War Fortunes Mixed Today

The Far Eastern crisis today smoldered closer to war; Reds still hurled Germans back before Rostov. Germans drove wedges closer to Moscow, but the British Axis clash in Libya seemed to be in a lull.

However, the two most dramatic events of the past 24 hours was unexpected extension of U. S. lend-lease aid to Turkey, one of the gateways to the rich oil and other resources of the Middle East; and publication by The Chicago Tribune of a story asserting that the Army and Navy high commands are planning an American expeditionary force of 5,000,000 men.

President Roosevelt's extension of lend-lease aid to Turkey caught the capital and the world napping. His one sentence statement said simply that he had found Turkey's defense vital to U. S. defense, and that he had ordered lend-lease officials to meet Turkey's requirements as rapidly as possible.

This statement was not amplified, but observers presumed the President had received assurances that Turkey, long on the fence and wooed by both sides, was now solidly in the Allied column.

The Axis today hinted that Turkey was not solidly with the Allies, but Germany's actions belied its words. It has thrown an estimated 30,000 to 45,000 regulars into Yugoslavia in an attempt to clear out the Serb rebels and level a path for an attack on the Turks.

However, the Serbs apparently are doing pretty well against the Jerrys and today reported capture of two more villages.

Reds claimed last night they were engaging the Nazi rearguard in suburbs of Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov, and that the main body of troops rolled toward Mariupol, 60 miles beyond.

Berlin today claimed the Reds had not yet reached Taganrog. (Turn to Page 15, Column 3)

Reservations Are Will Rolling In C. C. Banquet

Reservations continue to roll in for the annual Dalhart chamber of commerce banquet in the Central Methodist church dining room next Monday night at 7:30. Chamber of commerce directors meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 announced this morning. It perfect banquet details, also be the final meeting of this for five directors whose two-terms are expiring.

These five—whose successors will be elected at the banquet—are President W. H. Coon, Vice President E. Edwards, Treasurer Emmett Hale, Cecil Johnson and A. G. Lett.

Directors who still have another year to serve are Herman Steele, Jones, Mayor Herbert Peeples and Jack Wade.

Program committees for the banquet are Steele, Hale and Peeples. Nominating committee to suggest names of five directors to the banquet is Charlie Coombes, John Colquitt and Dick Stout.

Manager Rex Baxter of the Amaretto chamber of commerce writes that at least four persons will attend the Monday night event from city.

Secretary Ralph H. Faxon of the chamber of commerce and Wikoff, of Raton and Claydon will also be here. Wikoff is past president of the Raton Chamber, also served three times president of the famed old Colorado Gulf Highway Association runs from Denver through Hart to the Gulf.

Peter Kiehn Speak Tonight

Peter Kiehn, a former missionary to China, will speak at the Nazarene church tonight at 7:30. Rev. Ivy Bohannon, pastor, presided today.

Kiehn was a pioneer in the work in China. He opened the present stations, spending years in active service in the field.

Double Funeral Held For Wreck Victims

Many veteran plainsmen are in Dalhart this afternoon to pay final tribute to two other pioneers—Mrs. W. H. Johnson, 72, and her son-in-law, Charles R. Mauldin, 55,—for whom a double funeral service was held at the Presbyterian church at 2:30 this afternoon.

With these plainsmen came scores of other friends from throughout this great trans-Panhandle country to bow in grief and homage at the bier of two pioneer Dalhart business figures, civic and religious leaders.

Most Dalhart business houses were closed from 2:30 to 3:30, honoring the memory of the man and woman who had both contributed substantially to the commercial life of the town.

Rev. C. C. Dooley, pastor, was in charge of the rites. O. K. Curry sang "Crossing The Bar". A mixed quartet—Mrs. O. C. (Bob) Baird, Miss Luzelle Hicks, George White, Jr. and Mr. Curry—sang "My Faith Looks Up To Thee". Mrs. Sidney Johnson was accompanist.

Pallbearers for Mrs. Johnson were S. E. Brown, C. E. Hill, Kenneth Lovell, Everett Bates, Cecil Johnson, Dalhart; and C. H. (Herbert) Walker, formerly of Dalhart and now of Pampa; for Mr. Mauldin, Homer H. Hiatt, O. C. Baird, Raymond McCreight, O. E. Duggins, Glendon Robinson and Ralph Waite.

Special ushers were L. B. Steel, George Walker, L. L. Swim and Blake Bolton.

Burial was made in Elmwood cemetery. The caskets were not opened for the public at the church, but the bodies laid in state at the Peoples Funeral chapel from yesterday afternoon until 1 p.m. today.

Both Mrs. Johnson and Mauldin were victims of a two-car collision on State Highway 51 twelve miles west of Dalhart. (Turn to Page 8, Column 3)

Yellow Jacket Ball To Be Friday Night

CLAYTON.—Miss Charlsie Mae Harding, Clayton school teacher, and a corp of Home Economics students are completing elaborate decorations for the annual Yellow Jacket ball to be staged in Huff gymnasium tomorrow night. The Christmas motif will be carried out.

The Yellow Jacket ball, sponsored by Clayton business men in honor of the school's athletic teams, is open to the public. Groups from several nearby towns are expected to attend, Superintendent Raymond Huff said.

The Cornwall orchestra of Clayton will furnish the music for dancing from 9:00 p.m. to 2:00 a.m. (Clayton time). Admission is $1 plus federal tax.

Ambassadors To Have Initiation Ceremony

The Ambassador club will have a business meeting and initiation ceremony tonight at 8:00 in the club room. President Ralph Gray said today.

Needy Families May Register Now For Christmas Baskets

Registration of needy families for the annual "Adopt A Family For Christmas" drive sponsored by the Dallam County Welfare Association and the Ministerial Alliance begins today, Mrs. E. R. Stewart announces.

Families who will have no other Christmas cheer are invited to register for the Christmas baskets before the closing date, December 16, Mrs. Stewart said.

A list, including information on each family, will be published in the Texan, as is customary. Individuals or organizations wishing to adopt a family will then contact the welfare office and select a registrant.

The Ambassador club will cooperate with the organizations in distributing the baskets.

Several months ago the Navy discontinued requiring full dress uniforms for the duration of the present emergency.

Guilty Plea Gets Suspended Term In Forgery Case Here

William H. Davis, charged with forgery, plead guilty and was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary in Dallam county district court yesterday. The sentence was suspended by Judge James W. Witherspoon.

A motion for new trial in the case of Bob Green, charged with assault with intent to murder, was overruled.

Judgement for plaintiff was rendered in the following cases: Lewis Lamberger vs. Sarah Collatz et al; Lewis Lamberger vs. J. W. Calder et al; Lewis Lambereg et al vs. Cliff Britt et al; Lewis Lamberger vs. Nancy E. Edwards; Leroy Wharton et al vs. George M. Haines et al; Leroy Wharton vs. Elmer F. Bagley et al; Leroy Wharton et al vs. George B. Zachry, Jr., et al; Leroy Wharton et al vs. Mattie M. Morgan et al; Leroy Wharton et al vs. Fred W. Herchenbach et al; Talmage Abney vs. Herman J. Jutting et al; Talmage Abney vs. Maud L. Vallentine et al; Talmage Abney vs. Eliza J. McFarlan et al.

Missionary Girls To Take Offering

The Bertha Graham Missionary girls of the Pine Street Methodist church are reminded to bring offering envelopes Sunday morning. It is requested by Mrs. Harold Corkill, sponsor.

"Dear Santa"

"Please bring me some toys to play with in bed this Christmas, Santa, and next year when I'm well I'd like a tricycle," phones little Audrey Mae Hatcher, 2, to Saint Nick from her bed at Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, in Dallas. Audrey is one of 60 Texas youngsters who'll have their Christmas tree in the hospital where they're being nursed back to health and strength.

Youth Movements Described Tuesday To Lions Meeting

Representatives of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Hi-Y and Girl Reserves presented a program of their activities at the regular Lions Club meeting Tuesday noon. W. H. Fowler, a member of the boys and girls committee was in charge.

John Colquitt, chairman of the blind committee, made a report describing the assistance rendered by the club to a child in Texline.

Joe Snider, Bass spoke for the Boy Scouts; Ruth Campbell for the Girl Scouts; R. L. Rainey for the Hi-Y and Helen Bernson for the Girl Reserves. Each speaker told of the history of the organization represented and its purposes and activities.

Wasn't it back in our old third or fourth grade readers that we found the familiar story of the boy who was sent by his father to guard the sheep, with specific instructions to call for help should wolves come into sight? If memory serves us right the boy thought it would be a good joke to holler “Wolves, wolves” just to see what his father and the hired help would do.

The first time the youngster cried out for help the men came running to his aid only to find that the boy was kidding them. So well did it work that the boy decided to have more fun by crying for help a second time. Once again the men came to his aid only to find there were no wolves in sight and the youngster was rolling on the ground in a gale of laughter.

And we remember distinctly how the teacher pointed out the moral in the story when the boy cried for help a third time and the men, believing that it was just another joke, refused to come to his assistance. The story goes that the boy lost all of his sheep and was forced to flee for his life.

Since the beginning of the present emergency we have urged our friends and customers to secure any repairs and parts necessary for their farm equipment. Recently we published a letter from the Secretary of Agriculture reminding the farmers that there would soon be a shortage of new equipment, parts and repairs, and that it would be advisable to purchase any new machinery needed and more important that repairs to old machinery be made at once.

We wouldn't like to be placed in the position of the youngster who called out “Wolves, wolves” just for the fun of it, or just because it might mean an increase in our business. We have not stated, and we are not stating now, that equipment, new and used, or parts and repairs will not be available later on. But watching the turn of events and accepting the advice of those who are supposed to know something about the future, we do believe that while our efficient mechanics are available and parts and repairs are in stock, that it will prove profitable to you to get that repair work done now. But we are not hollering “Wolves, wolves” yet.

Lee Queen Of Channing Is To Be Among Pre-Holiday Brides

One of the most interesting weddings of the pre-holiday season will take place in Channing on Monday December 15 when Miss Lee Queen becomes the bride of Richard Paul Garrey, with the Soil Conservation Service at Pueblo, Colo. Invitations to the marriage were issued this week by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Robert Lee Queen. Miss Queen is a sister of Ralph Queen, Hartley county sheriff. Her father, Lee Queen, sheriff of the county for several years, was among prominent early-day settlers of the Panhandle.

ORPHA LOIS COMBS RECENT BRIDE

Miss Orpha Lois Combs and Russell Sutley, both of Centerville, N. M., were quietly married Tuesday, November 25 in Tucumcari. The pretty bride has made her home in Centerville the past year with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Combs. Young Sutley, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. George of Centerville, was graduated the past year from Nara Vista high school. The couple will live in Amarillo.

DALHART TRIO IS TO SING TONIGHT

The Dalhart Girls Trio—Misses Anna Jeannette Karnes, Shirley Steinhilf and Betty Steele—accompanied by their sponsor, Mrs. B. N. Richards, are to sing tonight on a program of the Kiwanis club at Stinnett. The club will have installation ceremonies. The girls also have been invited to appear on the program of the Amarillo Lions Christmas Ladies Night on Friday night.

BREAKFAST TODAY AT KINARD HOME

Mrs. J. C. Kinard was hostess this morning at a "Come As You Are" breakfast for members of the One class. Covers were laid for fifteen at prettily appointed tables.

MRS. BAILEY TO ENTERTAIN CLUB

Mrs. Archie Bailey will be hostess tonight to the Phi-Bidda-No club at a dinner at the Texas cafe. Large will follow at the hostess' home.

$1.00 For Reading Letter In French

One dollar if you can read this. This letter, received several days ago by Albert Law in connection with The Texan's contest for a new name for the "dust bowl," is one of many received from long distance. Written in French it has been copied here as nearly correct as was possible. It is probable that some of the words are misspelled.

The Texan will pay $1 to the first person who correctly translates this letter and brings the translation to our office. This is the first of a series of letters received that will appear in The Texan.

north of Dalhart late Sunday. Mrs. Johnson died soon after the crash of pelvic injuries. Mauldin seemed to be making some improvement Monday night but by Tuesday morning peritonitis had set up and he died early yesterday.

Mr. Johnson, 78, and Mrs. Mauldin, 52, were hurt in the wreck but not seriously. Mrs. Alfred Reese 35, has a fractured pelvis and broken collar bone but is improving. Her husband and 10-year-old daughter were bruised, slightly cut and shaken.

Tommy Dean, 16, driving the other car, was not hurt. James Amyx, 17, accompanying him had a number of teeth knocked out, his lower jaw gashed and lower jaw broken.

The Johnsons came to Dalhart in 1908 and almost since that time Mrs. Johnson had headed the Mrs. W. H. Johnson's Ladies Ready-to-Wear. Her daughter, Mrs. Reese, was associated with her.

Mauldin came to Dalhart in 1909. He and Miss Edna Johnson were married in 1910. Mauldin for a time was a stock-farmer; once was in the employ of the Fort Worth & Denver railway, and for years has been in the grocery business. During that time he once for a short while operated a cafe.

Both Mrs. Johnson and Mauldin were leaders in the Presbyterian church. His death closed many years service as Sunday school superintendent and church elder. He also was a past president of the Rotary club and had served in the chamber of commerce and board of education.

KEEP THE DOORS LOCKED

Mrs. Earl Bell, of the 800 block on Denver Avenue, wasn't feeling well the other night and was lying down upstairs clad in a lounging robe.

Mr. Bell had gone next door, so when Mrs. Bell heard the front door open she naturally thought it was her husband returning.

She felt an uncomfortable draft and called to him to close the door. She got no answer, called again and finally went downstairs. As she reached the sitting room door a masked man in the middle of the floor whirled and made as if to grab a gun.

Mrs. Bell had her hand under her robe and pushing it slightly forward she warned him she had a gun and could shoot. "I don't know how I happened to think of it," she said. She ordered the man to get out, and he did.

She said he was youngish, wore glasses, a narrow brim black hat, turned down all around, and a black handkerchief was drawn across the lower part of his face.

There have been a good many burglaries and car thefts recently. The public can help prevent them by exercising every possible precaution.

CLAUDE WELLS AGAIN

Last week we pointed out that Editor Claude Wells of The Memphis Democrat was the kind of broad-gauged fellow who can disagree with another person and still recognize the other man's right to his own opinion.

Last week Wells complimented Congressman Eugene Worley for the latter's consistency in voting against the Neutrality Act revision because Worley had promised he would vote against this nation entering the war, and he felt that the revision was a step into war.

At the same time Wells said he believed Worley was wrong in his viewpoint.

This week Wells says: "We are thoroughly in accord with Worley's latest move—the introduction into the House of a bill to deal with labor leaders who are continually calling strikes in defense plants. . . . We hope he will be able to convince other congressmen to aid him in putting through this bill—or a similar one—to deal with those who would, intentionally or otherwise, hinder our national defense program."

What this country needs is more men who can kick the seats of pants, or pat backs without juvenile emotionalism or keeping one eye on the public popularity vane.

Amarillo, Texas

WASHINGTON. — Senator Tom Connally has not wanted to throw any monkey wrenches into the "peace" negotiations with Japan, so has kept quiet the fact that his Foreign Relations Committee has some startling evidence on Japanese subversive activities.

Submitted by Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa, author of the bill for a probe of these operations, the evidence reveals that while Special Envoy Kurusu has been talking amity, agents of his government have been organizing a secret pro-Axis army in the United States and Hawaii.

According to Gillette, three organizations are active in these undercover operations—the Japanese Military Servicemen's League, the National Citizens League, and the Japanese Imperial Comradeship Society.

Gillette claims to have proof that two of these organizations have a group of 7200 adherents, chiefly in California and Hawaii. They are pledged to "die for Japan." Also he has evidence that all three organizations are carrying on activities hostile to our national defense and have raised considerable sums for the Japanese army and navy.

A recent FBI raid on the headquarters of two other Japanese organizations in Los Angeles produced records showing that large amounts of money had been sent to Tokyo for the military forces.

Gillette also has evidence that Japanese-Americans who refuse to join the fifth column units are told that bodily harm will be done to their relatives in Japan. One method used to get recruits for the secret army is to "register" men of military age. Recently the Japanese Consul General in Honolulu sent a notice to men of Japanese descent ordering them to register "for deferment" under the Japanese draft law.

The order warned that anyone failing to register would be punished as a "violin of the (Imperial) conscription law."

NOTE. — Prominent Japanese-Americans, 100 per cent loyal to the United States, are fiercely opposing these subversive activities. Shuji Fuji, editor of a Pacific Coast Japanese newspaper, urges "immediate action by the United States government to rout out organizations and propagandists seeking to promote the pro-Nazi elements among us, such as the Japanese Military Servicemen's League."

JOHN L. LEWIS AND THE DEVIL
One of John L. Lewis's greatest passions is dramatics. He loves to quote Shakespeare, Milton, other famous masters.

Declaring before the United Mine Workers' Policy Committee during the captive mine negotiations, Lewis interlarded a blast at Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel with this excerpt from Milton's immortal Paradise Lost:

"Whence and what art thou, execrable shape, that darrest, though grim and terrible, advance thy miscreated front athwart my way to yonder gates? Through them I mean to pass, that be assured, without leave askst of thee."

The quotation is from Book 2, line 681, and thereafter. What Lewis didn't tell his listeners was that the "shape" is Death; the "gates" are those of Hell; and the speaker so enthusiastically quoted by John L. is—Satan.

DEFENSE HITS CONGRESS
Congress has had a first-hand dose of the brand of defense priority medicine which has gagged so many business firms. Also it has had a close-up of defense bungling. Last summer, Congress voted a new restaurant for the House Office Building. It was to open by November 1. However, due to an amazing blunder by the OPM Priorities Division, the lunchroom won't be ready until about January 1, two months behind time.

Reason for the delay is that a priorities official rejected an application for some essential equipment, thinking it was to be used for a restaurant in the New York State legislature. Here's what happened:

In September a New York contractor, hired to install sandwich grills, steam tables and other facilities in the new restaurant, applied to the OPM for a priority rating on the iron and steel needed for the job. Getting no reply for several weeks, he wrote again.

Finally, on October 20, he received a letter which caused him to blink. It stated in effect: "We regret to inform you that your application has been denied. We feel that the restaurant in the New York House of Representatives will be able to get along with its present equipment."

The stunned contractor rushed down to Washington and took the matter up with David Lynn, architect of the Capitol. Lynn promptly contacted Priorities Chief Donald Nelson, who apologetically issued the needed priority order.

That's the way a lot of priorities are handled, only in this case Congress heard about it.

CHAMPAGNE 'EM 'N FOOL 'EM

The House Appropriations subcommittee investigating Latin American will not soon forget their meeting with Dr. Arnulfo Arias, deposed pro-Nazi president of Panama.

Arias, who was then still in the saddle, flabbergasted the visiting Congressmen by throwing a champagne party at 10 o'clock in the morning. They attended, out of courtesy, to find the entire Panamanian Chamber of Deputies on hand. Forthright Representative Jack Houston of Kansas made himself right at home by thumping Arias on the back and demanding a cigarette.

"I'm an old hand at mooching cigarettes from government heads," said Houston. "I got one from President Roosevelt just before leaving Washington."

After a few drinks, Arias became chummy.

"One of the great virtues of champagne, gentlemen," he beamed, "is that it takes people's minds off of problems and makes them happy. Happy people don't start revolutions. We have plenty of champagne in Panama, so we have no fears of a revolution."

Ten days later, Arias was ousted by a bloodless revolt against his pro-Nazi regime.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Senator Gerald Nye, co-author of the isolationist-packed movie probe, would be given a taste of his own medicine if some of his North Dakota constituents had their way. State Senator Harry O'Brien, among others, is circulating a petition asking the Senate to investigate Nye's isolationist operations and "connections with the Steuben Society." . . . Up in the north woods of Wisconsin, where G-Man J. Edgar Hoover successfully solved the famous Ross kidnapping case in 1938, they say of him: "I hear tell this man Hoover was a second-rate President, but he sure makes a first-rate investigator." . . . Recently this column revealed that certain minority moguls of the Lend-Lease Administration were taking themselves—and red tape—so seriously that they were delaying the shipment of vitally needed war supplies for weeks. We can now disclose that Lend-Lease Administrator Ed Stettinius is quietly cleaning up this situation. He has summoned a crack executive of the U. S. Steel Corporation, Stettinius's former company, to reorganize the administrative set-up of LLA and also to shelve the obstructive would-be big shots. . . . Three years ago U. S. District Attorney Lawrence Camp of Atlanta, Ga., and Senator Walter George were battling it out for the latter's Senate seat. The other day, while visiting Washington, Camp called on George and

"Did you buy it like that or did something happen to it?"

The railroad strike has been averted. And it was done around the conference table where all such difficulties should be settled. If other labor unions and representatives of industry would use the same system as successfully there would be no justification for legislative action on strikes. It's too bad that others can't profit by the example set by labor and industry in the railroad controversy.

The tension that was growing daily in Dalhart is lessened considerably by the settlement of the railroad wage dispute. Many merchants were anxiously watching the proceedings and even more railroad employees were keenly interested. Now that it has been settled, the employees will receive more money and the merchant's chances of doing a good business through the holiday season are increased. A strike this month would have paralyzed business during December at least.

And speaking of the railroad situation, I was talking to a local railroad worker yesterday and he told me that several of the boys over at the shops are still shocking feed for farmers after regular working hours and on Saturdays and Sundays. They have already shocked more than a thousand acres of feed and with one exception they have had no trouble of any kind and the farmers seemed deeply appreciative of the extra effort the boys were putting out to help.

That one exception was when a farmer asked for help and was advised that the boys would come out as soon as they could catch up in other fields. One Sunday morning they got together, three carloads of men and in borrowed cars they drove fifteen miles out to the farm only to be told that the farmer had changed his mind and would have no use for them. At least half the day had gone by, the men had changed their plans for the day to help the farmer out, the cars had used gasoline and the only thing they got out of the trip was the advise that they were not needed. It would have seemed only fair had the farmer agreed to pay the man for the time they had spent in making the trip, or at least the car expense.

Sometime ago this clipping was placed on my desk and I filed it away. Today, when checking up and placing all accounts that I owe in three or four different envelopes marked "current accounts" (current meaning 1941) I ran across it again. Quoting the Nolan County News; Among the least appreciated professions is the teaching profession. Teachers generally are underpaid, but are expected to render the greatest service for the least reward.

On top of that, every parent believes his son and daughter perfect; that surely the teacher had no right to punish them. But don't do your child an injustice by criticizing a teacher for disciplining the youngster. You are doing him or her a greater injustice than any teacher could ever do—you are destroying his or her respect for constituted authority—the abundance of which we today are lacking.

Those Dallas loan sharks are in up to their names. A fellow working for a sporting goods company borrowed $40 because of business in the family. After he had paid $238, the loan company tried to get him fired, claiming he still owed the principle. A postal employee borrowed $25, paid $448.30 and yet owed $28.75 according to the company. A garbage collector borrowed $20, paid back $672 and the concern claimed he still owed the original amount.

Ineligibility Story Is Presented In Full

Editor's Note: The Dalhart Texan yesterday promised today a detailed statement by school officials on the season-long ineligibility of the Dalhart Wolves football club. It is given below.

The season-long ineligibility of the Dalhart Wolf football club involved an outright and involuntary oversight, not only on the part of local officials, but also on the part of the District 1-A Football committee, headed by Knox Kinard, superintendent at Hereford.

This was revealed yesterday when Dalhart high school officials laid all their records open, following publication of a news story claiming that the Wolves, a District 1-A club, had been ineligible all season.

The story appeared in Wednesday morning's Amarillo Daily News under a Dumas dateline. It told how Dumas officially ended the season with a conference standing of 500, and in a tie for second place with Tulla and Friona.

The story went on to explain that Dumas had lost to Dalhart on the field, but that the game went in its victory column, along with Canyon tilts, when a post season district committee meeting ruled that the Wolves had been ineligible.

The same story said Tulla had played ineligible against Dalhart and Friona. The Tulla-Dalhart event, which Tulla won on the field, was assertedly ruled no-game, while Tulla forfeited its win over Friona.

The Texan yesterday asked Dalhart officials about the matter and was given free access to all records by Superintendent Blake Bolton, High School Principal Homer H. Jackson and Coach E. A. Kimmins.

Jackson had a carbon copy of the eligibility sheet he submitted to the district committee at the beginning of the season. This sheet lists the name of each player and immediately above each name is written the birthdate. On this eligibility sheet appeared the name of Lewis Gallett, captain of the Wolves this year, and above it his birthdate—"11-15-21."

Thus, the eligibility sheet itself showed he was ineligible, because in order to be eligible for Class A high school football a maze of Texas Interscholastic League rules must be met.

One of these states that if a boy has reached his 19th birthday on September 1 he is not eligible for football in the forthcoming term. Gallett, of course, reached 19 Nov. 15, 1940.

However, this discrepancy escaped notice here, also escaped the notice of the district committee which, according to records here, sent Dalhart's eligibility list out to other District 1-A schools just as Dalhart had prepared it.

Thus, Dalhart officials were flattered November 17 when Kinard arrived and told them they were playing an ineligible boy. Bolton and Jackson said Kinard admitted the error had escaped his notice; and might never have been disclosed had the Dumas Demons not protested after being beaten by Dalhart.

Kinard at that time, Jackson said, stated that the matter would be closed if Jackson would write him a letter setting forth the error. Jackson did this under date of Nov. 18, 1941, and his letter follows:

Dalhart, Texas,
18 November 1941.
Re: Lewis Gallett
Nov. 15, 1941.

Mr. Knox Kinard,
Chairman, District No. 1,
University Interscholastic League,
Hereford, Texas.

Dear Mr. Kinard:
In checking over the eligibility list which I sent to you and to the State office of the Interscholastic League I find that one of our boy's birthdate was reported as Nov. 15, 1921.

According to the League rules, this student is not eligible for Interscholastic League activities.

I regret that I did not detect this fact at an earlier date.

Yours very truly,
(Sgd) H. H. JACKSON,
Principal Dalhart High School.

It apparently has been a district committee policy to handle ineligibility matters without fanfare. Bolton said he attended a meeting at which Kinard discussed reported ineligibility of a District 1-A player but did so in such manner that even Bolton had no idea who he was. The Amarillo News story yesterday has indicated it was a Tulla player.

"We make every effort," Bolton and Jackson said, "to keep our teams eligible. At the beginning of each season, without exception, the coach is required to get the entire squad together and ask the boys if any of them are ineligible. He reads the eligibility rules to them and makes sure they are understood."

They said they also checked ages as shown on "Application For Enrollment" blanks that are filled out at the beginning of each term and signed by one parent or the guardian.

They, however, exhibited one that was signed by the same parent in both 1940 and 1941, but the 1941 blank showed the pupil a year younger than the 1940 blank. "That, of course, could be an error, but still we don't know which age to accept. We have about decided to check the age of each player henceforth by his recorded birth certificate."

They admit, however, that the certificate idea will have its drawbacks. A good many births still are unrecorded, and sometimes a boy who has spent years in Dalhart was born in some small town or community across the nation. Perhaps, the courthouse has burned or the town has moved away. An astonishing amount of difficulties can arise.

The Texas Interscholastic League, probably the most powerful organization of its kind in the U. S., has laid down an almost bewildering amount of rules governing high school football.

A good many officials of small schools, from the size of Dalhart on down, feel these rules may work well for larger schools in Class AA competition, but are apt to impose hardships and offer no special benefits to the lesser schools.

Except for football, a boy must not have reached 18 on September 1. As already stated, he can play football if he is not 19 on that date. He's O.K. if he's 19 on September 2 or any date thereafter.

A boy is not eligible after he has attended high school eight semesters. He may have been for three years in a rural school where there are no organized sports, or if his school had sports he may not have participated. But that makes no difference. When he has attended high school eight semesters he is through with high school football.

And there are further restrictions on the semester rule. A boy to be eligible for any sport, must have made at least three half credits in the immediate preceding semester.

Here's an example: Suppose he has attended a rural school three years where there are no organized sports. He then misses school a year and the following fall moves to Dalhart. He might meet every other eligibility requirement, but he still could not play football because he didn't make at least three half credits the immediate preceding semester. Of course the reason

New Laugh Film Due Saturday

The climax to observance of the annual Keep 'Em Flying Week in the roll-em-in-the-aisle starring Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, will preview Saturday midnight at the Mission and continue through Monday.

'Em Flying is the slogan of the U. S. Army air corps, and epitomizes this nation's all-out effort to build up a plane production adequate for the arsenal of democracy for national defense; and also to be a force of American airmen who can handle any emergency.

President Roosevelt proclaimed this week nationally; Mayor Hershey proclaimed it in Dallas and Peeples proclaimed it in Dallas for this week.

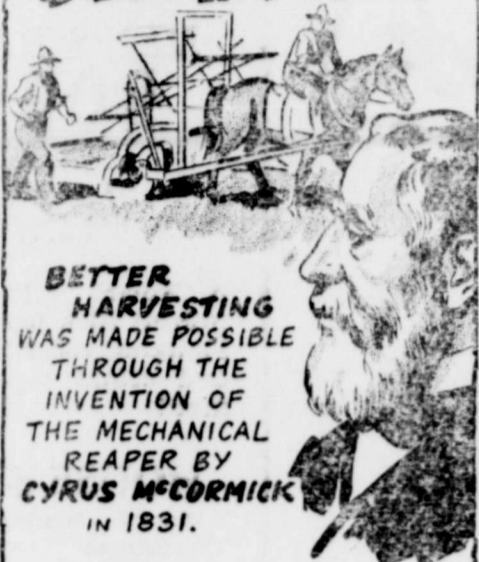

Various comedy, fast-moving action, lilted tunes and thrill-entertainment scenes combine in Uni-Union's new laugh film which, appropriately enough, is called "Keep 'Em Flying".

It is calling it one of the best screen packages of the season and declaring it surpasses any other in the Hollywood guffaw catalog in many moons.

Costello and Abbott have come to be synonymous with hilarious comedy. Each of their pictures—Buck and Bred, In The Navy, Hold That Steady, and Scaled New Heights of Comedy and Fun, and it looks like "Em Flying" will set still another record.

The supporting cast includes Martha Raye and lovely Bruce as USO hostesses; also Margan, Dick Foran, Charles and William Davidson.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

INELIGIBILITY—

(Continued from Page 6) he didn't was that he wasn't in school. He may have been sick, but that makes no difference. The rule stands.

While playing he must be passing in three subjects, and Dalhart officials said that rule is rigidly enforced here.

Here's another rule: Suppose a boy attends a small rural school that offers only basketball. In his sophomore year he went out, was made a reserve and got to play only five minutes in one game.

He may not have played in his freshman or junior year. He moves to Dalhart for his last year. Because he represented his school five minutes in one game he can't be eligible for Dalhart school athletics until he has been here a year. By that time he has graduated. If he didn't graduate the eight-semester rule would get him.

If he never represented the school from which he came, and meets other requirements, he can start playing at Dalhart immediately without first attending here a year.

Dalhart in District 1-A play, lost to both Tulla and Hereford, and has no chance for district championship even under the re-shuffling caused by the ineligibility charges.

But local officials are under the impression that a team cannot be required to forfeit a game on an ineligibility charge, even if proven, unless an ineligibility protest was lodged before the game was played. It is their recollection that the district committee adopted that principle several years ago and has never rescinded it.

If this is true; Dumas cannot require that Dalhart forfeit its field victory over the Demons unless Dumas can prove that it made an ineligibility protest before the Dumas-Dalhart game was played. The game, incidentally, was played November 14. Kinard came to Dalhart November 17.

Farm Repairs Are Under Discussion

CHICAGO — A farm machinery and repair conference—engineered chiefly by the OPM, Department of Agriculture and extension services of the various states—is being held in Chicago today and tomorrow.

It is to help farmers meet the double challenge of an equipment shortage on one hand and increased agricultural production under the Food for Freedom campaign on the other.

Defense requirements have reduced steel and other farm machinery raw materials for 1942 to about two-thirds of the amount used in 1941. This shortage extends to bolts, nails, pipes, wire, bar and sheet metal though the OPM has pledged that every effort will be made to keep the farm repair parts adequate.

U. S. farmers in the coming year probably will have to keep their old machinery running or do without, because new equipment is going to be hard to get due to defense priorities on metals.

PUPPET LOVE by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"Don't tell me you expect this hoyden holiday to continue indefinitely," Edward Carson Bishop's telephone voice dripped asperity. "I've applauded the adventure and endeavored to abate the wrath of your mother, but you try my patience and display your callow youth when you expect things to last!"

Chris—in the narrow confines of a telephone booth fragrant with kerosene, fish, and the lingering aroma of former occupants—perspired and pleaded. It is difficult to be calm in a telephone booth in a North Carolina general store on a July day. But he tried valiantly.

Television would not have helped his cause. His khaki pants, mellowed by three weeks of constant wear and the dust of as many states, were almost sufficiently grimy to stand by themselves. Combined with a strange blue polo shirt, (the designer obviously never saw the genuine article) the effect might have induced cerebral complications for Uncle Neddy. It was sufficient that the sturdy Major must listen to his favorite nephew.

"But our engagements can't end like this," Chris insisted. "We're booked now until the middle of August. Our last engagement is to be in Tampa."

"Florida—in August!" Uncle Neddy groaned.

"We can't just stop now," Chris protested. "Nicky already thinks it's peculiar. So many engagements and then—nothing. Those English singers that mother sponsored must have gone somewhere else—after Tampa."

"I hope they did," fervently. "But the place for you to go at that time is home. You have to be in New York for that Bradley Allen business. And in the meantime, do you suppose your mother is satisfied with those notes you've been sending postmarked from Maryland?"

Forwarding those was Joe's good work. Chris ignored the question. "If you won't do anything about the engagements, how about that license number I had you check?"

"I told you, Christopher, I will not be a detective; a person with New York tags on his car has as much right to the road as yourself and your prowling puppets. Uneasy conscience breeds . . . well, something or other. It's much too hot to be philosophic."

Moralistic was more like it, Chris thought, as he stumbled out of the booth, and stopped to fill his pipe on the store porch.

Before him stretched the almost deserted square of a little North Carolina village. Even the bronze soldier of the Confederacy appeared to droop in the heat, while the very cars had an air of somnolence. Against the building, a young negro boy in faded blue overalls played with a worn deck of cards. Beside him another lad slept.

After three weeks of constant travel, shuttlewise across Virginia, and North and South Carolina, such scenes were familiar—as familiar as new thriving towns raw with growth, of old cities combining age with charm. So at first they had followed the vagaries of their booking, and excellent booking it was, from the debut of Mrs. Witherstine's daughter in the mountains near West Virginia, to the annual fair held by a chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy, in a tiny picturesque town on Pamlico Sound. To fill these engagements frequently required driving all night or over a week-end. That was under control now, and their remaining itinerary took them down through the Carolinas, Georgia, to Savannah and finally Tampa.

Finally! But why must it be final? Why must it end?

The last three weeks stood out in a series of pictures, beginning that night when Nicky had told him about Rodney Baddington Grant, and nestled in his arms for a brief moment. They had never recaptured that mood—partly because Nicky sternly tabooed any hint of love-making—partly because of ubiquitous Aloysius P. Bring.

It was a strain on his credulity for Chris to believe that Bring must cross the state of North Carolina with them because a certain type of Luna moth was due to spawn that week. But whether it was spawning Lunas or Nicky that brought him, Bring was on hand, and—under foot. And he wasn't the only annoyance either.

That very morning Chris had seen again the square-jawed man who had asked the way to Danville—the fellow whose grim face Bring had remembered, the stranger who seemed to startle Nicky. And Uncle Neddy wouldn't even check the license. The hard-looking mug must be pursuing butterflies, or something equally erratic. How else could one account for his appearing at so widely different spots as Winston-Salem and Elizabeth City, on the very days Nicky's Marionettes happened to be in those towns?

Chris had never been able to catch him at a stand-still and had never spoken to him since that first night, but his very unprepossessing visage slid through the background of their travels like a bogey man.

But it hadn't been all annoyances and bogey man. There were evenings when they camped by the roadside, there was the barbecue up in the hills, and the fish fry on the shore. Then there was that evening when Chris brought out his banjo for the first time and strummed it softly while Nicky straightened up the trailer for the night. She had come to the door smiling.

"You have more accomplishments," she said in honest pleasure. "You could play in a orchestra."

It was praise for his favorite "child." A banjo was one of the things that Bishops did not play. He had always kept it in his room and played it with a mute.

"I think we could use that," Nicky sat beside him on the step. "A banjo accompaniment to 'Blue Danube' and 'Over the Waves'. We might even build an act around it."

They did, and now Chris furnished part of the music. He had picked up some hot licks, too, from a nice boy in a dance hall in Portsmouth—or was it, Mt. Airy?

Then there were the times he got the trailer Nemesis out of ditches. And the night they used it for an ambulance to take a man thirty miles to a hospital. And all of those times, there had been Nicky. She shared whatever was to be done. She cooked and kept house on wheels and ran the plays. She even did the laundry, as they never could wait long enough in one town. And all this—Uncle Neddy said—should end right away!

That was the trouble with his crowd—they expected nothing to last—and it didn't. It wasn't worthwhile from the start. His mother and father remained together, reasonably happy and mildly in love, so far as Chris could judge; but they were the exception, not the rule. To his generation, fidelity was tiresome. As for him, he didn't want to think of a world without Nicky.

And yet what was to keep them together if the engagements ended? Nicky's own prospects had been secured from the lists of a defunct entertainment bureau. Considering as a sample the few engagements she had obtained, the cause of the bureau's demise was obvious. And how could he tell her he was lucky if his luck failed?

As far as Nicky was concerned, he'd be better off by far with failing luck than with the Bishop millions behind him. If only he had a little money of his own . . .

Then he remembered! His Uncle Bradley—the late Bradley Allen, of whom Uncle Neddy spoke. He had left him ten thousand dollars which would be his when he was twenty-five in August. With that he could really start out—do something on his own. His mother was executrix. If he could just manage her and Nicky until then. Suddenly Chris needed to see Nicky, to hear her voice.

He started off the rickety planked porch in high, almost falling over the colored boy at his game of solitaire. At second glance he saw it wasn't solitaire. The boy named a card in a mumbled whisper and then threw that card.

Chris hesitated on the edge of the step. "How do you do that?"

"Magic, boss, magic!" the boy said laconically. "You name 'em, I frow 'em."

"Ace of diamonds!"

A card flipped out of the soiled deck. There it was. Chris named others in rapid succession. They answered their names. He squatted down beside the boy.

"Ace of spades!"

"Oooh!" the boy's black eyes rolled. "Don't go callin' dat one. Dat's de grabe diggah's special."

"Bad luck?"

"The worstest theah is. Take de nine of hahts," he tossed that out as he spoke. "Dat's de wish. Any good luck wish. Or de ten ob diamons." That appeared. "Money, call yore luck an' you gets it."

"Can you teach me to do this?"

The black head shook dolefully. "It's de lucky deck."

"Could I get a lucky deck for this?" Chris tossed a dollar bill on the ground. The boy bent over slowly, reverently, and touched it.

"Boss, for dat you could get de debil an' two angels if I had 'em!"

Ten minutes later Chris was driving toward the trailer camp as fast as his car would go over the dirt road. In his pocket was a deck of "magic" cards—in his heart was the first real hope he'd felt in three weeks. He was going to call his luck.

He sent the car into the camp with a flourish. It wasn't much of a camp, being off the main road, and originally designed for camp meetings and revivals. Half a dozen modest trailers edged the grove. Nemesis in her gay paint like a lady of pleasure in a group of housewives.

The wash swung apathetically in the noonday heat. A cook pot simmered on the fire. But there was no sign of Nicky. At that moment, Mrs. Abel Plushbinder, their neighbor to the right, in the early 1930 two-wheeler trailer with the Iowa license, strolled over and stirred the stew—their stew.

"Where's Nicky?" Chris demanded, covering the distance in a sprint.

"Ach, the Missus was lookin' for you," she beamed. "She took her car to do a favor for poor Mrs. Bentz. You heard them fightin' last night?"

Her voice dropped to a whisper and she made a clicking noise with her tongue. "This morning already he up and left her. He took the car and left her with the trailer."

So much could happen in such a short space of time. He'd been only two miles away, yet Nicky was gone. Just as Mr. Bentz was gone, leaving Mrs. Bentz without motor power.

"Oh, it was such a bad argument," Mrs. Plushbinder was recounting with solemn glee, "I couldn't sleep for hearin' it. Even my sister, Minnie, in Pennsylvania, who fights with her man, never took on like that . . . Oh, here comes the missus!"

Chris started forward as the black nose of the old coupe headed into the camp. Then he stopped. Behind the car loomed the Bentz trailer. Once seen, it was forever recognized being part house and part tent, with a wooden sloping roof, frame and base and canvas sides.

"Look what I've got!" Nicky shouted, as she approached, slowly. "It's ours! I bought it for you. It will be much simpler than always having to find a camp with cabins, and it has longer beds than Nemesis. Do you like it?"

"It's a nice idea," he admitted, quietly. But his heart was pounding ridiculously, while one word rang in his ears: "Ours . . . ours . . . ours . . ."

DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. Why does a great part of the responsibility for success of the Defense Savings Program belong to the women of the Nation?

A. Women are estimated to control about 70 percent of the total national wealth; about two-thirds of the savings accounts are in women's names; women receive a billion dollars a year as insurance beneficiaries; more often than not wives handle the family finances. Women have the money to buy Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps.

Q. How can a union support the Defense Savings Program?

A. Through purchase of the national and local offices of Series F and G Defense Savings Bonds with union funds; and through encouragement of Defense Savings Bond and Stamp buying by individual members.

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D.C. Also Stamps are now on sale at retail stores.

How Taxes Affecting Stock Market Prices

By ROGER BABSON

BABSON PARK, MASS., Dec. 4 —What's the matter with the stock market? I am convinced that much of the answer lies with the tax situation. Present taxes are an aid to higher dividends; but a millstone around the neck of prices. Readers should remember that about one-half of Government income comes from Excise Taxes and about one-half is obtained from Corporation and Personal Income Taxes. Customs Duties, while formerly a large source of income, have now dried up. It is with Corporation and Personal Taxes that investors are directly concerned.

Effect of Taxes

Many of us were brought up to believe that stock prices were governed only by good or bad corporation earnings. This is not true today. International complications, war psychology, and principally taxes are now in the picture. Excess profits can amount to as much as 60 percent and must be computed before normal taxes of 31 percent are deducted. Profits of many corporations may continue but the cream is gone. The market can no longer look forward merely to earnings as an incentive for higher prices. The worst feature however, of the new taxes is their use in putting over social "reforms" and in aiding New Dealers to put a ball and chain on merchants, manufacturers, and bankers.

Formerly, corporations could pile up reserves in good years to tide them and their stockholders over lean years. Today, however, under the "undistributed profits" tax of Section 102 of the Revenue Act, there is no "fat" left. Under the present forcing system of social changes many fine "blue chip" companies in the next depression (and one will surely come) will be obliged to go to the Government for help. That's exactly what our present Government wants them to do. Then, in exchange for continuing managerial jobs and providing some interest for bondholders, Government may insist upon working control through taking over the rights of stockholders.

Position of Stockholders

Owners of common stocks providing high returns and relative safety are now in a wonderful position. This applies particularly to those in the lower-income brackets. From the point of view of collecting individual taxes the Government must allow corporations to distribute sufficiently high earnings to warrant the payment of generous dividends. Hence, I feel that while there will be a lot more talk about raising corporation taxes, that these corporations will be allowed to raise prices proportionately. This is why Secretary Morgenthau's proposal to limit the profit of corporations to only 6 percent did not receive any support even in New Deal circles.

Stockholders should not be too concerned about increased personal taxes. In many instances these can be passed on. This is true in the ownership of rentable property where higher taxes can be overcome by raising rents. Investors are also realizing that currently high yields for stocks are solving their tax problems. Whereas five years ago an investment of $10,000 might yield 5 percent, or $500, today the investor may find his taxes increased by $300 to $500. Hence, he looks around for, and insists upon, yields of 8 percent to 10 percent for any new investment. Switching of old investments may also have the desired results. Thus, a wide-awake stockholder can have sufficient income to meet his increased tax bill and money left over for his customary spending needs.

This very fact, however, keeps down the market prices of these stocks.

What About Bond and Preferred Stockholders?

Owners of bonds and preferred stocks are confronted with low yields, high prices, and fixed incomes. If this group continues to hang on to these they will be unable to meet their increased taxes unless they drastically cut their personal expenditures. If and when they get wise to the high yields obtainable in common stocks and start switching, a slump should certainly result in prices for many bonds and preferred stocks. This possibility is now hanging over the market and exerting a bearish influence along with tax selling and O.P.M. restrictions.

Every investor should, of course, have some funds invested in certain bonds. Many of these can still be bought on a discount basis with resultant high yields. When switching or making new bond commitments buy only first mortgages. Personally, I am not interested in high-priced, low-yield issues. As a rule, I have also steered clear of preferred stocks. They are a hybrid investment. Now is the time to forget high-priced bonds and preferreds in favor of good common stocks. The reasons are clearly obvious to every thinking investor. Incidentally, when buying common stocks select those companies which have no funded debt or cumulative preferreds outstanding.

Conclusion

I am bullish on selected stocks over the long pull. It may be, however, that there will be no boom in stock prices until taxes come down or dividends increase still more. But whichever of these two factors prevails, stockholders in many companies should continue to sit pretty. My guess is that we are headed for even higher taxes but with the maintenance of present, or even higher, dividend rates with creeping better prices for most common stocks. Stockholders should have courage and remember when investing new money that good high yielding stocks are a hedge against high personal taxes.

WAR FORTUNES—

However, they didn't deny last night's Soviet claim that two Italian divisions, rushed into the breached Axis line, had been captured.

Details of new German successes against Moscow were not given by either side.

Premier Tojo said today that Japan faced an unprecedented crisis, and the press stepped up its virulent attack on the U. S.

Authorized spokesmen said President Roosevelt's demand for a Japanese explanation of new troop concentrations in Indo-China was merely a maneuver to place the responsibility for Pacific war, if it came, on Tokyo. Japan replied to the U. S. statement of this nation's position in the Far East, though a reply was asked several days ago.

Other Japanese sources said the Anglo-American bloc is already seeking bases in China. German Far Eastern diplomats reportedly are converging on Shanghai to discuss with Japan the kind and extent of aid the Axis can give in event Tokyo goes to war with the U. S.

However, in Berlin spokesmen hooted at the idea of a Far Eastern crisis. There can be none, they said, when a powerful nation like Japan is backed and supported by determined leaders.

There were also some indications that Japan plans to hold the Pacific crisis at a peak as long as possible in order to immobilize big blocks of British forces and prevent them from entering the Libyan campaign against the Axis.

Italy said Roosevelt's extension of lend-lease aid to Turkey was for three purposes:

1. To distract U. S. attention from the British failure to crush the Axis in Libya.
2. To appease Turkey for the sinking of Turkish vessels by Russians in the Black Sea.
3. To try to woo Turkey away from the Axis.

Meantime, positions in Libya seem to be little changed from yesterday and the battle fronts are comparatively quiet. British, presumably are still receiving reinforcements by land and sea and probably are planning a new annihilation blow before the Axis can be reorganized and bolstered by new men and materials.

The Chicago Tribune story, under the by-line of its Washington correspondent, charged that the Army and Navy high command plans would send an AEF of 5,000,000 men into action against the Axis not later than July 1, 1943.

It is said these plans, calling for a total U. S. army of 10,000,000 men, were drawn at the request of President Roosevelt.

Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, would neither confirm nor deny the story. In answer to questions, he pointed out that the letter, as published, did not mention an AEF. He also said letters by the President are not ordinarily published without permission; that when permission is asked it is W. H. Johnson and Chas. Mauldin.

usually given, and added that so far as he knew no permission had been asked in this matter.

However, he made it clear that these answers were not to be construed as confirmations or denials.

Some observers believed the story was timed to take the edge off the formal launching of The Chicago Sun, backed by Marshall Field III, descendant of Chicago's famed merchant prince of the same name. The Tribune has had the morning field to itself. It is isolationist; and is critical of the Administration's domestic policies. The Sun, with an initial press run of 720,000, is expected to be strongly pro-New Deal.

In London, the House of Commons, 336 to 40, beat a Labor party effort to force conscription of business and industry as well as men and women. The House then voted 326-10 to give the government broad powers to draft men and women for the war effort. At the same time government leaders said careful consideration would be given to any specific plan to draft industry, and warned that neither business, industry nor men would be spared in the all-out effort to beat the Axis.

U. S. defense chiefs today talked of a $150,000,000,000 defense and victory spending program. It spoke of expenditures of $5,000,000,000 per month by June 1943.

That program is twice as big as any considered so far by Congress. It would raise the national debt to $10,000,000,000. Defense heads claimed they already had approval of Vice President Wallace, who has a big hand in defense policies, and would get an O.K. from President Roosevelt.

Vitamin C Aids Wounds To Heal
NEW YORK.—If a body is chockful of Vitamin C its wounds will heal 400 per cent better and faster than under average circumstances, according to exhaustive tests reported to the American College of Surgeons.
The body can be filled with the vitamin by eating extra amounts of it.
Both human and guinea pig tests were reported.

Lynn Witherspoon Wins Promotion

Lynn Witherspoon, son of Mrs. Zena Witherspoon of Dalhart, has won a promotion in the natural gas business and this weekend will leave the Clayton Gas Co. for his new position in Odessa, Tex., according to word received by his mother.

Witherspoon for long years lived in Dalhart, and for a time was with the Dalhart Gas Co. which is in the same general set-up as the Clayton company.

Charming Movie Fare Scheduled

Film fare for the weekend besides the side-splitter "Keep 'Em Flying," will include Jane Withers in "Small Town Deb" at the Mission tomorrow and Saturday.

"Keep 'Em Flying," headlining Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, will prevue at the Mission Saturday midnight, continue Sunday and Monday.

La Rita tomorrow and Saturday will show Johnny Mack Brown in "Arizona Cyclone," and Sunday and Monday will offer "Go West Young Lady." This film will star Bob Wells and his Texas Playboys; Penny Singleton, who takes the part of Blondie in the Blondie and Dagwood pictures; Ann Miller, dancer; and John Ford, fresh from his towering screen triumph in "Texas."

The picture itself is a fast-paced Western against a musical background.

The goat that is Navy football mascot at the present time is Bill IX, a 2-year-old Angora.

Indigestion, Gas Nervousness Left When Hoyt's Came

Wichita Falls Lady Says Hoyt's Compound Routed a Bad Cold and Relieved Constipation and Kidney Misery.

"I have been troubled with indigestion, constipation, kidney misery and nervousness," says Mrs. L. E. Brown of 1683 Lucile Street, Wichita Falls, Texas. "I also suffered with a bad cold. After reading what others said about Hoyt's Compound, I tried a bottle of it.

MRS. L. E. BROWN

"Now my food digests better, and I am relieved of the gas and belching. I can eat anything without ill-effects. My bowels and kidneys are regular. My nerves are much better, and I sleep thru the entire night. Hoyt's also routed my cold. I plan to take a thorough course of it to get all the poisons out of my system!"

Hoyt's Compound is recommended and sold by the Wolf Drug Store and all leading druggists in this section.

SPEAK ENGLISH TO COWS, REFUGEES ARE CAUTIONED

SYDNEY, N. S. W. (UP)—English is the best language in the world for inducing cows to give more milk, at least in Australia, it has been established here.

As a consequence, over the entrance to the dairy of Chelsea Park, 30-acre property in the hills near here, there hangs a sign which reads:

"Do not try to teach the cows German; they would rather be milked in English."

The property was purchased by a company formed by the Australian Jewish Welfare society to train Jewish refugees as small farmers, fruit and poultry raisers and domestic workers.
