JUNIOR CLASS SUDAN HIGH NEWS NOTES

Austin Visitor--Teacher Returns After Illness--Fair Report--Home Economics Added--Short Attendance Roll Lost due to Harvesting, Etc.

Last week was a busy week with the boys of the Agriculture group. In addition to routine work, there was a stir due to activities for the Fall Fair at Amherst, a feature that the boys wished to patronize. There was also a visitor, J. B. Rutland, from Austin. Mr. Rutland is our regular agricultural inspector of high schools making us his first trip of inspection for the year. He seems to be much interested in the work being done by this group this year. At noon, Mr. Wilkins treated him and Mr. Newton to a luncheon down town. All three of them seemed to be in a good humor for the afternoon.

Ye editor of ye Sudan News, H. H. Weimhold, spent considerable time and expenses last week, and the week before getting ready the poultry exhibit for the boys and their fathers to place in the contest at the Amherst Fair. Our boys all report a pleasant and profitable experience in this fair. They report the following wins there: Milo, First prize, Oran Neil; second, Rex Hammock; third, Lowell Lumpkin; fourth, Forrest Weimhold. Kaffir, First, Wayman Gordon. Hygeria, first prize, Leroy Fisher; third, Donald Robertson, Manko Maize, Second prize, Artie Lee Hicks. Hogs, Aged Sows, first prize, Rex Hammock. Aged Boars, third prize, Lowell Lumpkin. Young boars, third prize Rex Hammock.

In addition to the above winnings for our class of boys they visited one farm and selected an exhibit to test their skill in selection of a varied exhibit. Mr. Joe West offered his farm for their work. They accepted and collected the exhibit there. This exhibit won second honors for a booth of farm products. To Mr. West goes the honor of the exhibit, but he gave the prize money, $7.50, to the F. F. T., a club of vocational agricultural boys.

The F. F. T. boys are hard at work this week trying to conceive a workable plan by which they may have their own truck to assist them in making their agricultural trips. This club is now sponsoring a "Cow, Sow and Hen Show" to take place soon in Sudan. Watch their announcements of this show.

The girls of the Home Economics Club want it remembered that they, too, have been busy the past week making progress with their work as well as the boys have of the F. F. T. Club. They have had put into their dining room a nice linoleum rug and dining table. They are now exerting themselves to buy a dozen dining chairs. In addition to this equipment added, they have fitted up an office for their department under the direction of Mrs. Franks, and have salvaged from rubbish heaps a nice china and silver exhibit cabinet. They are now renovating this cabinet. In addition to this work, they are adding smaller matters of equipment that will make their dining room a very attractive addition to the school plant. Among them are curtains, table lamp, finishing touches put on furniture on hand, flowers and flower stands.

The grammar school is glad to report that Mrs. Wilkins is back in school after a rather long period of illness. During her absence Mrs. Talbott had charge of her work. Beginning this week, Mr. Smallwood will be away from school about two weeks transacting some financial business that requires his presence. Again, Mrs. Talbott will be in harness. We boys and girls of the grammar school will all have a chance, it appears to go to school to Mrs. Talbott.

Miss Jackson has been absent some in the past week due to illness. In her absence her place was filled by a former teacher of the school, Mrs. Peachy. Her old pupils were glad to see her in the rooms once more, even if we did miss Miss Jackson.

Mr. Findley has at last been able to get the drinking fountains for us in the grammar grades. It is not necessary for us to "form a water line" like we had to do at the first of school. Thank you, Mr. Findley.

Friday of last week, the football team went to Littlefield to play the team there. Due to our small number of high school players we had to put our twelve different men against twenty-five or more that Littlefield had to put against us. That is not a criticism of Littlefield. It is simply their good fortune that they have so many men out for football. It is just a misfortune that so few boys are taking an interest in high school athletics. It may be well for us to remember that some of the smaller colleges have their entire male student bodies come out for football. Center College when it beat Yale had fewer than 300 students, but every man tried for the team. When we do that we shall have as good a team as any school on the South Plains, at least any school with not more than 200 in high school. The boys certainly had the support of the pep squad again. After we had lost to Littlefield by a score of 19-0, the pep squad fed the boys on chicken sandwiches. Since Littlefield is reported to have a better team than Olton, it seems that in a game or two more, Mr. Wilkins may have to redeem his promise of a feed to a team of winners. Let us football boys ask you, fellow pupils, that you never cheer on our grounds when a member of an opposing team is injured. That is not good sport. We can be good sports even if we never win a game. Friday of this week, Amherst comes here for a game. We want to ask every body to attend the game and have a good time. You people of Sudan can help us win the game by your presence, and your tickets are needed to help us pay expenses of the visiting team.

Next Friday night after the game, the pep squad is giving a box supper. The proceeds of this supper are to be used to equip the pep squad. Merchants down town have contributed merchandise to be sold at auction. We want to see a large crowd out that night to help us out. If you do not intend to buy a box, please attend the auction. You will enjoy it and you may encourage some one else to attend who will buy and help us. Admission at the door is only a nickel for pupils and a dime for all others. Come over and help us.

School is off in attendance this week. Mr. Wilkins informs the reporters that there are only about 450 in school now. About 100 pupils are out picking cotton and harvesting our big grain crop. Tuesday of this week the trucks brought in 249 pupils. Their heaviest load for the year has been 335. Thus they have a loss of 86 from their services.

The chapel program by the seventh grade under Miss Fryer Monday was an enjoyable affair. Next week this feature will be conducted by the sixth grade, under Miss Love. For the next few weeks Mr. Smallwood will have charge of management in chapel, since it is now time for the grammar school to conduct these social features.

Mr. Wilkins was absent from school Monday on business and Mr. Talbott had charge of the afternoon's special features, but he was so successful that the greatest omission was the forgetting on the part of some of the grammar school faculty that it was chapel day and they had to be sent after.

Hoover-Curtis Club Organized

At a meeting of the voters of the Sudan district during the past week a Hoover-Curtis Club was organized with the following officers in charge. G. R. Crim, President, R. E. Thomas, Vice-President; C. H. Ledger, Treasurer and V. C. Nelson, Secretary. The purpose of the club will be to boost for the election of Hoover for President and Curtis for Vice-President of the United States.

George Trammell Dead

George Trammell, 55, died in Sudan on last Wednesday afternoon after a lingering illness. Mr. Trammell was taken to Lubbock, previous to his death, for an operation, and it was found there, that his condition would not permit an operation and he was returned to Sudan where he lingered until the date stated above. He leaves a mother two sisters and four brothers. Interment was made in the Sudan Cemetery Thursday morning services were conducted by Rev. Kercheville.

Big Screen Event

The premier showing of Cecil B. De Mille's "The King of Kings" will take place at the Palace Theatre Lubbock, starting Sunday Matinee, and will run for 6 days. This wonderful filmization of the life of Christ enlisted the energies of the De Mille organization for a year. It included the acting of hundreds of fine players and the construction of tremendous sets of Bible scenes such as has never before been attempted.

J. A. Hutto returned the latter part of last week from Olney where he had been visiting his parents. He was accompanied home by his mother Mrs. C. N. Hutto and sister Miss Reba who will visit here for a few days. Mrs. Hutto will undergo an operation for the removal of her tonsils, at Lubbock, before returning home.

Mrs. S. D. Hay who underwent an operation some two weeks ago in the Lubbock Sanitarium was able to be brought home Wednesday.

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry, Mother! Even constipated, bilious, feverish, or sick, colic babies and children love to take genuine "California Fig Syrup." No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels without griping. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Say "California" to your druggist and avoid counterfeits. Insist upon genuine "California Fig Syrup" which contains directions.

Dole Drawers

English, drawing, woodwork and arithmetic are among the subjects included in the lessons given by Salford Guardians to male drawers of the dole; single men up to thirty and married men up to twenty-five years of age must attend the school for unemployed regularly if they wish to obtain relief.

Maybe the dime novels did ruin some boys. Who knows?

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Noise Cuts Efficiency

Noise is increasing 100 per cent loss of efficiency to the average worker, according to Dr. Hiram Percy Maxim, lieutenant commander in the United States naval reserve, who is working on plans for silencing riveters, subways and building machinery.

Babies are merely little domestic squalls that cause men to walk the floor at night.

CAN NOW DO ANY WORK

Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Denison, Texas—"I think there is no tonic equal to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Senna and Pepsin and the Pills for Constipation. I can certainly praise your medicines for what they have done for me and I wish you success in the future. I can do any kind of work now and when women ask me what has helped me I recommend your medicines. I will answer any letters I receive asking about them."—Mrs. EMMA GREGG, Route 3, Box 53, Denison, Texas.

CHAPTER I

Of course, I don't know how it was done. It was all my fault. Maybe I was a little well, I don't see that there was much fault about it. Everybody seems to be satisfied and, though (as some body says about marriages), it's rather early for congratulations, I think everybody is going to stay satisfied. And I'm mighty sure that Mr. Braxton, for one, wouldn't have been satisfied at all if I hadn't—er—butted in. A girl must butt in sometimes, and this was one of the times.

I'll admit, too, that I acted without due knowledge of the facts. But whose fault was it that I was ignorant of them? It certainly wasn't mine. Father could have told me some of them; and Fred could have told me more; and even Josephine could have told me something that could have helped. They had weeks and weeks in which they could have told me. And none of them said a word. Well, then?

(N. B. They all claim, of course, that they thought I was too young and innocent to be told. Piffle! This isn't the Eighteenth century. It's the Twentieth and women aren't as innocent as they used to be in the days when flector was a pup.)

After all, now that I have argued the thing out, I am beginning to believe that the blame—if blame there was—for what happened really lies at Mr. Paul's door. This hadn't occurred to me before, but the more I think of it the more evident it becomes. Why? It was even Mr. Paul who—but that comes later.

Anyway, I've got to get on with my story.

Great Grandpa Dinsmore built Dinsmore's Folly; the fact was too notorious to leave any chance for the family to deny it. And now, of course, since everything has turned out so well, none of the family wants to deny it.

Of course I have no personal knowledge of the fact that the world ever scoffed at grandpa's house—the modern world, indeed, has always been too polite to scoff where I could hear it—but I am convinced that it did. No self-respecting world could possibly refrain from scoffing at that amazing medley of all styles of all ages, that aggregation of Greek temple, Egyptian colonnade, Moorish entrance, feudal castle, Elizabethan manor house, Swiss chalet, French chateau, not to speak of other units concerning whose miscegenation ancestry no architect can speak without blushing, all jumbled together with a beautiful American disregard of European dicta and plastered into a self-satisfied whole by American mortar overrun by English ivy. And yet, behold, how wisdom is justified of her children! To-day Dinsmore's Folly brings me a fabulous income, while other nearby houses, more modern, equally large, in better repair and apparently infinitely more desirable, go begging.

However, this delightful state of affairs is very recent. Until yesterday, that is to say, until the day I dragged Josephine forty-five minutes from Broadway and dropped her down into Dinsmore's Folly, I had steadily avoided all mention of the place and had done my best to conceal from my friends the dreadful fact that any lineal ancestor of mine had perpetrated such a monstrosity.

What made it worse (so I thought in those early days) was that the place was mine—my very own. Grandpa Dinsmore had wished it onto me in his will and had given me no chance to discover what he had done to me until it was too late to stop him. Moreover, he had added a proviso that I should neither sell nor radically alter the place until I was twenty-one (that is to say, not for two years more), and that I should see that it was always occupied, at least by a caretaker, and that I should live in it for at least four weeks in every year. He also left a note, addressed to me personally, in which he requested that I should keep "Sandy" Perkins on as gardener or caretaker as long as he wanted to stay. "Perkins has not been very pleasant to deal with since his wife ran away," he wrote. "But he has been a faithful servant to me for many years, and I should not like him to be turned out. Moreover, he hopes and believes that some day the woman will come back to him at Dinsmore, and I feel that it would be cruel to destroy this hope by driving him away."

Of course I had been to Dinsmore often to see dear old grandpa, who was nice enough to make me almost forget the awful house in which he lived; and of course I knew Perkins as well as anyone could know the son of a bitch. But until I read grandpa's note I had never known that Perkins' wife had run away. (I suppose everybody considered that I was too young to be told.) In fact, I scarcely remembered that he had a wife at all. I suppose I had seen her, but I could not recall what she looked like. I asked Father about it and he said that he understood that she was much younger than Perkins and that the two had not gotten along together at all. She had disappeared three or four years before and had never been heard of since.

Soon afterward I motored out to look at the place. I thought it would look different—I hoped it would—now that I owned it. Of course I saw Perkins, too, and of course I surveyed him with interest, superinduced by his story and by the fact that he was now my own employee.

He was a spare, bony old codger, swarthy with sun and wrinkled with years, who carried his head thrust forward from his lean shoulders as if perpetually watching for something or some one. Now that I knew about his wife I could, of course, understand and pity, but I felt that I really couldn't blame her for running away. I'd have run away, too. All the sympathy and pity in the world couldn't prevent my feeling creepy as I looked at him. If I had known—But of course I didn't know.

I plunged at once into inquiries about the place. Perkins' answers were not enthusiastic. Grandpa, he said, had let things run down a good deal; and Perkins thought that the executors would find that it would cost a lot of money to set it to rights. I went back home disgusted. I did not know where the money for repairs was to come from. Grandpa Dinsmore had not had much money of his own (Father was the money-maker of the family), and had had nothing but the place to leave; and I certainly had no intention of spending my allowance in repairs on a monstrosity like Dinsmore's Folly I made up my mind to let the year go by without fulfilling the conditions of the will (I was an awful little fool in some ways in those faraway days two years ago); and to let the reversionary legatee—the Society for Homeless Alley Cats or something—claim the place. But just five weeks before the first year was up Dad reminded me of the date and asked me when I was going down.

I stared at him reproachfully. "Pardon me, dad," I said, "but you forgot that I requested you never to mention Dinsmore's Folly to me again."

"Never mention—?" Dad broke off; then forged ahead full speed. "Look here, Edith!" he demanded. "What blamed nonsense are you talking? If you don't go down there in a week—in six days—you'll forfeit the place to the Society for—"

"Precisely, Dad!" I interrupted. "I know it is an inhuman thing to do. But it's me or them; and the homeless cats can stand Dinsmore's Folly better than I can—"

"Wh-a-t?"

"I mean to forfeit the place, dad," I answered hastily. "I can usually manage dad, but I know when to quit fooling; and this was one of the times."

"You mean to—! You mean to—! Are you crazy, Edith? The place will be worth a million dollars when the city builds out to it!"

Once more I tried to be flippant. "What's a million dollars compared to the wrecking of my whole artistic nature?" I demanded.

Dad threw down his napkin and got up. "Confound your artistic nature!" he roared. "If you'd ever learned how hard it is to make a million mills you wouldn't talk so idiotically. You and Josephine get ready to go down to Dinsmore's Folly tomorrow. And I'll go with you and see that you go—and stay, miss, stay, for the full thirty days."

"But, Dad," I cried despairingly, driven to my last defense. "But, Dad, the place isn't habitable. It needs thousands of dollars' worth of repairs."

Dad hesitated. "Who says so?" he demanded.

"Perkins—the caretaker."

"Oh, well! I'll look into it and make what repairs are necessary. But, understand me once for all, Edith, you're going down there, whether the place is in repair or not, and you're going to stay and fulfill every jot and tittle of your grandfather's will. And I don't propose to have any nonsense about it, either."

Dad strode off hotly, leaving me in much the same state of mind as a prisoner to whom the judge has just said "Thirty dollars or thirty days." However, there was no use in talking. When dad laid down the law in that tone I didn't waste time; I just obeyed. Anyway, he was going to pay for the repairs, and I wasn't. That was something.

So we went—Josephine, dad, and I. The house wasn't so bad, after all; and the place was really bearable after we got used to it. It was rather trying at first to walk through a balcony Moorish doorway into a dismal Egyptian hall, which opened into a Louis Quatorze drawing room, but after a week I got so that I could do it without a shudder. And after two weeks Fred turned up; and that made a difference.

Fred was Fred James, the only son of his mother (and she was a widow), who lived half a mile away from Dinsmore. Fred was twenty-one years old, and was a reporter on the New York Star for fifty weeks in the year. For the other two weeks he was mother's boy. Josephine knew "mother," and met him at her house and brought him home with her; and after that he was mother's boy only at meals. The rest of the time he spent with us—except when dad tolled him off and talked politics and finance with him. Dad said once that considering that Fred was a college boy and a newspaper man he was unusually intelligent. Dad was always saying sarcastic things like that.

Fred had helped to pass the time for ten days when the twenty-eighth of August dawned.

Apparently there wasn't anything particularly fateful about the dawn—except that it was hot; and that was scarcely fateful—or, distinctive—for an August day. Still, I'm sure I did feel real thrilly that morning.

Later, when Mr. Paul called to see dad, I remembered how I had felt, and said, "Ab-scat omen" in real Vassar Latin. But it was too late then. The mills of the gods had begun to grind.

Mr. Paul was Father's lawyer; and father put implicit trust in his judgment, so much so that Fred's newspaper—I mean, of course, the newspaper that Fred reported for—had once asserted that Father never planned to rob a widow or an orphan without asking Mr. Paul's advice as to the best way to do it. This was a libel, of course; but it wasn't a patch to some of the things that the papers used to say of Father. (I used to keep a scrapbook of clippings of their remarks; and when Father didn't behave as I wanted him to, I used to get it out and read them aloud to him till he became duly humble.)

If course Father had never robbed anybody. But he was the head of the Consolidated Trust company, and regularly every other year, when the elections came around, he was held up to the intelligent voters as an enemy of mankind. As a matter of fact he was a bully good old scout and a regular pal. Of course I can understand that he might be just a little overpowering to one who didn't know him well.

And as for Mr. Paul—well! Both Josephine and I had always thought that Mr. Paul was a dear. Only—well, of late, he had taken to following me round and staring at me in a mushy way—you know! And as much as I liked him I never fancied him in any other capacity than a sort of an ancient uncle. Not that he was really very old! He just seemed old; and when he insisted on acting young he bored me to a frazzle—and that was something that mighty few of the trouser-wearing half of creation had ever been able to do.

I was sitting on the porch waiting for Fred to come and take me riding when Mr. Paul walked into Father's den, just inside the window at my back; and I kept my seat mostly because it didn't occur to me to move, and a little because I was afraid that to move would call Mr. Paul's attention to me. Dad knew I was there, anyhow, though perhaps he had forgotten it; and he wouldn't have minded, anyway.

"In November, 1920, I wrote you for advice as to the use of Milks Emulsion. I had been bothered with my bowels for a long time. They would not move unless I took something all the time. If I neglected that, I would get bedfast, dizzy and take with fever.

"This is a malaria country, and I have taken a wagon-load of purgatives, salts, etc. This finally gave me stomach trouble in very bad form, and I commenced to lose weight, and had no appetite. My tongue became so coated that it cracked open.

"Since writing you, I have taken your Emulsion regularly and have found it a great remedy. It sure does all you claim for it and more, too. It is a fine medicine, and I will gladly recommend it to anyone.

"We are now handling it in our store and I am selling it right along and recommend it to all of my customers. I thank you for the instructions you gave and the results that I received from same."

Joys of Exploration Found in Adventure

One is often asked what is the attraction and what are the joys of polar exploration. The answer is—Adventure—going where man has never gone before. Achievement—discovering something of value to mankind, such as the whaling-ship of South Georgia; or rum-fishing your way through ice or any difficulties under steam or sail. The wonderful pure beauty of these regions . . . and last, but not least—comradeship—the comradeship of men. Men who fight alongside you, toil with you, laugh with you, and chaff you. . . . Pals who stand by each other through thick and thin; who share trials, hardships, joys, dangers and food, and are determined, at all hazards, to "see it through" together. For such men you feel a great affection, and the results are teamwork and loyalty of the finest, highest quality, with joy of memory that never fades away.—From "Under Sail in the Frozen North," by Commander F. A. Worsley.

Commissioners Court Vote $1500 For Demonstration Agent

The Commissioners' Court of Lamb county, in regular session last Monday, voted unanimously the sum $1,500 toward paying the salary of a Home Demonstration agent for this county, the money to be available at any time the State will furnish an agent for the county. The sum was voted in consideration of $1,200 which is to be furnished by the state and federal government, also applying on the salary.

There were about 50 women present from all sections of the county, to press the claim for a county demonstration agent, and presenting petitions of nearly 500 names favoring the action of the court.

Mrs. G. D. Daughtrey, of Olton, an ex-home demonstration agent, was spokesman for the delegation in presenting the petitions and explaining the nature of the work. Representing the different sections of the county, talks were made the following women: Mrs. Applewhite, Circle community; Mrs. Clements, Sudan; Mrs. Howard, Earth; Mrs. Payden, Center; Mrs. Owens, Olton; Mrs. Smith, Fielton; Mrs. Whitefield, Amherst. Jess Mitchell, of Littlefield, spoke in behalf of Littlefield, urging the necessity of an appropriation at this time, since there are nine counties already on the waiting list ahead of Lamb county. D. H. Daughtrey, of Olton, explained the action of the Smith Lever bill, under which the Department of Extension operates in furnishing county home demonstration agents. Following the presentation of the petitions explanations the Court, after a brief discussion of the matter, on motion by Commissioner Daniels, second precinct, and duly seconded by Commissioner Strawn, third precinct, voted unanimously in favor of the measure and setting aside the required sum necessary for employing the agent. Just when an agent will be available for this county is not certain, but probably sometime in the early coming spring.

The work of the home demonstration agent is many fold in its activities. The women and girls of the county are organized into sectional clubs of different kinds. Food production and preservation is a major study, and, in counties where such agents are located, thousands of dollars of fruit, vegetables and meats are saved annually. The proper planting and maintaining of gardens is another valuable phase of the work. Also, there comes in instructions regarding the handling of poultry and of dairy products, making of the family clothing, home improvement, both inside and out, along with various other calls and individual instructions of incalculable value to the feminine citizens of the county.

While no definite action was taken by the Court, yet it is generally understood that the home demonstration agent of this county, when available, will maintain her office at Amherst in conjunction with that of the county farm agent.—Lamb County Leader.

The Autumn

The springtime of the year has been the subject of exaltation by poets and lovers, but the season for practical people is autumn. It may take some argument to back that up, but we are prepared.

The spring, it must be admitted, is a beautiful season. It is the awakening time for nature. For man, who has been cooped up all winter with nothing but drab exteriors to gaze at, it is a lovely sight to see the green shoots on trees and full buds on flowers stems and shrubs. His blood begins to course more freely; he can inhale the fresh air without sneezing, and with the financial burden of winter removed he becomes a bit carefree-even careless. There is a promise of the harvest when spring burst forth-but it is only a promise.

Summer brings fruitful growth together with the discomforts of hot weather. That is, there is fruitful growth if there is not too much rain or too much drought. It is a season that few love, but one we all endure because we remember the promise.

But the autumn! It brings the fulfillment of the promise. Not always, though do we have good crops like we expect this year. But the fall of the year is the realization of the endeavors of spring and summer. We can see actual results in corn, in fruit, in vegetables. We can handle these objects--we can weigh them, and feel them--and best of all we can sell them. We cannot sell much on the promise of spring--except in stock market futures. We cannot sell a great deal in fruitful summer. But in the autumn we have the concrete realizations of hard work and anxious days. It is a great season. It is the time of year for which the Pilgrim Fathers gave their concerted thanks. It even inspired those spiritual men and women--those mystics--with its glorious fruition of bodily necessities. Yes, autumn is for the practical; but it is also for the poet who shuns the erotic for fall is the most sensuous of the four.

October and November bring riots of colors, and sounds, and odors. The hard maple in the spring catches the sunsets of the summer and in the fall flaunts them as the brush artist would daub his primary colors on the canvas. The oak, before it goes in mourning, turns to russet and brown for the background of the bright maple and sumas. The geese honk southward, and the leaves finally flutter down with sounds that defy description. And they burn with an incense that Indian temples would envy.
—Boonville Advertiser.

Adults Contract Children's Diseases

Adults can, and do, contract many children's diseases. And, usually, they suffer from them much more than children do. For instance, many adults contract worms, an ailment usually associated with children. Sometimes they suffer intensely and take expensive medical treatments, without realizing that worms are the cause of their troubles. Yet, the symptoms are the same as in children, loss of appetite and weight, grinding the teeth and restless sleep, itching of the nose and anus, and abdominal pains. And, the same medicine that surely and harmlessly expels round and pin worms from children will do the same for adults. —Worms Cream Vermifuge, which you can get at

And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless, Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

BUCKWHEAT GOOD FATTENING FEED

Buckwheat is a pretty good fattening feed for turkeys. Some prefer barley and corn, however. Either barley or oats, if mixed with buttermilk and the hulls removed, would be a preferable mixture. The buckwheat has the objectionable quality of having a woody, fibrous hull which is not good feed. A mixture of all three or four would do pretty well.

Some records sent in give the costs of feeding one part ground oats with hulls removed and two parts buttermilk as being 6 1/2 cents per pound, while the cost of feeding on equal parts ground barley, oats, and corn, with the oat and barley hulls removed and with the same relative amount of buttermilk, averaged about the same. A mixture of 200 parts corn meal, 100 parts ground oats, hulls removed, 50 parts red dog flour, 3 parts tallow, 700 parts buttermilk, averaged a cost of about 5 cents per pound.

Using equal parts ground oats and barley, hulls removed, one part beef scraps and eight parts buttermilk, the cost was shown to be 4 1/2 cents per pound. Of course, these costs were not figured lately, but the comparisons remain. The Cornell fattening ration of 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds buckwheat middlings, 100 pounds out flour, 30 pounds beef scraps, and one part charcoal, is considered, too, a very fattening ration.

Sodium Fluoride Best for Destroying Vermin

Sodium fluoride is one of the best substances to use for getting rid of chicken lice. It can be purchased at almost any drug store. It can be applied by the "pinch" method, or by mixing with four parts of talc or fine dust and using a dusting can or by making a dip. The pinch method is most commonly used. In this method the hen is held in such a way that the feathers loosen up and one pinch is applied to the head, one on the neck, two on the back, one on the breast, one below the vent, one on the tail, one on each thigh and one on the underside of each wing. This application should be repeated in about eight days so as to kill the lice that were in the egg form during the first application.

Blue ointment is usually mixed with equal portions of grease. Three pea-sized portions are rubbed into the feathers—one around the vent and the other two under each wing.

If head lice are present it is usually better to apply some lard with 10 to 20 per cent kerosene thoroughly mixed with it or with 5 per cent of carbolic acid.

Producing Capons for Consumption at Home

The matter of producing capons for home consumption has not had proper emphasis. Everyone is aware of the superiority of meat from unsexed larger animals and as a rule such male animals are never used unless operated upon. But the fact that capon meat is as superior to rooster meat as steer beef is to bull beef is not generally realized. The farmer and poultryman should not be content with a low grade food stuff when it is very easily possible to have the best. The time will come, no doubt, when we will insist on quality in food as much as we do now for steer beef.

Poultry Hints

Man has to hustle, but a hen makes money "laying around."

Sick birds should be segregated and proper remedies applied. Probably vaccination is as good a remedy and preventative as can be used.

The value of clean feed in preventing poultry disease is being realized more and more by poultrymen. All feed should be given to chicks in clean troughs or hoppers.

It is a good plan, when starting into the turkey raising business, or if in it now, to plan the production program over a period of more than one year. If this is done yards can be planned so that they may be rotated and so that the poult is raised on fresh ground.

Poor layers have the opposite characteristics of those given to be used in the selection of breeders. They have thick, rigid pelvic bones; but two or three finger widths spans between these and the rear of the keel bone.

If a strict separation of turkeys and chickens is to be secured, as is vitally necessary for success with the former, the producer is obliged to raise his poult in confinement. In addition to the value of this method in preventing disease it also has its merits in that the poult can be given closer supervision.

Hens don't stop laying to molt. They molt when they stop laying. Of course, it's natural for them to let up on egg production, so they can grow their new winter coats.

The DAIRY

CORRECT FEEDING NOW PAYS DOUBLE

"Start now to prepare for next winter's milk checks."

A. J. Cramer, dairy husbandman at the University of Wisconsin, is reminding the members of the state's 107 cow testing associations, that "the feed and care given the dairy herd during the late summer when pastures are short will have a big influence on the production of the cows several months later." This, he feels, "is especially true of the fall freshening cows."

The dry weather during middle summer has resulted in short pastures. As a result many dairy cows are needing additional feed in order to keep up their milk flow and body weight. A drop in milk flow often reduces the income from the herd to such an extent that there is no profit left for the dairyman.

The specialist advises feeding a grain mixture to all high producing cows even on the best of pasture and adds that after pasture gets short all cows should receive grain or silage in addition to the pasture if profitable returns are to be expected. He calls attention to the experience of many of the 4,000 farmers who are keeping close watch of their feeding and profits through cow testing association work.

The cow that is dry and will freshen in the fall is in position to receive the worst set-back from dry pastures, Cramer believes. It is common knowledge to dairymen that if a cow is thin when she freshens her production will suffer during the entire lactation period following. It is just as true but not as generally known that the thin cow will have a lower test than if she were in good flesh while milking. The reduced yield and lower test resulting from a thin condition make it doubly important to keep her in good flesh while dry.

A grain mixture recommended for the milking herd consists of 200 pounds ground barley, corn or hominy, 100 pounds wheat bran, and 100 pounds of linseed meal, cottonseed meal or gluten feed. One pound of this should be fed for each four or five pounds of milk produced. For the dry cow the testing official advises equal parts by weight of ground oats, ground barley, or corn, wheat bran and a high protein feed. From three to eight pounds daily should be fed, depending on condition of the cow.

Lists Seven Problems Imminent in Dairying

Seven important economic problems face the dairy industry today and it is the job of the scientist and teacher to lead in their solution. K. L. Hatch, assistant director of agricultural extension at the University of Wisconsin, told the American Dairy Science association, at its recent meeting in Madison. His list of subjects, toward which more research should be directed, consists of economy of production, herd testing, recognition of quality, establishment of a new set of standards for dairy products, packaging of cheese, and the use of electricity.

"Each of these problems is imminent," he declared, "and should challenge both branches of dairying—production and manufacturing. They are economic problems and can only be solved with facts which are not now obtainable."

In research experiments, more emphasis should be centered on such factors as labor costs, dry cow expenses, depreciated herd cost, bull costs, and capital charges, such as interest, taxes, insurance, and depreciation.

In dairy manufacturing, uneconomical practices still prevail, Hatch said. Small, unsanitary, and wholly inefficient plants are the rule, and little effort is made to give to the consumer the type of product which appeals to his taste.

Dairy Facts

Most cream separators will do a much better job of skimming the milk when it is warm.

The herd bull should be tied up or penned away from the herd until, at least, November 1, as it is very important to avoid having cows freshen during the warm months.

The usual farm-grown ration does not contain enough protein for a good, milk-producing ration. For instance, a ration made up of mixed hay, corn silage, cornmeal, oats and bran is lacking in protein, but contains an excess of carbohydrates and fat.

When the milking is done by machine, the rubber tubes and teat cups, after washing, should be placed in a disinfectant solution, allowed to soak until the next milking, and then rinsed out again with clean water before use.

By using pure-bred bulls it is possible to build a herd of scrub cattle into a high quality herd. This has been demonstrated at the South Dakota State college experiment station through approximately 15 years' investigation.

Record Gain in Butter Profits

Dairymen Who Use "Dandelion Butter Color" Say It's the Best Investment of All.

The biggest creameries in the country, who are most careful taster to the whims of the public, are earning record profits by keeping their butter that appetizing June color every one likes. Ninety per cent of them are doing it with "Dandelion Butter Color." It's the most economical and satisfactory butter color made. Half a teaspoonful colors a gallon of cream! It doesn't color the buttermilk. It's purely vegetable and tasteless. Approved by all State and National Food Laws. Large bottles, only 35¢ at all drug and grocery stores or write Wells and Richardson Co., Inc., Burlington, Vt., for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

What Is It?

The changing trend of the times and customs is reflected in the children and a casual question of the younger set brings it to notice. For instance, Marjorie, looking up from a book she was reading, asked, "Mother, what is a hatpin?"

Notice of Election

Whereas, The City Council of the City of Sudan, Texas, deems it advisable to issue bonds of the said city for the purposes hereinafter mentioned:

Therefore, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF SUDAN, Texas, that an election be held on the 14th day of November, 1928, at which election the following proposition shall be submitted:

"Shall the City Council of the City of Sudan, Texas, be authorized to issue the bonds of the City of Sudan in the sum of Forty-seven Thousand ($47,000) Dollars, for the purpose of constructing a water-works system for said city. Said bonds to mature serially at such times as may be fixed by the City Council, not to exceed forty years from their date, and to bear interest at the rate of 5 1-2 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and to levy a tax sufficient to redeem them at maturity, as authorized by Chapters 1 to 7, Title 22, Revised Statutes of 1925, and the Constitution and Laws of the State of Texas.

The said election shall be held at the City Hall, in the City of Sudan, Texas, and the following named persons are hereby appointed managers of said election, to-wit:

- I. G. MORROW, Presiding Judge.
- J. O. COVINGTON, Assistant Judge.
- J. M. SHUTTLESWORTH, Clerk.
- JNO. A. DRYDEN, Clerk.

The said election shall be held under the provisions of Chapters 1 to 7, Title 22, Revised Statutes of 1925, and the Constitution and Laws of the State of Texas, and only qualified voters who are property taxpayers of said city shall be allowed to vote.

All voters who favor the proposition to issue bonds for the construction of a water-works system for said city shall have written or printed upon their ballots the words:

"For the Issuance of Water-Works System Bonds."

All opposed shall have written or printed upon their ballots the words:

"Against the Issuance of Water-works System Bonds"

The manner of holding said election shall be governed by the Laws of the State of Texas regulating General Elections.

A copy of this order, signed by the Mayor of the City of Sudan, Texas, and attested by the City Secretary of said city, shall serve as a proper notice of said election.

The Mayor is authorized and directed to cause said Notice of Election to be posted at the City Hall and at one public place in each of the voting places in the City of Sudan, Texas, for at least thirty days prior to the date of said election.

The Mayor is further authorized and directed to have said

Notices of Election published in some newspaper of general circulation published in L... County, and having a general circulation in said city, and which notice shall be published once each week for four consecutive weeks, the date of the first publication being not less than thirty full days prior to the date of the election.

J. C. BARRON, Mayor.

Attest: W. W. CARPENTER, 11-4t Sudan, Texas. City Sec'y.

Unintentional Suicide

Many people are slowly poisoning themselves just as surely as if they drank iodine every morning for breakfast. They are daily absorbing the toxins, or poisons, created by accumulated waste matter in their constipated digestive systems. Sooner or later disease will conquer their weakened bodies.

If you have dizzy spells, headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, insomnia, no appetite, bilious attacks or pains in the back and limbs, you are probably suffering from self poisoning caused by constipation. The sweet and pleasant relief for this condition is Herbin, the vegetable cathartic which acts in the natural way. Get a bottle today from
