Green Visits Sudan Territory

N. L. Green, now of Lubbock, and one of the Plains oldest cotton farmers, spent Tuesday in the Sudan territory, in company with J. A. Hutto. Mr. Green and Mr. Hutto spent most of the day visiting cotton fields and the report brought back to town by them is very flattering indeed. The former gentleman carried a number of stalks of cotton from different fields, home with him, and will display them at the Cotton Exchange at Lubbock. He stated that the territory around Sudan, had the best prospect for a big crop of cotton of any territory, that had been visited by him during his trip, and estimated the yield at one half bale to the acre, on many fields that he visited here.

Stranger Comes In-- Toots Horn For Us

"I have this to say," a visitor said, glancing over the News, "that you have about as good a paper, size of town compared—especially the amount of advertising carried."

We are glad to hear we have pleased someone.

A comic once said there was an editor once who pleased everyone, but we never met him. Mistakes occur sometime, too—through an unavoidable rush at times but not from lack of knowledge. There seems to be a profusion of them in the city papers for the same reason.

This happens because of what printers term "railroading" matter to the forms, not proof-read, in order to catch the mail.

We recall one mistake in an Illinois paper that near came seriously.

The editor in a write-up had used the name of the chief of police several times and in doing so wrote "But he," meaning the chief, but the linotype operator happened to strike the cap M key instead of letter "h," and it appeared "Mut" instead of "But."

The chief thought the editor had called him a "Mut," jumped on him and might have killed him had it not been for some interference. Up to this day it has never been explained to the satisfaction of the chief.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Hay and Miss Bertha Vereen spent Tuesday in Lubbock.

WHEN THE COTTON COMES TO TOWN

And The Black-Eyed Peas Are Gone

Beans are still with us as a diet—subscription and otherwise—and also black-eyed peas—until the cotton money comes in.

But take pains not to imbibe, as a party informs us, any boot-leg—when eating black-eyed peas—we've never tried it ourselves—but only gather from a man's description of the effect—that the wrath of a thirsty printer looking for a drink and can't get it and then finding it and not having the money to buy it is nothing to that of an intoxicated mess of black-eyed peas popping and somersaulting in a man's stomach, and at times unfitting him as eligible admission to Sudan's "McAllister 400"—of "Noo Yawk"—or is it forty?

And then the horrible nightmare of the leaf-worm and the roopy chicks and unpaid debts and debts owed us—ye Gods! we will be thankful if the farmer—if he hasn't been driven insane altogether by the "diversificationist" program—will bring in an abundance so we can get "set right."

And Christmas is not far off too, when we can have turkey and a change of diet.

Then the turkey gobler, the Plumed Knight of the feathered realm of the South Plains, followed by his meek Mormon flock, will humbly place their unwilling necks upon the chopping block and thus offer up the supreme sacrifice.

For—a plurality of wives the turkey gobler can make the late Brigham Young's household look like thirty cents.

And then—we were going to say we could have something on the side with it—but they were the days of our former greatness, Oh, pickles!

Three Cars of Chevrolets

Hutto Chevrolet Company unloaded a car of Chevrolet cars the latter part of last week, and are looking for two more cars in today. The first car load of any make was unloaded by this company and they are now in line to be the first to unload two cars at one shipment. These cars of Chevrolets within ten days, not so bad for Sudan.

SUCCESSFUL THREE- DAY TREATMENT

Infected Flock Chickens Treated by County Agent Birds Are Now Active

The flock of E. E. Ivy, three miles south of Sudan, was severely infected with colds and roup and also a heavy infestation of worms prevailed throughout the flock.

On Tuesday last week under the supervision of D. A. Adams, County Agent, assisted by R. J. Newton, Vocational Agricultural Teacher, and H. H. Weimhold, of The Sudan News, a demonstration was held and the entire flock gone over.

Each bird was single dosed with capsules for worm expulsion and then each bird was given a dose of Mixed Bacterin Avian for further prevention of more colds, roup, etc.

Mr. Ivy's turkey flock was in exceedingly bad shape from roup and colds and it appeared that if something was not done quite a few of these would be lost from death in a few days. These were also treated, but both doses were doubled for the turkeys.

Upon making a visit to the farm of Mr. Ivy last Friday the county agent found all of these birds active and feeding on everything they could find edible and up until that time there was not a single loss in the whole flock. The roopy heads and cloudy eyes have cleared up and the flock is well on the road to recovery.

The average price for doing this work to Mr. Ivy's birds was an average of 3 cents a bird for turkeys and all. So one can see that at this small cost that it is possible for every farmer in the county to put his flock in a healthy condition, and this am't will be easily paid back through increased egg production as well as good healthy birds for the market this fall.

V. C. Nelson returned the latter part of last week from a two weeks visit with his father at Burlingame, Kansas He returned by way of Fort Worth, and while in that city, purchased a new Cadillac car.

THEY ARE STILL WITH US

Train Nearly Got There First

One day last week a stranger succeeded in beating a train at the Santa Fe crossing—it was close shave however—so close, in fact, that after the effort he got out his machine and for a few minutes surveyed the passing train as if congratulating himself.

Sometimes the train gets there first and then its a different story, perhaps some children may have been ground beneath the wheels, and perhaps it aint any of our business, but if it happens to be your child it finally becomes somebody's business.

Men have been seen to take these chances with their own children and went to their death and just exactly what type of a fellow he is is hard to determine.

Hoover Sayings

You can't be a quitter.
Leadership is a quality of the individual.

The first duty is work. This is not a cheerless outlook. It presupposes congenial effort.

It is the individual alone who can function in the world of intellect and in the field of leadership.

This civilization is not going to depend upon what we do when we work so much as what we do in our time off.

There were lots of people who committed crimes during the year who would not have done so if they had been fishing.

At one time the whole of our national activities were simple enough to be conducted by a man of general education. Today our leaders must be experts.

NOTICE

TO OWNERS OF DOGS

All stray dogs will be shot. There is an ordinance to that effect in Sudan.

Owners of dogs must keep them at home and not allow them to roam around in the streets day or night.—Capt. Cooper, City Marshal.

Make Your Word Good

The man who looks the whole world in the face,
Whose creditors never round after him chase,
Is a man to whom we are willing to lend,
Because on his word we can always depend;
But the man who quits work to fish or to play,
And when the sun shines he seldom makes hay,
May for a time even wear better clothes
Than most of the people to whom he yet owes,
But The First National Bank has kept tab on his case,
And knows that his note is not worth its face.

Farm Bureau Meeting Saturday

Mr. J. D. Coghlan of Ennis assistant Director of Field Service of Texas will speak at the School House at Sudan Saturday Sept. 29 at 3 pm.

Members who are anxious to know "why they didn't get more money for their cotton" last season, be sure and come to the meeting so as to get the "real facts" concerning the past seasons operations of Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Ass'n.

Everybody come and hear Mr. Coghlan.—J. W. Hamncock, Field Representative.

Mrs. Humphries of Clovis was called to Sudan Monday on account of the illness of her mother Mrs. F. P. Wilson.

H. H. Bush was called to Amarillo to be with his wife, who underwent another operation Wednesday. Mrs. Bush was getting along seemingly well until Tuesday afternoon when an examination was made and it was found necessary to preform another operation.

Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Foote returned the latter part of last week from Austin where they had been to place their daughter Faye, in the State University.

The W M U met at the home of Mrs. Long for the Royal Service lesson. There were nine members present to enjoy the lesson. The next meeting will be at Mrs. J.O. Barnett's on Tuesday afternoon. All members are invited to be present.

I couldn't speak; Peter, however, voiced my thought:
"That goes with the theory that the attack was made by some one in the rear of the new-book alcove."

"Yes, it is further sustained by the fact that in the dust on that fourth shelf between the front and rear ranks of books, we found fresh streaks, such as would be made by fingers thrust in from the rear."

"He admits he was there!" I gasped. "Candidly, says he reached into that shelf from the rear to search for books. Yet he absolutely denies having seen Mr. Grosvenor then or at any other time that morning, or having any knowledge whatever of the spring-lanceet."

"The whole story will have to come out tomorrow, after our final check-up."

"Who's the witness?" demanded Peter.

"That'll come out, too. It won't be long to wait."

"Wait!" echoed Peter. In a tone of frenzy, "Wait! What for? To tell that girl whose grandfather and cousin were thieves and liars that her uncle is a murderer? You take it lying down, seems to me! Isn't there anything a man can do?"

Mr. Almy looked him up and down in rather a kindly manner. He answered quietly:

CHAPTER XIII

Daylight.

The shadows began to fall in the silent, deserted shop. I attempted quite unsuccessfully, to feel delight over the fact that I had now driven a wedge into the work's work, and resolved at least to find solace in that sovereign remedy against the blues, a particularly good dinner, within half an hour. Suddenly the front door was flung open, and in marched Mr. Almy at the head of a procession: Peter Burton, three men unknown to me, and a tall, broad-shouldered rough-looking young fellow in a gray sweater and a soft gray hat.

We faced each other open-mouthed the procession and I.

"What are you doing here?" inquired Mr. Almy.

"My work," said I; "but I am going directly."

"Finish if you want to," said he; "we shall be in the back of the shop only." And off fled the procession, excepting Peter, whom a frantic glance from me detained.

"That man in the gray sweater's the one who came in for the shipping office position last Monday!" I gasped in his ear.

"Sure. He's the witness who saw Professor Harrington and Mr. Grosvenor in the alcoves!"

"Wait! Where did they find him?"

"The employment agency traced him. Almy's been after him all week. His name's Frank Tucker."

"What's his story?" I demanded.

"Well, you remember he came in and walked down the aisle past us about ten-forty o'clock that Monday? He never got to the shipping office."

"Then Mr. Rizas was right?"

"Absolutely. Something aroused his curiosity when he had got part way down the aisle. He went through the last alcove on the right, hid behind a bookcase in the narrow right-hand aisle, and watched. He saw plenty."

"What aroused his curiosity?"

"The spring-lanceet."

"What?"

"He called it a 'little brass box.' It was in Mr. Grosvenor's hand. He was comparing it with books from the shelf."

"That's what Charles MacIvor suggested?"

"—and laying it at his right, on a vacant place on the shelf, when not using it."

"But why did all this interest Tucker?"

"Great Scott, Constance!" said Peter testily, and I could see he was very nervous. "You've seen Tucker. He's pretty low grade. Just one of those saps of people who'll stop anything they're doing to stare at anything out of the common. And even I will say that an old man in a book-alcove comparing a brass box with books is out of the common. Besides, in a minute or two, Tucker heard this box give a loud click!"

"The ten-forty click—the first we heard!"

"And before he had a chance to get nearer, Harrington came down the aisle and stood looking at books there and then disappeared, after speaking to Miss Abbott, toward the rear. Tucker stood gazing at Mr. Grosvenor a while longer, unable to make his actions out, when suddenly he heard another click, and Mr. Grosvenor slumped to the floor. Instantly, he says, the professor walked around from behind the rear alcove and up the aisle, without looking to right or left."

"Why didn't Tucker give any alarm?"

"He was scared stiff. You see, while there's no great harm in him, he had just got out of the city prison on a disorderly conduct charge. He was hunting his first job since, and naturally it occurred to him that, with a record, he'd be suspected of the attack himself if he told about it."

"And Professor Harrington corroborates all that part of that story about himself?" I sighed. Peter said nothing, but looked very downcast. "But how," I puzzled, "did Tucker get out of this shop without somebody seeing him? There were five employees here."

"Easily. He waited his chance, which came when the alarm was given, and all of us dashed down the center aisle. Then he ran up the right-hand aisle, and out at the front door, unnoticed."

"Very simple," I agreed. "And now you all have come here to check up his story by re-enacting that scene?"

"Can't hide much from you, can we?" said Peter. "But I'll bet you don't know why I'm here."

"Well, I confess I don't."

"There are to be two men just the height of Mr. Grosvenor and Professor Harrington respectively, and I am the professor's height exactly. So Almy drafted me."

I looked at Peter; it was plain that Mr. Almy, though selecting him ostensibly because he filled physical requirements, had also chosen some one who would give Professor Harrington every favorable chance that honesty could give him. I grasped Peter's hand as he turned down the aisle, and wished him good luck. I couldn't think of a few well-chosen words; all that occurred to me was that it was said to be darkest before dawn, which, however, presupposed a dawn.

While I was setting my desk in final order, there was no sound in the shop save steps, and now and then voices in the rear. The voices I heard distinctly, however; no traffic outside interrupted them that quiet Saturday evening.

"Tucker," came Mr. Almy's voice. "Did you ever see this before?"

A rough deep voice answered: "Yes, sir; I saw that piece of yellow paper when I was here Monday."

"Where did you see it?"

"In the old gentleman's hand."

"In Professor Harrington's hand?"

"No, sir, he didn't have it; it was in Mr. Grosvenor's hand."

"Go and stand where you were when you saw it, Tucker."

I turned and glanced down the aisle hearing a movement. Far back, I saw

"Great Scott, Constance!" said Peter testily, and I could see he was very nervous.

"How did Mr. Grosvenor come to show this paper?"

"He picked it up off the floor," said Tucker's voice. "The young lady with the yellow hair had laid it down on the table, on some books she had brought the professor. It fell off when she swished round to go back up the aisle. It flew over to the edge of that alcove, right near where you're standing now."

"And then Mr. Grosvenor picked it up?"

"Yes, sir. He had been feeling in his pockets—I could see him well because the light in that alcove was on, and I was in this shadow here—and as he kept feeling, he happened to turn and caught sight of the paper which had been lying on the floor a little while then. He grabbed it, and took it in his left hand, and took that little brass box in his right, and spread the paper over the box, and pressed something. Then there was a click—the first."

"That was at ten-forty," said Mr. Almy. "Then what, Tucker?"

"He tossed the paper away; it blew up the aisle, because the elevator came down just then and made a draft."

"And where was Professor Harrington all this time? Come and show us."

Tucker emerged from the history alcove, and walked a few feet up the aisle, on the side of the tables toward the law-book alcove, where he halted, facing toward the front door.

"Was the professor in that position?" demanded Mr. Almy.

"Yes, sir."

"With his back to the law-book alcove?"

"Yes, sir; he was glancing over books on this table."

"How did you see him from that place where you were standing, inside that history alcove?"

"I didn't stay right there all the time," said Tucker.

"Come forward, eh, and looked around the shelves?"

"Looked through 'em; across the tops of those little books," answered Tucker, pointing toward one of the shelves in the history alcove. "Some one would have seen me if I'd come out far enough to look around the shelves."

"Now, tell me: did the professor do anything, while you were watching, except look at those books?"

"Positively not," answered Tucker. "He was wrapped up in 'em; he didn't turn his head when the young lady brought the books and the yellow paper; he didn't even seem to notice the click. He just stood there reading until he turned to go down the aisle behind that last shelf."

"Very well," said Mr. Almy. "Go back now, will you, Tucker, to the position you were in in the history alcove, Burton."

"Yes, sir," said Peter's voice.

"Step behind the law-book alcove, right in front of that large book on the fourth shelf, which the professor says he was examining—'History of Roman Law.' I heard Peter move, and hastened my preparations to leave Tucker's story disquieted me more every minute. "Now, Farrell," said Mr. Almy.

Hearing another movement, I glanced down the aisle again, and saw one of the strangers, a man several inches shorter than Peter, stepping into the law-book alcove.

"Here's your book, Farrell," went on Mr. Almy; "Acts and Laws of the Virginia Legislature; also on the fourth shelf on this side, you see. And here, at your right hand, as it was at Mr. Grosvenor's, we'll put the spring-lanceet. I've set it. Is that position right, Tucker?"

"A little farther forward," said Tucker. "It was right on the edge of the shelf. The little lever held it there, and that long black thing was toward me."

"He means the hammer," said Farrell. "There! How's that?"

"Right," said Tucker.

"I see; the trigger is just hanging over the edge of the shelf," said Mr. Almy. "Now, then, Farrell, you and Burton draw your two books off the shelf. What happened next, Tucker?"

"Mr. Grosvenor stooped down and looked hard into the open space on the shelf, like he was looking for something."

"Bend down, Farrell, until you can see into the gap," directed Mr. Almy. "Is that the way it was, Tucker? You see, he's just Mr. Grosvenor's height."

"Yes, sir; but he ought to have his book in his left hand, and his right sort of stretched out along the shelf on the empty space, like as if he was going to take something off it. . . . There, that's it."

"Now, Farrell," said Mr. Almy, "what do you see?"

"There's a gap clear across the shelf from front to back," answered Farrell. "I see Burton plainly; nothing else."

"All right; hold your position. Burton, do you see the spring-lanceet?"

"There was a very brief pause; then Peter answered: "Yes, sir."

"Then reach through the gap, and pick it up—"

"That was the first I heard. I fled out of Darrow's as before fire or flood. I was useless there—as useless, it seemed to me, as everybody else was before that devastating story of Tucker, who had been unearthed from his obscurity to save Julia. It was true, but only thereupon to inactive her distinguished uncle, our old friend. My superb dinner slumbered down into a glass of hot milk to make me sleep, which desirable end it accomplished at three o'clock Sunday morning."

And at seven the telephone rang, arousing every one in the house except myself, for whom the message was. It was from Mr. Almy, and he asked me to come into town on the first train I could get, and come straight to Normandy terrace. This was all he said; he sounded very tired. I could not ask for details; in fact, I did not wish to hear them until I had to. So, merely obeying orders, I reached Normandy terrace soon, and in a state of extreme anxiety.

And who should come dashing for ward out of the restaurant but Ernesto? Yes, Ernesto, and as I knew him of old, before we had mysteries and midnight alarms! He was in gala array, his black Sunday suit, a dazzling collar, a purple boutonniere.

"Ah-h-h! This morning I go to church!" cried Ernesto, rattling his hands. "Not much I don't go there it's too long in church, but this morning yes!"

Brought up with a shock, "What for?" I demanded, as much at sea as a regular heathen.

Creases bordered Ernesto's eyes and nose and lips.

"You think I get married?" he queried coquettishly. "Not me! But other people maybe—no, no! He glanced up the stair well and reproached his classic wink, this time softened by regard. "I go burn a candle for them this morning anyway!"

"Oh! I breathed, clutching the banister. "You don't mean anything, something nice happened?"

"You don't know-o-ow?" cried Ernesto, crescendo. "My God! You go upstairs!"

Sacrifice Ever Part of World's Progress

Progress is the result of experiment and sacrifice, and all submarine and air disasters are courageous efforts to overcome the obstacles which hinder scientific development, explains an editorial in Liberty.

"If a disaster is big enough it anesthetizes the mind," continues the editorial. "We understand one death better than six, or six hundred. So, when a dirigible falls, a transatlantic flyer is lost, or a submarine is wrecked, there comes the protest that all this must be stopped."

"We venture another point of view when these pioneers are killed, much as we regret their death, we are proud that such men have lived."

"NOT IN CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH"

(Published by Request)

We had an article recently in The News concerning Dr. Straton of the Calvary Baptist church, New York, wishing to meet Gov. Smith in debate, the trustees objecting.

Mr. W. F. Lynch, of Sudan, furnishes us a clipping from the Baptist Standard, which we give in part and which explains the objection of the trustees:

"Dr. Straton declared that Gov. Alfred E. Smith is the 'deadliest foe to moral progress today.' Gov. Smith challenged him to give proof of his assertion and gave him an opportunity in the same place to meet the charge. Dr. Straton accepted. The trustees said, 'Not in Calvary Baptist church.'

"It seems to The Baptist Standard that the pastor having made a charge so severe the trustees ought to allow him an opportunity, in the church, to prove it when challenged."

"It's your Fair--so be there".

Would You Know One If You Saw It?

If you ever came face to face with a germ, would you recognize it? Of course it is not likely that you ever will see a germ, unless you own a tremendously powerful microscope, for you would have to magnify one over a thousand times to make it as big as a pin head. But you should recognize the fact that these tiny germs can get into your blood streams through the smallest cut, and give you typhoid fever, tuberculosis, lockjaw, blood poisoning, and many more dangerous and perhaps fatal diseases. There is one sure safeguard against these dangers -- washing every cut, no matter how small, thoroughly with Liquid Borozone, the safe antiseptic. You can get Liquid Borozone at H. G. Indians Will Vote At Next Election

All native born American Indians are now citizens of the United States and have the right to vote as such, that right being subject to and sometimes limited by the laws of the several states, according to a statement from the Department of the Interior.

Up until 1924 citizenship was not granted an Indian until he was considered competent or, in other words, when he was able to handle his own affairs. In that year congress passed a law which gave citizenship to all native-born Indians. The franchise was so newly granted that no great use was made of it in the election of 1924. Election this year is the first general election at which American Indians will have a fair chance at the exercise of the franchise.

There are about 340,000 Indians in the United States. They are members of 193 tribes and live in every state. Their numbers are greatest in Oklahoma, second in Arizona, third greatest South in Dakota.

Nature Thought of Everything

Nature thought of everything when the human body was made. When the body is about to become ill, nature planned danger signals to warn us. Thus, if our children grind their teeth when they sleep, or lack appetite, or suffer from abdominal pains, or itch about the nose and fingers, we should know that they may have contracted worms. Then, if we are wise, we buy a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and safely and surely expel the worms. Thus we avoid the danger of very serious trouble. White's Cream Vermifuge costs only 55¢ a bottle, and can be bought from H. G. Ramby Drug Store

Fight Over Bullhead Caused Duck's Death

A large duck was recently found at Portage Inlet, British Columbia, choked to death by a seagull in the act of swallowing a bullhead, according to a correspondent of Field and Stream.
The strange occurrence, he says, came about in this manner: The duck had just dived into the water, emerging with a bullhead protruding from its bill. In the meantime a band of seagulls had been circling around in the vicinity of the ducks. One of the gulls immediately detached itself from the others and started to chase the duck. The sawbill, objecting to losing its dinner, pulled the opposite way.
The result was that the spikes on the fish's pectoral fins jabbed the duck's neck. It was not long before the unfortunate duck was lying dead on the water with the fish still sticking out of its mouth.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today.
People lived normal lives, ate plain,
wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physicians and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings.
The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people,
and they need just such a mild, safe
bowel stimulant.
This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who need it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulency, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin,"

Any Woman Can Look Stylish
By MAE MARTIN

Most stylish-looking women are just
"good managers." They know simple ways to make last season's things conform to this season's styles.

Thousands of them have learned how easily they can transform a dress, or blouse, or coat by the quick magic of home tinting or dyeing. Anyone can do this successfully with true, fadeless Diamond Dyes. The "know-how" is in the dyes. They don't streak or spot like inferior dyes. New, fashionable tints appear like magic right over the out-of-style or faded colors. Only Diamond Dyes produce perfect results.
Insist on them—and save disappointment.

My new 64-page illustrated book,
"Color Craft," gives hundreds of money-saving hints for renewing clothes and draperies. It's Free. Write for it now, to Mae Martin, Dept. E-143,

So Constipated That Life Seemed Hopeless

"In November, 1920, I wrote you for special instructions in the use of Milk Emulsion. I have been constipated for a number of years and suffered with my bowels for a long time. I finally had an X-ray made which definitely located the trouble in my bowels. An operation was advised, but I was afraid of an operation, and your Emulsion had been recommended to me, so I decided to try it.
"I declined in weight from 190½ pounds to less than 120 pounds, and became so weak that I could not turn over in bed without help. I could not eat any solid foods for months, but tanked up on liquid diet, until I threw it up constantly. Nothing passed my bowels except a dry, hard powder.
"Finally when I was convinced that I had only a little longer to live, I resolved to try Milk Emulsion. This was in November, 1920, and after a continuous decline for two years. Now I am happy to say to you that I am greatly improved. At this writing my bowels are fairly regular with proper consistency. I have gained in weight and I am beginning to have an appetite.
"I have taken 15 large bottles of Milk Emulsion and the results have been most satisfactory. I am 65 years old, and still improving. I expect to return East in October and resume active business as mechanical engineer.
"I heartily endorse your Emulsion and I am satisfied that it saved my life." Yours very truly, C. B. RUS-

POULTRY FACTS

POULTRY BREEDS AND HOW CLASSED

Chickens are divided into classes, breeds and varieties. Birds with the same general characteristics are placed in one class. Classes are then divided into breeds. Each breed of poultry is distinguished from other breeds by differences in type. Breeds are separated into varieties. The different varieties of the same breed are designated by differences in comb or color. All varieties of the same breed should have the same general type characteristics.

There are four general classes of chickens that are common and other classes less common.
The American class consists of birds that are of the general purpose type. They have yellow skin and legs, red ear lobes and legs free from feathers.

The breeds that make up this class
are: Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Java, Dominique, Rhode Island Red, Rhode Island White, Buckeye, Jersey Black
Giants and Chanticleer.

The Mediterranean class are smaller than the American class and are often known as the egg breeders.
They are nervous in disposition, very active, compactly built, have white ear lobes and clean legs. The breeds that make up this class are: Leghorn, Minorca, Spanish, Andalusian and Arona.

The breeds that make up the Asiatic class are large and clumsy, have red ear lobes and feathers on their legs.
They are often referred to as the meat breeds. Brahma, Cochins and Langshans make up the breeds in this class.

The English class, while not as common as the other three already referred to, probably rank fourth in popularity. These birds are medium in size, have red ear lobes, clean legs that are pink in the buff and white varieties and black in the black varieties. The breeds making up this class are Orpingtons, Dorkings, Red Cops, Sussex and Cornish.

Selling Squab Broilers During Winter Months

Quite a number of the broiler plants
make a specialty of squab broilers, which sell best during January and February. They are grown in about eight to ten weeks, the hatches coming out in November and December, and are successfully raised without any outdoor exercise.

The greatest demand for squab
broilers is in spring, when game birds are scarce, and a small bird is in demand in restaurants. They should weigh from three-fourths to one pound, and must be plump. Many who ship squab broilers make a great mistake in sending bony, poor ones.
Good returns cannot be expected from poor, scraggy birds, half dressed.

The broiler for the winter market must be attractive looking to command a ready sale at good prices.
Plump chickens, neatly dressed, free
from pin feathers, with unsoiled skin and with perfectly clean legs, will find a ready sale, while poor stuff goes begging. A fat broiler is quite a rarity. The best that can be done, generally, is to have them plump, for the natural tendency of the chick is to use all nutriment for growth and development. The main point is to grow them rapidly.

To grow good broilers there should be dry quarters provided, thoroughly cooked food, comfortable heat (not too high nor too low), regularity in feeding, cleanliness and good light.
The chicks must be induced to take plenty of exercise.

Moving Pullet Flock

When there are many pullets to be moved it often pays to leave them in the crates over night and move the crates to the laying houses in the morning. Then the poultryman has a better light and can do a better job of culling and treating the birds for lice. As each pullet is taken from the crate, it can be inspected for weight, general health and vigor, and prospective laying ability. All birds that are poor prospects for winter profits can be isolated for future observation.

Improve Egg Quality

Much can be done to improve the quality of eggs produced by careful selection of eggs used for hatching purposes. All undersized, misshapen, off-color, and defective shelled eggs
should be eliminated from the incubator. By following such a practice for a few years the quality of eggs laid by a flock should be materially improved. Egg dealers are willing now to pay a premium for high quality eggs. It is well to assort them according to size and color.

Feed to Help Pullets

If pullets must search for their feed on free range they will probably find sufficient food for body maintenance,
but growth will be slow and egg production will be impossible until late winter or early spring. Liberal feeding of grain and mash containing 20 per cent of high-grade tankage, or in place of tankage all the milk the pullets can drink, will not only reduce the amount of exercise but will hasten growth and stimulate full egg production.

Card Players Neatly Got Away From Bore

Sir Alfred Butt, M. P.—who, by the way, has the reputation of being one of the best card players in England—
tells of an ingenious method devised by two players at a certain London club for dealing with the class of bore who persists in looking on at a game
and making remarks about it.
After standing the nuisance for some time, one of the players asked one of the spectators to play for him until he returned. The spectator took the cards, whereupon the first player left the room.
Pretty soon the second player followed the example of the first. The two substitutes played for some time,
when one of them asked the waiter
where the two original players were.
"They are playing cards in the next room," was the waiter's reply.—Mon-

RECORD-BREAKING MONTHS!

Greatest August in WILLYS-OVERLAND history—68% gain over last year!

NOW August has added its sweeping plu-for 1923. Eight consecutive months have broken every record for the corresponding months in all of Willys-Overland's 20-year history.

Last month 68% more people bought Whippet

a gain of more than two-thirds!

Experienced motorists are quick to appreciate the superiority of the Whippet Four, with its many engineering advantages never before

Why Should I Buy a Goodyear Tire?

Come into our store and ask this question, man to man: "Why should I buy your Tire?" You won't need to ask another.

All we want, whether you buy or not, is an opportunity to explain why the Goodyear is called The World's Greatest Tire.

Here's why:

- 1 Its sturdy carcass is made of SUPERTWIST, which means fewer fabric failures and less tire changes on the road.
- 2 Its new design of tread given the best traction and car control ever afforded by an automobile tire.
- 3 Its tenacious ability to grip the road gives the greatest possible degree of safety.
- 4 Increased area of road contact and added All-Weather blocks insure slow, even tread wear and greater satisfaction to the user.
- 5 Quiet and smooth-running are also made certain by the new design of tread.
- 6 This new Goodyear is admittedly the WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL TIRE.

The best proof of all this is the tire itself. Come in today and see this masterpiece, the Goodyear All-Weather Balloon

Nine-Tenths Preventable

Nine-tenths of all the diseases of the American people can be traced directly to constipation, doctors say. Constipation throws into the system poisons which taint and weaken every organ of the body and make them easy victims for any germs which attack them. Prevent constipation and you will avoid nine-tenths of all diseases, with their consequent pain and financial losses. Herbine, the good old vegetable cathartic, will prevent constipation in a natural, easy and pleasant way. Get a bottle today from H. G. Ramby Drug Store.
