

ROAMING THRU RANGER WITH RON... By Ronald Waters

Everyone is in the midst of final exams, it seems, and right now—between college and high school graduations—news is pretty slow.

It came so fast and furious last week that we had most of Thursday's and Sunday's paper "made" by Wednesday, and much of it was ready Tuesday.

Graduation kept us busy, but it looks like it'll soon be quiet on the Western front.

Now they've done it! The "Drama of the Alamo" is going to be enacted out at San Jose Mission outdoor theatre in San Antonio. The action takes place all around you, and you find yourself in the midst of a gory battle. (The ultimate in the theatre-in-the-round?)

Well, I only have one question—why not "fight it out" at the Alamo?

There are 200 billion gallons of water used a day in this country. Isn't that interesting? Might be handy for a quiz show.

Mrs. D. L. Penney says that one of her classes carried out a guinea pig experiment at the high school. Fed the poor things on a diet of candy and hamburgers (with other food of teenagers) and they couldn't use their hind legs.

When returned to a balanced diet, they recuperated. On display, at the downtown science show are two aquariums where the fish have not been fed for ages. The reason for this is because a "delicate balance of nature has been set up; the plants keep the fish alive, and the fish keep the plants alive.

I have nothing but praise for the U. S. Post Office Department. It is one of the most efficiently organized and effectively operated departments in the government.

Think of the detail work involved in sending a letter from here to Europe or Asia, all over the world. Max Ohr is considerate to stamp collectors—such as me—and will save plate blocks of four and will save plate blocks of four-cent flags possible, because they are sure to have a high market value.

If you collect U. S. stamps they make a good investment, because you can't lose money (as possible in other investments). And a woman is reported to have valued a pile of three-cent U. S. stamps at $42,000 recently. Of course, stamps from the United Nations make an excellent investment, as well.

At least four new businesses have opened in Ranger during the last four weeks. This is a good average, and although not a boom—it's no recession either.

Texas and California lead the West in the number of towns and locations with Spanish names. Colorado and New Mexico also have a large number.

In Texas, alone, there are over 300 towns, rivers, locations, and bays (Port LaVaca) with Spanish names.

Just to name a few at random, we have San Antonio, San Marcos, El Paso, Amarillo, Lamesa, Presidio, Del Rio, Rio Grande City and the river, Galveston (which is a corrupted form of Galvez town), Corpus Christi, Mission, McCreedy, Benavides, San Diego, El Campo, Palacios and Hondo.

Ranger College Graduates Hear Sen. Bradshaw

A large crowd was on hand to see 92 proud graduates of Ranger College receive Associate of Arts Degrees during commencement exercises Sunday night in the First Methodist Church.

After presentation of the class by David Allsup, dean of men, the diplomas were awarded by Mrs. Don H. Elliott, registrar. The honor students were recognized, earlier, by Judson Hardy, head of the mathematics department.

Floyd Bradshaw, state senator from Weatherford, who was the principal speaker, began his talk by congratulating the area people for having a college "in your own backyard."

Speaking on opportunity, Bradshaw said that one of the greatest opportunities is to discuss the theory and thinking of the people of this government. The opportunity is more unlimited, now, than ever before, Bradshaw indicated.

"One of the greatest dangers is to our mind, our mental state," Bradshaw stated. But this can be combated by basic principals and by enthusiasm, he said.

"Our responsibilities are to learn... to lead... to serve," Bradshaw continued. "The opportunity is now for you to proceed ahead and get as much education as possible, to avoid pitfalls of life and to better serve mankind."

Rewards for whatever success is gained in life are the pleasures gained in living, Bradshaw said. He closed by reading a poem and a selection from the Bible. The senator was introduced by Dr. Price Ashton, college president, as "A typical Texan" who has helped to develop the program of education, and as a worker on the Gilmer - Aiken Committee and the Hale-Aiken group.

Ranger College Singers sang two anthems during the services, directed by H. A. Lotspeich and accompanied by Mrs. Lotspeich. The invocation was given by Rev. Jack Barker, pastor of the First Christian Church, and the benediction given by Rev. Ralph E. Perkins, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

A reception for the students was held at the college cafeteria following completion of services. Ushers for the occasion were Paula Angus, Walton Fowler, Carolyn Weaver, Forrest Hall, Barbara Rodgers, and Ronald McPherson.

Indians, Dodgers Win League Game The Indians "scalped" the Yankees 15-12 and the Dodgers downed the Giants by a score of 10-7 in exciting action at Little League Park Monday evening.

This marked the first win for the Indians, the first loss for the Giants and the third win for the Dodgers in as many games. The Yankees have lost three games.

The Indians hit the "war path" with four hits and three runs in the first inning, while limiting the Yankees to no hits and no runs. They continued, in the second inning, to limit the Yanks to nothing while gaining two runs on four hits. The Yankees started in the third inning, making seven runs on five hits and limiting the Indians to nothing. From there on out—it was the Indians' game.

MYSTERY FARM—Here is the fifth mystery farm. The names of all persons correctly identifying this farm before 2 p. m. Wednesday will be put in a hat and one name will be drawn out. Please note the new deadline. Two free tickets to the Majestic Theatre will go to the lucky winner, and the owner of the farm will receive a free enlarged photo if he calls at the newspaper office. Floating Swimming Pool Is Christened at Lake

After an hour long wait the crowd cheered Friday morning when the nation's first known floating swimming pool slid into the waters of Lake Leon. As men and machinery pulled the 25,000 pound pool into the waters of the lake Carl Garner pushed up and christened the pool in the traditional manner—by breaking a bottle of champagne on the "bow."

Getting the pool into the water was a moral victory for Victor Cornelius. Cornelius had the pool built after waking up in the middle of the night with the idea on his mind.

At the time the pool was launched, at 8 a. m., the odds were eight to one that it would never reach water. Workmen were delayed an hour in preparing for the launching, but they got the pool in the water on the first try by placing it on slides. Two trucks pushed at the back of the pool and a wench truck across the lake pulled via cable. Cornelius had the 25 by 45 foot pool built just below Lake Leon dam. It has a five foot walkway all around the top. The pool has a steel frame and is lined with redwood. Cracks were left between the redwood so that water from the lake will seep in. Ninety-seven barrels are used to float it to the water.

After the pool got into deep water where it would float, boats were used to drag it to its permanent location at Cornelius Cove, the lakeside home of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius. The trip across the water took another hour.

The floating swimming pool solved a big problem for Cornelius. He wanted a place for swimming, but the water in front of his place was too deep for safety. He didn't have room for a swimming pool on his lot, so he set out to solve the problem. Now he has plenty of room left for a fine lawn, and as nice a swimming pool as you can find.

The pool is built in much the same way as pools you have seen. It has a slanting bottom, giving an eight foot deep end for adult swimmers, and a wading pool at the other end for youngsters.

During the week as workmen built the strange looking "craft," onlookers couldn't decide what it was to be. Some figured it was a new type boat dock, one person thought it was going to be a drive in boat movie screen and another figured out it was to be a super-sized ski ramp.

The pool is anchored to the shore by two large pipes fitted to a base which is buried in cement. It has a walkway much the same as those on most boat docks.

School Year Nears Close

Drawing near the close of the academic year, activities at all of Ranger's schools have come to a near stand still.

Only graduation at the high school this coming Friday at 8 p. m. remains to close out the year. Baccalaureate services at the high school were held simultaneously with college graduation exercises Sunday night. "Keep Your Bible" was the topic of the message brought by Robert L. Craig, pastor of the Eastside Church of Christ. About 400 visitors and parents were on hand for the services.

Final exams are keeping students busy this week at Ranger College, the high school, and junior high. Report cards at the high school will be received Friday morning, when all public school students receive grades.

Memorial Day "will bring down the curtain on another school year," said Charles Garrett, principal. "Through the splendid cooperation on the part of the faculty and student body, this has been a very successful year," Garrett continued. "We have seen many things accomplished that makes us very proud of our students."

Garrett concluded with, "I wish to say 'Thanks' to all and to the graduating class 'Best Wishes and happiness in the future'."

School buses are running 30 minutes early, in the mornings, this week, except for Friday when they run 30 minutes late. Buses will leave at noon Thursday following final exams. They will leave after junior high and elementary schools graduation services Friday morning.

Ranger College exams will conclude Thursday, and grade cards will be mailed out to day students. Details of graduation services at the high school will be included in the next issue of the Times.

Teen Town Election Set

Officers of Teen Town will be elected Thursday between 8 and 9 p. m. according to an announcement from Don Deffebach, outgoing president.

Several seniors have been appointed members of a nominating committee to present a slate of officers at that time. New officers will include a president, two vice presidents, reporter, secretary-treasurer, and historian.

Thursday night will mark the close of the spring session of Teen Town, with the summer schedule starting Monday, June 2 at 7 p. m. Monday nights will be observed as junior high school night, Tuesday night will be senior high school night, and Thursday night—junior and senior high school night.

Outgoing officers are Deffebach, president; Tommy Warford, vice president; Teddie Neeley, vice president; Gay Ann Daskaych, reporter; Lee King, secretary-treasurer; and Dawn Loper, historian. Tickets for the summer session will be available Thursday at 50 cents each.

Callahan County sales so far this year are listed at $63,681, or 30.4 percent of the county's goal. Fisher County has sold 17.2 percent of its goal with sales of $15,580.

Faskell County sales for the year are listed at $119,118, or 37.9 percent of the county's goal. Jones County has reached the 38.6 percent mark with sales of $184,039.

Bond Sales Total $78,970

Eastland County continues to set a hot pace in the District 16 U. S. Savings Bonds race.

During April Eastland County sales totaled $78,970, pushing the county's total sales for the year to $305,697, or 60.3 percent of the 1958 goal of $507,000.

Only Taylor County, in the nine-counties area, has sold more bonds than Eastland County, and Taylor ranks second in the percentage received. Taylor sales have been $628,737, or 45.5 percent of the 1958 goal.

Callahan County sales so far this year are listed at $63,681, or 30.4 percent of the county's goal. Fisher County has sold 17.2 percent of its goal with sales of $15,580.

Faskell County sales for the year are listed at $119,118, or 37.9 percent of the county's goal. Jones County has reached the 38.6 percent mark with sales of $184,039.

Teen-Age Players Here's Your Schedule!

Ranger's Pony League baseball season will get underway next week, with four games on schedule.

Opening the teen-age league will be the game with Clyde, to be played at Pony League Park Monday afternoon. On Tuesday, Ranger will play Clyde here. The older boys will take on Albany Thursday, and the younger players will compete against Rising Star, there, Friday.

A complete schedule, as announced by Dave Pickrell, president of the Ranger League, appears above. League members include Rising Star, Cisco, Eastland, and Albany—all of which have two teams. Baird and Clyde have one team each. Ranger will have to hustle in order to have two teams in the league, according to Pickrell, because only nine boys have turned out for play in the 15 and 16 year-old groups. At least 18 players (Continued on Page Two)

Jimmy Burnett landed a seven pound blue channel cat Wednesday along with a five and one-half pound yellow cat and a three pound cat.

"Rip" Galloway made a o m e catches with Al Larson over the weekend. But since they were fishing near Pittsburgh, no report is available.

Boone Yarhrough, a frequent fisherman, caught three four-pound bass Friday and two three-pound bass Saturday, according to a report from Frank and Earle's Lodge.

Heard reports that catches were made by L. E. Wallace (a whole string of fish), Doc Reuwer, and Fred Ellis—but information was unobtainable before press-time.

E. F. Arterburn said that fishing dropped "off" this past weekend. This is probably true, because neither he nor D. C. reported a single fish.

If our fish story is sad this week, wait until next week. For the fish are still there, it's up to you to catch them! All you need is a fisherman's rule and good luck!

Oil Flows in Ranger At Fast Rate of 1,000 Barrels A Day

(Editor's Note: This is the third part of "The One and Only Ranger", by Leonard Fanning, as reprinted from the American Petroleum Institute "Quarterly". This one continues—where the last one left off—with an account of the late

Mr. Hagaman and Hagaman Lake.)

Rancher Hagaman had a flair for engineering. He'd dammed up Palo Pinto Creek for irrigation. "Hagaman Lake" was a way stop for the trekkers. Like the oil men, he tried to catch reluctant raindrops whenever they stirred dry streams to trickling life. But the favorite route of the trek was through Weatherford, past Camp Bowie to Fort Worth, where the thousands of travelers camped near the stockyards and were cared for by the Red Cross.

Some of the trekkers got jobs in the oil towns, but most continued on their way. Forlorn furniture and even more forlorn-looking children were densely commingled on the ramshackle "prairie scooners." They were eastward bound, stopping and camping only wherever they found water.

"I read in the papers," one said, almost wistfully, "that the boys in the trenches are shoulder-deep in rain water. They say the unholy guffing over there causes such a downpour there ain't no rain left over."

"Four years ago," he added, "I was offered $16,000 for my section. This year, after selling everything, I had $38 left. I'm beating it back to good old Illinois." Yet he echoed an almost universal note among them: "The land's still there. Maybe some day I'll come back and farm it."

The leasebroker's dry-hole prayer failed to get any noteworthy response so far as the Ranger area was concerned. In July, the Bartles well on the Gholson land on the northwestern edge of town tapped the 3,400 foot sand (by then called the "Ranger sand"), showing 1,000 barrels a day. The Nannie Walker well, originally a gasser, blew itself into an oil well and was flowing 500 barrels a day.

Moreover, drilling activity was not confined to Ranger, where a well cost $45,000. By September in the 40-odd counties comprising the North Central Texas region, approximately 600 tests were underway. Actual drilling had started on 300. Derricks were on an additional 200, and stakes had been driven at another 100 locations. The Ranger boom had magnetized all North Central Texas.

At this time, Oil Administrator Mark L. Requa promulgated his famous request for "gasless Sundays," reflecting the crisis at hand in crude-oil production. For seven consecutive Sundays, beginning September 1, motorists voluntarily laid up their cars to save gasoline for war uses. At the same time, the Oil Administrator acted to get North Central Texas crude to refineries, authorizing the building of a pipe line with an initial capacity of 100,000 barrels.

Most trunk lines then were eight-inch. The program called for one giant 12-inch line of 60,000-barrel capacity to run from the fields to the Gulf Coast. Altogether it entailed a commitment by the industry for drilling and for pipeline construction—including money poured in since the McCleskey well—of some $100,000,000.

"Thanks to the Ranger field," Requa said in October, "I feel that we are assured of a very important new supply of oil in the immediate future."

On November 11 the Armistice was signed. Soon after, the First World War's "big inch" line—the 12-inch line to the coast—a was cancelled.

The crisis was over—that is, the war crisis. Enter the postwar crisis: an oil-shortage scare of really terrifying proportions. America's expanded and expanding industrialized economy and the release of pent-up civilian buying of automobiles created an unprecedented demand for petroleum products.

Ranger as a boom town (with its high-grade paraffin-base crude going at $3.50-$4.00 a barrel) really began to hit its stride. When the war ended, discharged soldiers from the air fields and army camps of Texas led a charge of ex-servicemen into the North Central Texas boom town. They, with oil men, assorted businessmen, doctors, lawyers, con men and camp followers, overwhelmed a hamlet already breaking out at the seams.

By February, 1919, the heavens had opened. Streams which had been dry as powder now were raging rivers overflowing their banks, flooding enormous areas and carrying away reservoir dams so recently prayerfully thrown up by Ranger citizens and oil companies. Continuous, torrential rains became almost a curse on the land. The frustrations of drought were exchanged for the frenzy of a transportation tangle. Hub-deep gumbo rendered supply trucks and cars helpless over miles of "roadless" roads.

New Officers Are Installed at Garden Club Luncheon Friday

The Ranger Garden Club met Friday, May 23, at 1 p.m. at the Community Clubhouse for the last club meeting of the year. Hostesses were the members of the social committee: Mrs. W. J. VanBibber, chairman; and Mmes. L. D. Tankersley, C. B. Pruet and L. L. Bruce.

A luncheon of fried chicken, green peas, potatoes, congealed salad, hot rolls, coffee, and lemon fluff dessert was served.

Mrs. A. W. Brazda made a mass arrangement of rose colored poppies for the coffee table. Mrs. Buck Wallace made an arrangement of mixed spring flowers for the dining table.

Mrs. R. L. Hamrick, club president, presided over the business session. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. Wallace.

Reports of the past year's work were given by the following: Mrs. John T. Roberson, first vice president; treasurer, Mrs. P. T. Smith; Mmes. W. H. Clem and Charles Milliken, yearbook committee chairmen; Mrs. Roscoe Hopper, membership chairman; Mrs. Brazda, civic committee chairman; Mrs. F. E. Langston, telephone committee chairman; Mrs. VanBibber, social chairman; Mrs. C. E. May Jr., library chairman; Mrs. Robert Allen, plant exchange chairman; and Mmes. May and Sam Aills, flower show chairman.

Mrs. May announced that the Garden Club's library shelf has been approved by the city.

Mrs. P. T. Smith and Mrs. Floyd Killingsworth were responsible for taking flowers to the hospital Sunday.

A gift was presented to Mrs. Hamrick in appreciation for her work as president of the club.

Mrs. May showed colored slides and pictures of the flower show. Mrs. VanBibber received a gift of appreciation from the club for her work on the social committee and for donating chair back covers to the clubhouse.

Mrs. P. T. Smith won the annual award for having achieved the most points in the Garden Club in the past year.

Each member designed and wore a hat made of fresh garden flowers.

Rho Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Meets Thursday to Install Officers

The Rho Pi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Thursday, May 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the Community Clubhouse for installation of new officers for the coming year. Mrs. D. C. Arterburn, president, was installing officer.

New officers are as follows: president, Miss Eva Mills; vice-president, Mrs. Richard Bonney; recording secretary, Miss Helen Dawley; treasurer, Mrs. Barbara Campbell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Drennon Daves; parliamentarian, Mrs. Charlie Rose; a n d extension officer, Mrs. Calvin Warren.

The new president was in charge of a short business meeting. A Past President's Pin was presented to Mrs. D. C. Arterburn. The members also presented her with a gift and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Arterburn presented the outgoing officers with charms for their bracelets.

In the traditional manner of brides-to-be, Miss Inez Harrell presented her sorority sisters with a box of chocolates, symbolic of her forthcoming marriage to William Leo Bernard Bourdeau.

The dining table was laid with a white outwork cloth, and centered with an arrangement of honey-suckle, yellow roses, and yellow snapdragons.

Refreshments consisted of punch, miniature sandwiches, and cake squares with the Beta Sigma Phi insignia on each square.

The following members were present: Mmes. Arterburn, Daves, Dwayne Dennis, Norman Huffman, Fred Lamb, Cy Landers, Howard Oliver, Charlie Rose, Campbell, Kenneth Hardy, Jack Sledge, Iris Hummel, Calvin Warren, Allen Rushing, Misses Norma and Eva Mills, Miss Vivian Simmons.
