2nd Victim of Auto Explosion May Recover

Police Start Investigation After Piece of Nitro-Glycerine Found; Woman Blown to Bits and Youth Dangerously Hurt

Amarillo, June 27.—What police believe was an infernal machine killed Mrs. A. D. Payne, wife of an Amarillo attorney, and maimed and probably fatally injured her 14-year-old son, as they were driving in their automobile toward the business part of the city today.

Mrs. Payne's body was blown to pieces and the boy's left side, which was next to his mother, who was driving, was badly mangled—his left leg and left arm having been almost torn from his body.

Planned Vacation

Payne had walked to his office, almost three miles from his home, and left the automobile for his family's use as they shopped and completed final plans for a vacation they were soon to start.

He could not ascribe a motive for the explosion, although he agreed with police that it must have been caused by an infernal machine. He said they did not know of any enemies of the family.

Mr. W. G. F. against him. Nitro-glycerin expert, said the blast was caused by nitro-glycerine used in a dynamite.

The explosion occurred about 10 blocks after leaving her home. The boy was hurled about 30 feet. The chassis of the car was left intact and the gasoline tank was not damaged.

Detectives said they found bits of wiring and pieces of dry cell batteries at the wreckage. Officers investigating the explosion said they believed the dynamite had been placed directly beneath the driver's seat.

Payne had been a candidate for district judge but withdrew recently. In the course of his practice he had participated in several sensational murder trials in the Panhandle during the year.

However, he insisted that so far as he knew he had no bitter enemies. Authorities late today were without any clue to follow concerning the bombing.

Motive Sought

Efforts of police, the sheriff's office and the district attorney were being directed at finding a motive for the attack, after M. M. Scott, chief of detectives, found a metal scrap which had been identified positively as a part of a nitro-glycerin bomb.

Parts of the dry cell batteries found in the car, Scott said, indicated the charge was planted in the car apparatus timed to explode after the car had started. He also discovered that ignition wires of the car had been tampered with and surplus wires spliced to a circuit leading from the storage battery.

The car was left in the garage last night, Payne said, but the garage was not locked.

Daughter Saved

Payne's daughter, Barbara, nine, escaped injury by walking to town with him this morning, instead of riding in the car with her mother and brother, as she had previously planned.

The report of the explosion was heard for blocks away and windows in many houses were shattered.

PAYNE TO PUSH BLAST PROBE TO FINISH; MAY HAVE CLUES ON CRIME

Amarillo, July 1.—With the declaration that he intended to see the investigation through to a finish, A. D. Payne, local attorney, whose wife, Exa Payne, was killed in an explosion that wrecked the family car today, stated last night that he had received information that might be of help in solving the mystery of the blast.

Except to say the blast was meant for himself, if information brought to him by friends proved to be correct, attorney declined to comment on the nature of the clues. He spent part of his day in his office where he would be accessible to officers direct the investigation.

"I believe I have obtained one or two valuable clues," Payne said. "I am given everyone the benefit of a doubt, and have tried to do what would not associate even as with such a terrible affair. But conclusions are forced upon us by piecing together small bits of information, there may be a possible solution in sight. If so, the explosive meant for me.

Since talking with my son, I have changed the thought that first occurred to me that he might have carried ried out an idea of using dynamite for Fourth of July fireworks, and I am convinced now that he had nothing to do with placing the explosive in the car.

"I appreciate the co-operation of officers and I am doing everything possible to aid them. My strongest desire now is to see this thing through."

To Tell Boy of Death Today

Payne was asked by The News to make a statement, and encouraged to elaborate on his remarks, but he declined to talk further. Relatives said they feared he was on the verge of breaking down under the strain, and that he had not slept since the tragedy.

The boy, A. D. Jr., who was seriously injured in the blast, was said to have gone through the day in good shape. Any infection that might set in was expected yesterday, and the attending physician said there appeared to be no danger. If the boy rested well last night, the physician will tell him today of his mother's death, it was said.

A conference with Payne opened yesterday's investigation, but officers said the session cast little light on the mystery.

$1,700,000,000 SPENT ON PUBLIC WORK FOR 1930. HOOVER SAID

Washington, June 30.—President Hoover said tonight public works construction during the first six months of the year totaled $1,700,000,000, exceeding by more than $200,000,000 the boom year of 1929.

In a radio address from the White House study to the governors' conference at Salt Lake City, the chief executive said the second half of the year "promises even greater results" and asserted the "splendid endowment" of our country for fortitude, courage, boundless energy and resources, together with the unity of effort is the guarantee of recuperation.

"To definitely organize so as to prevent the activity in public works from receding like other activities in depression, and to speed them up in anticipation of future needs so as to alleviate unemployment in such a time is a new experiment in our economic life of the first importance," Mr. Hoover said in thanking the governors for their co-operation following the stock market depression of last fall.

$200,000,000 Over Record

"We have regarded great business depressions with their inevitable train of unemployment and hardships," the president said, "as an inevitable fever which must run its course, and in former times if public works were undertaken in alleviation of unemployment it has been in the sense of semi-charity. . . . Had matters followed their previous course, we should during the past six months have undoubtedly seen a diminution in volume of unemployment in public works over normal times but on this occasion we witness a large increase.

"The department of commerce informs me," Mr. Hoover continued, "that the totals expended or contracted for in new public works and betterments by national, state and local governments in these last six months have not been less than $1,700,000,000 and that this exceeds even the boom year of 1929 by over $200,000,000 and the organized effort to which you have contributed so much in creation will, I am confident, go still further in its accomplishments. Nor should I omit reference to the effort of our utilities and our leading business concerns to co-operate with us in the increase of construction. They have shown courageous faith in the future and their expansion of employment which they have provided in construction and betterment works exceeds even the $200,000,000 of increase over 1929 accomplished by the public authorities."

The president said the need for "continued serious effort" still exists.

"We are pioneering a new path for the future which shall add to the orderly progress of the nation," he said "every dollar of work we provide now adds to the security of the home in this time of stress. It adds courage and hope in time of adversity."

Allies Rule Lasted More Than 11 Years

Fatherland Flag Flutters Where Tri-Color Has Waved—People Celebrating

Mayence, Germany, June 30.—A liberated Rhineland from which the last French soldier of occupation had departed tonight proceeded to celebrate its new freedom.

Quietly, with precision that had characterized its every action since military rule was imposed by 125,000 allied troops more than 11 years and seven months ago, the last 1,000 troops in horizon blue rode away today.

Occupation of the German Rhineland, an area of 2,475 square miles with between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 population officially ended at noon. Scarcely had the remnant of France's army turned its back upon this post and Wiesbaden when German flags began to flutter where the tri-color had waved so long.

Rhinelanders who felt the full force of the dislocation of their civilian lives while German statesmanship adjusted itself to the new policy of peace, prepared to celebrate at midnight with all Germany in a manner not known to war-oppressed peoples since Armistice day, 1918.

Places to Live

Thousands who lived in Mayence watched the last trainload of soldiers vanishing westward. They recalled the early years of occupation when, for months at a time, even such commonplace conveniences as mail, telephone and telegraph were nonexistent and there was so little freedom of movement for civilians that Rhinelanders found themselves placed under arrest for playing their national anthem on the pianos, in their own homes.

Those who cheered loudest for the departing soldiers, however, were the approximately 10,000 citizens who had been waiting months, even years, for a place to live.

Final evacuation of the garrison of this city meant to them that more than 5,000 dwellings, with 25,000 rooms, were available for Germans who names were on a long list of would-be renters.

On the whole little fuss was made over the departing troops. By general agreement most of the inhabitants awaited the marching in of Hessian police this afternoon before breaking out the national colors. As the green-coated Hessian police marched over the bridge and into the city with the blaring of bands, the national and the Hessian colors were run up everywhere and the populace poured into the streets.

Apparently every man, woman and child who could walk was out to greet the new police force from the Fatherland. Police cheered, aviators did stunts overhead above the Rhine, and drivers of automobile made a deafening noise with sirens and horns.

The first thing the Hessian police saw at the Mayence end of the bridge was the black, red and gold flag of the German republic rising over what for a dozen years has been the headquarters of the French army of occupation.

Ruedesheim, Germany, July 1.—(Tuesday).—With the departure of the last soldier in horizon blue, the Rhine and the Rhineland at midnight blazed with lights and echoed with the pealing bells of freedom.

The Rhine was one long river of rejoicing. Tens of thousands of Germans, in every kind of craft from folding rowboats to tourist steamers, swarmed out on the historic stream, drinking toasts to the Fatherland.

From this town the Rhine was lighted up for many miles upstream and downstream by the illumination of the national monument "Niederwaldenkmal," which had been prohibited by the occupation authorities.

To the accompaniment of ringing church bells, and booming cannon, the great monument, 675 feet above the Rhine, blazed forth as a beacon light. It is a tall shaft representing the figure of Germania and in relief are pictures of the Emperor Williams the First and the military leaders of 1870-71.

AVERAGE U. S. FAMILY AUTO EXPENSE IS $776

The average American family spends $776 a year for autos, according to a special report of the U. S. Bureau of Economic Warfare, released recently. It spent $388 on cars, $180 on trucks, $100 on motorcycles, $100 on other vehicles, and $108 on accessories. For the first time, the report shows that more families than ever before have automobiles. In 1929, only 10 per cent of the families had cars, but now more than 40 per cent do.

THAT CHICAGO TRIP

Yes, the editor has returned, he was neither shot, half-shot, nor robbed while away, he saw many sights worth seeing and had a fine trip. As the readers, probably know, as we put a piece in the Beacon three weeks ago, stating that the editor and family had left for Chicago, Illinois, to attend the Rotary International Silver Anniversary Convention, that we have been away from home. We left Lockney Sunday June 15, and went over the Lee Highway to Vernon, Texas, and with the exception of a few detours, the roads were good to Vernon, and the detours between here and Vernon were occasioned by the fact that the people of Motley and Cottle Counties are paving their roads, and within a few weeks there will be paved roads from the east line of Floyd county to Vernon, where there are several paved roads leading in different directions.

The day before we left home it had rained regular floods in the Vernon country and Southern Oklahoma, and leaving the pavement at Red River, north of Vernon, we had to pull mud to Marlow, Okla., passing through the towns of Davidson, Snyder, Ft. Sill, reaching the pavement at Marlow, going over paved roads to Chickasha, where we spent the first night with an uncle of the wife. Monday morning we went to Oklahoma City, where we inspected the state capitol building and investigated what Jack Walton had left to the state when he was ousted out of office. We then started over Highway 66 to Tulsa, but about 20 miles out of Oklahoma City, we found that the high water had us blocked, so we changed our route and went to Guthrie, Okla., where we ate dinner, and then proceeded due north to Wichita, Kansas, to avoid the high water and detours. We passed by the famous "101 Ranch" in northern Oklahoma, which is now mostly converted into a farm, since the Miller Bros. are picture business. We reached Wichita journey and stopped over for the night and to take a look at the town. Wichita, with a population of 101,000, government census, and is a real nice town. Harley Sadler show company was putting on a week's engagement there, but on account of being across town from where we were stopping we did not go to see the show. Tuesday morning we went direct east across the state of Kansas, traveling across the famous ranch section of the state, and let us tell you, that is the finest ranch country, in our belief, in the United States today, and we have lived in a ranch country practically all of our lives, too. The grass was half knee high, the large herds of Hereford cattle were big fat, and everything seemed to be in a prosperous shape. We left Kansas by way of Fort Scott, and went to Clinton, Missouri, where we spent two nights and one day on a farm six miles from the town, visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Kinyon, parents of Geo. F. Kinyon of Lockney. Here we put in a day resting, and looking over the Missouri farm problems, and discussing the prevailing questions with these good people, and we found that Missouri, like Texas, has her farm and political problems, and they are not all milk and honey by any means. Leaving Clinton Thursday morning went due north about forty miles to where we intersected Highway No. 40, which is the principal highway from Kansas City to St. Louis, and is paved every inch of the way across the state with a best class concrete pavement. The rest of the day was spent in just enjoying the road, as you could run just as fast as you cared to, and raining on us all day long. We spent Thursday night in St. Louis, but did not go out for a seeing, as we wanted to get on the road early the next morning. Friday morning we followed highway 40 into the city, and traffic jams, to McKinley Bridge across Mississippi river, and went through East St. Louis, where we took Highway 66 for Chicago. At noon we stopped at Springfield, Illinois, where we ate dinner and where the state capital, looked it over, and got some Lincoln Souvenir Posters for the boys, and took a squirt at Abe's statue which is anchored in front of the state house. We proceeded on to Joliet, where we intended to stay all night, but the roads were so good and the sun so high when we arrived there, we just stepped on the gas, when we realized how far we were going that day, we found ourselves right up in the city of gangsters and where they expected to begin holding the Rotary convention on the coming Monday, so we found us a place to stop for a week, and called it a good thing.

We began our tour of Chicago, and I use if in building it to stage broke to rubberneck about the point of the east were the scrapers, fountains, parks, museums, Art buildings, Zoos, etc. The days Saturday and Sunday were principally spent in rubber-necking, and seeing everything possible, and getting used to the lake front, Michigan Avenue, and visiting at Lincoln Park.

On Monday the big show started, and the first day was practically spent in getting the 18,000 delegates from 46 countries of the world registered, located for the five days, and getting them acquainted with each other. The House of Friendship, located in Chicago's finest hotel, the Stevens, was a masterpiece of art in design, and was so designed to make the visitors think they were out in the great open spaces, and we guessed that the reason for all the decorations, which was of a forest nature, was made so because those people knew that most all of this delegation were a lot of country rubes and they wanted to make them feel at home. Well, we suppose their idea was a great success, for all the delegates seemed to make themselves at home, among the birds that were flying about in the House of Friendship and admiring the many fountains and pretty fish, and they were getting familiar with each other in a very short time. On Tuesday morning they imported the delegates to the Stadium street, where the President of the Chicago clubs welcomed us to the city and told us how proud they were to have us present. Then the chairman turned the big stick over to President Gene Newsom, who called the house to order and began the routine business of the session, and began to introduce the different speakers for the morning session, and by the way these speakers were from all parts of the globe, and they were of the best people of each country, for they were all well educated and give us a message in the English language that was worth while. The first session dwelt mainly on the International relations of the countries represented in Rotary and bless your soul if Rotary is a success there will be no more wars in this old world. Those far East, Near East, South Americans, Canadians, Mexicans, Japs and Chinks, all want peace. That tribe that was in Chicago could do a far better job around a peace table, according to our reasoning, than those prime ministers, war-dogs, and ambassadors. These men talk peace, set peaceable, are friendly, brotherly, want war stopped, and want to understand the people of the other nations, so that harmony and friendship might prevail. The growth of such organizations as Rotary International will do more toward making this world peaceable than anything that can be undertaken—when you make a friend of a man, he understands you and you understand him, you can settle your differences without shedding blood.

Tuesday afternoon was spent in group meetings, and of course, we were sent to the editors section, where newspaper men from all over the United States, and all foreign nations talked about paper problems, their relations to other lines of business, and how to better serve the people of our local communities, our states, our nation and other nations. Well, we had a regular old time press association, as there were lots of editors present, and they all like to talk, everytime they get a chance, and we had a lot of fun out of those Chicago pencil-pushers who could not see why us country-jakes wanted to play us their gang wars, and keep our people enlightened, and afraid of the city.

We did not attend any of the Brass-collared dinners, as they were too rich for our blood, and as we have little or no desire to pay $5 for a plate, when we can get more ham and eggs for a half a dollar than all that fancy junk they serve over the banquet table, and then ham and eggs won't make you pay a doctor bill on the side. The would-be greats of course pulled their special parties and swung around the ball rooms, while we were getting a little rest, so we would be fit to take in the regular meetings, and get what we could out of the better things that were to be found in Rotary. But we must say right here, that there was a different air in this convention from any convention we have ever attended, as there no drinking that could be detected, there were no roudies, nor ill-mannered people, order was the watchword, and every delegate seemed to be interested in Rotary more than in anything else. The entire body of delegates attended every session, and every delegate to his place in group meetings, every Rotarian was friendly and glad to greet his brothers, a spirit of goodwill and service predominated in all affairs of the convention, and all Rotarians were of one class, regardless of their being of forty-six different kinds of human beings. The convention was the most marvelous of any convention that could possibly be held and every respectable nation in the world was represented, and the very citizens were the leaders in Rotarianism.

The crowning event of Tuesday's session was the speech of Paul Harris, the first Rotarian, who was present to mark the Silver Anniversary of Rotary. Paul Harris recited how Rotary was caused by men who were in the companionship in a large city, and of the wonderful five-year-old club in the twentynow had its assistance, until it the civilized world. At times he with emotion and friendship the day of the Lord's Day. These things brought about the sensual desires, and when they desire control there is no moral

The third morning, Wednesday, was devoted chiefly to the nomination and election of officers for Rotary International, and all officers nominated were elected unanimously, except the president, in which case there were two nominees, and the election was deferred until Thursday morning.

Some good speeches were made by Rotarians from all parts of the world at this session. In the afternoon the delegates were again divided into groups, and the topics for these sessions were Community Service, and the discussions were along the line of what courses to pursue in order to give the best service to your home community, to create friendship and good will among all classes of people of each community served by a Rotary club, and to assist and promote all kinds of improvements for the benefit of your own and adjoining communities. This series of group meetings were the key to making Rotary the outstanding club of every community in the nation, or foreign nation, and the motto: "Service Before Self," was emphasized in the fullest.

Thursday morning, (fourth day) was devoted to election of president, reports of committees, and addresses from outstanding figures of the world. One of the outstanding features of this session was the talk made by Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, President of the House of Peers, Tokyo, Japan. His theme was "National Aspirations" and dealt with Rotary part in preserving world peace.

Friday, the last day was given over to winding up the affairs of the convention and talks by foreigners from all countries represented. We did not stay for the Friday sessions. We came back over the same route from Chicago to St. Louis, where we took Highway 66 out of St. Louis South and West, through the Ozark Mountains, and spent the first night in the Ozarks near St. Clair, Mo., the second day was spent traveling thru Southern Missouri and Oklahoma, seeing the country. We ate dinner at Springfield, Mo., and stayed that night near Tulsa, Okla. The third day we broke all records for traveling on the trip, coming from near Tulsa, Okla., to Ranger, Texas, that day, a distance of 460 miles. We arrived home the next afternoon, a distance of 266 miles from Ranger, Texas. We traveled 1284 miles on the trip going to Chicago, and about 1485 miles on the return trip. We found crop conditions fine all along the entire route. In Missouri the crops were late, occasioned by an extended drought, that had only been broken about two weeks before we visited that section, but their crops had been planted during the dry weather, and as soon as the rain came the come up and got a good start, and are now in fine condition. In Oklahoma both the cotton and feed crops are fine and are above normal for this time of the year, they had not suffered from dry weather, and if nothing hinders from now on they will probably have a good all-round crop. In Texas the crops are on a par with the Oklahoma crops, good all the way round where we traveled.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

We are always glad to see a man of ability step out into the battle of right against wrong; with the courage of his convictions, with the backbone to face the proponents of lust and avarice. We have read with much interest the recent articles by J. E. Stephens, Pastor of the M. E. church. We want to indorse the fight he is making against Sunday baseball, the swimming pool, card playing, etc. We believe these evils are stealing away the hearts of the young the feeling of reverence for the day of worship, the Lord's Day. These things appeal to the sensual desires, and when they desire control there is no moral nous nature of our boys and girls is being broken down, and that to many Sunday has become a day of frolic, sports, and high powered merchandising. The idea of a day devoted to the praise of Jehovah is replaced by the desire for licentious pleasures.

We mean to oppose these evils with all our might and trust that the church as a body will do likewise. Let us shun the very appearance of evil, cleave to that which is good, abhor that which is evil.—West Side Church of Christ by the Elders, J. A. Nall and Geo. W. Tierce.

Since the last issue of the Beacon, in which this writer had some what to say concerning moral and civic conditions in our town, as I have been saying in the last three issues, quite a number of people have spoken to me commending my attitude in the reforms advocated, a number have urged that I continue the agitation.

This writer appreciates all these expressions of commendation, and confidence. But my friends that does not get us any where. There seems to be no change in the situation, Sunday desecration runs right on, the swimming pool, and the baseball, and the picture show are running right a long, with seeming usual patronage.

Unless the municipal authorities, who have control of the municipal hall ground and the swimming pool take action to stop this desecration, it will in all probability continue. That they could stop it, every body knows.

It seems to be the theory of many folks that because such things are common in towns generally, that we people in Lockney can't afford to be different. If other people do those things, of course we must, to do that be out of style, and the people demand, they must have.

But God demands that we observe the Sabbath day, and keep it holy unto the Lord, and there is quite a sprinkle of good people in this town and community, who demand the same thing, and I believe, that the God whose hand are all our lives, and hopes for time and eternity should have some regard in these things.

And I think that class of people who believe in the just and righteous observance of the Christian Sabbath, should have some recognition. But it seems that such is not the case so far.

There are just two great forces in this world, the righteous and the unrighteous.

God is the champion of the good, the Devil is the champion of the wrong.

Now, every interest in this and every other community, is operating under one or the other of these two great forces.

God is for the observance of the sabbath and the Devil is for the desecration of the sabbath, these two forces are antagonistic the one to the other, whatever God is for the Devil is against. I think no one will question that God's law is on the side of the Christian Sabbath. Some say, well, it's just a question as to what constitutes Sabbath desecration, and many think that any kind of amusement that people want, is permissible. But this attitude will not stand the test, if it would, then you have opened the flood gates for anything that people want to do, and surely this can not be justified by any one who believes in the sabbath being observed in any sacred way. Of course there are those in every community, who do not give a rap for the observance of the sabbath and if they can ply their business on the sabbath day to financial profit, they will do it, regardless of God's demands, or any bodies wishes or rights, if they are permitted to do those things.

And there are so many people who seeing others do those things and meet with no censure, that they become accustomed to it, and soon think it's all right, they say others do it, and why should not I? And there are those who say well, I see lots of people worse things than that, and if I never do any thing worse than that, I'll be all right. A reason and a conclusion absolutely wrong. One man's sin never justified another, every man must stand or fall on his own doings.

There are those who contend for an open sabbath and say there should be no law restricting the sabbath, let people do as they please. They say we have no need of law any way, and that you can't make people good by restrictive laws. To all of which I answer, if that is true, then the God of heaven did some very foolish things, for He has given us some very positive laws, and some of them are very restrictive, and there is promised some wonderful blessings in the observance of those laws, and some severe penalties attached to them, if they are disobeyed. Law was never intended for good people only as a protection, they are intended to restrain evil doers, in the hope that by being thus restrained, they may become better, and finally see the wisdom of right living, its value to society, and become the right kind of people themselves. That all restrictive law fails in some instances, is too sadly true. But that is no reason why the law should be repealed, for it will restrain some, and it is some protection to those who do observe it.

The argument of many, who recognize the evil times which we are come, and agree that the sabbath day is being shamefully disregarded, is that you can't do any thing about it, you might as well say nothing, no use to stir up agitation, people laugh at you, and you just make an ass of yourself.

Well, there is more than one way to look at things. Personally, I had rather be a long eared donkey, and live the life a donkey is supposed to live, which, be it said to his credit, he usually does, than to be an intelligent creature, permitted to live among intelligent creatures, with moral obligations resting upon me and then to live my life constant with their highest good as well as my own, and ignore that obligation, live my life for myself only, without any regard for the rights of others, which kind of a life is no better than a donkeys, because he lives on that same low plane having no power to live any other.

You can never stand guiltless before the bar of God, neither before the bar of your own conscience, if your conscience is not asleep, and keep silence when God's law and the law of the constitutional and inalienable rights of good citizens are being continually flaunted in your face, and when the preservation of the best interest of the youth of the community are being publicly and continuously and persistently disregarded. To keep silence, is but to acquiesce. To do nothing, is to become in some degree, a party. To do and say nothing, when wrong, public wrong, is being carried on, though you do not approve, but never lift your hand in protest, is to assume that you do approve, or that you do not care, or else you are afraid and have surrendered.

If there ever was a time when good people should rise up and defend the rights of the youth of our land, speak against and fight in a righteous way for the recognition of those fundamental principals that underly all moral and civic rights in the community, its today. And it's not a question how much good I may do, its a question of what I tried to do, what my best to do. No man is successful in any endeavor, unless he may be many reasons, but I think every man is responsible for doing his best. A duty fully to the best of one's ability, is a victory, in so far as that individual is concerned.

Well, why all this philosophizing, my only reason is to try to get people to think, and thinking right, to look beyond the now of things, there will be a tomorrow. Habits are being formed, characters builded. Lockney will be a better town in which to live and rear a family, a better town in which to do business in the tomorrow, or it will be a less desirable one. And the attitude of the people now will determine this.

Some may think this preacher has a grouch, but not so. Everybody treats me fine. I could not ask for better treatment than myself and family personally have had, and because we the people, and everybody has been so kind and good to us, is all the greater reason why we want to be all the (Continued on Page 4)

A PIONEER OF FAITH

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 6. A Man Who Found Friendship With God. Gen. 12:1-3; 13:7-12; Heb. 11:8-10.

THE general title of this lesson is "Abraham, a Pioneer of Faith." Abraham was a pioneer in more senses than one. Even apart from the matter of religious faith, he stands as the great prototype of those who have felt the urge to leave their old established home environment to go forth seeking new adventures and new opportunities in the building of new civilizations.

It is interesting to note how much of that pioneer urge and activity have been associated with religious aspiration and motive.

America was settled to a large extent by those who came seeking liberty of conscience and of worship; and the movement out from older communities has always had the inspiration of faith-inspired freedom and expression. Many of these interesting pioneer movements have been associated with forms of religion that have been outside the range of regular movements of church life. The Mormon movement is a conspicuous example of the association of certain forms of religious belief with the pioneer spirit.

Getting Away from Idolatry

The distinction of Abraham religiously, however, was as a pioneer of faith. Whatever man has urged him to leave his home in Ur, seeking new opportunities in Palestine. It is religion that in our biblical record of Abraham's life is the dominant motive and interest.

Many believe that this movement was occasioned on Abraham's part by the sensing of a nobler and clearer conception of God than he found in the idolatrous environment of Ur. If the records suggest what was actually present in Abraham's mind rather than what was read in by a later writer, there was in him a sense of empire building, a consciousness that he was to be the head of a great people.

But one of the most noble things concerning Abraham is the foundation upon which this empire was to be built. He was not a military conqueror, a man of ruthless ambition. He appears, rather, in one of the most enlightening and beautiful passages of the whole Bible as a man whose peaceful spirit and ideals rebuke the plans and purposes of nations still unduly occupied with war and bloodshed.

The moral daring of the man matched his vision and his common sense, and when one thinks of the greed and selfishness of individuals and nations that have brought about all manner of conflict and tragedy and that have been at the very foundation of world tyrannies, one has profound respect and admiration for this man who, when his herdsmen were in strife with the herdsmen of Lot, his kinsman, said, "I will not quarrel with thee, for I have no strife, I pray thee, let me and thee, and betwixt my herdsmen and thy herdsmen for we be brethren."

KNOW TEXAS

Texas led all the states in production of crystalline graphite in 1929.

Texas had 7,021 farms electrically served from transmission lines at the end of 1929. This represented a gain of 1,236 over 1928, but only 1.5 per cent of the 465,646 farms in the state.

Texas has more prisoners confined for violation of the prohibition law than any other state in the union and more than 32 other states combined on that count. (Authority: Representative Bachman, W. Va.)

One Texas gas field—there are several others, some almost or quite as important—is estimated to have 8,000 billion cubic feet in available reserve.

Measured by the electric output yardstick, business conditions in Texas are eight times as good as the average over the United States. For the last three months Texas' electrical output gained 8 per cent against an average over the United States of 1 per cent.

HELPING TO BUILD TEXAS

Potato shipments from the Valley will exceed considerably the total of 1,650 last year, according to the Donna News, and will go well past the 2,000-car mark. The average price per car to the shipper is $1,000. The first carload shipments of roasting ears and tomatoes were shipped from the Valley recently. The Swift poultry and produce plant at Taylor, employing 75 persons and furnishing a market for Williamson county poultry and dairy products, was recently put into operation. East Texas Canning Co. plans a branch cannery at Jasper where it is expected to raise 30 carloads of truck of all kinds this year.

Only relatively is there any slowing up in Texas' industrial advancement, and there are many projects, large and small, under way, starting or projected in various towns over the state. American Cynamid is reported to have secured options on land at Corpus Christi for a plant to manufacture fertilizers and chemicals and using a lot of sulphur from the Duval county mines. Donna and San Benito are slated to get concrete plants, according to the San Juan Sentinel. Monte & Co., New Orleans are establishing a branch bagging factory at Houston to employ 75 workers on a site purchased from the Missouri Pacific. Paso-Tex Petroleum Co. is spending a million and a quarter on an additional unit to its El Paso refinery. Placing of machinery in the Marble Falls plant of Certified Laboratories is proceeding preliminary to manufacturing surgical gauze and other products used by the medical profession.

Texas towns and cities also are going ahead. Amarillo voted $150,000 for street paving and $25,000 for park improvements. Waco's new city hall is ready for occupancy. Peryton has a new $50,000 hospital. Spearman, Eagle Pass, Bryan are added to the long list of Texas communities providing funds for handsome new school buildings. Port Arthur let contract for a $247,900 pleasure pier.

Grapevine is interesting an Indiana sewer pipe concern in the fine clays found in that section. Platonia is going in for poultry with more than 50,000 baby chicks distributed there this spring. An egg-breaking plant is an early result. Cameron's cheese plant is going ahead with increased milk receipts and farmers more interested in dairying and diversification. Gorman is seeking a potato-curing plant. Work on the Big Spring terminals of the Texas & Pacific is progressing rapidly—total cost $2,900,000.

The fifth annual West Texas Press Association will be held in Abilene July 11. A program representing all of Texas has been announced by Jimmy Smith of Snyder, including as speakers Joe J. Taylor of Dallas, "Mefo" Foster of Houston, Jim Lowry of Honey Grove, Erasmus Tack of Amarillo, Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth and Charley Guy of Lubbock. For the information of all concerned, the West Texas Press Association always has a good convention.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—On a pleasure trip on a liner in eastern waters, made possible by a lucky turn of fortune's wheel, the narrator, Philip Amory, impetuous but well-born young Englishman, World War veteran, now a trader at Daru, on the island of Papua, New Guinea, plunges overboard to save the life of a young musical comedy actress known on board as "Gin-Sling."

CHAPTER II—He learns she is Pia Laurier, member of a wealthy New South Wales family, and, after their introduction, tells her something of his life in Papua, including his knowledge of a wonderful gold field at Tatalaka, on the island, though he does not reveal the name of the place. He is told by "Gin-Sling" (Genevieve Treacher) that Pia is engaged to Sir Richard Fanshaw, prominent in the islands. Amory leaves the ship, his holiday ends as Fanshaw comes aboard, eager to greet Pia. Amory, however, is confident the girl is not indifferent to him.

CHAPTER III—Back at Daru Amory meets a visiting Englishman, Spicer, there on "development" business for an enterprise of which Fanshaw is the head. In an odd way Amory's mind goes back to an almost forgotten incident of years before, when, on a tour of the islands, he blunders on a leper colony. Recalling it, he realizes that a man on the verge of escape from the colony was Fanshaw—a leper, and engaged to marry Pia Laurier!

The question was no sooner asked than answered. He wasn't going to wear it—any longer than he could help. He had been busy packing a small bag, when I looked in; now, snatching the lock, he began pulling off his hideous shirt, and loosening the loincloth. Hung up on a rafter beside him, I saw a European suit, crumpled and earth-stained; it looked almost as if it had been buried and dug up again.

The crack was narrow; I stretched forward to look through, and managed, somehow, to stagger against the flimsy hut wall. It creaked and bent in as if it had been made of paper. The man must have seen it move; with his arm half out of his shirt, he made a snatch at a revolver that was lying beside the bag, and swung round, eyes glaring like a cat's when it sees prey, to face the spot where I was standing.

I did not stand long. Covered by the noise of the wind, I bolted as hard as I could go for a tussock of hibiscus bush, and dropped into it. By the time the man had got out of the hut, I was lying low, safe among the inter-laced stems, and peering through. If I died for it, I was going to know what all this was about.

There were dozens of tussocks near the house; he must have seen the futility of trying to search them. He stood in the doorway, outlined by the smoky flame of his hurricane lamp, and staring wildly about. The spotted-leopard clothes were fastened again; they looked very odd, with the socks and boots he was wearing, and the hat he held in one hand. It was a handsome, well-bred hand, but the little finger, I noticed, had a defective and broken nail.

"Black," he called in a cautious voice that scarcely carried through the wind. "Black—was that you?" I thought he rather hoped it was Black; was arguing with himself that it couldn't have been anyone else.

A freakish humor seized me. I slipped out at the back of the tussock, and showed my head.

"Yes," I answered, aware that no man could identify another in that truthfully. This seemed to satisfy him, more or less. "Is the lunch there?" he asked presently. I said it was. "Go and get everything ready to start. I'll be down in two minutes." This was awkward. I could not be sure of safety, once I left the shelter of the bushes. Black might be inches taller or shorter, pounds heavier or lighter, than I. I hesitated, uncertain what to do.

It seemed that the man in the hut could not endure delay. "What are you messing and waiting about?" he demanded, with an oath. "If I'm caught, so are you, and it's five years on the breakwater."

"So I'm supposed to be committing a crime. I wonder what?" I thought.) The freakish devil that had possession of me prompted me to reply—at a venture. "What about the money?"

This let loose a surprising flood of profanity. I judged that Mr. Black, whoever he was, had been exacting in his demands.

"Money?" (Fiery Interval.) "Money? What do you want? Five hundred already, and another five when you land me in Valparaiso." ("Crums! Valparaiso—in a launch!" I thought. "Who has he been murdering?")

"—And all the cursed expenses into the bargain, and you want more!"

"No," I shouted across the wind. "No, I'm going off to the launch."

The conversation, I thought, was growing too exacting; not much longer should I be able to keep up my end of it—and then, there was that revolver, in the hands of what seemed to be a desperate man. A cloud was coming over the moon. I waited till it touched, then made a bolt. "Hurry up," I shouted, as I ran away, devoutly hoping that he would do nothing of the kind.

"This," I thought, "is clearly an island inhabited by criminals or madmen. Yet I haven't heard of any convict station nearer than New Caledonia. I give it up." I was almost back on the sea-beach by now; it occurred to me that I might as well slip on one of the palm trees, and see whether there was really anything in this talk of a launch.

The palm I had chosen was tall, but a little bent with age. I had not much difficulty in wriggling my way up into the crown. I waited for clear moonlight, and made my survey.

"Gosh!" I exclaimed. There was undoubtedly a launch, if one may so designate a fine thirty or forty ton boat, yachtsman rigged, and fitted with an engine; well able to make the run to Valparaiso, or anywhere else, in competent hands. She was lying some way out at sea, on the leeward side of the island, beyond the inner lagoon. I could see a dinghy, like a little black water beetle, creeping landwards from her side.

"That," I thought, "will be Black. I wonder what the two of them will make of it when they get together?" And the thought so intrigued me, that I fell to laughing, and nearly lost my hold.

But when I got down safe to ground again, I was more than sobered by the thought that came almost immediately—"If what he said is true—if he has given a man called Black a thousand pounds, and expenses—Crums, what expenses they'll be!—to run him out of this, there must have been dirty work somewhere, and I'm mixed up in it." I could not help remembering, somewhat unpleasantly, the remark about "five years on the breakwater."

Omega, I must tell you—but I will tell no more than I must—belongs to a non-British power, which has a short way with offenders against its rather Draconic code of laws. I didn't know what you could be sent to the breakwater for, but I knew there was one, in an out-of-the-way Omega port, and I guessed that labor of the Portland Island kind, conducted under a tropical sun, was likely to be the kind of thing a wise man should avoid, at any cost.

I thought the matter out at length I could arrive at only one conclusion. Whole knowledge was better than half. Whatever the risks might be of exploring yet further this odd, unpleasant place, it would be well for me to find out as much as possible, as soon as possible and (but that went without saying) get away as soon as possible afterwards.

Once more I climbed the palm; swung out among the clashing stems among the swaying butts of the leaves, and looked for the launch. She was off, a long way out to sea, I saw her gliding, black in the silver path of the moon.

"Good," I thought, and slid down again. A few minutes rapid walking found me once more among the little, sinister houses, with their horned gables and their air of being huddled together for some evil deed. The hut that had been lighted, was dark now. I lit a match, from the small reserve I always kept in a bottle, and looked in. No one was there. The place bore signs of hurried desertion—a stretcher bed overturned, with bedclothes hung on the ground; a cabin trunk gaped open, and gutted; piles of gray ash suggesting papers destroyed.

In the middle of the floor lay a loincloth and a shirt of coarse cotton, bright yellow, with black spots as big as plates.

I stood in the doorway and looked. My match burned out. I did not strike another. I walked away, and left the deserted hut to itself. And once more, mastering as a drug, and heavy as a dream, came over me that definite presage of ill.

service to them we can. If the people were not kind to us, and we had a grudge, the easiest way, and the most effective way, to retaliate would be to hands off, and say, "they don't care for us, and we won't do anything for them, just let their children and young people go on, just let any thing that anybody wants to do to attract themselves away from righteous living, and instill in their minds disregard for the highest and best, and in its place cultivate low ideals. Yes, that would be the ideal way to retaliate.

But such is not our attitude. We will meet these young people in after years, and we want their confidence and respect, and we do not want to be condemned by them as being aware of their best interest now, but did not have the love of their best interest at heart, and did not have the courage to fight for them.

The issues involved in these matters are tremendous, truly, they are most vital of all the interest that confront the people of today. The matter of building up our town, the matter of enlarging our territory, the matter of good roads, good streets, and such like, are all important, and well enough, but they are secondary, as compared to the moral welfare of the youth of our community. These are perils times, and no one knows how soon the elements of real mettle of men and women may be tried, and how soon the elements of real character will be tested in an unusual way. The test is being made every day now, and faulty character is shown to day as never before, thousands are going down every day because of the lack of character.

Character is now, and always was and always will be, the test of men and women. I am pleading for those things that make for good character, and I am opposing those things that build faulty, warped, crooked characters, and I know that disregard for God's laws, and the just laws of society, destroy that which is best in all lives. God grant us an awakening.

The writer wishes to commend the management of the "RGO" Golf Course and the Skating Rink for refusing to operate on Sundays.

Why pay for "MILEAGE" if you have to walk part of it

Does your gas tank go dry before you've gone the miles you thought a filling would carry you? Is mileage just a promise in the gasoline you use? Switch to Phillips 66 and watch your gasoline gauge linger at the top of the scale while your mileage gauge reels off mile after mile. Phillips 66 combines mileage with flashy getaway, snappy pickup and smooth, lusty power because it's the gasoline of controlled volatility. Each gallon is scientifically fitted to the season and the climate. Drive up, with confidence, to the pump marked "Phillips 66". Ask for a tankful of motoring satisfaction. And get it!

If elected I will do all that a judge can do to speed up the administration of justice. ### Happy Mother Enthusiastic About Konjola

Relates How New and Different Medicine Did Wonders for Her Little Boy of Twelve

HARMON GLAZE
Results are what count, and Konjola can be counted on for results. Sufferers want relief, not promise. Konjola has made a matchless record simply because it does the things it is designed to do. Take, as a typical example of Konjola at work, the case of Harmon Glaze, 12, whose mother, Mrs. Annie Glaze, Route 4, Lonoke near Little Rock, Ark., says:

"My boy, Harmon, 12, had typhoid about five years ago, and his health since then was not good. He frequently had fever and had attacks of nausea. He had no desire to play and his appetite was poor. Nothing I gave him seemed to do any good. Konjola helped me so much that I decided to give it to Harmon. Today, he is like a different person. He eats, sleeps, and plays like other children and is no longer subject to fevers. I am still giving him Konjola for it has done so much for both of us."

So it goes: Victory after victory wherever Konjola is given the chance to prove its merits. You can put your faith in Konjola feeling that you will be rewarded abundantly.

Konjola is sold in Lockney, Texas, at the Stewart Drug Co., and by all the best druggists in towns throughout this entire section.

THE VALUE OF SOUND DESIGN

New Ford engine gives outstanding acceleration, speed and power without sacrificing reliability or economy

THE good performance of the Ford car, so apparent on every highway, is due largely to the sound mechanical design of the engine.

It has outstanding acceleration, speed and power, yet that is only part of its value to you. Greater still is the fact that it brings you all these features without sacrificing either reliability or economy.

That is the reason the Ford car has given such satisfactory service to millions of motorists all over the world and has been chosen by so many large companies that keep accurate cost figures. In every detail of construction it has been carefully planned and made for the work it has to do.

The design of the compression chamber is an important factor in the efficiency of the Ford engine. It is built to allow free passage of gases through the valves and so thoroughly mix the fuel by producing turbulence within the cylinders during compression. The spark thus flashes quickly through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quieter and more effective engine performance. Other factors are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves of larger diameter, statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, the simplicity of the electrical, cooling, lubrication, and fuel systems and accuracy in manufacturing.
