Mayor J. H. Hohlaus has designated Clean-up Week for Lockney. The date is from Friday, July 5th to Thursday, July 11th. All weeds should be cut, raked, piled and burned, also other rubbish that will burn. All tin cans should be piled in the back alley at some convenient point to get to with truck or wagon. The city will haul them off free of charge on Wednesday and Thursday of next week. So have them ready.

Let all begin right now to make arrangements to have weeds cut around the place. If you do not have time yourself, there are plenty of idle men that are looking for a job.

Weeds have covered the town section and are growing mighty fast. Flies are getting bad and unless something is done at once we are pretty apt to have an epidemic of sickness. A patch of weeds and old tin cans half-filled with water are paradise for flies. Eliminate their breeding places by a thorough cleaning of your premises. Let's make this one of the very best Clean-Up Campaigns ever inaugurated in Lockney.

No, we sure don't want an epidemic of any kind in our community this summer. We are all too poor. But we are not so poor or lazy that we can afford not to co-operate with the Mayor and City Officials in a general clean-up drive during the coming week starting Friday July 5 and continuing until Thursday night July 11th.

CON. DIES PREDICTS DEATH OF BANKHEAD ACT

He Would Put Farmers On Same Protected Basis As Manufacturers

Martin Dies, Orange, predicted the death of the AAA and Bankhead Act by Supreme Court ruling and said that cotton farmers of the South would soon be operating under a program similar to the domestic allotment plan.

Under the plan, farmers would be placed on the same protected basis as the manufacturers, and still would be able to compete in the world market, the congressman said.

Control of crops would be automatic under the system, Dies declared. When farmers, with bumper crops can compete profitably with foreign producers, they will raise sufficient cotton to retain America's foreign markets.

When they cannot, they simply will curtail production in the same fashion as industry, he said.

Allotments would be made on a "same and sound basis of land conservation" for each plot under cultivation, Dies stated.

McDonald said "The world is using practically as much cotton now as it did in record consumption years, but America is not selling it."

The present program of production curtailment is encouraging foreign growth, and, if continued, will be disastrous to our foreign market.

WHEAT HARVEST SLOW IN GETTING UNDER WAY

A few combines are running this week, but very few. By Monday or Tuesday harvesting of wheat will get underway fairly well if the weather continues favorable.

We hear some complaint about the yield being less than was expected. Wheat that was thought would make 20 bushels is turning out ten bushels in some instances. Others that were estimated at 15 bushels is turning out from seven to nine bushels. Hops were built up too high after the rains set in and the sucker shoots began to appear. We very seldom make a sucker crop of wheat in this country. About one crop out of twenty-five is about the record. However, a small amount of wheat will be harvested this year from these suckers.

When the harvest is over and the wheat is in the elevators and graineries, we will perhaps have a pretty good sprinkle of wheat.

The irrigated farms are turning out fairly well where water was available early. Those that were late in completing their wells are a little bit disappointed in the yield, nice looking heads, but no grain in them, in a good many instances.

Mrs. J. W. Conway and daughter of Phoenix, Arizona, and Mrs. Dan Badgley, of Amarillo, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Woodburn this week.

him his own judge whether he grows crops with which to contend for foreign markets at world prices.

S. M. Adams of Nacogdoches, who said he owned 29 farms in that county, entered a plea for the tenant farmer. He suggested the government set a minimum amount of cotton on which it would protect the producer, but that all above this minimum be allowed to meet world competition.

Cully A. Cobb, chief of the AAA's cotton division answered questions regarding the administration during the afternoon session, and then left for Washington.

FLOYD COUNTY TO RECEIVE SOIL EROSION FUNDS

Two South Plains counties will receive $29,943 for soil erosion control, the Relief Commission announced at Austin Tuesday, the Associated Press said.

Floyd county was allotted $14,997 and Lynn county $14,946.

WHEAT FARMERS IN CAPITAL FOR PARLEY ON NEW PLAN

WASHINGTON, July 1—R. E. Gist, of Canyon, representing Texas wheat producers, met here today with representatives of other leading production areas to begin a series of conferences in preparation for drafting the 1936-37 AAA wheat contract.

Meeting with the growers representatives were the national wheat advisors, extension service workers, and officials of the Agricultural Department.

George E. Farrell, director of the AAA division of grains, presided at the conference.

Recommendations Asked

The contract, now in tentative form, is being submitted to the farmer representatives for suggestions and recommendations based upon their experience in administering the present program in the wheat areas. It is expected that the new contracts will follow the basic outlines of the present one, with changes as experience has indicated to be necessary.

Secretary Wallace, who opened the conference this morning, emphasized the progress wheat farmers of the country have made in adopting their operations to the changed conditions of wheat production.

Sees Remarkable Progress

"The leadership exerted in the wheat regions by farmers themselves has been of such a quality that truly remarkable progress has been made in learning the fundamentals of the wheat problem," he said.

He emphasized that the fundamental problem facing wheat farmers & weather they can find an export market at a fair price for wheat grown in excess of domestic requirements. The secretary stated that until such export outlets are found, he believes farmers will hesitate to give up their adjustment programs.

ALBANY, N. Y. ... Above is Edwin C. (Alabama) Pitts, recent Sing Sing Prison baseball star, whose signing by Albany, upon his release, caused a ruling that he could not play professional baseball "for the good of the game."

The County Agent's Office has received 2552 checks totaling $34,374.32. Arrangements have been made to deliver these checks Friday and Saturday, July 5th and 6th. All the producers are strongly urged to secure the checks on these dates.

Of the total number of pounds pooled, 68 percent was sold. The producers have previously received payment of 50 per cent of the amount pooled and will now receive payment on the remaining 18 per cent less cost. The cost has been 20 cents a bale for the number of bales sold.

The producer has two ways of handling the 32 per cent that was not sold. He may have these certificates returned to him for use in 1935 or he may place them in a Special Pool.

The Special Pool has been developed for the purpose of making the certificates available to such regions as the lower Rio Grande Valley where the cotton harvest is very early and cotton is produced in excess of the allotment. The sale price of the certificates placed in this pool will be five cents per pound. The producers who wish to take advantage of this pool will have to make their wishes known at the time they receive their checks. It is necessary to notify the Washington office of the desire to place the certificates in the pool by July 15th or the certificates will be returned for use in 1935.

accompanied to that city Sunday by Elbert Harris and Walter Childers. They returned Monday night and report the condition of Mr. Farnsworth as very satisfactory after an examination at the Sanitarium.

NOTICE

There will be a social Friday night for the Baptist Brotherhood. All men of the church are invited.

Mrs. Alice Thomas and daughter, Irene, of Vernon, were here Tuesday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Newman and other relatives. They returned home Wednesday accompanied by Mrs. George Newman who will visit at Vernon for a few days.

Miss Virginia Collier left for Austin Sunday after spending a few days here visiting her mother Mrs. Kate Collier, and other relatives.

cluded, the contracts will be drafted in final form and will then be offered to farmers for signature.

MAYOR DESIGNATES CLEAN-UP WEEK

Summer time is here, the rains perhaps are over for the time being. Weeds are growing mighty fast and flies are getting bad on account of so much trash and rubbish here and there in the city. Therefore, as Mayor of the City of Lockney, we are designating the weeks beginning Friday, July 5th to Thursday, July 11th as Clean-Up Week. And ask that all citizens cut and rake weeds and other rubbish and burn them. Pile all tin cans and other rubbish that will not burn in the alley at a convenient place and the city will haul it off on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

We ask the close co-operation of every citizen in this clean-up drive.

But we are not so poor or lazy that we can afford not to co-operate with the Mayor and City Officials in a general clean-up drive during the coming week starting Friday July 5 and continuing until Thursday night July 11th.

Let everyone cut their weeds and put their rubbish in some kind of a container that will be handy on the back alley as the city has graciously consented to do the hauling Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

We ask that you co-operate in keeping sickness down to the minimum by cleaning up your premises.

CON. DIES PREDICTS DEATH OF BANKHEAD ACT

He Would Put Farmers On Same Protected Basis As Manufacturers

Martin Dies, Orange, predicted the death of the AAA and Bankhead Act by Supreme Court ruling and said that cotton farmers of the South would soon be operating under a program similar to the domestic allotment plan.

Dies, who, with Texas Commissioner of Agriculture J. E. McDonald, advocates the allotment plan appeared before the public hearing conducted under auspices of the state legislature's cotton investigating committee at Dallas.

"Only Salvation For Farmers," Dies said, "is support of the domestic allotment plan. Dies said American manufacturers long had enjoyed benefits of a protective tariff, and that it was the only salvation for the American farmer."

He was named division delegate to the national convention in St. Louis.

The convention went on record as favoring spending of $225,000 of unallocated centennial funds for museums, in West Texas. Another resolution favored an underground water survey for West Texas in connection with the soil conservation program.

The Fullest Benefits From Electric Service Depend on You

Did you ever stop to realize how important you are? Have you ever considered the fact that the largest benefit from the use of electric service is the increased use of it?

This company has the responsibility for furnishing electric service at rates which are reasonable. As consumer needs for added service justified, rate reductions have always been made.

TEXAS COTTON FARMERS SHOUT THEIR APPROVAL OF AAA TO PROBERS

State's Income From Staple in 1933 Is Doubled, Cobb Asserts

DALLAS, July 1. More than 300 cotton producers shouted approval of the AAA today at a hearing called by the Texas Legislature's cotton investigating committee.

Declarations by representatives of Texas farmers presenting arguments in favor of continuing federal crop restriction brought cheers to the ears of the solons, who called the session in search of material for use in determining a permanent cotton policy.

A stenographic report was kept of the proceedings for submission to Gov. James V. Allred and the Legislature.

Claims Income Doubled Cully A. Cobb, chief of the AAA's cotton division, and chief speaker at the opening assembly of the three-day public hearing, told his auditors that because of the federal farm program Texas 1933 cotton crop was double that of 1932.

In spite of the drought the state's 1934 income from "white gold" was 10 per cent above that of 1932, he said.

"The rise in farm purchasing power in the cotton belt since 1932 has in turn been reflected in increased buying by cotton farmers," he said.

"Business barometers during the last 20 months have pointed to rural customers in the South as most active in the United States.

Program's Objective The cotton adjustment program has as its objectives the increase of annual income to cotton producers so that they may enjoy a standard of living comparable to other occupations; the adjustment and maintenance of American cotton supplies to the demand for such cotton at a fair price; the freeing of women and children from the cotton fields; the enablement of cotton farmers to operate on a cash basis, and to individually organize their farming operations so that the best use of land and labor may be made," Cobb declared.

"We must take a long-timeview of the cotton situation. Our program would be empty mockery if the South were benefited for only a year or so, and then the project allowed to lapse."

Seek Opinion Cross-Section Cobb said that with few exceptions, large export years have always meant fewer dollars to the cotton producer.

Representative F. E. Knetsch, head of the investigating committee, told the gathering that its views were wanted "in order to solve these problems if possible."

State Senator Tom Deberry of Bogata, senate agricultural expert, added that the purpose of the hearing was to "gather a cross section of public opinion as to what can be done to make the cotton crop more valuable to the people of Texas."

THRILLING ADVENTURE EN TANGLES TWO LIVES IN FUN-CAPPED "BLACK SHEEP"

EDMUND LOWE and CLAIRE TREVOR

Edmund Lowe is off to a new peak of popularity as a result of his performance in "Black Sheep" which will be shown Saturday night Prevue, Sunday matinee and Monday at the Isis Theatre.

In Fox Film's latest comedy-drama, "Black Sheep," which has received great ovations where ever it has played, Edmund Lowe plays the part of a professional ship gambler who is returning to New York on the second-class deck because the cards and the horses wouldn't behave abroad.

Claire Trevor, as an actress who is "walking home" from her first trip to the Continent, joins forces with Edmund Lowe to back a romance and keep a captivating adventuress, Adrienne Ames, from a desperate move involving the life of a young playboy, Tom Brown, who wouldn't play her game.

The story zips merrily along in a fast comedy vein with the underlying drama coming more and more frequently to the surface.

The romance between Edmund Lowe and Claire Trevor is one of the most refreshing ever seen on the screen and has been well-received everywhere.

"Black Sheep" was produced for Fox Film by Sol M. Wurtzel, and directed by Allan Dwan. Among the favorites in the supporting cast are Tom Brown, Eugene Pallette, Herbert Mundin and Ford Sterling.

Milk In Disguise

"Doctor," began a worried mother, "Betty is complaining again about drinking milk. Does she really need so much?"

"Yes, she does," the doctor replied, "and that isn't just my opinion. We know it is true from countless scientific experiments. The findings have been checked and tested over and over again. Betty is growing. She needs the minerals of milk for her bones. She needs the vitamins to keep her healthy and growing. And we know that most children need the full quart to get their share."

"I know you're right," the mother said, "I'll keep after her."

"No, don't keep after her. That may give her a real dislike for milk. Try some disguise instead. Let's see now. There's ice cream and junket; custards and puddings; milk on berries; crackers and milk, cereals; egg-nog. I'm sure you know of many other ways."

"How about cheese? Have you tried that? And perhaps Betty won't notice the change if you offer her a glass of cool milk in the middle of the morning and the afternoon instead of at meals."

"I see what you mean, doctor. Thanks, I'll try it."

THE FOURTH

Whether you still shoot fire-crackers or whether you'd like to shoot those that do—it's still the Glorious Fourth, and you can't get away from the fact that you're glad you belong here in America. Citizens of Floyd County may not agree on the most appropriate method of celebrating the nation's birthday, but one thing they are agreed upon is that it is entitled to recognition now, as it has been for more than 150 years, as one of our greatest holidays.

Maybe we've lost sight of the old constitution in a few respects, as some people claim. Maybe we've been living a little faster than our forefathers speculated, but no doubt we have. Maybe there are many ways in which we can improve upon conditions. No one will stop to disagree with you now, but you are too busy being patriotic. Another Glorious Fourth here and that we've still got to celebrate it.

One day in the year that America won't let mature people forget even though it wants to after the siege have been through during the past five or six years. Young America is still on its toes and shouting for the old flag. And the spirit of this young America that keeps burning in America's breast those undying fires of loyalty, patriotism and love of country. The Fourth of July means just as much now as it has ever meant, and it finds its strongest devotion in the hearts of Americans. It ever finds its upsets industrially and socially only served to show that we can withstand any storm, and still keep its place as the greatest nation on the globe. That fact alone calls for jubilation. So join again in the nation-wide celebration; renew again your allegiance to the old flag and all that it stands for. Be glad again that you live in a land that has never lost sight of its original ideals.

ONE PRIZE BABY

Writing in a national magazine Herrach says: "Depression had one prize baby. When we were going down for the time, the small town was like a cork on the waves of adversity. Not that America's towns haven't had their buff from calamity, their loud-boasted boosters of prosperity and any mortgages. For in the small town, the relationship and a fellowship not known in large cities has served to keep the small towns from buckling under the strain." There's a lot food for thought in that, and those Lockney citizens who will study it a bit will realize its truthfulness. That old neighborly spirit for which the small towns of America are famous was a mighty valuable asset when clouds hung heaviest above the land. Now that they are lifting it would be well to keep that fact in mind and to continue to keep that same spirit. It may come in handy a sometime.

FAKE CONTESTS

The chain-letter caused a furore in the country, and it was as sudden as it was an invention of fake contests when working overtime. The warning from the postal department well worthy of the attention of everyone in Floyd County. It is to the effect that before were fake contests, promoted by mail-order and over the radio, as they are at the present. Apparently the chain-letter only served to whet the appetites of those who are looking for nothing, and every kind are now being offered. In some instances offers are tempting to catch the very ones for the old chain-letter. But in all cases the promoters "get the gravy." There is but one way to win in a contest of the type the postoffice department is now seeking to discourage. And that is to stay out of it.

We don't know whether you noticed it or not, but after reading the names and occupations of the main speakers on the Texas Press Association convention program held at Galveston recently it sounded like a "Who's Who" registration of Wall Street. The speakers included heads of utility, railroads, banks, etc. Well, when these professions call in some of us country editors to tell them how to run their business, then we will be ready to "jine" up with the TPA again.—Brownfield Herald.

When it comes to the Country newspaper and the Texas Press Association, we have "been sold down the river." It is like all other organizations and businesses when it got on a paying basis "big interest" took it over. Yep, Jack, you are right, country editors have been left out entirely on the program of the TPA for the past several years, and that perhaps is one of the main reasons the organization is getting weaker and weaker each year. It has dwindled down to a small bunch of the big publishers and special outside interests.

A couple of weeks ago we commented editorially about the decision of the Supreme Court in the NRA case. Editor Hill of the Lyon County News seems to think we are a "nit-wit" for making this comment as the Supreme Court is made up of lawyers, the best in the country. Of course lawyers are going to uphold the profession, and Bro. Hill being a lawyer, naturally thinks they cannot be wrong. But they are just human beings and are subject to errors just like any one else. We all know we have more or less drifted into the hands of big corporations, big business and money interests, and if the members of the Supreme Court are not influenced they are wonderful men, they sure are. We sincerely hope they are strong enough in will-power to withstand this pressure that is brought to bear from time to time, and maybe we are all wrong about anybody influencing the Supreme Court, Bro. Hill says we are, and he is a lawyer and an able editor, so the combination should be proof positive. But most all cases are left up to the jury and not the lawyer, so the people of the United States being the jury we will wait and see what the decision will be.

What has become of Mr. Moffett, the fellow that headed the Federal Housing Act department, and who was going to turn the world upside down with a building program of homes and put a bath tub in every home in the United States and also tack on an extra room, reshingle the old homestead, etc.? It seems that his program was one grand flop. The main trouble with Mr. Moffett, he was not a practical lumber man or building contractor, he was president of the Standard Oil Co., of New Jersey and did not know his "okra" when it came to building homes, etc. It seems to us that one great fault with a good many of the New Deal departments, they are not headed by practical men in that particular line for which they were created. All of Mr. Moffett's thinking has been along the lines of oil and not the building and repairing of homes. It would be just as foolish to place at the head of the Oil Division a building contractor or lumber man. A manufacturer of toy pistols would not know anything about the corn-hog program, but it seems in some way, some how they grab off these jobs.

—and the Worst is Yet to Come

We used to hear the statement, "Leave it to the Democrats to make fools of themselves at the psychological moment." Right now the strike among the Democrats is causing nation wide discussion and charges that the power of Roosevelt with his party is rapidly falling. The racket of a small group of disgruntled young Democrats at Dallas is gaining nation wide publicity as a slap at the administration. This group is deserving a trip to the wood shed.—Canyon News.

It has always been a mystery to us why Democrats will not "hang and rattle" together for any length of time. They fall for political tricks of the opposition and there is entirely too many peanut politicians in the ranks of the Democrats that crave power and leadership.

"BRAIN JEWELS" FROM OUR EXCHANGES

A Lone Man And His Idea
The things that one man can accomplish depend on the man himself, not on the job he holds or the spot he occupies.

There died in Arizona the other day a man named Anson Hubert Smith, who had spent 53 years as an editor of a small-town news paper in the far southwest. Such a man would not be expected to exert any influence on national affairs; yet no less a man than Herbert Hoover, once called Mr. Smith "the father of Boulder Dam."

Many years ago Smith saw the tremendous possibilities of harnessing the waters of the Colorado river. He began to agitate for it. He talked it up in season. He saw his idea take hold of other men's minds—and at last, before he died, he saw it take actual shape in the form of one of the world's greatest engineering works.

Not a bad record, for the editor of a remote, isolated, unheard-of small-town news paper!—Amarillo News.

We used to believe that it was right and proper for the government to tax any citizen in proportion to his ability to pay during his life, but should allow him to die in peace. After watching the antics of heirs of the extremely wealthy, we are about to join the forces of those who would practically tax out of existence the large fortunes when the owner dies. Most rich sons and daughters succeed in making supreme fools of themselves. If they possessed half the brains of their sires, they would not need the extremely large fortunes, most of which go to experimental marriages with foreign dukes, lords, and princesses.—Canyon News.

Literature is being sent out to editors and many others advising them that it will cost tax pay-

All the amendments to the Constitution since the Civil War, save three have been made at the instance of Republican Administrations—and wisely so.

"Back to States' rights" yell the Grass Rooters.

And the nation will reflect: That in the very shadow of the tomb and home of Lincoln, the man who did more to destroy States' rights than any other President—and magnificently so—his own party repudates his principles—

And adopts a political philosophy which handicapped the Democratic party for 56 years.

Yes Lucky Roosevelt.

Lucky because his opponents pile stupidity on stupidity by seizing the most futile issue on the political horizon.

Not a hint at the Grass Roots parley as to how our 11 million jobless are to be put back to work. Not a suggestion as to how agriculture is to be rescued.

While men want jobs, the Republicans cry "Save the Constitution." While the President labors to bolster up the standards of living we now have, they yell "States Rights."

Let them remember the words of Borah: "You can't eat the Constitution." Neither can any one eat States' rights.

But if the G. O. P. continues to campaign on the opposite theory—

Double Lucky Roosevelt.

America is said to be holding its own in foreign markets, although there has been some evidence that she is only holding the bag.

SOME ACTIVITY IN LIVE STOCK AROUND LAMPASSAS

Livestock sales around Lampassas have shown more activity recently than for several months. Shepherds are also feeling much more optimistic over the wool situation, as the price has begun to pick up a little and the market which has been inactive for some time is beginning to show considerable activity, some recent sales are about up to where they were before the market broke some time ago. Boyken and Alexander of Bend on the Colorado River shipped out 1,000 sheep. They also bought 200 yearling muttons from A. B. Faurion of Lometa, at $2.50 per head and 60 yearling muttons from Jess Pickett at $4 a head. These muttons averaged 90 lbs. and were about the best of their kind in the country. E. E. Kirby, Lampassas County rancher, recently purchased 200 one and 2-year-old ewes and muttons mixed and placed them on his ranch. G. J. McCann of Lometa sold a bunch of ewes and lambs. It is understood the price was around $5. The Barnes Lunner Company of Lampassas sold a carload of mohair to L. M. Stephens representing Stallings & Company of Lometa, at 30 cents for adult hair and 40 cents for kid hair.

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN STARTS FOR MORE SOLDIERS

The army post at Fort Bliss is expected to secure all its soldiers from the states of Arizona, New Mexico, and West Texas; an area known as the Fort Bliss Recruiting District. In normal times during recent years about seventy new men per month have been required to replace wastage caused by transfer, death, retirement, etc. These men have been secured at recruiting stations scattered throughout the district. Last spring Congress authorized an increase in the strength of the Army. Fort Bliss will get about 900 of these new men. After they have been added to the garrison the monthly demand for recruits to replace wastage is expected to amount to 100. The job now is to get the 900 new men and get them at once. Recruiting Parties Go Out On the first of July four large recruiting parties will go out from Fort Bliss to tour areas that are distance from the regular recruiting stations. Each regiment at the post sends out a party; also the armored car troop. They go out to advertise the army and to secure as many recruits as possible.

Each party is made up of selected men and commanded by an old experienced sergeant. There will be considerable competition among the regiments to send in the greatest number of good men.

They want American citizens, white, between 18 and 35, at least five feet four inches tall, of good character, single and without dependents, in good health and capable of passing a simple educational test. Pay starts at twenty-one dollars a month plus food, lodging, uniform and free medical attention. Vacancies exist at Fort Bliss in the cavalry, field artillery, quartermaster corps, medical department, motor transport, armored cars, signal corps and ordnance.

Mrs. Jimmie Stevenson and daughter returned home this week from Baird where they were called on account of the death of Mrs. Stevensons father.

Mrs. Anna Anderson left for Dallas Wednesday morning for a ten day visit.

"PHANTOM EMPIRE" RIVAL'S HISTORY'S LOST NATIONS

Spectacular Mascot Serial Motion Picture Set In Imaginary, Buried Country

Found—something really new in serials! Mascot's "The Phantom Empire," which will open at the Isis Theatre Saturday, July 6th, is the most amazing picture the writer has seen in years.

The plot, you see, soon leaps the bounds of its Western setting to plunge, with wild imagination down to an astounding city called "Murania," hidden miles underground! The marvels of Murania outdo even the popular adventure cartoon serials in the newspapers.

Peopled with super-men, ruled by a cruelly beautiful queen, filled with robots television sets, death-rays and flame-guns it is like a peep 500 years into the future. Yet it is done with a realism that sends thrills chasing each other down one's spine.

The unique plot has Gene Autry, famous cowboy radio singer, cast as a dude rancher who, with his young pals Frankie Darro and Betsy King Ross, is battling a gang of crooks who covet his radium-laden land The crooks find the entrance to Murania—a tremendous shaft into the earth—and down we go to that marvelous city to meet Dorothy Christy, the Queen and Wheeler Oakman, her rebellious prime minister. Things happen thick and fast until Muranian "Thunder Riders" send Gene, Frankie and Betsy hurtling over a cliff for the climax.

The cast is excellent. You will like especially Gene's radio singing and the thrills of fantasy Murania.

ACT PROPOSING DISCOUNTS FOR PROMPT PAYMENT OF PROPERTY TAXES IS RULED UNCONSTITUTIONAL

AUSTIN, Texas, July 2—The attorney general today ruled an act proposing discounts for prompt payment of property taxes was unconstitutional.

The ruling was in an opinion by Scott Gaines, first assistant, and Earl Street, assistant attorney general in response to questions asked by Comptroller George H. Sheppard at the request of the association of tax collectors-assessors of Texas.

The act, House Bill 6 enacted at the last called session of the Forty Third Legislature, proposed a discount of three per cent for payment of taxes in October two per cent in November, and one per cent in December.

Those paid in January would

KEYS SHATTER RECORDS THEN LAND OLD MISS

Wearry And "Air Groggy" Pair Land Safely On Soggy Field

MERIDIAN, Miss., July 1—Fred and Al Key descended from the skies at 6:05 p. m. (Central Standard time) today after remaining in the air longer than any human being ever has before and breaking all existing endurance flying records.

The flying brothers had been in the air since 12:32 p. m. June 4, or 27 days, five hours and 33 minutes.

A roaring ovation went up from the crowded airport as the fliers brought their oil-splattered plane, the "Ole Miss," to a safe landing on the soggy field.

Tired, weary and "air groggy," they stepped from the "mono" plane, their "residence" of almost a month, and were greeted by resounding cheers that echoed across the countryside.

At one second past 12:01 p. m. today the fliers had been aloft continuously longer than man ever has before, and they appeared anxious to end their 27-day residence in the clouds before nishap overtook them.

The crowd surged around the plane and lifted the fliers from it

We Know How to Spend Only the Electric Chair—Anglo-French Rift Surprised for Blue Eagle

Uncle Sam is learning to spend. A few lines tell you that the Bankhead bill, making the government guarantee a loan of one thousand million dollars to help tenant farmers buy their farms, is passed. No fuss or excitement about it.

Arthur Brisbane

Do you recall the excitement when Theodore Roosevelt wanted to build the Panama canal for two or three hundred millions?

Now "one billion" is almost "small change."

Some young criminals apparently can be adequately punished only by the electric chair. In their case it seems useless to talk of reform, or "another chance." They are distinctly of the rattlesnake class.

Consider a twenty-five-year-old machinist, captured in Peoria, who confessed to murder when the clothing of a dead girl was tossed into his lap. "Yes, I did it," he sobbed. This young murderer kept a diary, which in one month recorded 18 attacks on young women. The electric chair should cure his sobbing.

In the lute of Anglo-French friendship and understanding there comes a rift, wide enough to let a coach and four drive through. England, dealing directly with Germany and Hitler, now rejects the French suggestion of a "consultative pact," which would compel Britain to consult France before reaching any important diplomatic conclusions.

That ought to interest this country, which agreed to consult everybody on earth before building more ships or tilting its big guns to the most effective angle.

It is said, blantly, by British officials that Britain is facing greater friendly cooperation.

News from the Department of Commerce would surprise the recent deceased Blue Eagle, and others: "Business shows sharp upturn throughout country since death of Blue Eagle." This is the skeleton announcement; the details show retail sales increasing, in spite of abominable spring weather, in some of the big cities.

Union labor demands that all United States railroads be nationalized, owned by the people, run by the government. Reason? Private owners do not know how to run them. The roads would be bought, not confiscated, presumably, which would mean twenty to thirty more billions of national debt.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Laura La Plante—surely you know her—after work on the set near Monte Carlo's gambling room dressed up and presented themselves for an evening's entertainment.

The doorkeeper said blantly: "You work in Monaco, so you may not enter the gambling rooms. That's the rule." To their amazement they did not enter the gambling rooms, although young Mr. Fairbanks is said to have threatened to buy the whole institution.

Monte Carlo wisdom is in that rule. The Casino spends money among Monaco's inhabitants, but will not take the inhabitants' money, and so avoids trouble.

Another wise ruler is Mr. Bradley, who owns the tourists' "wide open" gambling house at Palm Beach, but will not allow natives to lose in his place. When you gamble, you know, you lose. If you do not know it, try.

Mussolini has a habit, annoying to Britons especially, of dizzing up past history. He is expected to tell the British: "I want a protectorate over Ethiopia, with a free hand, and I invite you to remember what happened to Germany's colonies after the war. You promised to give Italy her share if she joined the allies, which she did. The war ended, and you British gobled up all the German colonies worth having."

Sheriff Miller of Martinez, Calif., knows that the weakest thing in superstitious man is his mind. Attack that and you have him. Anacleto Torres said he had not killed Area Cabrera. In a locked drawer in a cell occupied by Torres the sheriff concealed a loud speaker, muffled to make it sound ghostly, and continually Torres, not knowing whence it came, heard a voice say in Spanish: "You killed me. I am Area's ghost. You had better confess. You know you killed me."

Torres thought it unwise to ignore the advice of a ghost and confessed accordingly.

NYE'S COMMITTEE STRIKES AT SHIPYARDS—NEW DEAL BILLS GO FORWARD.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SENATOR NYE of North Dakota and his committee on munitions does not have a very high opinion of American shipbuilders and they feel that strong legislation is needed to keep them from confusing "public defense needs with their private pocket-books." Therefore the committee, in a preliminary report, asks that laws be enacted to do these things:

1. Prevent "collusion" in bidding for navy construction jobs.
2. Prevent American patents from getting into the hands of foreign powers.
3. Limit profits to 5 per cent of the total cost to the government, in cases where the government assumes the risks of the enterprise, or to 10 per cent where the government does not.
4. Require that shipbuilders' "lobbyists" register with the government and disclose their income and expenditures.

The committee finds, in the matter of collusion, that there was "telepathy" among shipyard officials so that in bidding for many contracts each concern was able to get the contracts it wanted at profits that ran as high as 30 per cent. It says the navy has been at the mercy of the shipyards in preparing plans for war vessels and also in determining what were fair prices.

These are its main features:

1. An appropriation of $98,991,000 for the fiscal year 1936, including $49,750,000 for grants in aid to states for old age assistance. In addition there are authorized annual appropriations for the old age reserve fund, graduated from $255,000,000 in 1937 to $2,150,000,000 in 1950.
2. Income tax on employees and excess tax on employers, for old age benefits, beginning in each case at 1 per cent of the pay roll in 1937 and reaching the maximum of 3 per cent in 1939. In addition there is a pay roll tax on employers for unemployment insurance, beginning at 1 per cent in 1936, increasing to 2 per cent in 1937, and to 3 per cent, the maximum, in 1938.
3. Grants in aid to states on a matching basis for assistance to persons sixty-five or older, the government's contribution not to exceed $15 per month.
4. Old age benefits after January 1, 1942, ranging from $10 to $85 per month, depending upon the total amount of wages earned after December 31, 1936, and before reaching sixty-five years of age.
5. A 90 per cent credit to employers for taxes paid into state unemployment insurance funds, the other 10 per cent to be apportioned among the states for administration of their unemployment insurance laws.

SPURRED on by the White House, the house, after a hot debate, passed the Wagner-Connelly labor dispute bill by acclamation, and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor hailed it as a "magna charta of labor." As is well known, the federation is the chief beneficiary of the measure, and Green and other labor union leaders had worked unceasingly for its passage.

Opponents of the bill, including constitutional authorities in both parties, have asserted repeatedly that it is unconstitutional, and it is most probable that it will be carried to the Supreme Court.

Astonishing Founban

Big Task for a Cameroun Hairdresser.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—(W.S. Service)

FOUNBAN, a native village of Cameroun, Africa, is astonishing. The city stands upon a hill and is surrounded by an elaborate system of ancient trench fortifications. The tree, which has been planted along every street, has a wondrous effect wholly absent from the neighboring grass meadows. It has an immediate impression of prosperity and civilization. Many of the houses are of sun-dried brick and are of native timber or grass that compound fences are neatly erected. The market, made of brick, and the is modern in type and perfectly clean. At the center of the town is an imposing three-story structure set in the midst of elaborate gardens. It is the palace of Njoja, sultan of the Bamoun and Founban. Everything is well kept and grows everywhere on the plateau. More special delicacies range all the way from roasted termites to crocodile steaks, things of considerable interest to a white traveler.

More than a thousand people attend the market. The sounds, sights, and smells of vigorous native trading give an impression of thriving, continuing African life such as one seldom senses among the less developed forest types, particularly among the dreary, half-inhabited creatures of the jungle of southern Cameroun. The favorable climate, the mixture of the various influences of white and black, clearly show their effect.

By Sunday morning the market for the most part is closed. The aristocrats, however, are still at a parade, a show of the sultan's power. The sultan will serve for an exact

The Sunday noon recently a "play" had been arranged. The whites then in Founban, only some of whom resided there permanently, sat with Sultan Njoja in chairs at one end of the town square. The riders, musicians, singers, standard-bearers, and buffoons randed ready at the other.

The "play," running true to the type of innumerable similar displays that take place in the larger towns of the high prairie, began with an orderly procession of all the unmounted men. Drums, lutes, horns of many kinds, and strangled instruments came in the first rank, playing warlike refrains. Before them danced, somersaulted, and grimaced several clowns, royal jesters attached to the sultan's court in much the same position held by the court jesters of medieval Europe.

The end of the square reached, the marchers formed irregular lines at either side, and, spears and standards lifted, shouted greeting to the horsemen who followed.

Charge of the Horsemen. The square of Founban is narrow and a little more than 200 yards long. It was mid-afternoon of a golden tropical summer. The vivid green trees that skirted the plaza and the bright red earth peculiar to the Founban district made a perfect setting. The horsemen numbered more than 100, and each was gowned in every imaginable embroidered in every imaginable bright color. All carried either spears or long flintlock rifles lifted menacingly above their heads.

When less than 6 feet away, each man shouted, stood up in his stirrups, and reined in. Every horse rose up on its hind legs, forefeet kicking, pinoneted, and the line swept away at the right angle. The cruel Hausa bit, an iron circle that rings the horse's tongue and holds in its upper side a sharp prong that gouges the animal's mouth when the rein is pulled, had proved its effectiveness.

Later in the afternoon, the "play" took the form of a series of weird traditional dances performed in masks. These masks, a fine collection of which has been in the private museum of Sultan Njoja, are of copper or wood, a combination of the two materials, many, though deliberately grotesque, show rare sculptural ability. Some are enormous, some ridiculously small; others have the shape of animals' heads—horses, baboons, crocodiles, etc.

Markets Are Picturesque. All sorts of produce are spread out in the market. There are leather boots, scabbards, and decorated harness; superb pieces of Bamoun embroidery; rolls of homespun cotton cloth; carved wooden household articles of every description. Hardly less picturesque is the food market. First of all, there are thousands of ears of fine Indian corn. It

Took a long look at me . . . over the sights of a rifle." "Ben! Why, son!" Elliott laughed mirthlessly and told what had happened in the Hoot Owl chopping the day before. "So he's gotten down to the hiring of a killer!" Able looked anxiously into Ben's face. "Son . . . It can't go on. Timber or no timber; success or failure for the Hoot Owl, you've got to think of yourself!" "I'm doing that. I've been to see Brandon and tried to drive him into the open. That's all I ask of him; that he fights fair." "And if he won't, what?" "Then I'll have to smoke him out!" Able clicked his tongue. "Benny, your way of doing things scares me! Why, this can't go on. It mustn't! It's your own affair, for sure, when he tried to shoot you down, but maybe, perhaps, possibly, I'm going to beg you to be careful. So long as Delaney's in the country you've got to keep low. Get back to camp; stay there; let us pick some man I can trust to follow Bart and Brandon night and day so you'll not be caught!" "No," Ben shook his head resolutely. "I'll go on about my business as I should. I've never run yet and don't like to start any fast foot work now." "But it's your life that's at stake, Ben! Don't be silly. That's what recklessness is: downright silliness! That's not like you. Why, not taking precautions in this thing is like monkeying with a high tension wire." "No good, Able. left to try to talk him into being careful but Dawn. And how am I going to get her to see her duty when she goes into a cryin' fit every time his name's mentioned? Yes, sir. Every time she hears his name." "She doesn't yet see that the affair was a put-up job, then?" "See? She can't see anything. Able Armitage! Put yourself in her place. Suppose you were a young girl who's had the things to bear that she has all her life; and suppose you fell in love for the first time; and suppose that young man was accused of such nastiness right in public with everybody listening and gawping? Would you stop to figure that the reason he seemed guilty was natural? That the thing was so far fetched from the truth and such a shock that he was all kerfummoxed? I should say you wouldn't! You'd do just what she's doin'; make yourself all sick with chills and fever by cryin'!" She twitched at the skirts of her cloak irritably and glared at the old justice as though he were a sworn enemy instead of a friend. "What ails her is shock. She ain't got over the shock yet and every time his name or anything else about him is mentioned it sets her off again. She'll get over it, give her time. But then she'll be so humiliated to think she didn't use her reason that she won't be herself for another spell. And she should be herself now! There ain't any time to lose. She should patch up her misunderstanding with him right today—right this hour—and use her influence to persuade him to keep low. But how it's to be done I'd like to know. For Lord's sake, Able, ain't you got a single suggestion?" The justice had been stuffing light wood into his stove during this. Now he touched a match to the tinder, opened the drafts and stood with hands behind him, rusty overcoat unbuttoned and drooping, deep in thought. "It's difficult to get anyone in her state to use reason. Maybe the shock of knowing that Ben's life is in danger would be a cooler irritant to this other shock. Maybe not. If the affair . . . woman was only carrying out a plan . . . But I wonder . . . Aunt Em stiffened in her chair. She looked hard at Able and her eyes narrowed a trifle. disgusting odor. A woman up by the stores shaded her eyes and peered at the moving figure and stared and stopped. Aunt Em Coburn, loaded for Thirty-Seven! Why, it couldn't be! But Aunt Em mounted the steps. She rapped at length and vigorously on the scuffed panel of the door. She went within, leaving a dozen long-distance waiters to wonder. It was long before she emerged and then . . . Ah, then Tincup had a sight to see, a subject for speculation! For by Aunt Em's side moved the woman Lydia, collar of her fur coat high about her face as if to hide the traces of tears which hastily applied powder could not eradicate. Tears from those hard eyes? Nothing less! For women know women and before Aunt Em had talked to this outcast five minutes she had discovered the weakness in her shame, the clean spot left in her heart. And how Emma Coburn could talk! She talked that clean spot to a glowing, glowing, glorious thing. She talked Lydia out of her house, across the tracks; talked her into that slow, unshamed, almost flagrant march up the main street; talked her out of all but one look of misgiving at the windows of Nicholas Brandon's offices. . . . And around the corner and in beneath the hemlocks which whispered above the snug white house. They entered, where Dawn McManus had hidden since the woman's words sent her flying from the dance hall to the sanctuary of Aunt Em's understanding arms. . . . All the way out to camp Dawn snuggled close against Able in his worn old buffalo coat. Now and again she trembled a bit; once she cried softly a few minutes. But much of the time she talked. ### No Substitute for Shirtwaist Frock

You can get by this summer without many things—but NOT without that "Indispensable"—The Shirtwaist Frock! And indeed, why should you even try, when a very few yards of smart striped cotton shirting and a little effort can produce the pictured result? In town, in the country, on the links, or driving your car you'll find that "action back," the answer to your prayers. The inverted skirt pleat makes for unhampered freedom and the slashed brevity of the sleeves was designed with a "heat wave" in mind. Every woman will have one shirtwaist frock—but the smart woman will make several! Pattern 2222 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32. Size 16 takes 3 1/2 yards of fabric. Illustrated in . . .

Says WILL ROGERS

BEVERLY HILLS.—Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see or hear here at home. Just tonight take for instance, I was sitting down stairs after returning from kinder late work at the Studio, and Mrs. Rogers had gone out to the graduation of some of our sons or nieces. (We're going to have an awful smart family the first thing you know.) One boy was in Stanford graduating class and Mr Hoover made them quite a fine speech, but it was just a little political.

I didn't get to go up as I was working, but Bill told me over the phone that it was awful hot in the big football stadium, and that Mr Hoover kept them all there in the sun till they promised to be Republicans. Said he promised early and got out.

But all this is not what I was starting to tell you. I was sitting down stairs all alone, in a great big high ceiling old board room, that I had raised the roof on while Mrs Rogers and Mary was gone to the Holy Land. She said I did it just so that I could rope in the house without hitting the ceiling. Well maby she was right. Anyhow I got an old stuffed calf in there that I set out and practice on. I am without a doubt the best dead calf roper in the World, but when I try it on a live one it dont work. But I am death on dead calves.

Well as I started to say away awhile ago, I was sitting there after supper reading—Time—the magazine, it was telling about some theatre movement that was supposed to be sponsored by the workers, and there had been a big hullabaloo about some piece called—Waiting For Lefty—. I dont know anything about it. I havent seen it. Some say its propaganda, and some say its just good. Tell in come a couple of fellows, one, am said he had met me in Russia last summer, and I think he had. He was an aviation man. The other was a Beverly Hills real estate man.

Well they had an arm full of technical maps and drawings, and you know what it was it was of that parachute jumping thing they had over in the big Park of California and Rest in Moscow. I think maby I told you about it away last week. I didnt I dont, too and if I did, you dont remember it. You re up on a high parachute on and you just jump out into space, put the cord and down you come. But the top part is fastened to the top of the umbrella part and too the pole that sticks out away from the high platform, so you cant get hurt, and its quite a sensation. My kids tried it. It was one of the main amusement things in this big Park. Well these fellows was trying to get it into the San Diego Fair, but it seems Zack Farmer who was really responsible for the great success of the great Olympic Games here in '32, well Zack kinder claimed that a Russian wasent really human, and that he might just want to commit suicide purposely, (and there is some justification in what Zack says.) I have always claimed that thats why they was such great parachute jumpers, was because they was disappointed when it opened. But these boys wanted me to wire Zack and tell him that it was a great attraction, and that it would not make us communistic.

Well I gent Zack the wire. That was just now. Because I know Zack, and because I know this contraption I dont know how they come to think of me on weird schemes. I dont want any of you to get the idea that because I did try to help out these guys that I am open to any and all plans that come along. I have no interest in this, or dont want any, and also have none in any aviation company, either stock, or kin folks. I just aint in nothing but some vacant property, but I must be just a sort of a Patsy—everything from a soft-cracker on a buggy whip to a now-pointed hat pin, they come to me.

They had another concession in that Russian Park that I want to tell you about some time. Remind me of it, will you?

Well, Irvin Cobb come over to visit us on the movie set this afternoon. When he aint working he comes around any how. We sure was glad to see him. He is a wonderful entertaining. I was over to his house the other night. He has the most beautiful place, out here in Santa Monica, right down the hill on to a gold mine. You step right out of my place into a gopher hole. Max Fleishman the Santa Barbara philanthropist, and his charming wife were at Irvin's. They are old friends. Santa Barbara has some great men live there, and Max is the main cog. They have given millions to that place. He is a great fellow is Max, and he gave me such political angles on the Country. When you make and sell a national commodity, you know the Country pretty well. He thinks much will happen in the next year or two. Well anyhow we are living in great times. A fellow cant afford to die now with all this excitement going on.

Home of the Author of THE "STAR SPANGLED BANNER"

He Wrote America's National Anthem

"LADIES and gentlemen," began the man as the sightseeing bus lumbered across Key Bridge, "on your right may be seen the home of Francis Scott Key, illustrious author of 'The Star Spangled Banner,' after which is named this bridge."

Necks were craned, and the passengers were rewarded with the view of a drab building which proclaimed itself to be the quarters of a hardware store. Inquiring glances were directed at the guide, but that into a glowing description of Arlington cemetery. Francis Scott Key and the house he lived in were left behind. History has been impressed upon every street in the older part of Washington and it is the city of forgotten memories. Many historic landmarks have been swept away.

Such is the fate which has befallen the Francis Scott Key house in Georgetown, now remodeled into a store building.

Shortly after 1800, Francis Scott Key moved into the Georgetown house which was his home for thirty years. It was from this house that Key started to rescue William Beanes from death at the hands of the British, and by so doing witnessed the bombardment of Fort M'Henry, which inspired him to write "The Star Spangled Banner."

When in 1833 the Chesapeake canal was dug directly through the center of his terraced flower garden stretching to the Potomac river, Key abandoned the Georgetown home.

Most Precious Document Is Carefully Preserved

CONGRESS appropriated $12,000 for the construction of the shrine in which are housed the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. Of this amount, $7,452.37 was spent. The shrine was dedicated February 25, 1924. It was designed by Francis H. Bacon of Boston and New York. "The background is of grayish black York fossil marble," says the Library of Congress. An upright frame or case with gold-plated bronze doors contains the Declaration. Below and in front of the upright case is a much larger one in the form of a desk with claw feet. It contains the five sheets of the Constitution. In front of this case is a small carved stool, both cases and stool being executed in Asbury pink Tennessee marble quarried near Knoxville, Tenn. Two sheets of plate glass with specially prepared gelatin films between the two plates protect the documents.

Fourth of July Picnic Food Easily Served

SET the picnic scene under a big shade tree or on the screened porch, with a table for the food and a few comfortable porch chairs or cushions. Place at one end of the table, the paper napkins, plates and cups and just the necessary flat silver. If you'd like to make a real party of it—you can purchase picnic knives and forks with bright red or blue composition handles for a very small cost.

Of course, the food is the big consideration, for everyone is hungry at an informal out-of-door meal. Visualize a big salad bowl with a crisp vegetable salad, a tray of cold sliced meats, a cutting board holding the biggest appetite, one had the dish. If the day is not too hot, a pitcher of hot coffee or a pitcher of iced tea with a tray of paper cups close by.

Everyone helps himself—makes his own preferred sandwich with all the dressing, mustard or lettuce he desires, dips liberally into the salad and pours his own beverage, ice tea, lemonade or punch.

Dessert may be a big cake—brought out at the close of the meal, or a big bowl of fresh fruit, a shortcake or frozen dessert.

The gaiety of such a meal lies in the easy, informal atmosphere, the tasty attractive food and the lack of long preparation, packing baskets and filling thermos jugs. Any holiday guest will enjoy such a picnic supper.

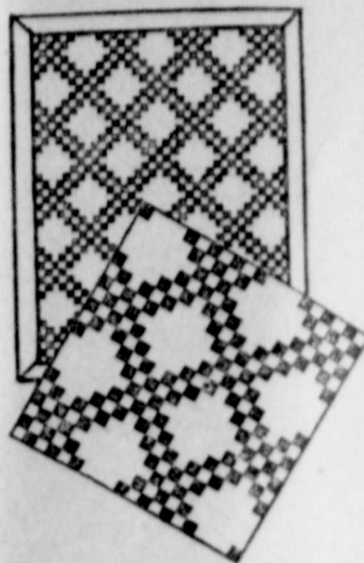

- Try this menu:
- Assorted breads—Rye, white, graham and finger rolls.
  - Assorted meats and spreads including veal loaf, salami cut in thin slices, spiced cold tongue, ground ham with grated pineapple and chopped walnuts spread, cream cheese and green pepper spread, cold fried chicken.
  - Arrange on a cold meat plate with the sliced meats around the edge and celery dressed with French dressing.
  - Arrange in large crockery or wooden bowl.
  - Potato Chips
  - Jelly and Pickles
  - Bowls of Creamed Butter and Mustard
  - Butter
  - Shoe String Potatoes
  - Coconut Cake with Orange Custard Filling
  - Tea or Coffee or Iced Drinks
  - Ice Cream
- A different sort of porch picnic menu might include:
- Hot Ham shortcake or Fried Chicken
  - Pineapple and Cucumber Gelatin Salad
  - Ripe Olives—Cheese Crackers
  - Iced Tea
  - Raspberries and Sliced Bananas on Ice Cream
  - Ice Box Cookies
  - Lemonade or Punch

READY for the FOURTH

Strong Favorite of Quilt Makers

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

The "Irish Chain" quilt can be found in almost every collection, and quilt makers will make at least one of these simple chain patterns. The single, double, or triple Irish Chain has one, two, or three blocks in the chain. The background is white and the squares are a solid blue, red, or other dark mixed colors to give contrast. The squares in this quilt measure 1 1/2 inches without seam, and they are applied on two different nine-inch blocks: one all checked, the other with a square in each corner. These are assembled alternately to give above effect. Seven 9-inch blocks are used across top and nine blocks on side. With a 6-inch border quilt will measure finished about 72 by 90 inches. This quilt is simple to make but cutting of patches and blocks must be accurate to produce good results.

This quilt is one of the 33 popular quilts shown in book No. 23, which will be mailed to you upon receipt of 15 cents. Cutting charts, instructions and valuable information for quilt makers will be found in this book.

IRISH RIGHT TO BOAST OF SONS

An Isle Long Leader in Scholarship.

There is no encyclopedic record of the exact phrasing of the tribute so long recorded Ireland, "Island of Saints and Scholars," but perhaps the following facts will be enlightening:

The introduction of Christianity into Ireland was not attended with bloodshed as in many other countries; indeed, afterward the nation seems to have enjoyed a season of repose from strife, although southern Europe was being over-run by the Germanic hordes. This repose favored the growth and expansion of Christianity and the progress of learning. The schools and monasteries founded by St. Patrick and his bishops in the Fifth century became the centers from which went forth many scholars, and even as early as the sixth century Ireland became the seat of western learning. Its monasteries were the schools whence missionaries who disseminated the Christian faith throughout continental Europe proceeded. Diocesan organization as understood in countries under the Roman law was unknown in early Ireland. Consequently there was not that limitation of the number of bishops necessary, and the number of bishops increased beyond all proportion. St. Moctha, abbot of Louth, and reputed disciple of St. Patrick, is stated to have had no less than 100 bishops in the monastic family. These facts may give some light on the possible appellation of "Land of Saints and Scholars." In the Eighth and Ninth centuries the scholars of Ireland were among the most distinguished at the courts of the kings, especially that of Charlemagne. But when the Northmen made their descent on the country some of the schools were destroyed and Irish monks and scholars fled to the continent, carrying with them their books. Among them were many of the greatest lights in the world of letters of the time, such as Sedulius Scottus and Johannes Scottus Erigena. The oldest Irish university is Trinity college, Dublin, founded in 1591, which by no means is the oldest university in Europe. The National University of Ireland, with three constituent colleges, Dublin, Cork and Galway, was founded in 1908.—Indianapolis News.

Ships Have Mirrored Culture of Their Era

Far Cry From Normandie to the Dugout Canoe.

Washington.—When the Normandie, the ship which steamed into New York harbor, another thrilling chapter was written in maritime history.

Quick crossing from Havre to New York, her air-cooling system, illuminated glass decoration, immense engine room and scores of other features will satisfy the traveler's craving for speed.

Modern ships have mirrored the changes in the stream-lined hulls of their era, says the National Geographic Society.

Transitions from a log canoe to a boat made of iron and steel were made in the early days of the century.

Soon armored steamships were built and they were followed by ironclad frigates.

And to the modern ships of today, the Mediterranean, the Indian Ocean and the Pacific were opened up.

Efforts were made to make the ships more comfortable and they were provided with all the conveniences of a hotel.

rushes, led to rivalry among American and English shipyards. The building of large, fast sailing ships. Their climax in the clipper ships, the first of which was built in Baltimore about 1830. Most of the clippers from New England shipyards carried tea from China, or gold seekers to San Francisco and Australia.

Dramatic River Races.

"With the opening of the Suez canal and the growing use of steamboats, the popularity of clipper ships waned. In 1807, Robert Fulton's Clermont steamed up the Hudson at five miles an hour, while a man on its deck ran about listening. Wherever a hiss told of escaping steam, he stopped up the leak with molten lead. By 1818, steamboats reached the Great Lakes, and by 1832 they moved up the westernmost tributaries of the Missouri, carrying pioneers into the great Northwest. Fueling these wood-burning boats was a problem, as cottonwood trees near the banks made poor fires, and to saw wood inland meant risking attacks by Indians.

"In the latter part of the Nineteenth century, over 2,000 steamboats regularly plied the Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio rivers. From 1850 until the Civil war the winding reaches of the Mississippi resounded with splashing paddle-wheels. Rivalry was intense between passenger steamboat captains, who engaged in races as dramatic as those between clipper ships. Steamboats dashed past each other, furnaces stuffed with tar and resinous wood belching flames that lit up the night

Dog Beggar Accepts Only Good Nickels

Pauls Valley, Okla.—Pug nickels aren't good enough for Jack, blueblood bird-dog owned by Ed Long, local hardware merchant.

With the bird season over Jack, to earn a living, becomes a panhandler, he treads the streets of Pauls Valley with a paper sack dangling from his teeth begging merchants from door to door to drop in a nickel so he can buy meat.

Shopkeepers try to dissuade the big English setter with poodles, plugs and washes but he won't accept them. The donation must be a nickel and it cannot go into his sack until he examines it.

When Jack acquires a nickel he goes immediately to a nearby meat market, enters the front door, approaches the meat case and plops, true bird-dog fashion, to the meat he wants.

Butchers have learned not to "short weight" the dog nor to sell him tough steaks. He detects discrepancies as readily as does a housewife and refuses to trade with short weight artists.

skies. In one famous race, when fuel gave out, stateroom partitions, benches, and even fine furniture fed the boiler fires of the winning ship.

"Although primarily a sailing packet that used its sails most of the voyage and steam only part way, the American ship Savannah is generally credited with being the first steamship to cross the Atlantic. In its wake came a long line of ocean-going liners built in rapid succession and culminating in the present crown of modern maritime achievement, the Normandie."

125-Year-Old Church Is Dissolved by Court Writ

Lisbon, Ohio.—The 125-year-old Trinity Reformed church in Hanover township, near here, was dissolved under an order issued by Columbiana County Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones.

A 40-acre tract was divided. The synod was granted the church and its site. The parsonage was awarded to the Central Theological seminary and the cemetery adjoining the church was assigned to the Trinity Reformed Church Cemetery association.

The parish was established in 1810 by Rev. John Stauch, a German Lutheran minister. He served as pastor until 1947.

Black Hen Broth Found Cure in Hiccough Case

Beaumont, Texas.—If hiccoughs needn't suffer long from violent nerve-racking spasms, P. W. Gilchrist, seventy-five, who had them himself, writes.

He was exhausted after days of violent hiccoughing. Medical aid failed to give him relief. His family called to the public for home remedies.

Responses came from Louisiana and Oklahoma by the hundreds. A son telephoned from Kansas.

The remedies included: Hold your head for two minutes against head for two minutes.

Washable Silks of New Importance

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WASHABLE silks have a new importance because of the wide variety of types which are fashion firsts. No longer is it simply a decision between a tub silk crepe and a washable silk shirting, now that so many new and intriguing weaves have entered the field of silks that launder.

First in the present fashion ranks are the new silk linens and the silk shantung in versatile weaves. The silk linens closely resemble linen except that they have more luster, but being made of silk they have the natural elasticity of silk and therefore are easier to keep fresh and unrumpled. Then too, the new silk linens have the advantage of taking strong dyes easily and are at their loveliest in the vivid peasant colors which are so voguish this summer. They also come in some very smart modernistic prints. The latter favor bold plaids and geometric treatments, the technique radically different from that used on silk crepes.

For sports hats, beach and daytime bags, for belts and for separate scarfs, the checked and plaid silks are doing things with a dash. So that color and printed version are shown in these sturdy shantungs especially for strenuous outdoor wear, while in the softer types of prints a very supple light shantung is being used. See the effective model to the right in the illustration. It is made of a greenish-yellow silk shantung, with a shantung coat in orange and red regimental stripes.

A surprise entry in the washable field is mousseline de soie. One can find no prettier material than this sheer and dainty weave. While all mousselines are not washable, some very new versions just put on the market have been specially processed for washability. They come in plain weaves, also in types with delicate shadow self-color patterns, the latter proving irresistible when once you have tried them.

Silk linen is particularly recommended in all white. Its shirting is evident in the two-piece suit to the left in the picture, which has a black skirt and a jacket-blouse of white silk linen. A polka dot silk ascot is worn with it.

The very attractive two-piece sports dress centered in the group is fashioned of a gold colored silk linen. The accordion pleated skirt allows for motion. The top is bloused and has alternate pockets, with mother of pearl buttons and a wide attached belt presenting chic style accents.

The oriental influence which is so apparent in the new mode is reflected in the popularity of silk shantungs for sportswear. The very newest shantungs are heavily ribbed. Both solid fabric that is heavy and dainty is used in better-type active and sportswear.

A revival of interest in the lovely washable silk damask and silk jacquards is also noted. Entirely new patterns are available this season, stressing especially clever nautical motifs, and a series of sports patterns showing different games.

Washable silk crepes now showing are enlivened by amusing little patterns in vivid colors on light grounds, showing articles of sports equipment such as golf tees, polo mallets, beach umbrellas and so on. As for the very fine-quality plain washable silk crepes they are made in well-tailored shirtwaist types with embroidered monograms on the scarf, bosom or sleeve.

SILKS DE LUXE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The sentiment for high-quality fabrics is notably on the increase among women. This trend is particularly reflected in the demand for grand and stately silks reminiscent of the days in the long ago when silk was really silk. The beautiful lady pictured is wearing gorgeous silk taffeta in a wrap style. If one were not told, one might think, at first glance, that this garment of queenly grace was one of the new full-skirted evening gowns such as Paris proclaims to the world this season. In reality it is a most glamorous bouffant evening wrap, which goes to show the out-of-the-ordinary things which designers are doing in way of formal fashions.

HOW TO ASSURE WEEDLESS LAWN AT LITTLE COST

Keeping your lawn beautiful and weed-free will not be so difficult a task if you give it a little attention right now. In those portions of the lawn where weeds are already established, it is desirable to dig them out carefully. After this is done a system of regular lawn care, including feeding, clipping and proper watering will help you keep weeds under control in your lawn.

Here are four pointers which will help you have a better lawn this season:

Reseed bare spots promptly! If you have not already reseeded all bare and thin spots in your lawn, do so immediately. Loosen the soil on these spots with a rake and reseed with a good grade of grass seed. Be sure to keep these reseeded areas moist until the seed germinates.

Feed the lawn with a complete, balanced plant food. Apply four pounds of complete plant food per 100 square feet to the lawn. Use four pounds of plant food per 100 square feet when feeding your lawn in the fall.

Clip your lawn regularly. Never let the grass shorter than one and one-half inches. Regular clipping helps keep your lawn weed-free.

Soak your lawn when you water it! Don't be satisfied with giving your lawn a light sprinkling, even though you do this daily. It is much better to soak your lawn to a depth of 4 to 5 inches. When you do this, a watering once or twice weekly is sufficient.
