaller southwestern crop totals than given in the initial forecasts.

J. F. Jarrell, head of the railroad's agricultural department, said his observers had not found wheat prospects as perfect as previously pictured.

Jarrell's comparative figures were: 1928 1929 Missouri 26,000,000 18,999,000 Illinois 42,500,000 18,915,000 Colorado 19,000,000 11,976,000 Nebraska 57,500,000 66,697,000 Oklahoma 51,000,000 59,575,000

Kansas Cut 10 Million
Jarrell estimated the Kansas wheat crop at 160,000,000 bushels, or more than 10,000,000 bushels less than his previous estimate a few days ago.

Unseasonably cold and rainy weather was attributed by Jarrell as the cause of the lessened prospects for the bumper crop in Kansas and Nebraska.

"While wheat in Kansas comes out of the month of May in condition ranging from fair to excellent, apparently it has lost opportunity to break records," Jarrell said.

"There are more bad spots now than there were a few days ago. These were caused by excessive moisture."

Railroads, Jarrell said, are in readiness to move the new crop. While it is expected to be heavy, much of the grain will be stored on the farms, he said.

Corn planting in Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas has been hindered because of rain. Kansas will have a million less acres in corn this year than last, Jarrell said.

The present low price of wheat was regarded today by the commerce department as a temporary menace to national prosperity, but one which may be dissipated by the law of supply and demand or by a smaller wheat crop than dealers anticipate.

Wheats drop on the market was attributed by the department to a surplus left from last year and to the confidence of dealers, not entirely warranted, in a large crop in the northwestern states this year.

SOLONS WOULD RAISE SALARY OF GOVERNOR

Proposed Amendments to Be Voted On July 15th: Nine-Member Court

Austin, June 1.—The Texas legislature has asked the voters to "give the governor a living wage."

The house and senate have invited the attention of voters to the amendments, increasing the governor's salary from $4,000 to $10,000, and of creating a nine-member supreme court, which will be voted upon July 15th.

Raising the governor's salary, effective more than a year hence, "is necessary in order to provide a living wage for the governor of Texas, and to make it practicable for a citizen, not possessed with great wealth, to serve as chief executive without ruinous sacrifice," the legislature said in a concurrent resolution.

This resolution invited newspapers to call attention to the importance of both the proposed amendments. It said further:

"Regardless of the merits of the proposals involved in these constitutional amendments, respectively, it is highly desirable and important that as nearly as possible, every qualified voter shall go to the polls on said date, Tuesday, July 16, 1929, and vote upon both amendments."

The resolution asked newspapers to "improve all reasonable opportunities, through their columns, to call attention of the people to the importance of these constitutional amendments, and to use the voters to attend the same." It also asked radio stations to similarly take notice of the elections.

Fairs and City Park Discussed Monday

Proposal to Use Old College Property for City Park is Made and Committee Appointed

At the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Monday at noon, a proposal was made that the city take over the old Christian college grounds in the eastern part of Lockney and convert same into a city park and fair ground for use of the community.

Mr. E. H. Rankin, commissioner of Precinct No. 2, has been appointed by the commissioners' court of Floyd county, as a trustee for the disposal of the old college grounds, and he is to sell the property. A committee composed of Dr. C. J. McCollum, as chairman, H. B. Adams, and S. W. Perry, were appointed at the meeting to get out a petition to the donors of the college asking all those who are willing to donate their share in the building and grounds to the City of Lockney for the purpose of making a city park and fair ground out of the property, and this petition will be drawn and circulated among those who have an interest in the old college grounds and buildings. Lockney has no city park or fair grounds at this time, and there is an outstanding need for a place of amusement and where the people of this section of the county can meet at any and all times and hold picnics, and gatherings of every nature, and this old college site would be an ideal location for a park and fair ground site, and if the city can secure the same, we can fit it out as a park and fair ground and organize a regular fair to meet here each year, also it can be used for all public meetings. Those holding interests in the property will be asked to sign the petition donating their interests to the City of Lockney, with the agreement that the site be used as a public park and fair ground.

The gathering of an exhibit of farm products was discussed and it was decided that an exhibit be gathered and arranged to be shown at the Oklahoma State Fair, the fair at Wichita, Kansas, and possibly fairs in Arkansas, Louisiana, and Alabama, and the exhibit will also be shown in Lubbock and Amarillo at their fairs. The cause of the early decision in this matter is that the wheat harvest is soon to start and the exhibit of oats, wheat, and the early grain must be gathered now in order to have them to make the farm exhibit complete for the fall fairs. The exhibit will be gathered on a large diversification of crops, and all farming, dairying, and poultry raising will be included in the exhibit, so that the outside world may know that there is really a section of the country where diversified farming is a success in most every line of crops that are grown in the South. It will be the purpose of the Lockney Chamber of Commerce to carry this exhibit to fairs where there has never heretofore been an exhibit shown from this immediate section of the Plains, and thereby let the people of other states know what kind of an agricultural country may be found in Floyd county and the Plains country.

Gid Waller Very Sick Past Week

Gid Waller, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Waller, has been very sick the past week, brought about by a serious case of tonsillitis. Gid had started home from his uncle's home in the northwestern part of town Sunday afternoon, when he was stricken and fell, he was carried to his home and remained unconscious for about twelve hours, and was in a critical condition, as the cord in his spinal column contracted until he was nearly bent double, and it was some time before medical aid was able to loose the tension in the spinal column. The doctors say that his trouble was occasioned by poison in his system from bad tonsils, from which he has been suffering for some time past. He is doing as well as could be expected at this time.

SILVERTON BOY MAKES PROJECTS PAY FOR SCHOOL

Silverton, June 1.—H. C. Claunch, president of the senior class here this year and who lives twelve miles south, is making enough profit from his vocational agriculture projects to finance his way through Texas Tech at Lubbock, where he will enter the second semester. His projects from which money is being banked consist of twenty acres of purebred milo field selected seed, thirty acres of pure seed of same crop, seven pigs that are being scientifically fed, fifty young turkeys, and he will develop five hundred baby chicks. In addition next winter he will feed out five baby beavers on grain raised on his project this year.

All We Know is What We Hear

(By Rasmittum)

Armed with a army six shooter and a knife a yard long "Aspiration" Barker made good his bluff and proceeded to show "Rasmittum" up to a finish at the Rotary Club luncheon last Friday. We were not in position to defend ourselves from this bloody onslaught as he took all advantages of us, and caught us unarmed, why we didn't even have a squirt gun with which to combat this bloody pirate. But, he can't get away with it, for the next time he puts in his appearance in the comedian role, we will prove that not even "Mary Garden" would let him act as bell-hop or curtain puller for her show. We still contend that his voice sounds like the croak of a bull-frog, and as for his ability as a golf player he could make more "Forsoms" with a "Tin Lizzie" than he can make with a golf driver. He may make believe that us and Jim Ferguson are good friends, but he will never be able to convince the public that he is fit for grand opera or a champion on the golf links. Nuf sed.

Yes, J. H. Roberson is to have a new wife, and the matrimonial rites were to have been performed yesterday, when he was to have led a blushing bride to the altar somewhere in the vicinity of Mineral Wells. J. H. was dressed up like a Christmas tree, and parading around in Lockney the latter part of last week, preparatory to relinquishing his freedom to one of the fair sex Wednesday of this week. We have not as yet heard where, when, and how the ceremony took place, but he told us that it was going to happen and that he and his bride would put in their appearance in Lockney, some time the latter part of this week. J. H. looked twenty years younger and was getting around like a colt just before he left Lockney for Mineral Wells the weekend.

Otis Harris left Sunday for Dallas, to spend several days. He will go from there to the Rio Grande Valley, where C. E. Stone Co. are installing several new stores.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT?

Every man who opposes paving highways is cutting off his own nose to spite his face. We have just returned from a double trip to Central Texas. Within the last two weeks we have been down there and back twice, and we took occasion to do a little checking up on the difference between dirt roads and paved roads, and we found that in a stretch of 163 miles we used as much gasoline on common dirt roads, and these dirt roads were in good shape, just as good as the dirt roads of the Plains are when they are in the very best of condition, as we used on 200 miles of paved roads, and the roads that were paved were even more hilly and longer pulls than the roads that were not paved. More than that we used red gasoline on the unpaved roads, which gives more mileage per gallon than clear gasoline, and used clear gasoline on the pavement, which cost three cents a gallon less than the red gasoline. In other words we made 37 miles more distance on the same amount of gasoline, which meant a saving of 2 1-2 gallons of gas, and then a saving of 3c on the grade of gasoline, which totaled a saving of 54 1-2c on the gasoline bill, not saying what the saving on tires and wear and tear on the car amounted to. Bonds to pave roads in Floyd county would not cost the average tax payer more than $3 to $4 a year, and he would save practically 1-4 of a cent per mile on the gasoline that he used in his car. If he traveled as much as 1200 to 1600 miles per year he would save enough money on his gasoline alone to pay the paving taxes. Can you afford to oppose something that will make you money like paved roads will do?

What's Doing in West Texas

May 31.—Mobeetie is growing a new town within the radius of the old since the new railroad has been secured. Lots were recently sold at a hitherto unheard of price. Plans are made and foundations are being laid for buildings which are to make the town a bigger and better place to live.

Memphis sold a lot of 98 Jerseys in auction last week. They were auctioned by W. A. Nash who lectured on the value and recent progress of dairying in the South Plains. A great number of the cattle were graded, some registered, and all good producers.

Midland has a farmer who makes $750.00 an acre on his garden. Noah Kinnemore has been growing peas under mulch paper, and sells his entire supply to consumers who drive to his truck patch. His dewberries and strawberries, are bringing $500.00 an acre. He intends growing sweet potatoes this year. The paper lasts three years.

Two Crosbyton people have no dread of droughts and short crops of cotton and wheat for they have a good source of income from their chickens. Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Findley's flock of 300 chickens bring from $80.00 to $100.00 income every month. The Findley's say that the demand for poultry and poultry products continues to increase every day.

Denton's annual Field Day at the experiment station showed what progress was made in the experiments on wheat, oats, grain, sorghums, sweet clover, corn, alfalfa, peas, and other legumes. Crop rotation and the value of good seed was given attention. Some pure bred sorghum seed was given to those present.

The Rowell-Carlsbad, N. M. road is being put into good shape for the summer travel. The road is being graded up and a gravel trench cut preparatory to the surfacing treatment. At the same time the new weed destroyer is having a try-out on the road. Traffic is not interfered with.

The Portales, N. M. Canning Company is now signing up tomatoes for the coming season, and has already secured the output of 300 acres. In 1923 the company canned 31 carloads, and shipped 15 carloads of fresh tomatoes. The average for 1927 and 1928 was 500 acres and the 1929 acreage is expected to be larger.

Lubbock's young Texas Tech Chamber of Commerce has for some of its objectives the molding of the traditions of the College while it is still young, welcoming visiting teams to the campus, co-operating with local civic clubs and the offering of a prize for a school song.

Littlefield's Trades Day, Monday, June 3, was a huge success, attended by a large crowd. Reduced prices were offered for contests held during the day, and Col. J. W. Horn was marshal of the events of the day. A registered Jersey Heifer, registered sow, and pen of pure bred chickens were some of the prizes.

Clairmont, county seat of Kent county wants a gin. It is 17 miles from the nearest cotton gin at this time, and offers a good location. Seven thousand acres are being planted to cotton now, with the acreage increasing each year.

Brownfield has 18 boys and girls 4-11 clubs with a membership of 350. There are 150 in the pig club. The boys who were in the pig club last year are realizing 412.00 a head for their pigs. The poultry club members have secured pure bred chickens. Thirteen Jersey calves were shipped in for the dairy club members.

Big Spring entertained the members of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Oil & Gas Bureau Thursday, May 30. W. B. Hamilton, chairman of the Oil and Gas committee and H. J. Adair, Manager of the Oil & Gas Bureau of the regional organization were present.

SPASMODIC

In Punktown streets the autos scot, and we can hear their horns toot-toot, and jump to save our lives; beneath this stress we fret and chafe, we feel the streets are most unsafe for all our aunts and wives. "Some more pedestrians run down," the news goes flashing through the town upon a fateful day; "two lawyers and an architect have had their persons badly wrecked by someone's speeding dray. A plumber and three auctioneers are candidates for shrouds and biers, knocked out by cars last night; is there no way, we ask, to curb these butcheries that so disturb the heart of every wight?" The pulpit and the bar and the press deplore the slaughter and distress, and call for drastic deeds; the cops must quit their checker games, round up the car that kills and maims, and pinch the man who speeds. Then for a week or maybe three the cops are busy as can be, our safety they'll assure; the jurist, holding down his bench, declares that speeding is a stench to nostrils good and pure. He'll make the punishment so great it will intimidate the skate with no respect for laws; he holds that speeding is a crime, the basest of modern time, the worst that ever was. Then for three weeks or maybe one tremendous execution's done, and dozens go to jail; and others drawn down such a fine they have to mortgage all their kine—for

The Passing of John Anderson

History and legends are crowded with stories of soldiers brave and bold, of heroes of a thousand battle field. But civil life too, has its heroes, its men who suffer the pang of death in a thousand fies.

No eulogy, no tribute, no service, no offering of vine or flowers could possibly make for the well-being of our departed dead, they are for beyond the realm of human possibilities. Yet the obituary is a fitting symbol of respect to the dead, and an offering of sympathy to surviving kith and kin.

John Anderson was in all, he was an artist. As a farmer, he sowed and garnered well, he filled his bins with grain, his larder with sweet fruits and meats. As a barber, he plied his trade with sanitation, he met his customers with a smile. His unabated energy through long years of failing health should be an inspiration to all. He taught the preacher, the teacher, and the child, the dignity of toil, and in the end he taught us all how to meet the great adventure, death, without a qualm. Just a few days before he died, he talked to us about his hopes, his plans for the future well-being of his widow soon to be. His last civic touches about his home, are in evidences of this laudable desire upon his part. When he had finished what he seemed to have in mind to say on that subject, we asked him if he had made any plans for his own future well-being. He answered that he had long since made peace with God and had no fears of death.

It would be hard to find two people more dissimilar in type than was Mr. Anderson and his wife, who survive him, and yet in civic pride, moral and domestic account, they were strangely alike, as they were different in other ways.

It was evening time, he had been braething slowly (about four respirations to the minute) for a long while. The sun dropped below the horizon, evening shadows came crowding in, he drew a long even breath, this writer switched on the electric light, and those of us in attendance could see that the man that was, the splendid man that had been was no more.

While in the zenith of life, his forty-fourth year, he passed to a sad and pathetic memory.

To the mother in a distant land we say that whatever measurement of manhood she may have set for him, he sorely met it well, for he was a gentleman in all respects.

One of the saddest features of the great drama was the grief of his faithful dog. He had not seen them put his master in the great metallic casket, but by some strange freak of canine intuition he knew that it was baring his master away, and he wanted to follow to the grave.

Mr. Anderson was a member of the Methodist church, the Modern Woodmen of the World and the Royal Neighbors. With the bereaved widow, relative those institutions and a thousand friends we pause to drop a tear.—A friend.

STATEMENT BY MEMEBERS OF THE COMMISSIONERS' COURT, EXPLANATORY OF THEIR ACIOTN, AS A BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

The impression seems to prevail that a general raise in values is anticipated by the Commissioners' Court, which is not a fact. The facts are as follows:

There has not been a general overhauling or revision of the property assessments of the county for a number of years (possibly since 1921). The same old values have been adopted with the exception of scattering adjustments over the county. During these years, many improvements have been made, and conveniences, such as railroads, electric light and power lines, gas lines, telephone lines, and many other public utilities have been installed; only a few years ago, many of our farmers were freighting their products a distance of from 20 to 35 miles; now these same communities either have shipping points in their midst, or only a few miles away (there is possibly not a farm in the county as much as 12 miles on an air line from a railroad). In our opinion it would be unjust to allow tax values to remain as they were a few years ago, when only a limited area of our county had the conveniences enumerated above. As we have stated above, the raise in values, we are now contemplating, are not for the purpose of revenue, but are for the sole purpose of equalization. Some have suggested that we take the low value areas and scale down, or bring the higher values to an equal basis of the low values. Our objection to this procedure is that it would absolutely ruin many of the Common School Districts, as far as local finances are concerned. Hence, we cannot entertain a policy of this kind.

Now, as to the raise and its effect on the tax payer, we wish to briefly outline our arrangements for the equalization: We have laid the county out in zones with the sole purpose of equalizing values: in an area extending about five miles each direction from Floydada, Lockney, and Atken there has been no material increase in value, in fact, it is doubtful if this area has held its own; in the south west corner of the county, near Petefsburg, we contemplate a value of $2200.00 per quarter section; a little further east, values will drop to $2100.00 per quarter section; on the north, south, and part of the east boundary line of the county, values will be $2000.00 per quarter section, increasing to $2200.00 per quarter, nearer the Q. A. & P. and Denver R. R. There is very little land that the raise in values will exceed $100.00 per quarter section and where greater values occur it is near the new R. R. towns or was badly out of line heretofore; where land has been raised $100.00 per quarter section, the additional state tax will be 6c and county tax 6c, or a raise per quarter section of $1.29 under present tax rates.

In the City of Floydada, there will be a considerable increase of new property values and some increase in new business and desirable residential sections. Our opinion is that Floydada has outgrown former property values and is in need of a thorough overhauling.

The court is making every effort to so arrange the proportion of values so that everyone will be on an equal basis, whether the property owner be a large corporate interests or the owner of a vacant town lot. While we do not claim that our plan of valuation is perfect or that our zoning system has no flaws, yet we believe that it is a much better system than we have followed heretofore.

EDUCATIONAL PREPARATION A GROWING REQUIREMENT FOR SUCCESS IN MODERN BUSINESS

Death-Knell Sounded for Guesswork and Slipshod Methods by Advancing Technical Proficiency in Finance, Trade and Industry—How Banks Are Developing a Professionally Qualified Generation of Younger Bankers.

By HAROLD STONIER
American Bankers Association

THE great school of Experience is still holding classes in America, but the scientific spirit of the age has so generally invaded the workshops of industry and trade that they have largely become technical research and training laboratories in themselves and are no longer run on the old-fashioned cut-and-try methods of former generations when Experience was considered the only teacher. It would be hard to find a working force in any pre-eminently successful business or industrial organization in the United States today but what the dominating leadership is schooled in the scientific principles of its specific field, whether manufacturing, merchandising or finance. The rapidly advancing standards of business in this country, with their relentless demands for efficiency as the only hope for survival in the competitive struggle for economic existence, has sounded the death-knell for guesswork and slipshod methods.

HAROLD STONIER

As a result, educational preparation in the techniques of commerce, industry and finance are virtually essential to outstanding success in these fields, as it is already an absolute prerequisite in the various recognized professions. This is not to depreciate the value of native ability and experience in business, but education after all is merely a means for helping the individual to apply the net good of the accumulated experience of many to his own day's work—a means for helping special native ability to come into its own more rapidly and surely and for enabling all classes of ability to gain the maximum of success to which they are entitled.

These facts are plainly recognized by practical, work-a-day business in every line. Every progressive business organization in America is emphasizing the importance of education as never before. Education has come to be looked upon as the answer to many of the problems within the organization as well as to problems at feeding industry as a whole.

Business Organizing Institutes

Institutes for developing specifically qualified workers are being operated or organized in many fields of commercial and industrial activity. These institutes are trying various types of educational work with a distinct trend toward more and more emphasis upon education for the rank and file of business employees of all grades.

We have been having business failures in this country at the rate of about 2,900 a month. This score speaks for itself. It is glaring evidence of incompetence on the part of thousands of business men in handling the problems inherent in their fields of endeavor. The detailed records show that practically 75% of business failure in this country is due to lack of training and competence on the part of those who failed. This is conclusive evidence that no one can afford to undertake executive business responsibilities without adequate education and training. It is for that reason that every enlightened business organization is today insisting as never before that its employees take advantage of some type of technical training.

American banking is fortunate and has just cause for pride in that it has a record of twenty-eight years of definitely organized educational activity among its workers to its credit for developing trained bankers. People in banks in large numbers are taking advantage of the educational opportunity given by the great non-commercial college of the banking business, the American Institute of Banking. They see on every hand evidences of the value of the training it gives. Of the 19,909 graduates of this Institute, 79% now occupy official positions in American banks. The other 20% are still too young to have attained such heights. Here is an example and an encouragement to the people of all lines of business.

The American Institute of Banking has a membership of 44,320. Of these 33,851 are class enrollees, comprising younger bank people, both men and women, who are learning the scientific technique of their chosen business at the same time they are engaged in the practical work of earning their livings at it. The difference between the 33,851 enrolled in classes and the 44,320 total membership comprises older bankers who have taken the Institute courses in the past or are at the present time sponsoring some type of educational work in the organization.

Banking Educates Its People

It has been estimated that there are probably 375,000 bank officers and employees in the United States at the present time. These figures would mean that about one banker in every six is either enrolled in Institute classes in banking or is actively supporting some educational function of the organization. No statement could possibly give more emphasis to the importance placed on education by the banking interests of America than these facts.

This American Institute of Banking is the educational section of the American Bankers Association. It was formed twenty-eight years ago by bank employees and officers and has been carried on ever since as a voluntary organization. Many students who have graduated continue their membership in order to give active support to some type of educational work other than the actual class program.

The greater part of the educational work is carried on in 200 cities and towns in the United States. Here the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking has its regularly organized courses of study under supervision of the national body with local instructors and directors to fulfill the standard requirements regarding text material, classwork and examinations.

Instructors are recruited from the staffs of leading universities, from members of the legal profession and from among accountants and bank men who have made a record in some field of activity in banking that marks them as experts. All instructors must be approved by the national organization. They are compensated by the local units. The students pay tuition, in which they are frequently aided by their employing banks, and this, together with contributions made by the banks for general classroom overhead, finances the educational program.

Education a Pathway to Advancement Leading banks in various parts of the country are insisting that their employees take work in the Institute. This is frequently a part of their contract of employment at the time they enter the bank. It is also now quite generally understood in the field of American banking that study in the American Institute of Banking is considered one of the basic factors in the promotion of the individual to a place of importance in a bank.

The Standard Certificate of the American Institute of Banking is an equally gaining a greater and wider recognition among practical bankers throughout the United States. These certificates are coming to have the same importance in the banking world that certificates of education have in the field of the general professions. This is a practical example and one thoroughly well demonstrated by seasoned experience of the new spirit of American business.

ONE COW VS. ONE DOZEN

"Why milk twelve poor cows when one good cow will do the work of the twelve?" asks the bulletin of the American Bankers Association Agricultural Commission. It declares that analysis of more than 100,000 individual yearly records from cows on test in dairy herd improvement associations indicate that on the average: Cows that produced 100 lbs. butterfat a year returned $14 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 200 lbs. butterfat a year returned $54 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 300 lbs. butterfat a year returned $96 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 400 lbs. butterfat a year returned $138 each over feed cost; Cows that produced 500 lbs. butterfat a year returned $178 each over feed cost.

In other words, one 500-pound producer will return $10 more over feed cost than twelve 100 lb. producers. This does not take into account, either, the added labor of milking and caring for the larger herd, or the much greater expense of providing stable room for a dozen instead of a single animal. The figures are based on farm prices from all parts of the country.

"THE OLD RELIABLE ACT"

"My Idea of a Good Sport Is a Girl Who Plays Fair, Who Gives the Other Fellow a Square Deal and Who Meets the World With Humor and Philosophy," Says Dorothy Dix

A schoolgirl asks me if I will give her my idea of a girl who is a good sport. Well, my dear, my idea of a girl who is a good sport differs from that which seems to be popularly held by the young women of today. They call themselves good sports because they get drunk and get and smoke and swear and stay out at nights until they are in a scandal in the neighborhood.

I don't think that sort of a girl is a good sport. I think she violates every rule of sportsmanship. I think she is a rotter because she cheats on her family. She cheats on the husband and children she may some day have. She lowers the standards of her sex and she doesn't even keep her own slate clean.

My idea of a girl who is a good sport is one who plays fair. And she begins with her father and mother. She doesn't take everything and give nothing. She makes a return for the love and care and money that have been spent upon her.

She doesn't grab off all of the pretty clothes and good times and privileges and perquisites in the family and then never so much as say "thank you" for them.

She doesn't let her mother sew her fingers to the bone making her a party frock and then, when mother asks where she is going and when she will be back, tell her it is none of her darn business and she will come in when she pleases. She doesn't keep her father hump-shouldered paying her bills and then scoff at his opinions as those of a senile dodo.

On the contrary, she recognizes that her parents have worked hard and made sacrifices to rear her and give her the advantages she has had, and that the least she can do is to give them a run for their money by being sweet and affectionate and companionable to them and causing them as little anxiety as possible.

My idea of a girl who is a good sport is one who has the brave attitude toward life. There is not a whine in her whole system. She never sits down and weeps and laments because she has to stand behind a counter instead of before it, and because she has to ride in the street car instead of a Rolls-Royce.

Perhaps she would like to be a play girl instead of a working girl. Undoubtedly she would like to wear the silks and satins and jewels and furs that she sells to the richer girls. Surely she would like to lie abed of a morning and have her coffee and rolls brought to her by a maid instead of having to punch an office time clock, but if she would, you never hear of it from her. She never bemoans her fate. She meets it with a smile on her lips and high courage in her heart, and thanks God that she has the intelligence and ability and grit to hold down a good job.

My idea of a girl who is a good sport is a square shooter. She is honest and frank and aboveboard, and she doesn't consider that her sex is an alibi for fibbing and welching and double-crossing. If she is a business girl, she doesn't try to make sex appeal take the place of good work and rolling her eyes substitute for accuracy and efficiency.

She parks her feminine wile along with her vanity in the cloakroom and earns her salary as a man does his, by faithful and intelligent service. She also leaves behind her the poor-little-helpless-girl stuff, because she is fair enough to recognize that when a woman comes in competition in business with a man she has no right to expect him to show her favors.

The girl who is a good sport is a square shooter with other girls. She doesn't steal another girl's steady away from her. She doesn't vamp another woman's husband away from her. She keeps hands off other women's property. She doesn't kiss a sister on her cheek while she is clawing the character off her back. She doesn't disillusion a man about a girl he is taken with by calling his attention to how thick her ankles are, or how knobby her knees are, or the ridiculous way she dresses, or that she is beautiful but dumb. She doesn't sympathize with every married man she meets and pity him because his wife doesn't understand him, or isn't appreciative of him.

The girl who is a good sport shoots square with the boys. She doesn't lead them on and make them think that she is in love with them just because she wants a lot of dates. She doesn't jolly a poor simp into taking her to a party and then ditch him and spend the evening dancing with other men. She isn't a gold-digger who has a birthday every time she sees a new bag, or bracelet, or wrist watch she wants and who jockeys some poor, unfortunate youth who is in love with her into debt to buy it for her.

She doesn't consider it any more sporting to hold up a man with a pair of blue eyes than it would be to hold him up with a pair of blue-nosed revolvers, and she thinks that it is playing it pretty low down for a girl to take advantage of a man's infatuation with her to rob him. So she eats enough to sustain her before she leaves home and turns her head the other way when she passes a jeweler's window and cultivates a taste for men nor away from them. If they show her attentions, well and good. If they don't, also well and good. Life is full of a number of things for her besides dates.

Finally, the girl who is a good sport carries on. She is no quitter. She doesn't sit down and wring her hands and cry every time she meets a difficulty. She doesn't give up when the sledding gets hard. She simply bends to her work and puts her heart and her back in it and struggles on to success. All of the big business and professional women are good sports. So are the wives who hold their husbands. Because they don't give up the first time things go wrong.

So that is my idea of a good sport. A girl who plays fair, who gives the other fellow a square deal, and who meets the world with a humor and philosophy.—Dorothy Dix.

1268 acres would make a big farm

AT Milford, Michigan, 1268 acres have been made—not into a farm—but into a Proving Ground for automobiles.

Long before your General Motors car is built, specimen models are sent to the Proving Ground. This fleet is tested in actual use. It has to meet every bad driving condition, from heart-breaking hills to slam-bang bumps.

But that isn't all. Other cars of American and European manufacture are bought and put through the same tests, so that General Motors always knows how its products compare with others.

The tests involve speed, power, endurance, braking, riding comfort, handling ease; fuel, oil and tire economy; body strength—every phase of car construction and performance.

When the specimen cars are finally able to meet every test, they are sent back to the factory. The car you buy is exactly like them.

The next time you examine a General Motors car in your dealer's showroom, think of those 1268 acres. They would make a big farm. But they make a better promise of proved car value.

CANNING VEGETABLES BY COLD PACK AS SUCCESSFUL
AS PRESSURE CANNING

By Mrs. J. W. Recknor, Jr., in The Semi-Weekly Farm News.

Canning seems to me to be the most delightful task that spring brings to housewives. I am never happier than when I am preparing jars and jars of food with which to feed my family during the winter. Most housewives do a little canning each year but very few of them have a variety of vegetables canned for winter use. The reason for this seems to be that so many of them have the mistaken idea that vegetables will not keep unless they are canned with a steam pressure canner. When we can get them to realize how easy it is to have plenty of vegetables for winter use without the aid of a can-ner, then our farm families will have better meals.

I once had the impression that vegetables would keep unless they were placed in tin cans and cooked in a pressure canner. Since learning how to make my own cooker and can by cold pack, my family is never without health-giving vegetables the year around. I have tried the method enough to know that any vegetables will keep if a few simple rules are strictly followed. Food canned by cold pack has the same delicious taste as that cooked in a pressure canner.
The only advantage that a steam pressure canner has over the cold pack canning method is the fact that meats can be successfully kept when cooked in a steam pressure canner and they can not be kept if the cold pack method is used. However, such vegetables as green beans and turnip greens or cabbage can be kept by the cold pack process when they have thin bacon strips placed in the jars.

Making a Cooker

Really, the only expense in canning by cold pack is the containers, as it requires glass jars. I like jars better than tin cans, as the jars may be used over and over, the only expense being for rubbers and new tops each season. Of course, there is more danger in breaking glass jars, but if care is used in handling them while hot the loss will be quite small. Glass jars may be used for canning with a steam pressure canner and a sealer is not necessary. For cold pack canning I made the first cooker I had from a five-gallon lard can, using burlap sacks folded in the bottom to prevent the jars coming in contact with the bottom of the can. The only objection I have to such a cooker is it will not allow enough jars to be processed at one time, thus making canning a slow task. Only four or five jars may be processed at one time in such a cooker. I like the galvanized wash boiler much better that just fits over the front of my stove and which holds eight quart pails at the time. Such a boiler with rack for holding the jars may be purchased for about $3. This will simplify the canning problem to a great extent.

Preparing Vegetables

There are a few rules that must be strictly followed if much success is to be had in canning by cold pack. The first thing to do is to carefully select the vegetables, taking care to use only fresh ones. They should be cleaned and washed as for table use, then dipped in boiling water the required length of time. This process is called blanching. The purpose is to cause the vegetables to shrink so that more may be packed into a jar.
After they are blanched the vegetables are then dipped in cold water and are ready for the jars. Here is where so many fail in canning; they do not sterilize the jars, rubbers, and caps before placing any food in them.
This is absolutely necessary for success. Sterilizing kills all bacteria which might be present in the jars and as bacteria is what causes food to spoil we can readily understand why this step is so important.

Time of Cooking Important

When the jars are packed a teaspoonful of salt should be added to each quart and the jar filled to overflowing with hot water. They are then ready for the cooker. The rubber and cap should be placed in position but the cap should not be screwed down tight. Place the jars in the cooker, cover with boiling water and process for the length of time given in the table below. Right here is where more women make mistakes in canning and fail. They do not count the time from the time the water in the cooker begins to boil but many of them merely guess at the time and then wonder why their food spoiled.
Another thing, it is absolutely necessary to have the water in the cooker completely cover the tops of the jars in order to insure thorough cooking of the product. If the water boils low before the time is up, then add more boiling water.

Here is the table that I use for canning my vegetables:

	Blanch	Process
Beans	10 min.	2 hours
Peas	10 min.	3 hours
Greens	15 min.	2 hours
Corn	10 min.	3 hours
Squash	3 min.	2 hours
Tomatoes	1 min.	30 min.
Vegetable Soup	10 min.	3 hours

Canning Corn

In canning corn one should be careful to select the right stage to do the canning in. Corn should be canned before it reaches the starchy stage. It should not be allowed to stand after being taken from the stalk. It should be blanched on the cob and if only one person is working with it, only enough should be cut from the cob to fill one jar at a time.
The jar should be filled, a teaspoonful of salt and two of sugar added, the jar filled with boiling water and placed in the cooker. If more than one is working at a time, one can cut the corn off the cob and the other fill the jars.

When the jars have processed the given length of time they should be removed from the water bath, sealed immediately and then placed on a table upside down to test for leaks.

Dollar Wheat

New York Journal of Commerce
Time was when dollar wheat was a "far-off divinee event," rather than a tragedy. Political spellbinders of the early Bryan era could gather in votes throughout the Middle West by promising dollar wheat through government fiat. Nowadays government aid is designed to prevent dollar wheat rather than to achieve it; but such efforts as have been made have been fruitless, the load of two successive bumper crops and prospects for a third having been too much for the world market to absorb. Grain traders have been plunged into black gloom by the fall of May futures on the Chicago pit below a dollar for the first time in fourteen years. Will the time return when politicians can consider the dollar a price level to be fought for rather than a disaster?
It is doubly unfortunate that wheat prices should have dropped so low at this particular time. From the producer's standpoint, low prices are unfortunate at any time. With congress in the throes of battle over farm relief, they are unfortunate for everybody. Pressure for the passage of some unsound, unworkable and, in the long run, damaging law will be greatly increased, and the effort of the administration to hold wild congressmen in check will be made more difficult.

It should be added that the drop of prices will give no comfort to the gentleman who retired as Secretary of Agriculture on March 4 last.
Mr. Jardine, those with long memories will recall, advised farmers last fall to hold their wheat. Having returned to the relative obscurity of private life, he will not face political consequences so unpleasant as those which his department's unfortunate prophecy concerning cotton prices entitled two years ago. The sufferers, as usual, will be those who took his advice. Whether they are farmers or middlemen is a matter of dispute, the only certainty being that someone has taken a loss running to a stag-geringly high total. Even if Mr. Jardine's prophecy had come true, it would not have been justified, but the fact that it was so grievously wrong only serves to emphasize the point that price forecasts by any high government official are highly improper.

WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A VOTER IN MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., May 29.—The question is being asked why Indians do not vote in Mississippi as they do in other states. The reason grows out of the fact that in states where Indians vote they are authorized to do so by the constitution of such states.

The franchise article of the Mississippi constitution provides that "every male inhabitant of this state, except idiots, insane persons, and Indians not taxed, who is a citizen of the United States twenty one years old and upwards, who has resided in the state for two years, and one year in the election district or in the incorporated city or town in which he offers to vote, and who is duly registered as provided by this article, and who has never been convicted of bribery, burglary, theft, arson, obtaining money or goods under false pretenses, perjury, forgery, embezzlement or bigamy, and who has paid on or before the first day of February of the year in which he offers to vote all taxes which may have been legally required of him and which he has had an opportunity to pay according to law, for the two preceding years, and who shall produce to officers holding the election satisfactory evidence that he has paid such taxes, is declared to be a qualified elector; but any minister of the gospel in charge of an organized church shall be entitled to vote after six months' residence in the election district if otherwise qualified.

TEXAS LOVERS MUST PASS PHYSICAL EXAM—APPLY FOR LICENSE IN ADVANCE

Getting married in Texas is not what it used to be—or at least it won't be after June 13.

The days when young Lochinvar, accompanied by some friend, rode into the county clerk's office and perjured himself that the girl of his heart was of marrying age, hastily obtained a certificate, and still more hurriedly hied the girl off to the village parson or justice of the peace, where they became "man and wife" are gone forever.

Beginning on June 13, it will be necessary for the boy friend to make application for the marriage certificate three days before it is issued. This application become a part of the public records and may be seen by suspicious parents, old maid aunts, or any other obstacle to what might have been a quiet wedding.

The price of marrying also goes up under the new law which becomes effective June 13. When a certificate was formerly obtained for $1.50, and a ceremony was performed for $3, making a grand total of $4.50, the cost now may be twice that much. The bridegroom must have a health certificate, which will probably cost him two dollars. If he takes a friend with him to get the certificate, he will have to pay for the filing of

The added hazards of getting married and the additional expense may encourage many Panhandle couples to slip across the state lines into New Mexico or Oklahoma.

The new matrimonial license blanks have been received. The new forms contain three affidavits, one for the bridegroom, one for the bride, and the third for another person, in event one of contracting parties cannot be present at the clerk's office.

Notice of intention to marry must be first filed. A physical examination with doctor's certificate accompanying is the next requirement which applicants must fulfill. It is expected that many couples will advance their marrying plans in order to avoid the intention to marry and physical examination clauses of the new contracts.

LAKE VICTIM WILL BE BURIED AT PLAINVIEW

Amarillo, June 4.—Mrs. W. A. Dyer, 1010 Park Street, who was drowned in McSpadden's lake near Canyon Sunday afternoon, will be buried in Plainview this afternoon, it was announced last night. This morning the body will be taken overland by N. S. Griggs & Sons.

Mrs. Dyer is survived by her husband, a seven-year-old daughter and her father, C. W. Word, of San Antonio.

HE STILL NEEDS SPANKING IF HE WON'T PLAY UNLESS HE CAN BAT

John Smith, good American, sits in the grandstand. He is unhappy. He is irritable. The home team is losing. An umpire's decision maddens. John and others of his kind, and in a moment the air is filled with flying bottles.

What is the explanation? Is it sufficient to call John Smith a bad sport? That merely describes a symptom. It is a symptom of a disease so common that a critic might be justified in calling it Americanitis.

The small boy, selfish by nature, quarrels to win advantages and have his own way; and if ten small boys plan a makeshift game of ball, every one clamors for the right to bat first. But only the one uneducated in obedience and wholly spoiled by lack of restraint and discipline is hateful enough to take his ball and go home if denied first place. The others, trained to adjust themselves to the inevitable, make concessions in the interest of harmony. They know how to compromise. They surrender to majority opinion.

Adults, like children, are spoiled by freedom. They are undisciplined.

Because they are free of restraint and still childishly selfish, they will not observe the few fundamental rules essential to the preservation of democracy.

They place themselves to abide by the will of the majority, but they do not submit to authority. The majority once in power, becomes a master to be obeyed, and thus its very existence maddens the spoiled ones and prompts them to rebel.

In lodge or church or club, they abide by the rules while the rules work to their advantage; but neither custom nor majority opinion can influence them when their will is opposed. They will rule or ruin, boss or quit.

They help elect representatives to make laws for the guidance of all; and while they agree with the majority, they condemn the few who have no respect for law. But if the majority is against them, and makes laws they do not approve, they feel no obligation to obey.

They clamor for police protection and denounce the inefficiency of the law's servants, but they feel resentful and abused when an officer obeys his instructions and arrests them for speeding.
