September The 12th Is The Date

The News again calls attention to the opening date of our school. Monday, September 12th, will be an important date. A year's school history will begin. The teachers are anxious to begin their work and expressions from the boys and girls indicate that they, too, are looking forward to the time when they will re-assemble.

Our observation has been that we get into the habit of taking things as a matter of fact. We may not give it much thought, but it is a fact, but there are very few schools in the land in communities the size of ours, that are as well provided for as is our school. Our magnificent and well equipped buildings excite the admiration of all who see them. Almost daily people visiting and tourists passing through Sudan ask permission to inspect our buildings and always they express admiration and surprise.

Also, very few schools in communities the size and age of ours have the same standing in the way of courses offered and affiliated credits. And possibly best of all the boys and girls who live at a distance from the school are transported to the doors and back home and consequently have the advantages of a modern high school.

Again there is a certain inspiration in a large number of students working together for a common cause. School discipline is an important factor. School spirit on the part of the student body is an important factor. The boys and girls of the Sudan School the past year met these conditions in a beautiful manner. Visitors almost without fail remarked about the order, system, and spirit displayed by the student body.

All the things that have been mentioned will go into the making of a good school year, but they will not avail what they should unless they are accompanied by the good will and cooperation of patrons and the community at large. The patrons of the school have been generous in providing for it. They have done far more than the average community. It goes without saying that every true patron wishes our school well. However let us not stop there. A school should be the most vital thing in the community. The teachers and school officials will need our support and sympathy. And let our support be one hundred per cent strong and our children will be the gainer.

Superintendent Price reports that we will go into the year under very favorable conditions. Additional credits were granted by the Department of Education. All the new work has been stabilized and even a better grade work is expected than was done in the past. A word might be said about the new teachers in the high school department. Mr. Herman Campbell will be the principal and will have work in the Natural science department, and other

The new firm is one of the largest Lumber Companies in this country and the members of the firm are live-wire business men, whom it is a pleasure to do business with.

C. E. Yoder has been retained as manager.

Remodeling Home

One of the noted improvements being made here this week, is the remodeling of the W. W. Carpenter home, which he recently purchased, and which he will move into as soon as completed. Mr. Carpenter is building several rooms and bath to the residence, and has just completed a well and other outside improvements, on the place.

Mr. E. Lam who is moving here with his family from Tahoka will occupy the residence vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter.

Baptist Service 11 A. M. Sunday

Rev. Lynch was a pleasant caller at the News office, Monday morning, and after telling us about his fine corn and other crops; paying his subscription, and buying fifty Rhode Island Red baby chicks; he informed us, that he would preach at the school auditorium at 11 a. m. Sunday. Rev. Lynch is an old time Missionary Baptist Preacher; and he extends an invitation to all to hear him Sunday.

Subject: "What Sin is and is and It's Consequences."

Mrs. J. W. Saffle and son of Plainview, were in Sudan, Sunday.

Rev. Harlan J. Matthews returned to his home in Mineral Wells, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ormand and children returned the latter part of last week from a weeks visit in the mountains of New Mexico.

fill in subjects. Mr. Campbell is a graduate of the Abilene Christian College and comes well recommended. Mr. Ted White will teach along the Social Science line and will be coach. Mr. White has a degree from Daniel Baker College, is a good teacher and is an outstanding athlete. Miss Rosa Hammock has already shown her worth to the school. She will have Science, will assist in Mathematics and other subjects. Mr. Whith will have bookkeeping. Miss Edith Love will probably exchange work with the high school as the occasion demands. The other high school teachers who are returning will have work along the same line as last year.

Large Corn Stalk Borer

F. E. Miller, of the Miller Land Company, reports that the large corn stalk borer has done considerable damage to corn in this section; and he states that one field of thirty acres has been completely ruined by the pest.

Mr. Miller reports that other fields are infected, but not so badly. He says that the first indication or appearance of the borer is, that the corn affected, has the appearance, of needing moisture, blades turn yellow, and the stalk is stunted, growing only two or three feet tall.

A worm having the appearance of the grub worm, in size and color, except that it is covered with small black specks. It enters the stalk from one to two inches above the ground and eats its way up the stalk, which results in the destruction of the entire field. After discovering the cause of the corn being ruined by the large corn stalk borer, Mr. Miller, wrote to R. R. Reppert, Entomologist, College Station, Texas, for information as to the control of the pest, and Mr. Reppert's letter, which gives the scientific control is herewith reprinted.

Mr. F. E. Miller
Sudan, Texas

Dear Sir:

I have just returned to the office to find your letter of August 13th on my desk with insect specimens under separate cover.

These are the larva of the larger corn stalk borer. The egg is laid by a moth and hatches into this worm, which when mature changes into the brown pupa, later to emerge as another moth. There are thus several generations of the insects in one season. The last generation bores into the taproot and changes into the brown pupa to pass the winter.

Sometime one measure of control is obtained by pulling these taproots or plowing them out in fall and winter and gathering them up and burning them. We doubt if under usual conditions the results thus obtained will repay the trouble, and it will probably be your best plan to rotate your crop so that corn is not planted in one year on or near the same area devoted to the crop the preceding season. This procedure usually reduces damage from this insect to a point where it is hardly noticeable.

Yours very truly,
R. R. Reppert, Entomologist.

The School Auditorium at Amherst was used for the meeting place and it was filled to capacity through the meeting.

Rev. Ledger reports $230.00 Conference money raised in subscription and cash during the meeting.

On next Sunday the pastor will begin a meeting at the Methodist Church in Sudan and his hope is that the Sudan folk will turn out and co-operate as they did at Amherst in the meeting just closed.

Opening of New Dept Store Draws Big Crowd

The opening of the Cobb and Stephens Department store, in Sudan, Saturday was a big affair and hundreds of people visited the new store. Mr. Cobb, manager of the store, made preparations for a big day. Six clerks beside himself, were kept busy.

The well arranged store and a complete new stock of goods give one the impression, while visiting the store, that he is in a city much larger than Sudan and we are glad to number this new firm among our good business institutions.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Gann and baby daughter returned from a two weeks visit with friends and relatives in the central part of the state. Mr. Gann reports crop conditions spotted along the route traveled, and says that Sudan territory has the best prospect of any part of the country visited by them.

Mrs. Cora King is adding 7 sleeping rooms and a bath room to the Windsor Hotel.

350 Attend Bureau Meeting

Three hundred and fifty citizens and members of the Farm Bureau were present at the meeting held at Littlefield last Friday, to hear Mr. F. F. Reveers, report on farm conditions. R. E. Overstreet, of Lubbock, made a talk, and outlined plans for a Bureau Gin. He explained that a Bureau Gin could not be built at this time, on account of being in restricted zone.

J. D. Coghlin made a talk to farmers, stating that the farmer could take charge and change conditions, if he would.

Isenberg Returns From Eastern Market

Sam Isenberg, proprietor of Everybody's Cash Store, of this city, returned from New York and other Eastern markets, where he spent several days buying new goods for his fall and winter trade. Mr. Isenberg states that, prompted by the excellent prospects for a bumper crop, he has bought extensively of everything that Sudan and Lamb County, people will want, in the way of dry goods, clothing, shoes and millinery etc. Everybody's store is receiving the most complete stock that has ever been shown in this city.

MOVIE CAMERA AS HELP TO JUSTICE

Detroit Court Brings Solomon Up to Date.

Detroit, Mich. — King Solomon's methods revamped for the movies, were adopted by Circuit Judge Vincent M. Brennan as a means of aiding him in deciding to which of two women he should award a three-year-old girl. Instead of threatening to dismember the child with a sword, Judge Brennan announced he would award the child to neither Mrs. Julia Przybyla, natural mother of baby Irene, nor Mrs. Irene Goosen, her foster mother, formerly Mrs. Przybyla's sister-in-law. Instead, he told the women, the child would be placed in an institution.

At the very instant he made this statement a moving picture operator stationed behind the judge's chair trained his camera on the two women.

Judge Brennan said he would employ psychologists to aid him in studying the film, and he would award the child to the claimant whose features showed the greatest grief.

As the movie lights were flashed on, Mrs. Goosen burst into tears and, bending over, clasped the child in her arms. Mrs. Przybyla made no demonstration.

Triplets, Born Puny, Thrive on Spaghetti

Hoboken, N. J.—Too frail to live? Fanny, Frances and Jake Ferreri, fourteen-months-old triplets, sat up at the table and snickered over their spaghetti. They made no comment on their extraordinary gain in health and poundage since the night 14 months ago when doctors doubted the three puny babies would live. Frances and Jake can walk now, and Fanny is learning to walk, but her weight is a handicap.

The youngsters are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferreri. New Year's day they paid their first visit to New York city, stopping to eat spaghetti and other adult delicacies with an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Costa, at their home in lower Manhattan.

Fanny, who weighed three and a quarter pounds when she was born, now tips the scales at 15. Jake has added 16 pounds to his original six, and Frances, who started out at four and three-quarters, now has achieved 20.

They have not been brought up exclusively on spaghetti, but they eat a lot of it, and have, according to their parents, since they were weaned from the bottle four months ago.

"Old Age" Largely Myth

If somebody takes fifty as the age at which a man can tell whether he is a success or a failure, he can be confronted with a long list of those who achieved fame after that age. Cervantes was fifty-eight when he published the first part of "Don Quixote," the work that immortalized his name. Buffon was some years older when about one-half of his "Natural History" was completed, and at seventy he wrote "The Epochs of Nature," in which he calls old age a superstition. "Animals," he says, "do not know it; it is only by our arithmetic that we judge otherwise." But Buffon lived to eighty-one.

Effects of Emotions

The voice of animals and of human beings shows similar changes of quality under similar variations of emotion. This fact shows that similar internal changes are taking place, since the voice is merely the inward and material movement rendered outward and audible by the existence of complete vocal apparatus in action. The only animals which can rightly be called "dumb friends" are the humble members of the animal kingdom without vocal cords. But though insects are voiceless, yet they communicate their emotional changes by sound-vibrations resulting from rapid body movements.

Eve's Good Taste

There is a sort of gratitude at the bottom of every man's heart toward the woman, any woman, who tells him that she loves him. You may call it vanity, but why call names? No, it is not vanity. I am grateful to the woman who gazed tenderly into my eyes, even if I could not or would not reciprocate. She has given me something that she did not owe me. Given me something I did not expect to get. Good soul, honest soul! What excellent taste she has!—From "Prisoners," by Franz Molnar.

Distrust of Ourselves

What commonly prevents us from exhibiting the bottom of our hearts to our friends is not so much any distrust we have of them as the distrust we have of ourselves.

The glowing red and green bottles in the drug store window are a heritage from the medieval days of Lucrezia Borgia, when the drug store was a convenient place to pick up your favorite poison for some unattractive dinner guest. The well known red and white striped barber pole is a reminiscence of the days when the barber's principal occupation was blood-letting and the white stripes represented bandages. The three balls over a pawnbroker's shop were the imperial insignia of the Mongolian conqueror, Timur the Lame, who in 1390 was called the Scourge of Europe. Later they were adopted by the Medicci family of Florence who, before they were dukes, princes of the church, and kings, were the medieval world's greatest wool merchants and money lenders. A huge wooden board for a cobbler and a mammoth key for a locksmith were once familiar trade symbols for people who could not read. The classic wooden Indian, hatched out of a broken mast by some retired sailor, commemorated the fact that Indians first taught Sir Walter Raleigh to smoke. But even tobacco sellers now find it easier to attract customers with more sophisticated window displays.—Everybody's Magazine.

Idea of Submarine Warfare Is Ancient

Experimentally, of course, the idea of the submarine goes back into a very remote past. Aristotle speaks of some kind of submarine vessel used in the siege of Tyre more than 2,000 years ago, and there are occasional mentions of the idea through history. In the Sixteenth century one comes to the bishop of Upsala's claim to have invented a boat for scuttling ships from below, and in 1623 Charles I gave a Dutch inventor an order for "boats to go under water," though they do not seem to have been used against the French. There were the rudimentary and unsuccessful "turtles" of Bushnell in the Eighteenth century. But an ill fate pursued the early inventors. Fulton's submarine was rejected by France, England and America in turn, and he set himself to the more usual work of designing boat engines. Johnson's submersible which was to have rescued Napoleon from St. Helena came to nothing. Bauer, who was taken up by the prince consort, drowned the crew of his submarine.—Manchester Guardian.

Fishes' Radio Beacon

The simplest and most constant sound in nature, the washing of the sea, serves as a radio beacon to warn whales, porpoises and many fishes to keep away from the shore and below the surface in rough weather, according to Dr. Austin H. Clark of the United States National museum and formerly naturalist on the scientific ship Albatross.

Being high-pitched, the hissing sound of breaking waves has a marked directive quality—that is, it is easy to locate its point of origin. Being unceasing, it is distressing and repellent, and all the more sensitive sea creatures try to keep away from it. Whales, porpoises and dolphins and many fishes always keep well off shore, Doctor Clark stated, and they are apparently guided by these repellent sounds, while on a windy night various other types of life which normally come up to the surface stay well beneath it.

Hate's Ill Effects

Hate, which clenches the fist of man, clenches equally the poison-sac of the snake and the sac of coloring matter which darkens the water as the sac of musk befouls and poisons the air. We experience certain surface sensations in fury or terror which lead us to speak of "bristling with rage," or of the hair standing on end with terror.

Among the animals we may see the phenomenon taking place, and this rising of the hair is again only the result of our old friend muscular compression. How strong that action must be we may judge from the behavior of the "fretful porcupine," for in the lifting of his quills we see that which we hear in our own voice.

Starling Not Wanted

The starling is a prolific species, raising usually two broods, of three to six young a year, and its rapid increase in numbers requires constant reaching out for new food supplies and nesting places. The undesirable qualities of the starling appear to arise from its choice of nesting sites in buildings, which it defaces, and its proneness to drive native birds from the vicinity of houses. In the Old world the starling is harmful. Its habits, so far as its choice of food is concerned, have improved a bit in the New world, but taking it all in all the bird is an undesirable alien.—Chicago Evening Post.

I. M. Fulcher, of Wellington, is here this week looking after his farm interests. He seems well pleased with crop prospects, and remarked, that he never saw land produce like the land in the Sudan territory. He owns a fine labor of land south west of town, and if we have not misunderstood him, he will make this labor his home in the near future. Mr. Fulcher is a good farmer and good citizen and would make a valuable addition to this community.
