Burglars Get Pen Sentences This Week

Eugene Walker Draws Ten Years, Ernest Oglesby Two Years—Boortz Case Now On Trial

The district Court is this week trying criminal cases. The first two cases on the week's calendar were the cases against Eugene Walker and Ernest Oglesby, charged with the burglary of the Martin Dry Goods Co. store in Floydada on last Thanksgiving night. Walker was given a term of ten years in the penitentiary, and Oglesby a sentence of two years in the penitentiary. There are other cases of similar nature, in other counties in Texas, against these men.

The Boortz case is being tried this week. Mrs. Emma Boortz went to trial Monday afternoon, charged with assault with the intent to murder. There are about one hundred witnesses to be examined in the case, and it will take up most of the court's time this week. This is the case where both Mr. and Mrs. Boortz were wounded at their home in the northwest part of the county about three months ago, when they participated in a shooting affair.

The following cases have been disposed of by the court:

The building that has been occupied by the Copeland Music Co., The Commercial Barber Shop and Ralph Ashworth's Tailor Shop, is being remodeled, and will be occupied by O. E. Stevenson's Variety Store, as soon as completed. Mr. Stevenson is putting in a much larger variety store than the one he is operating at present, and will carry a much larger and bigger variety of variety goods. He is having the fixtures built to better display the stock, and Baker Mercantile Co. owners of the building, are having a modern variety store front put in the front of the building. When complete the store will be in keeping with the latest things in the variety store line.

The Copeland Music Co. has moved to the building at the rear of the First National Bank, formerly occupied by the post office, and the Commercial Barber Shop and the Commercial Tailor Shop will occupy the building now occupied by the Stevenson Variety Store, next door to the Cozy Cafe.

Mr. Stevenson is to be congratulated on the move and expansion that he is making in his business, and the larger variety store will be a great addition to the business circles of the town.

FINAL ACTION MADE AGAINST AMNESTY ACT

'Pardon' of Ex-Governor Jim Ferguson Is Held Unconstitutional

Austin, May 26.—The supreme court today made final its holding that former governor James E. Ferguson is ineligible to again hold office in Texas when it overruled a motion for a rehearing in his mandamus case.

Ferguson sought to force the state Democratic executive committee to place his name on the primary ballot as a candidate for governor but the court held that his impeachment of 1917 by the senate and its judgment removing him from the governor's office and disqualifying him from holding office in the future was irrevocable. Ferguson contended the amnesty act, passed in 1925, but subsequently repealed in 1927, was in the form of a "pardon" restoring his right to hold office, arguing that the repeal was ineffective. The court held the amnesty act was unconstitutional. In overruling the rehearing motion the court, in a written opinion, reiterated its interpretation of the constitutional inhibition. The case was decided by a special court composed of A. H. Brittain of Wichita Falls, chief justice; C. S. Bradley of Groesback, associate justice, and William Pierson, associate justice of the regular court.

Cypert Child Drowns In Stock Tank

Baby Falls In Tank While Playing at Home in the Alcino Community Saturday Afternoon

Zola Frances Cypert, 20 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Cypert, of the Alcino community, east of Lockney, was drowned Saturday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock by falling into a stock tank, at its home.

The little girl, with other children, had been playing in the yard, and the parents missing the child, began hunting for her, and found her in the stock tank. Dr. Pennington of Floydada, was summoned, and for several hours attempted to revive the child, but finally gave up all hopes.

The remains were buried in the Lockney cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Silverton Woman Is Killed in Car Accident

Two Others Hurt as Cars Collide Saturday Night—Coupe Turned Over Several Times

Miss Lucile McWilliams, 24, of Silverton, was killed instantly at 11:30 o'clock Saturday night when a Chevrolet coupe in which she and three other young people were riding collided with a truck 3 1-2 miles west of Silverton. Pete Amason, 22, who was driving the car, is in the Plainview Sanitarium with a concussion of the brain, and Miss Opal Johnson who suffered a spinal injury in the wreck is reported improving at her home in Silverton. Ernest Dickerson, the fourth occupant of the car was slightly bruised.

The coupe and the truck struck head on. The coupe turned over several times and Miss McWilliams' neck was broken and her head was crushed. The truck was said by the young people to have been driving with one light. The driver of the coupe was said to have become confused and did not know he was so near the truck.

Miss McWilliams' parents live 9 miles east of Silverton. They have been in the community only a short time. Amason is a linotype operator for the Briscoe County News, Silverton.

A man named Baird, who was driving the truck, and Miss Lucile Vaughn, who accompanied him, were uninjured. Funeral services for Miss McWilliams were conducted Monday afternoon at Silverton and interment was made there.

Plateau Singing Convention News

The Largest Crowd in the History of Lockney Expected at Singing Convention

The Plateau Singing Convention, the largest organization of its kind in the world, are scheduled to assemble in Lockney on Saturday and Sunday, June 14th and 15th, at the Municipal Park. According to information from the officials of the organization, we may expect more than 10,000 people in Lockney for the two days. All of the facilities of the town will be taxed but the big problem will be to find a place for the visitors to stay on Saturday night. This is a request from the Chamber of Commerce to every citizen of Lockney and the entire county to furnish as many rooms for visitors as possible. The job can be "put over" in good fashion if every Floyd county citizen will co-operate. This is the first time the convention has been held in a town as far east and small as Lockney and we want the people who attend the convention to stay after it is over that it was the best convention in the history of their organization. If you have a spare room, a spare bed, or a place where you can house one visitor or more, please call the Chamber of Commerce, phone number 157, or see Fay Guthrie. It will be necessary to list each place in order that the visitors may be assigned to the different homes. If you live in the rural sections, and can take care of a visitor, it will be greatly appreciated by the management of the convention. Remember, this is the greatest thing that has ever come to the county. Let's prepare and make the visitors welcome.

Mrs. Lyda Cope returned Thursday of last week from Hot Springs, N. M. where she has been spending her vacation.

Swimming Pool Draws Large Crowds

Receives Fine Patronage from Nearby Towns One of the Best Swimming Pools

On May 15, the Lockney Swimming Pool was opened to the lovers of water, and clean outdoor life. Since that time, the attendance has been growing rapidly.

The Lockney Swimming Pool, operated by Mr. Elmer Giesecke, is one of the finest swimming pools in this section of the country. The pool, 40 by 100 feet, ranges from a depth of 2 feet to 9 feet. The water is disinfected daily, and is dressed according to the laws of the Health Department of Texas.

Persons who desire to enter the water, must take a shower before doing so.

If you do not have a suit, Mr. Giesecke will gladly furnish you one that will fit you. These suits are of part wool.

On Sundays, the pool is open from 2 until 6 o'clock, and on all other days from 1 until 10 o'clock. Bay Scout days are Tuesday and Thursday mornings, from 10 until 12 o'clock. Mr. Giesecke is offering free swimming lessons to ladies every Friday morning from 10 until 12 o'clock.

The swimming pool has received a fine patronage from Floydada, and is planning on giving them one hour, from 8 until 9 o'clock on Fridays. During this hour, no one but Floydada people will be allowed in the pool. Mr. Giesecke congratulates the Floydada people on their sportsmanship and manners while swimming.

A nice patronage is also reported from Plainview. If you do not know how to swim, go to the pool and learn; for you will never learn any younger, and some day, you may be thankful that you did learn.

CLAIM 30 PER CENT OF CROP IS WORTHLESS

Much of Cotton Already In Ground No Good, George B. Terrell Says In Report of Agricultural Condition

Austin, May 22.—Thirty per cent of the cotton crop that has been planted is worthless, according to report issued today by Geo. B. Terrell, state commissioner of agriculture. The report disclosed that only 75 per cent of the cotton crop was planted by May 15. The report covered 213 counties.

Wheat and oats have been hard hit by the drouth of the late winter and spring, causing a sharp decrease in the harvestable acreage as numerous tracts were abandoned.

Corn planting has increased three per cent and sorghum grains five per cent, the report showed, with sweet potatoes, peanuts, ribbon cane and syrup sorghum, about normal.

Stock ranges in the west have been greatly benefited by the recent heavy rains and rapid improvement has been noted in the past few days in the condition of livestock.

The report warned against extensive planting of cotton and advised that farmers utilize their ground for other crops or turn them into pastures if other states produced in proportion to Texas, the 1930 cotton crop would be 1,000,000 bales larger than last year which might force the price of cotton to exceedingly low levels, the commissioner stated.

MEMBERS WILL VOTE ON RESOLUTION TO SHAPE W. T. C. C. POLICY

Stamford, May 24.—Business sessions of the 1930 annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in Abilene, May 29-31, will be the melting pots from which will come the concrete program and policy of the reorganization for the ensuing year.

Into the cauldron of the membership meetings will be thrown the ideas of various individuals and groups as to how the W. T. C. C. can best serve the people of the territory supporting it. These items will be put before the convention in a series of resolutions and after they are presented there will be discussions, debates and voting on each of them.

When all the resolutions have been passed on, and the will of the majority, for or against, determined, then the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will have a platform on which to operate and it will have been built by the membership, for when the time comes for voting on the resolutions, each town in the West Texas territory will be allowed one vote for every paid up membership in the organization.

Government Matters Up

Such subjects as taxes, tariffs, and other matters of governmental import will be represented among the resolutions that will be presented for consideration during the convention. When some of them are introduced, the fireworks in the form of heated oratory and spirited debates, are due to break loose, men familiar with the sentiment in the area assert.

All indications point to the business meetings being given much attention and interest by attendants at the annual meeting of the regional chamber. There will be individuals of strong personalities in the meetings who will be deeply concerned and much in favor of some of the resolutions and others who will be equally as strong against some of them. It appears that the business sessions, instead of being carried on by a few, as in years past, will be operated with full houses on hand. In fact officials of the body think seats in the convention hall will be at a premium.

Reserved seats will be available for all registered delegates who attend the convention. That is, those who pay the convention registration fee and secure a badge will be admitted and seated ahead of individuals who do not present those credentials.

Various standing committees of the W. T. C. C. are presenting resolutions to Judge Chas. E. Coombs of Stamford, first vice president of the organization, and chairman of the "Work of the Convention" committee, which deal with matters coming under the supervision of the various groups and all such matters thus offered will be put before the membership at the Abilene convention for consideration, debate and action by the Coombs committee.

Already, 11 resolutions have been passed to the "Work of the Convention" committee. At least five of the 11 are due to stir up considerable commotion, discussion and consideration. The list is expected to be augmented before the opening day of the annual meeting and executives of the body are asserting that some night sessions may be necessary if all the matters that are brought up get attention during the three-day confab.

Captions on the 11 resolutions now slated for the convention follows:

- Resolved that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce favor the principle of a national tariff on raw materials, livestock, and agricultural products produced in West Texas, when it is found that importation of such raw materials, livestock and agricultural products, hinder profitable production in West Texas.
- Whereas an analysis of the possible effects of the proposed state highway bond issue shows that the adoption of the plan will result in benefit to a majority of our West Texas counties, therefore, be it resolved that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce lay before each chamber of commerce in each county the possible effects of the bond issue upon that county for the carrying of the bond issue.

- Resolved that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce oppose any further state taxes on producers of raw materials and natural resources of West Texas and oppose an income tax and sales tax until budgetary control of state expenditures is established, and a balanced plan of taxation is adopted.
- Resolved that the West Texas oil and gas resources, in addition to being protected by a national tariff and by the absence of any further state taxes, be further conserved and protected by legislation providing for permissive agreements between operators and enabling an orderly production in given pools.
- Resolved that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce heartily approve the program of the Federal Farm Board of assisting the producers of agricultural and livestock com-

Mr. H. B. Adams, Editor, Lockney Beacon, City,

Dear Sir:

MORE WATER AND OTHER THINGS

I read some where and some place that a storm always cleared the atmosphere. We have had the storm, and now let us get every thing cleared up, and try to do it in a way that will hurt no one, neither actually or in feelings, this letter is addressed to the editor, but it is intended for a general letter, as the writer wants to cover the field generally if he can do so.

The editor was in error in his editorial in last week's paper when he said the writer was not a member of the city council at the time of the purchase of the present machinery of the city water works, at that time we went into the costs of pumping water with electricity and also with our present equipment, we also had an engineer representing the city present at this meeting, who verified the different costs, and should we have purchased the electric power, we never would have had the cheap water rates that we have enjoyed for the past three years, the engine company had a man present representing their engine, the electric company was also represented, in computing the costs of pumping water, the costs as given by the electric company exceeded the costs of the engine, in connection the electric company furnished data on pumping costs of several towns surrounding Lockney, and in making an average of the pumping costs of these other cities, the council was partial enough to the electricity that they offered to buy the electric power, and double the average costs of the other cities given us, provided that the electric company would guarantee to us that power would not cost us above double, the average costs of some six or seven cities surrounding Lockney, this in connection with an acknowledgment from the representative of the electric company that all of these other cities had to pump their water from a deeper level, and with less favorable conditions than Lockney would have, the electric company would give no such guarantee, consequently, WE DID BUY THE ENGINE, and it under a guarantee that it would pump water at a fixed rate based on certain fuel costs and condition of machinery, the repairs in my last letter did not refer to the engine, it has cost no money to date for repairs, other repairs have been necessary, not long ago, the city cleaned out the ground tank, this is the water reservoir in the ground, there was some six or seven truck loads of sand taken out of this tank, you cannot continue to run sand thru machinery and still have the machine to run like a new machine, and your power pulling the pump has nothing to do about the pump wearing. But enough of this.

We, the city council will furnish a statement at an early date, which will be published so that every one can acquaint themselves on the issue that has been demanded. And in furnishing this statement, the other members of the city council joins with me in saying that we have nothing to hide, there are no secrets, and none intended, in any thing that we do that has any connection with the city, and we will be glad to co-operate with the citizens of Lockney, we do not intend, nor do we have any inclination to bulldoze our way along or through any issue, we are working for the city, we belong here, our interests are here, what ever we do that affects any one in town, carries the same effect on to us, and it is our ideas and hopes that we can go on from here, every one working to the same point, and every thing agreeable, there has been no occasion for this jumble of things that has just passed, the council were not approached in anything like the right way in what was wanted, each and every one of them feel the same way about it, consequently, the council did not give the response as they should, brings us back to the saying that you can lead a horse to water, but you cannot make him drink, as I said before, we are human, and we can be approached at any time with any proposition that you care to hit us with, meet us in a friendly way, and we will guarantee to meet you in the same spirit, each of the city council are not drawing a very high salary from the city, and as far as the writer is concerned, he would rather not have the job, than what goes with it, but if we can stop our wheels from wobbling, and get straightened off down the road, and get to working with every one, so that it will be smoother traveling, then the work will be a pleasure, and would be as it should be.—J. H. HOHLAUS, city alderman.

In referring to the above article by Mr. Hohlaus, a member of the City Council, we will say, that upon investigation we find that Mr. Hohlaus was a member of the city council when the contract was awarded for the city water works, the contract being awarded April 27th, 1927, just 16 days after he was sworn in as an alderman. However, the contract in reality was made several weeks before he became an alderman, and he voted to sanction the action of the former council. The contract with the Fairbanks-Morse Co. was for $6,050.00, more than double the cost of electric motor necessary to pump the amount of water necessary. He says in the above article that the engine people guaranteed that the engine would pump water at a fixed rate; then why was it necessary to raise the water rate? If it was costing no more to pump water per gallon at this time than it was at the beginning of the water rate with the new plant, then why was it necessary to raise the rate on excess water 50% in price. If the engine and pumping machinery is running just as good now as when first installed why was it necessary to buy a lot of repairs recently, and why was it necessary to employ another man at the pump house? If the cost of operation was no greater than we see no reason for the increase. None of this raise in money goes to pay off the bonds on the water plant, as that money comes out of the taxes, and not out of water rent. The city is not supposed to make a profit off water rent, the rent is only supposed to pay for the upkeep or running expenses of the plant, and if it costs no more to pump the water now than when the new machinery was put in operation, why the raise?

We are glad to note in the above article that the city council has decided to publish a statement of the affairs of the city. If they had published the statement when the people of the town began talking about them giving a statement, then there would have been no need for any controversy over the matter. We don't believe there is anything crooked about the city's business at this time; it may have been they did not go about doing some things in the way that would have pleased most people, and possibly some of the things they have done would not have been sanctioned by the people if it had been brought up in the proper way, and they could not have put them over. Our criticism, and our only criticism of the city council is that they failed and refused to get the sanction of the people at the ballot box on a few major items that they have put over. We would have favored most of these things and worked and voted for them, but we believe in the people who pay the bills saying what shall or shall not be done, and that is the reason we have taken issue with them. If they had responded to the desire of the people in regard to the audit of the books, we would have had nothing whatever to say, as we are friends to the men who are in office, have no occasion to criticize them in their personal lives, and reserve the right at all times to criticize any public officer when we think they need to be criticised. All members well know that we favor every progressive move that is launched in the town, if it is able to stand muster before the people, and we know that it is right and just that every board, be it city, county, state, school, or other organization, depending on tax support has no right to spend large sums of money without the people's consent, and then only when the people have passed on the proposition at the ballot box. The city council are servants of the people, they are hired on a salary, the law gives them no right to raise their salaries while serving the elective term; they are answerable to the people for their actions, and when the people ask for consideration in the matter their desires should be adhered to if the within reason. We don't want to criticize these men, and we hope it will not be necessary to criticize them further, not at any future date. It is distasteful to us to have a fight on in a community, and the sooner it is settled satisfactory the better for all concerned.

SAYS 'BACK TO THE BIBLE'

C. M. James, Greenville, Texas, in Dallas News.

I have been reading the Farm News three years, and from its pages have gleaned much information. I have been watching with interest the trend of the minds of its various contributors. Much has been said in regard to farm relief. While we need farm relief, we need relief from a thousand other things. Farm relief, if we could get it, would never cure the ills of this Nation. Neither will it give us peace and satisfaction. If you cure a disease you must diagnose the case and find out the seat of the disease, and take a medicine that will strike at the taproot of it. Then you may expect relief.

The virus of sin has penetrated every avenue of our Nation. We have slapped God in the face and said by our department, 'We will have our own way. We are self-sufficient.'

We have failed to take the old discovered Bible from the shelf and peruse its wonderful life-giving pages to find out what is right.

Therefore we are losing the way and God is sending confusion and delusion to the Nation. We are reaping what we have sown—infidelity, skepticism, atheism, and every conceivable 'ism' that tends to close our eyes to the truth. 'If the truth shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.'

Back to the Bible, back to God, face Him at the judgment bar, a guilty Nation, and hear the awful sentence. 'Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity.'

KNOW TEXAS

Texas automobile registration fees in 1929 totalled $20,418,696—exceeded by only three other states.

Texas with 174 leads all the states in cotton seed oil mills. Georgia with 54 is second. Texas has almost one-third of the 538 such plants in the United States.

Texas maintains five fish hatcheries with two more now provided for. In Texas the United States maintains one hatchery and one private hatchery is located at Medina Lake.

Texas has thirteen legal holidays. Two of them—Texas Independence March 2 and San Jacinto April 21—are peculiar to the state.

HELPING TO BUILD TEXAS

A new industry that evidently is growing is goldfish raising. Fred Barry, Smithville, is increasing the size of his goldfish plant with another concrete tank and expects to raise 100,000 of the fish for the spring market. It may be an echo of the sulphur tax that a $250,000 corporation has been formed at New Iberia, La., to develop the sulphur deposits there. Louisiana had practically abandoned the sulphur industry since Texas mines were developed, Texas in 1929 producing 99.99 of all the sulphur mined in the United States. The 50,000-pound capacity of the Denison Kraft-Phenix cheese factory is to be raised to 100,000 pounds a day. Wisconsin capital is financing a new canning factory at Brownsville.

Lubbock is to have a $200,000 motion picture theatre. The Yuca and Ritz theatres were merged at Midland, involving $400,000.

Quannah voted $120,000 in school bonds. San Benito $320,000, of which $175,000 is for a high school. San Angelo will invest $150,000 in a new school building program. Plans are being drawn for a $1,000,000 senior high school at San Antonio. Morse voted $40,000 and Shallowater $55,000 for new school buildings.

Carson county, which saw one of the early oil developments in the Panhandle, is going in for dairying. The Carson County Creamery Co. has incorporated and will increase the capacity of its plant.

The new Wooten Hotel at Abilene will be opened in time for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce meeting May 29-31. The new $375,000 Hilton Hotel at Arlin is to be opened during May. McAllen has practically completed the financing of a $300,000 11-story hotel. Formal opening of the Hotel Llano at Llano drew visitors from many nearby towns. It was headquarters for the Heart of Texas Press Association meeting lately and made a hit with the editors by its modernness and completeness. J. J. Burke announces he will build a 15-story hotel at Harlingen. Traveling men say no state has better hotel facilities than Texas, and in the smaller cities of the state are many notable hosteleries.

Livingston will pave ten blocks of city streets. Perryton is paving 37 blocks. San Saba voted bonds for paving the public square and six or seven miles of its streets. Alpine has almost completed paving work on 108 blocks. Shamrock will pave fifteen blocks. Goose Creek is spending $40,000 on paving and will spend $125,000 more on street improvements and pavements.

Extensions to take care of growth of its territory are being made by the Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. A 11-kw transmission line is being built from Grand Saline to Fritvale, a 33-kv high line is being built from Winnsboro to Winfield and 10 1-2 miles of the same type from Winfield to Mount Pleasant, giving a high voltage loop serving Big Sandy, Gilmer, Pittsburg, Mount Pleasant, Winfield, Winnsboro, and Mineola, and providing a two-way feed for every town served by the loop. Local offices at Hughes, Springs, Pittsburg, Mount Vernon, Henderson, Center, Atlanta are being remodeled and modernized and the distribution system at Quitman has been reconstructed.

The Big Spring hatchery has started off with a 50,000-egg incubator and one purchase of 5,000 baby chicks from Quincy, Ill. Rural electrification is making rapid headway in the Rio Grande Valley, where farm density is high. Last year the Central Power & Light Co., serving that section, added 670 farm users to its line and brought its total to 2,123. The big Brownwood water project with irrigation as a major element is held up by the necessity of condemnation proceedings to acquire some of the lands that will be overflowed. STEWARDSHIP OF SERVICE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 1. Stewardship of Service. Matt. 25:14-30.

THE general lesson title for this lesson, 'A Contrast Between Faithfulness and Slothfulness,' is somewhat more descriptive, though neither title quite brings out the full significance of the lesson which has really to do with the real sense of value and its application to life.

The lesson is one of those striking manifestations of common sense in which Jesus attacks the greatest problems of life and conduct from the standpoint of life's simplest principles. There is, also, in the lesson the emphasis upon the fact so commonly emphasized in the teaching of Jesus that the laws of the spiritual world are not so unlike the laws of the physical and material world.

Calls for Action

The ideal life in the conception of Jesus is not a life of mere good intentions, of futile dreaming, no matter how rich and fine the dreams may be; the ideal life is found, rather, in a true and real investment of all that one is and of all that one has. It is the direction of life that determines its destiny, or, as we should put it in a terse phrase of today, it is character that counts. If a man has a great treasure and allows that treasure to lie neglected, neither in the material world nor in the spiritual world can the treasure be of much use to himself or to anybody else.

There is no glory that attaches to the timidity of doing nothing, even on the assumption that if one does nothing he can do no wrong. Life in its highest aspect is a matter of adventure and commitment. If we are not willing to assume risks, there can be no glory of result.

All this is expressed in the form of a parable, which concerns a man of substance going into another country entrusting his goods to his servants to make the best use of them possible. According to their several abilities he proportioned the responsibility, giving to one five talents, to another two, and to another one.

citizens anxious to see the project get under way, it is at a standstill until condemnations can be accomplished. Valley communities are ren-ewing agitation for a dam on the Rio Grande to furnish gravity irrigation for the lower country. Corpus Christi has dammed the Nueces for city water; but the big lake carrying 63,000 acre-feet of water will provide irrigation for a considerable acreage. Another huge project on the Nueces, for irrigation purposes exclusively, is near Cotulla in LaSalle county, where it is planned to provide sufficient water for irrigating 100,000 acres in truck and fruits.

The largest post office in the United States not on a railroad is in Texas. Canton, county seat of Van Zandt county, carries that distinction with annual receipts of $7000, double daily mail service from Edgewood ten miles away and five rural mail routes. Dalhart—Work started on reconstruction of People Furniture store.

Jobs in Jest

A man arrested for stealing cigars in Chicago said that he did it for his starving children. Probably because he thought it would make them inhale and hearty.

Then again the poor man may have taken too literally the cigar ads which speak of Havana filler.

'Mince pie,' says a medical expert, 'is an assimilable polysaccharide carbohydrate of high caloric efficiency.' But most folks will keep on eating it just the same.

An Iowa attorney wrote that 'women are like whiskey.' And considering the stuff you get nowadays, you can't blame the women for being sore at the comparison.

If you should ask Sir Oliver Lodge, noted writer who keeps in trim at the age of 80 by using a punching bag, to what he attributes his longevity, don't be surprised if he should say, 'It's in the bag.'

The story as it proceeds is an interesting reflection of life.

The man with the five talents doubled his capital, so also the man of two talents; but the man of one talent, careful lest he might lose it, hid it away for safe-keeping. On the return of the master, the servants who had received respectively five talents and two talents gained the approval of their lord. But the man who had hidden away the one talent was rebuked as wicked and slothful, because in his anxiety he had not taken proper care even that that one talent should produce its proper profit.

Of course the parable is not entirely typical of life. Like much of the teaching of Jesus it is directed toward the driving home of one particular truth and the rebuking of the narrowness and weakness of one phase of life. In actual life it is sometimes the five-talent man who fails, and the one-talent man who succeeds beyond all measure, and who assumes the place that naturally and rightfully might have belonged to the man of larger opportunity.

Letter from Dr. Henry

Los Angeles, Calif.,
425 S. Fremont St.,
May 16, 1930.

Lockney, Texas.

I take this opportunity to reach my many friends in and around Lockney. When I left home the last of March I really did not think of being alive at this time, but thanks to God and science, I am what I am. I am much better and believe I will be well soon again and be back in old Lockney and on the job again, at least I want the Lockney Drug to retain my office for me. I feel 50 per cent better, while I suffer a right smart and have not gained but little in weight, I know I am better. My wife and little Charles Morgan are doing fine. The boy is in school at Wasco, Calif., staying with his sister, Lau Emma Peck.

I have not got to see any of the sights here yet for I have put in my time on trying to get well. Now, friends, is surely a sight to see the clinic I attend. About 500 take their treatment twice a week, cancers of all forms and they all claim improvement, that is nearly all of course, any one that knows the nature of this dread disease knows that a cure comes slow, if a tall of course. I can kind of see my way through now and I am growing very anxious to get well and back on my old job at Lockney, where the best people and best country in the world is. I surely have been treated very kindly by these people and especially the doctors that are treating me. I have gotten acquainted with several doctors here and met a great many others from nearly all over the world, that have come here to watch this treatment and to note the affect.

I thank my many friends for their courtesies in visiting me before I left home and I expect to see you all again, I hope in the near future, for old Lockney is very near and dear to me. Love and best wishes my many friends, I am.

S. M. HENRY, M. D.

"Judge Electrical Service By Its Results"

SAYS GEORGE E. ROBERTS,
Vice President, National City Bank
NEW YORK

Science may measure electricity in terms of volts and ohms business, in terms of kilowatt hours and the curve of production; homemakers, in terms of its labor-saving and comfort-making advantages.

However measured, its extension and application by the electric light and power companies to every department of our industrial and domestic life stands out as among the most important basic causes of America's well-being. From its wires has sprung the golden flood of America's unprecedented prosperity.

But economists no longer limit wealth to things. They echo John Ruskin's sound doctrine, that "there is no wealth but life." And judged from this point of view also, the development of electric service in America will go down as one of the most far-reaching events in history.

These things have been made possible by the application of the sound American principle of leadership through competition and elimination—in short, by the principle of individual enterprise.

To the degree that this principle is maintained will the benefits derived from electric light and power continue to be multiplied.

The kind of bug is not known, but it is a different variety of the beetle from anything that has been seen here before. Port Arthur, going ahead, is seeking laurels as a convention city. Host to the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, it has invitations out to other big gatherings, including the 48th district Rotary conference for 1931 and the Texas Press Association. Two of its banks have recently gone into new quarters, one costing $300,000 and the other, remodeled, $100,000. Bids are asked for construction of a $300,000 pleasure pier as an additional argument in attractiveness. . . . Glen Rose opened its 1930 season with a big crowd of visitors. Mineral Wells with adequate hotel facilities is seeking new patrons. The new Hilton at Marlin is about ready for use, and Fort Davis, Alpine and the other attractive cities in that altitudinous part of Texas are getting ready to entertain a lot of visitors this summer. Texas has many attractive resorts, both inland and on the gulf that should have more Texas visitors than they have had in the past. Borger—Phillips Petroleum Co. may build pipe line from Alama plant here to Kansas and points north.

7,000,000 CHEVROLETS
HAVE BEEN BUILT

Detroit, Mich., May 27.—The seven millionth car built by the Chevrolet Motor Company is on its way to its owner somewhere in America. The Epochal car, which happened to be a coach, rolled off the assembly line Wednesday morning, May 28, in the company's huge plant at Flint, Mich. The car was the 1,845,938 six-cylinder car produced by Chevrolet since this model was brought out in January 1929.

Chevrolet's newest record-maker arrived without benefit of ceremony except for the cheers of the workmen along the final line who halted work long enough to give it welcome and watch it being driven to the loading docks for shipment. Then work was resumed and not many seconds later Car No. 7,000,001 went to join its historic companion.

Various dates in the life of the Chevrolet Motor Company on which the millionth car marks have been passed furnish a graphic picture of the rapid strides made by the company to its position of 6-cylinder leadership in the industry.

Nearly 12 years ago, before the company's organization before the one millionth car was built, on Feb. 27, 1923, but the second millionth car rolled off the assembly line less than two years and five months later, on July 20, 1925. A year and six months later, on Jan. 13, 1927, the three millionth car was produced. Thereafter less than a year was required to reach each of the succeeding million marks. The fourth millionth was produced, on Jan. 11, 1928, in 363 days; the five millionth, on Sept. 8, 1928, in eight months, three days; the sixth millionth on June 25, 1929, in 9 months, 17 days. The seventh millionth mark just passed, was reached in 10 months, 25 days.

Commenting on the production of the seventh millionth Chevrolet (W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the company, declared that building a million 6-cylinder cars in less than a year is an outstanding indication of the enthusiasm with which the public has received a 6-cylinder car in the lowest priced field. This class, he explained, offers to buyers to a greater extent than ever before the quality and performance formerly available only in cars of higher price.

HELPING TO BUILD TEXAS

Southwestern Concrete Pipe Co. of Brownsville is erecting branch factories at San Benito, Harlingen, and Donna. Manufacturing enterprises at Sherman, probably the industrial leader among the smaller cities of Texas, paid $77,632 in city, county and state taxes last year. Central Power & Light is bringing the capacity of its Marfa station to 4,200 horsepower because of increased consumption of electricity at Marfa, Alpine and Fort Davis, served by the Marfa plant. Dallas Power & Light has before the Dallas City Commission application for a permit to build a huge plant on Mountain Creek involving the expenditure of around $8,000,000. Present capacity of 110,000 horsepower will be outgrown by 1933, the company figures.

Deport staged a real celebration when the Community Natural Gas Co. opened its valves and turned on service to Deport citizens. Sam Holloway's Deport Times devoted a large part of his issue to the story of natural gas and the company serving his city. . . . Raymond H. Nichols, Vernon Record published, was elected district governor of the 41st district, Rotary International, at Temple. . . . G. F. Bastain former newspaper man and now secretary of the Smithville Chamber of Commerce, can't help writing. He is putting out a Chamber of Commerce bulletin, carrying interesting items to Bastrop County people in general.

Texas towns and districts continue to build handsome school buildings. Mercedes voted 291 to 92 for $250,000 bonds for a new senior high school. Big Spring voters provided $125,000 for additional school facilities. Runge voted $90,000 for a new building. Del Rio is spending $185,000 on a new high school. A rural high school costing $70,000 is to be built by five former common school districts in Wilbarger and Ford counties which voted to consolidate into one independent district.

The Bastrop Advertiser, J. O. Smith, publisher, recently celebrated its 77th birthday. It is probably the oldest weekly in Texas. . . . Charles W. Scruggs, who recently bought the New York Herald, is installing additional equipment and making material improvement, in that publication. . . . Fred I. Massengill of the Terrell Tribune was elected president of the East Texas Press Association and Arthur Bagwill of the Plano Star-Courier vice-president.

Men have gone down to the South Seas, stayed a few months or a year or two and have come back and written novels of varying degrees of accuracy; mostly romantic, glamorous and colorful tales which have captured public interest. Not one of them has the authenticity of the novels of Beatrice Grimshaw. All of the other South Seas writers combined have not equaled her output of stories, neither have they attained to anything like her huge audience in Europe, America and other parts of the world.

During nearly a quarter of a century she has lived in that romantic district and has written its novels for about the same length of time. She has sailed the sapphire and turquoise-lined waters and visited the sparsely settled, tropical-island, coral-built atolls and islands from Papua to the limits of Polynesia and groups farther eastward. She knows not only the various types of natives, but also the polyglot specimens of humanity that have been attracted from other parts of the world; and she has first-hand knowledge of the physical attributes and the flora and fauna of that fascinating section of the globe.

Beatrice Grimshaw is an authority on the South Seas. She draws with a sure hand whether she be depicting world vagabonds and beach-combers, natives, traders, sailors, gold hunters, explorers, government officials or adventurers of type. Above all she draws the country, with its waters, its mountains, its verdure and its detached mystical characteristics. And with it all she has the gift of romanticism; the ability to construct plots and weave the fascinating elements of the region into novels. One has never read a real South Seas story until he has read the notion of Beatrice Grimshaw.

CHAPTER I

The cigar was unnotedly good; it had made me peaceful and dreamy—that, or the reaction after the fuss of getting aboard and away. At all events, I leaned back in the cushioned smoke-room chair, and gave myself up to enjoyment; let the sounds and sights and the smells of the great liner flow pleasantly over me. They were all there, the things that I had known and forgotten. And the boat, beat of the great steamer heart, that was to carry on, day and night, until Hongkong; and the barely heard, long wash of the Coral sea, as we ran north from Cairns in Queensland up towards Torres straits, through all the sapphire and topaz glory of a tropic winter day.

I had the sum of one hundred and seventy-two solid pounds, mine since yesterday, in the care of the ship's majestic purser. There's nothing makes a man feel so innocently drunk, as a haul of cash, when he has been a long time short. This cash of mine was the result of a lucky win in a sweep on the English Derby; nothing more respectable than that—but the strictest purist could hardly have found fault with my way of spending it. I was down in Cairns upon business (very small business and cheap) when the windfall came; and wisely, I decided to go home at once, instead of waiting for the monthly B. P. boat. One treat I must have, I decided; and the call of the Catalina suggested its kind. I would spend eight of my precious pounds on a two-day run to Thursday Island, and get back thence to New Guinea by cutter. For two days, I would dream that I was back in the spacious days of Home and riches; the years when my father owned a fine country house, and a smaller town house, and I had been going to be an English squire, some time or other, and life and society and the "right people," and what one was going to do with oneself after Harrow and the "Varsity had all been changeless, solid as fixed stars.

Nothing solidier than that house, the long avenue with the firs and the crackling gravel, the cottages and farms that were ours, the garden and its strange old-fashioned roses—rice roses, Scotch yellow, moss roses, cabbage. Nothing more sure than the passing for ever and ever the same, of those slow summers and winters in the north of England climate; pale suns and pretty, passionless flowers, rain and short days and snow. Everything set, unalterable.

In one half hour, it was swept away. My father fell dead of unsuspected heart trouble. The solid house, the firs and the avenue, the cottages and farms, Harrow, Cambridge, the "right people," the set, unalterable way of living, all went down the winds of the world together, swept by the same great hurricane. He had speculated. Anyone can fill in the rest.

That was in '14. You know what followed. I was eighteen years of age, hearty and husky of build. There was only one thing to do; I did it. In '19, demobilized, aged twenty-three, I faced the world with some scars and medals to my credit; also two crosses. Nothing much more.

I had been in Egypt! Mesopotamia. The sun lands had got me. I took up land in Australia; failed; went north and north; landed at last at Papua. I had a trading store at the wild west end of the country. I was some years older, a little wiser, a little tougher than even the war had left me. The wild lands had marked me for their own.

And, on that jeweled day of equatorial winter, I was on board the Eastern liner Catalina, having my treat; with no thought of anything but a couple of days' enjoyment, under circumstances that had been mine, and were not; with no dream of anything fateful, anything significant, in the brief journey. I was merely going back to Daru by "T. I." So I thought. What I did not know (—you remember; you did not know—) was that I was, on that day, running right into the double fate that was to change my life.

It began in the oddest manner conceivable. I had finished my cigar, looked at myself in the long mirror as I strolled out on deck, and decided that I was at least not unrepresentable. I was in a peaceful mood; I found a chair, and dropped into it, wishing I knew how to purr like a cat; for I felt that way.

I was simply lifted out of the chair, before I had time to settle down, by shrieks proceeding from forward, where there was a wide unoccupied space of deck. Girls' shrieks—at least three were in it; and they were screaming at the top of their voices. Of course I made for the space of foredeck, extremely ready to come to the aid of beauty in distress. I don't know what I expected; certainly I was not what I saw.

Three ship's officers, attired in all their tropic glory of white drill and gold, were cowering down the deck like horses. On the shoulders of each sat, astride, an extremely pretty girl.

dressed in a bathing suit of the kind known as "one-piece." The girls had jockey caps on their heads, and they were flogging their mounts along with silk handkerchiefs, and screaming encouragement at the top of their rather high voices.

I saw all this in a moment and guessed, without much difficulty, that the riders were three musical comedy actresses, going to join a revue company touring the East, of whom I had heard when taking by passage. One of them—a tall, white-limbed lass with red bobbed hair—was apparently winning; her mount, the chief officer, was yards ahead of the rest. I saw that, I saw, too, the face of a girl on the opposite side of the deck; staring hard at the racers; she had a profile like an Italian coin, dark hair close shingled, and exceedingly blue eyes. That face held me for an instant; it was as if the owner had suddenly called.

Then I saw what made me leap across the deck, tear off my jacket and fling myself over the rail of the Catalina, down thirty feet into the sea.

In the excitement of winning, the red-haired girl had let go her hold of the chief officer's forehead, waved her arms, and lost balance completely. They were near the rail; she began to topple, and I saw she was bound to go. I didn't wait for her to fall; I sprang first. I think we went through the air almost together; she struck the water about as soon as I, and we both went down, in a smother of foam and boiling blue.

We came up well in the rear; when I had grabbed the girl, and got the water and my own hair out of my eyes, I could see the steamer's immensely tall stern already hundreds of yards away, and leaving us as if no body had seen us go overboard.

Of course they had; they were getting a boat out, and taking the way off the ship, as quickly as might be—but if ever you have been left in the midst of the inhospitable ocean by a liner running at full speed, you will realize that I had plenty of time to grasp the situation; plenty of time, too, to wonder if we weren't both likely to be drowned before help could reach us. Because the red-haired girl, in spite of her stage bathing costume, couldn't swim at all.

She was plucky; no one could have been pluckier. She gasped a good bit, but did not cling; she did as I told her, put her hands on my shoulders, and let her legs swing out to support her. "I—I can float—a bit," she said chokingly. "I—I'm not a scrap afraid. Never say die; th—that's my motto."

If she was not afraid, I was; abominably so. Because I had seen something she, with her face toward my back, had not seen; something I did not want her to see. A black, sharp finger, the finger of death, and ugly death, that beckoned to us both.

I didn't need to look at the Catalina—now motionless, a long way off—to know that the boat she had lowered stood no chance in that life-and-death race. I knew what a shark could do in the way of speed, when once it scented food. This shark was only cruising—so I thought—but if it made up its mind to attack us, twenty seconds would see the finish.

The shark was getting curious; slithering about; coming nearer with every tack. "Look here," I said suddenly, "are you game to do just what I tell you and ask no questions?"

"Aren't I? Try me."

"Then put your mouth down to the water, and blow as hard as you can."

She stared; was about to speak—but something in my face (I think) checked her. Awkwardly she bent her lips to the swaying green that barely held us up; strugglingly but determinedly blew. I blew also. Bubbles went streaming from our lips under water; a string of silver bells, a web of pearls. Years ago, in mid-Pacific, I had heard about this way of keeping off sharks; had even seen the girls who swam in the Prussian-blue pools of Niue, blowing bubbles every now and then, just as a measure of precaution.

But was there really anything in it? Had any human creature, attacked, or in danger of attack ever kept away these tigers of the deep by merely puffing bubbles at them? I didn't know. I only knew that there was nothing else to do.

It was impossible to go on blowing forever. We halted, for a rest. By this time the girl had certainly guessed what was happening; but she said never a word. Her laughter, her silly bravado, had vanished; she held to my shoulder with a clutch of iron, and her breath came short as sobs, but she still kept her head, still refrained from grabbing or hampering me.

I looked at the fin again. "G—d," I said, and didn't know I spoke, "it's coming"—for it has turned end on, and I saw it as a black spike sticking out of the water, incredibly huge.

I put my mouth down again, and blew—blew till my lungs were one hot pain all down my back. The black fin poised. I felt the girl's finger nails like claws in my neck; heard her spluttering uselessly into the water, game to the last; swung her round, I don't know how, so as to get my body between her and the sea tiger that was hungering for our blood; saw it go off with a rush like a torpedo, and thought the end was come.

What I had forgotten about was the boat. I don't think for a moment that our blowings and bubbings had any effect upon the shark, other than to excite its curiosity. It was the near approach of the ship's whaleboat, furiously rowed that gave it pause. Pause, I say, because, when the boat had dashed between us and the shark, and four strong arms were busy hauling us up over the gunwale—a thing that can't be done in seconds, try how you may—the shark suddenly seemed to realize that its dinner was leaving it, and made such a determined charge that the sailors had to fight it off with all the available oars.

They got us into the boat, and the chief had a tot of whisky ready. I never saw a man look more as if he wanted one himself, but that was small wonder; if he had not been playing the giddy goat, nothing would have happened. I think I told him as much; also, that I was not in the least cold, and would have a dry shift in ten minutes; didn't need a drink. The lady, I said, had better have one.

She and he shared it. Her face looked very white, under her wet red hair, and I dare say she may have thought she would take cold; anyhow, he put his uniform coat round her, and was making all fast with his arm when she wriggled apart from him, and flung herself down on the seat beside me.

"I'm going to sit next the bravest man I ever met," she said, her breast heaving up and down very fast under the white and gold coat. I saw she was almost in hysterics, so I simply answered, "Hats. We fell over together." And nobody said anything more, till the whaleboat nosed against the ship's side.

When they got us on board, it was the very devil for five minutes. People came and shook my hand, and told me I was a brave man; some of them thumped my back; several wanted me to come and have a drink.

"We all know Gin-Sling is game," said somebody, "but you're gamer." "We couldn't have done without Jimmy," cut in some one else. "No, by Jove!"—"Jimmy for ever!"—"Gin-Sling's preserver!"—"Hooray!"

They would have it; I was fairly mobbed. I could hardly get to my cabin for a change of clothes without being carried on the shoulders of the clothes last longer when washed in a HAAG

HAND-RUBBING is even harder on clothes than on the hands. Before long, this constant friction of fabric against metal produces worn spots. But when clothes are washed in a Haag, they require no hand-rubbing, boiling, or soaking. Even badly soiled work-shirts and overalls are thoroughly clean. Blankets are fluffy and soft; and the Haag safety agitator protects dainty lingerie from injury.

Just imagine the saving in clothes, when you own a Haag. In time, no doubt, it will pay the cost of the washer. And think of the labor and long hours it saves, too—strength and time for other more enjoyable tasks. The Haag 75 (illustrated) has all the newest features even to the late-model wringer with balloon-type rolls of soft rubber. Available either with 4-cycle Briggs & Stratton gasoline engine or 1/4 H.P. General Electric motor. Arrange to see it soon—today, if possible.

Konjola Ended Neuritis and Kidney Trouble

Well Known Waco Photographer Enthusiastic About New Medicine. "Proven Wonderful Remedy," He Says.

R. H. O. BRUBAKER

"I suffered for six years with neuritis, kidney trouble and constipation," said Mr. H. O. Brubaker, well known photographer, residing at 623 1-2 Austin avenue, Waco. "My ankles and my limbs above the knees were badly swollen and gave me considerable trouble. It became an effort for me to walk. My kidneys were out of order making night risings necessary and causing me to lose restful sleep. My eye-sight seemed to be failing on account of these conditions."

"Much to my surprise, I began to get immediate results after taking this medicine. The swelling left my ankles and limbs and I became stronger. I can now go about my work without stopping to rest. I have been relieved of constipation and my eye-sight has improved since taking this medicine. I have and will continue to recommend Konjola to all who suffer from such ailments as I had. Konjola has proven to me that it is a different and wonderful medicine. It certainly proved its merit in my case."

Konjola was not designed to afford mere temporary relief. Taken systematically, over a period of from six to eight weeks, this medicine will amaze sufferers by the results obtained.

MA FERGUSON ANNOUNCES ON JIM'S PLATFORM One Change Is Made; for Prohibition, Mate's Race Denied Austin, May 24.—Adopting the platform of her husband, held ineligible to hold office by the supreme court, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, wife of former governor James E. Ferguson, today formally announced her candidacy for governor.

She announced she would accept her husband's platform "with only one change."

"Instead of promising to veto all liquor legislation as he promised to do, I want to strengthen our liquor laws and see if some improvement cannot be made in their enforcement," she said. "We who have been prohibitionists all these years have suffered much discouragements recently, and I want to see one honest effort made to outlaw the liquor traffic before we give up the struggle."

Mrs. Ferguson served as governor from 1925 to 1927, having been defeated for re-election by Governor Moody, who was attorney general during her tenure. She was elected in 1924 after James E. Ferguson, impeached and removed from the governor's office during his second term in 1917, was refused a place on the ballots.

The supreme court Friday held that Ferguson's impeachment had disqualified him from again holding office and refused to issue a mandamus to compel the state Democratic committee to place his name as a candidate for governor on the primary ballots.

"To those who may think that a woman cannot make a good record I refer them to the two administrations, preceding and succeeding mine," Mrs. Ferguson said. "I leave it to the fair minded to say if the record of my administration suffers by the comparison."

She gave notice that in event of her election she would "receive the aid and advice of my good husband."

She'll Consult Husband "If consulting with one's husband be treason, then make the most of it," she said. "It appears to me that one of the things that is the matter with this country now is that we do not have enough of the old fashioned fire-side talks and confidences like our fathers and mothers used to have when they were laying the foundations of this republic."

Mrs. Ferguson said she favored passage of laws providing that no one shall be allowed to hold any office, legislative, judicial or executive, who "in any way drinks or uses intoxicating liquors unlawfully obtained, and that no person shall take any office to which he or she may have been elected until an affidavit of said person is filed with the clerk of the county stating that said person has not during the six months preceding the making of said affidavit drank any intoxicating liquor unlawfully bought or obtained."

Action of the Texas senate in impeaching Ferguson and removing him from office was "judicial punishment," and as such "is not indelible as a constitutional penalty, but is pardonable," the supreme court was told today in Ferguson's motion for a rehearing of his application for a mandamus to compel the state Democratic executive committee to place his name on the party ballots as a candidate for governor.

The court yesterday held Ferguson ineligible on account of his impeachment and judgment of the senate that he be disqualified from holding office in the future.
