HOW SUDAN HAS GROWN IN TWELVE YEARS

TERRACING SCHOOL HELD ON C. E. BLEY FARM

A terracing demonstration and school was held on the C. E. Bley farm 6 miles west of Olton last week by County Agent D. A. Adam, and was well attended by adult farmers throughout that section, and also by the agricultural class of the Spring Lake high school. The object of these demonstrations and schools is to acquaint the farmers with the use of the farm level and the construction of terraces for moisture and soil conservation. Other demonstrations have been held on the following farms: Jim Lawson, V. H. Bewley, A. Clark and S. D. Pennington. One would be surprised to know the amount of fall the farms in this county have, which is from one to six feet per hundred feet, and according to experiments that have been conducted, a 1 per cent grade is sufficient to run off many tons of land per acre, with the type of rains that we get here. A tour is to be conducted by the county agent in the near future to the Spur Experiment Station where experiments have been conducted, and see the actual results of waterfall, and soil losses where land is not terraced. Any one interested should get his name to the county agent at once so one can be notified as to when this tour will be taken. It is expected that two thousand acres will be terraced this year under the direction of County Agent D. A. Adam.

POULTRY PARASITE AND DISEASE CONTROL DEMONSTRATION

At the last monthly meeting of the Home Demonstration club of Olton, which met with Mrs. Geo. Bohner, a poultry parasite and disease control demonstration was given by the county agent. Carbollinum as a spray and paint for mite control was recommended, and demonstration given. This is more effective when painted instead of a spray, and gives control for about one year, where ordinary sanitation principles are employed. Sodium Fluoride was demonstrated as a louse control. In the winter and colder months of the year it is or must be used as a dust, and the pinch method employed in administering it for louse control. However, the dipping method is probably more effective, but can only be used in the summer months. For worm control of chickens, the tobacco dust method was used for flock treatment, and the tetrachlorethylene capsules used for individual treatment. For roup, proper housing, proper feeding, and worm control is absolutely necessary to get best results. Vaccination is a preventive and a fair cure when properly given by the subcutaneous injection.

For baby chicks, drinking water should be provided that contains disinfectants such as potassium permanganate, B. K., or other similar disinfectants, and when about 6 weeks old, should be wormed. Proper feeding and sanitation should never be neglected in any form of poultry work, for this will cut down parasite and disease infestation to the minimum. Many such demonstrations are to be held in future by the county agent.

BENEFIT CONCERT

On Monday evening, Feb. 25th, at 8:00 o'clock, in the high school auditorium, the Woman's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will present Mrs. Otis Truelove, Soprano, and Rev. C. R. Hooton, Tenor, in a benefit concert. Mrs. Truelove was a leading soloist of Chicago for ten years and today is one of Texas' outstanding soprano soloists. She is now director of the Polk Street Methodist choir at Amarillo. Mrs. Truelove and Mrs. Hooton will give a varied and interesting program of secular and sacred songs and piano numbers. Admission 35c and 15c.

COUNTY AGENTS REPORT

The farmers in Lamb county are surely making use of the county agent in working out their problems, as evidenced by his monthly reports of January, in which it is found that he spent 182 hours in the field, 54 1/2 hours in his office, had 42 office calls, 12 telephone calls, has written 38 letters and visited 85 farm homes, and held 17 demonstrations, with an attendance of 190, and drove his car 1250 miles.

LADIES OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST HOLD BIBLE STUDY

Our class met with Mrs. J. C. Cooper Tuesday, with seven present. Owing to so much sickness and the bad weather, we do not feel discouraged in our class, as few numbers present. However, we insist that more try to be at our next study. The class will meet with Mrs. J. A. Hutto next Tuesday, Feb. 26. Reporter.

Santa Fe Grants Reduced Rates

Lubbock, Texas, Feb. 18.—The Lubbock Chamber of Commerce has been advised by the Railroad Commission of Texas that rates on less than carload shipments of grain and hay seeds produced in the Plains-Panhandle section, cancelled as of November 8th, 1928, will be re-established effective February 15th, 1929. This action will mean the saving in freight charges, thousands of dollars monthly to farmers and seed dealers of the Plains-Panhandle section, and comes as a result of a petition filed Feb. 4, by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

The old rate that was cancelled provided for a carrying charge of from 50c to 55c per hundred pounds on see from Plains-Panhandle points to other points in Texas, while the cancellation of the rate boosted the carrying charge to a range of from 81c to $1.40. The Plains section ships a large percentage of all cane sorghum, grain sorghum and Sudan seed used over the entire nation. Particularly do other sections of Texas look to the Plains for their planting seed. While these other sections grow these crops, the seed from their crops do not have the stamina, vitality and fertility of the seeds grown in this section.

Farmers all over Texas and other states order their planting seed direct from the local dealers over the Plains for the reason that they want to be sure they are getting Plains planting seed and not seed grown elsewhere. This necessitates small, less than carload shipments of the grain.

The increased rates would have made a big cut into the profits of farmers growing grain for seed purposes.

TERRACING DEMONSTRATION

All-Day Terracing School to Be Held on Albert Parks' Farm South of Amherst March 19.

Information has been received from Dad Short of the Federal Land Bank, and Mr. M. R. Bentley that they will be here on March 19 to conduct an all-day terracing school. These have been held all over the state of Texas, and many people have read about them, and we are now honored by being able to have one in our own county, states County Agent D. A. Adam. A large attendance is expected, and entertainment as well as instruction will be provided. Dinner will be served on the ground. Come and make it a success.

PEP SQUAD TO SELL TICKETS

Special to Sudan News: At a recent meeting, the Pep Squad of the Sudan high school voted to sponsor the series of entertainments to be put on in the near future by the Sudan Municipal Band. It is their intention to sell enough season tickets to fill the local auditorium to capacity on these three occasions.

The young ladies have several good reasons for doing this work. One is that it will help the band in its campaign to purchase uniforms and be generally in tip-top shape for the big trip to the Chamber of Commerce convention at El Paso in May. Another potent reason is that the girl selling the most dollars worth of tickets will be given the honor of being the sponsor of the Sudan Band. This lucky young lady will get to accompany the band on all of its tours, including the big one just referred to. In addition to this, each girl who sells ten or more season tickets is presented with a complimentary one, and the Pep Squad as a group receives a royalty on all the box office receipts.

A season ticket will permit the holder to attend the three premier attractions presented by the Lamb County Consolidated Band, which are as follows: Band concert, March 8, Dixie Revue, arch 29, and a big-time play on April 26. Prices for season tickets are $1.50 for adults and $1.00 for students and children.

Mrs. Rene and her son, Joe, spent the first of the week in Idalou and Lubbock visiting relatives.

E. C. Barber Now Editor of The News

Arrangements were made with Mr. E. C. Barber, of Clovis, N. M., to assume the editorship of The Sudan News, and he is now in charge of the work.

Mr. Barber is an experienced newspaper man, an able writer and a good business man. We feel fortunate in being able to place The Sudan News in his hands and want to say to our friends and patrons that we stand back of him as editor of The News.

H. H. Weimhold & Son, Publishers, The Sudan News.
By H. H. WEIMHOLD.

At the threshold of a new year of growth and progress for Sudan, it might be well to pause and take a brief review of past accomplishments. Having its foundation as a town in 1918, when James Station, as the little settlement was then known, sought to secure mail facilities from Uncle Sam, the name was changed to Sudan, and a real city was in the making.

Blessed with an almost unlimited territory of some of the most fertile soil of the West, with a climate unsurpassed, the little city appealed to people of substance and foresight, and soon was in the process of rapid growth, till, in the short span of 11 years, the population of the city now numbers in the neighborhood of 1500—a population of live wires, men and women possessed of those go-ahead qualities that have made of the new West the great land of opportunity that it is today.

The News man started out the other day on a scouting expedition, seeking to get a comprehensive view of the business activities of Sudan. Following is the result of his observations, condensed. Much more could well be said of each and every one of the enterprises mentioned, did not the scope of this article forbid.

In our scouting, the first enterprise to catch our attention was: Hi-Way Motor Co., H. C. Holt, Auto Repairing and Whippet Agency. This concern is housed in a building 50x80 feet, built and owned by County Commissioner C. A. Daniel. The building was erected in 1928 and is modern throughout.

Hilliard Filling Station, owned and operated by John Hilliard, caters to the needs of motorists. This building was erected in 1928.

Golden Rule Filling Station, owned and operated by Hugh McMonogale, and one of the first businesses established in Sudan. Besides dealing in gas, oils and auto supplies, Mr. McMonogale handles confections and soft drinks.

Loyd's Feed Store, owned and operated by A. K. Boyd. This firm handles a full line of feed, and carries the well-known and favorably known Purina Poultry, Cow and Pig Feed, Stewart Furniture and Hardware Store. Established and owned by Stewart. This firm carries a well-selected line of furniture, hardware and racket goods, and is not afraid of mail order competition.

Everybody's Cash Store, owned and operated by Sam Isenberg and Harry Wilson, two of the most progressive business men on the South Plains. This firm carries a complete, up-to-the-minute stock of dry goods, shoes, ready-to-wear and notions, and by liberal advertising keep the people informed of the latest in their lines.

The "M" System Store, established December 12, 1927, by L. C. Grissom and operated until recently when Mr. Grissom sold to Mr. C. H. Nichols. The "M" is one of the most beautiful stores in Sudan and gives us the advantage of the buying power of one of the largest chain stores in business today.

The First National Bank. This institution is the financial backbone of Sudan and north Lamb county, and well deserves the confidence reposed in it by the people. Its officers are: V. C. Nelson, president; P. E. Boesen, vice-president; J. C. Barron, cashier; W. H. Lyle, assistant cashier; Walter Grissom, bookkeeper. The bank has a capital of $25,000, with $200,000 deposits. Established in 1924, it carries on its books the astonishing total of as many as 600 customers. Nowhere in banking circles can be found two more sterling good fellows and thorough and accommodating business men than Messrs. Barron and Lyle, and they and the institution hold the friendship and confidence of the entire community.

The Radio Shop, owned by J. C. Barron and E. E. Miller. The Radio Shop gives radio fans the advantage of a complete line of radios, radio supplies, and the services of an expert. Mr. Miller, in charge, is an expert radio erector and repairer. This firm also handles Victrolas.

Nelson's Land Office. One of the first established in Sudan and one that deserves much credit for the progress that Sudan has made in the past five years. V. C. Nelson, besides selling out a number of large tracts of land, owns and deals in personal land. His latest list is 10 tracts of the Martin land, which adjoins Sudan on the south and east.

The Owl Cafe, operated for the purpose of relieving the hunger of the multitude, and accomplishes its purpose admirably.

Sudan Mercantile Company. We hardly are able to do justice to this institution and its owners, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Slate, as more accommodating, courteous and square dealing people are hard to find. Besides being owners of the above popular store, Mr. Slate holds the important position of postmaster, and we might add here that Sudan has one of the most courteous and accommodating postmasters in the United States.

Hokus Pokus, owned and operated by Mr. Morrison, carries a complete line of groceries, fresh and salt meats. This store also has the advantage of the buying power of the large chain of stores.

The Garden Theatre, owned and operated by Mr. J. W. Chester. The management of this amusement palace is courteous and obliging, progressive, and caters well to the pleasure of the community.

Sudan Drug Store, established by a company composed of J. C. Barron, V. C. Nelson and F. Z. Payne, later selling to the present owner, Mr. F. M. Farris. The Sudan Drug Store fixtures are up to date, all modern, and the stock is complete and fresh.

F. Z. Payne, real estate and insurance. Mr. Payne is one of the old-timers in Sudan, having come to this point with the establishment of the Higginbotham-Bartlett Lumber Company, and was its manager for several years.

Sudan Produce Co. Owned and operated by L. D. Poor. Mr. Poor has been in the produce business in Sudan for the past two years and is giving the people of this country good service in this line.

Sudan has the following corps of city officials: J. C. Barron, mayor; J. A. Hutto, J. R. Dean, commissioner; Capt. Cooper, marshal; W. W. Carpenter, secretary. These officials are all high class business men and the city's interests are perfectly safe in their hands.

The city school board is composed of Clyde W. Robertson, chairman; W. W. Carpenter, secretary; J. A. Hutto, T. A. Nelson, L. T. Hunt, J. C. Cooper and A. C. Baecus. There also are wide-awake guardians of the educational interests of our youth, and are constantly on the job to see that the children of the city get all the benefits possible from the school funds, and guarding the health of the pupils.

Sudan Auto Supply Co., owned by John Hilliard. Mr. Hilliard landed in Sudan about three years ago and has made good in the operation of this enterprise, giving a class of service that meets with public approval.

Hutto Chevrolet Co. This establishment is numbered among Sudan's most important businesses. Besides the sale of Chevrolet cars, it maintains a repair department with expert mechanics and up-to-date equipment. Mr. Hutto himself is considered a live wire and is always alert to every proposition that is meant to better Sudan. J. M. White, his partner, is a fine business man and a most likeable fellow.

Cooper's Cash Grocery, established about a year ago. Mr. Cooper has been a resident of Sudan for a number of years, in fact was one of the boys who took a great interest in setting a newspaper for Sudan, at the time The News was established. Mr. Cooper was manager of what is now the Continental Oil Station. Later, having sold his interest in the station to J. Slaughter, he engaged in his present business. Mr. Cooper is a booster and a good citizen.

G. C. Holden is one of Sudan's first business men and operates a Dry Goods and Grocery store. He is owner of two store buildings on Main Street, and also a fine home.

Sudan Tailor Shop. Owned by J. K. Kerr, who migrated to Sudan 4 years ago and installed the best tailor shop on the South Plains. He sold out and left Sudan last summer. This institution changed hands several times during Kerr's absence, and after Mr. Kerr traveled over a large scope of country, and after trying out several localities, he decided to return to Sudan. He immediately repurchased the tailor shop and he and Mrs. Kerr say that Sudan is the only place for them and that they never expect to do such a thing again. Sudan for them.

Good-Eats Cafe, owned by G. O. Pollard, and operated for the benefit of those who become hungry. This is one of Sudan's good cafes and lives up to its name.

Woods' General Merchandise Store is housed in a fine brick building 25x140 feet, and contains two stories. This institution carries a full line of general merchandise.

The Sudan Cafe is housed in the Ramby building, with a plate glass front of 40 feet. It is an up-to-date institution.

Dr. W. H. Ford is one of Sudan's popular physicians, and enjoys a fine practice and the confidence of the people.

Ramby Drug Store. H. G. Ramby, wife and son landed in Sudan in the year 1924 and established the Ramby Drug Store, and for a long time Mr. Ramby was called upon to cure many ills. Ramby is considered by many folks as a good doctor. During the residence of the Rambys in Sudan they have built up an enviable business and hold the esteem of the entire citizenship of Sudan and territory.

Dr. G. A. Foote wife and daughter arrived in Sudan about three years ago. The Doctor enjoys a good practice and he and his family are the kind of citizens every town desires and needs.

A. M. Holt and Sons. Mr. Holt has been a resident of Sudan for several years, and last year he and his sons established a grocery business and cream station about a year ago. They have built up a nice business. This institution is located in

Meeting of Sudan Luncheon Club

The Sudan Luncheon Club held its regular monthly meeting and luncheon Friday night in the high school building. Twenty-seven members were present, and a splendid lunch was served by the ladies of the Parent-Teachers Association.

A number of subjects were broached for discussion, chief among them being that of health as pertaining to the school personnel.

Prof. W. I. Wilkins stated the attitude of the faculty, and stressed the point that, in order to guard the health of the pupils, and incidentally that of the entire community, the patrons, parents and guardians should heartily co-operate with the school authorities. He again called attention to the fact that whenever a communicable disease is known to exist in any family, the members of that family are rigidly excluded from the school until such time as danger of contagion has passed. He urged that the patrons of the school view the matter in a broad-minded way, as pertaining to the good of the entire community—that if proper precautions are taken, danger of an outbreak or spread of any epidemic will be greatly minimized if not absolutely prevented.

Rev. C. R. Hooton led in a number of happy songs, which were rendered with enthusiasm, and which raised the spirits of the gathering appreciably.

A number of matters were lightly touched upon, but the trend of the meeting was to the subject of health as affecting primarily the school.

The next meeting of the club will be on Friday night, March 1, when officers will be elected and the club one of the new buildings recently completed by the H. B. Company.

Patterson's Shoe Shop, owned by Vest Patterson, was established 3 years ago, and Sudan boasts one of the best shoe and harness repair shops in this territory.

Sudan Bakery, established by Mr. Rob three years ago, has been doing the baking for Sudan and surrounding territory during this time.

Sudan Hotel. This institution is operated in a plain, small-town fashion, and receives a large patronage. State Telephone Co. is one of Sudan's needed institutions, and with Mrs. Jackson as chief operator gives the kind of service folks like to pay for.

Higginbotham-Bartlett Co. This was one of the first firms to locate in Sudan and up to and including the present writing has never lost faith in this community. This company just recently built five new brick buildings which includes its new up-to-date yard and office building, located on Main Street and into which they have just moved. Hardware and implements have been added and you may find just what you are looking for in their lines. Joe Foster, long-time resident and lumber man of Sudan, is its manager.

Foxworth-Galbraith Lumber Co. is owned by a large company whose headquarters are at Amarillo, and maintains a complete stock of lumber at this place. This company succeeded the old Panhandle and Whaley Lumber yards last year. H. H. Bush is manager and is rendering real service in the lumber line.

Dean Gin. The first gin to locate in Sudan and one of the largest on the South Plains, is under the management of F. M. Whiteside and E. Lam, who are pleasant, courteous gentlemen.

Terry Gin. Second to establish in Sudan and has been under the management of Ves. Terry, one of the owners, since it was established. Ves, as he is familiarly known by his many friends, has rendered splendid service to the cotton growers of this section and is enjoying the rewards of his efforts.

Palace Barber Shop located in the Ramby building is a four chair shop and the operatives are among the best to be found.

Hunt's Barber Shop, owned by L. T. Hunt is one of the leading shops in Sudan and well equipped for service.

Public Weigher. S. C. Powell has held the place of Public Weigher for the past four years and is rendering service second to none in this line.

Windsor Hotel. Owned and operated by Mrs. Cora King who on account of her growing business has had to add to her building repeatedly to be able to accommodate the trade.

Dining Room. Sudan is fortunate in that few towns can tell of having an individual dining room where, meals are served family style and bountifully.

Filling Station and Tourist Park. Owned and operated by B. B. Brothers who recently moved here from near Amherst and has built several neat cottages to be used by tourists, and is rendering a real service in this line.

Continental Oil Station among the first to establish in Sudan, is managed by F. Z. Payne who recently purchased the agency of J. M. Slaughter. Mr. Payne is one of the

DAIRY SHORT COURSE AT LITTLEFIELD MARCH 1

It has been announced by the county agent that a dairy short course will be held in Littlefield under the direction of the Extension Service of the A. & M. College, on Friday, March 1. Specialists in dairying will be on hand to give out information that will be of value to the dairymen of Lamb county.

The following subjects will be discussed by various authorities: Feeding, Housing, Breeding, Bull Circles, and value of different breeds to the plains country. Every man in Lamb county who is interested in dairying is especially invited to attend and help make this meeting a success.

The meeting will probably be held in the theatre building.

All farmers interested in the importation of purebred cows and bulls of the Guernsey and Jersey breeds are especially invited by the county agent, so that he might take up with you the matter of importing immediately car lot shipments of high grade and purebred cattle for farm use.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Thompson of Muleshoe were in Sudan Sunday visiting with friends.

Editor Baldwin of the Levelland Herald was a pleasant caller at The News office this week.

O. P. Collins of Littlefield spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. Elmer Loyd, and family.

fairly launched upon a career of usefulness. A full attendance is urged. Come prepared to enter actively into the affairs of the club, and let's push Sudan to the front.

first residents of Sudan and will be found ready to render service to those needing Continental products.

Sudan Elevator Co., owned by local people and operated by J. M. Beasley Grain Co. of Amarillo is one of Sudan's main businesses in that it is up to date in the handling of all kinds of threshed grains and is always ready to pay best market prices. E. C. Shuman is manager.

Freely Coal Yard, owned by Freely & Briscoe. This firm handles coal wholesale and retail. Mr. Freely also maintains a plumbing shop and is a first class plumber who really has a heart when it comes to making charges, and honest when it comes to doing a piece of work.

Santa Fe R. E. W. G. Lender-son, agent. It might be said of Mr. Lender-son that here is one station agent that excels them all. Mr. Lender-son has been agent here ever since Sudan came into importance.

Gulf Refining Co. R. B. Haney, Agent. The Magnolia was probably the first oil company to venture into this territory, and from its establishment has supplied the people of this territory with the Magnolia products, and the service rendered by its agent, Mr. Haney, is gaining in popularity.

Farmers Gin, owned by a local company and operated and managed by J. R. Dean, is the third gin to be established in Sudan, and under the direction of Mr. Dean has secured its share of the ginning during past seasons.

Magnolia Oil Company, John Hilliard, Agent. This company, through its agent, serves the people well in its line.

Sudan is not without its evil. But we are amply protected from the law by our efficient attorney, J. E. Dryden, who located in Sudan some three years ago.

Sign Painting. Not many towns have the services of a real sign painter, but Sudan can boast of one of the best sign painters and decorators on the South Plains. W. G. McGlamory located here about the time Sudan made its start to grow and the town grew so rapidly that Painter Bill has been kept so busy he has not had time to think about leaving.

Sudan has a home Auctioneer. One of the best auctioneers in the state of Texas resides in Sudan. His full name is Col. Jack Rowan. The Colonel has been crying sales in this territory for the past four years and has been pronounced by those having sales as the best ever. So when you have a public sale, remember that Sudan can supply you with the best auctioneer.

Sudan Laundry. Probably the most recent addition to Sudan's business circles is the establishment of the Sudan Laundry which opened for business the first of the week under the management of M. J. Hatcher, who comes here from Station. The laundry is located on South Main Street.

It might be that one or more of Sudan's activities has escaped notice. This is possible in view of the fact that new lines are constantly being added to the list. But if so, the oversight is unintentional. However, the foregoing furnishes convincing evidence of the rapid growth of this hustling little city of the plains. Its citizens are quick to see the opportunities afforded and to grasp and make the most of them.

"BOOST OR MOVE"

GROWTH OF DAIRY FARMING

From every section of the Plains-Panhandle country come the most encouraging reports of the growth of dairy farming. Cream shipments are growing by leaps and bounds, and creameries all over West Texas are flourishing and expanding their facilities.

In a recent issue of The News was a significant item giving the experience of a Texan who started "from the stump" and made good. He acquired a small herd of dairy cows, the output of which entirely supported his family while they were raising and marketing a 75-bale cotton crop.

What this man did, others can do. No section on earth offers greater facilities for dairy farming than does the country surrounding Sudan. Abundance of sweet, nutritious pasturage, an ample supply of the purest of water, with a super-abundance of grains and fodders of all kinds produced "on the spot," should tend to encourage greater and greater numbers of our farmers to enter this most profitable field.

"The Cow, the Sow and the Hen," as a slogan, has circled the earth. Lamb county is experiencing a wonderful awakening to the merits of each of this trio, but the opportunities are practically unlimited for each of these. We believe that the next few years will see such a development along these lines as this section has never yet dreamed possible.

SUDAN'S COMMERCIAL HATCHERY

Lest there be those of our citizens who fall in any particular to appreciate the great advantages to Sudan and adjoining counties, of the mammoth Weinhold Hatchery, the writer wishes briefly to call to public attention the many advantages of this enterprise.

Simply the hatching of chicks is by no means the limit of its service. The fostering of poultry production in every one of its aspects is the broad aim of the enterprise. The promoters stand ready at any and all times to advise and assist the poultry raiser in stocking his or her yard, in the care of the flock—in short, in any and all of the multitude of details connected with successful poultry raising.

Poultry raisers are invited and encouraged to bring their troubles and perplexities to the manager, who, besides his own broad experience, has the advice and co-operation of the leading poultry experts of the world. No ailment or disease is so rare or obscure that this concern can not locate the trouble and advise treatment.

The institution is also in touch with the leading poultry breeders of the nation, and can advise and assist its customers in obtaining guaranteed fowls or eggs of any variety, and that, too, of the purest strains and highest producing capacity.

This enterprise has a broad and fertile territory in which to expend its energies. Littlefield, Clovis and Plainview are the nearest towns to Sudan to support hatcheries, making the field practically unlimited.

The enterprise is now in operation, and the promoters cordially invite the co-operation of the people in a campaign of mutual benefit.

MISAPPROPRIATION OF CREDIT

The last thing that ever enters the mind of a thoroughbred newspaperman is laudation of his efforts. When he writes what is on his chest, he every time has the same object in view—to better humanity—to build a sturdier and more intense civilization—to uplift his audience. In fact, this is a selfishness of personality which courses in the blood of every newspaperman like corpuscles, and is as necessary for the stimulation and creation of ideas as the sun is to the universe. He pays no attention to the hour, whether night or day, just so he performs his duty to humanity in an acceptable manner.

But newspapermen are human, far more human than the ordinary person gives them credit for.

What gives a writer a jolt in the appendicitis location, is to have some bird without even a pin feather of worth, jump up, crack his heels, flap his wings, rub his horns, and exclaim, "I started that. He got the idea from me." Maybe the thought was born by some chance remark made by this same claimer in a jesting manner, or other way, and the writer saw the possibilities of a literary effort. But it took the author of the article to formulate the idea and to put it in language so that it would be denuded of its roughness and attain a dress of smoothness and intelligence that would be appreciated by the unintellectual as well as his more intellectual neighbor.

What we have on our mind is the giving of proper credit where credit belongs—not to us—but to all concerned. Why take the ideas this paper, for instance, originates and fosters, and claim them as your original thought? Why steal a preacher's well rounded sentences and put your stamp of originality on them—or any body's else? If you have not an active brain, don't blame anybody but yourself. It's yours—it does your bidding—and if you let it lie dormant until a man comes along with a new idea, why pilfer his thought and lay claim to it as your promulgation? Yes, why?

As far as The Sudan News is concerned any body in this or any other world may have all the ideas it offers for consideration. So that's settled.

But a divine, or a school teacher or the like spend arduous hours studying over vital questions—burn the midnight oil well up into the day, striving to be original, thinking, studying, searching, reading and studying upon a certain subject with the one intent in mind—originality. So when they spring their stuff in the pulpit, classroom or elsewhere and you happen to be an auditor, do not hop up like the famous dodo bird and rush down to your friends and give vent to the self same thoughts as original.

In short, give credit where credit is due.

LET US SPRAY

Kill the Vermin or the Vermin Will Kill Your Profits—Fowls That Are Free From Vermin. Lay Better, Resist Disease More Easily.

Not long ago I was asked by an amateur poultry raiser, whom I know slightly, if I would look over his flock and see what made them so droopy, dispirited and unproductive. They were "all out a pep" was the way he put it. It took only a moment's examination to disclose the reason for this undesirable state of affairs. His hens were just about being eaten up by chicken lice.

I asked to see the hen house and what I saw was what is all too often seen. An old roughly built shed had been hastily converted into a hen house. To say there were ten thousand hiding places for vermin would be a most conservative estimate. No attempt at sanitation or disinfection had ever been made. Ancient table scraps in various stages of decomposition proved attractive tidbits for myriads of flies. Mouldy straw lay about on the dirt floor, and dropping boards being something this chap had never heard about, the droppings served to still further befoul the already disgusting litter. In short, if I had wanted a particularly horrible example of almost anything one should not do in poultry raising, I could have found it here. I really marveled that the poor birds had been so lucky as to suffer nothing worse than their painful burdens of lice.

Turning to my acquaintance, I said: "Charley, there are a lot of things that ought to be done here, but I have a little story that will help you to remember one of the most important." Then I told him that story about the mother skunk and several of her little ones who were being pursued by a hunter. The hunter gained ground quite rapidly, which alarmed the youngsters not a little. "Just be patient, children," admonished the mother. "I'll tell you what to do when the time comes." The hunter continued to gain, and finally the mother called a sudden halt. As the hunter, seeing success at hand, plunged boldly forward, the mother skunk remarked calmly and confidently, "Now, children, let us spray!"

Of course, the first thing to do was to make a thorough clean up of the whole place. Then, a strong solution of Dip or Disinfectant was sprayed into every crack and crevice. Lime was dusted liberally over the dirt floor in order to neutralize its sour odor and make the place still more uncomfortable for lice, mites, bedbugs and other insect pests. Then the hens were dusted well with Lice Powder to kill the parasites on their bodies, and the dusting was repeated in seven days time. Now, whenever I meet my friend, Charley, he invariably greets me with a gesture which indicates the manipulation of a spray pump and with an air of mock piety exclaims, "Doctor, let us spray!" He also has a tale to tell of a reborn flock that is taking a new interest in life and actually seems to be trying to make up for the time they lost before Charley learned his lesson.

While this case was an extreme one, the same story is being enacted many times over and not always with a happy ending. With proper construction of houses and equipment, proper sanitary arrangements and an occasional clean-up and disinfecting campaign, the problem of vermin is seldom encountered.

Where these three points are not observed, however, vermin take possession and profits suffer with the poultry. Lice, flies, ticks, mites, bedbugs and many other pests in infinite variety either suck the life blood right out of their unwilling hosts or cause almost unbearable irritation. In either case, the fowl is seriously weakened, and the various bodily functions, including that of egg laying, are seriously hampered. Furthermore, while parasites are seldom directly responsible for death, except in cases of extreme neglect, they do often sap the vitality to such an extent that fowls become easy prey to disease.

These pests are preventable. It is no disgrace to have them show up on your premises, but it is a disgrace to let them remain. Not only that, aside from humane considerations which are too plain to need emphasis, it is mighty poor business to take a cut in the profits of any business when the cause of such a cut can be easily removed.

FEED CROP HELPS PROSPERITY

Overcoming the effects of a rather poor yield of wheat, the largest feed crop ever produced in this section of the state helped Hereford and Deaf Smith counties to enjoy the most prosperous year of their history, according to a resume of the annual activities being compiled by T. E. Seigler, prominent rancher and farmer who has taken a leading part in the activities of both town and counties the past several years.

Hereford farmers report that more than 350 cars of maize, feterita, kafir, Indian corn and other feedstuffs have been shipped already this fall, with hundreds of cars yet to be sold. Farmers are holding their feed until spring, when the prices will be better. Something over $1,250,000 worth of beef cattle have been shipped from Hereford. The cattle business in Deaf Smith County has assumed larger proportions than at any time since the World War.

Arrangement committees are now busy with the final details of the annual Hereford cattle sale to be held here soon. This sale is one of leading importance, as leading Hereford breeders from all over the country will be here. Hotel arrangements and housing facilities are being arranged to handle the many buyers expected to attend.

News Want Ads are the farmer's friends. They reach hundreds of people who want what he has and have what he wants.

Doctors Disagree

When children are irritable and peevish, grind their teeth and sleep restlessly, have digestive pains and disturbances, lack of appetite, and have itching eyes, nose and fingers, doctors will not always agree that they are suffering from worms. Many mothers, too, will not believe that their carefully brought up children can have worms. The fact remains that these symptoms will yield, in a great majority of cases, to a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, the sure expellant of round and pin worms. If your child has any of these symptoms, try this harmless, old fashioned remedy, which you can get at 25c per bottle from

News of Texas
Told in Brief

COLEMAN.—In 1928 and January of this year, the Coleman county commissioners' court paid $1,084 in claims for wolf and cat pelts. In the campaign of extermination the court was assisted by the state and federal governments. During the time a total of 105 wolves and 16 cats were killed.

DALLAS.—McKinley has been awarded this year's annual meeting of the North Texas Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Dr. O. T. Cooper, presiding elder of the Dallas district announced. Wichita Falls and Dallas also sought the meeting, tentatively set for Oct. 23.

BROWNWOOD.—Plans have been completed for the entertainment of bankers when the "Flyer Squadron" visits Brownwood, Thursday, Feb. 21. Bankers from all parts of the United States are expected here on that day to participate in the sixth district meeting of the Texas Bankers' Association.

AUSTIN.—Cattle are coming through the winter in good condition with losses from exposure and starvation comparatively light prior to Feb. 1, according to H. H. Schurz, statistician with the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. The condition of Texas ranges on Feb. 1 was 82 per cent, two points lower than one month ago, but slightly higher than the five-year average, according to Schurz.

DALLAS.—Ben L. Gill, of Terrell, was elected president of the Fifth District of the Texas Bankers' Association at the annual convention here. Griffith Carnes of Dallas was named secretary.

COLEMAN.—Eagle roping is a new sport in Coleman county and Henry Jameson of Talpa, near here, claims the championship. He reported that while riding over a hill he saw an eagle devouring a rabbit. The bird did not see Jameson until he was almost upon it, but took wing immediately. Jameson had his rope in his hand and caught the bird around the neck and wings despite a stiff wind, he said.

FORT WORTH.—Describing the measure as a "backward step in the moral progress of the state," petitions protesting the proposed "race track" bill were being circulated throughout the county by members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

PARIS.—After giving himself up to authorities in Stamps, Ark., J. C. Arthur, wanted in Paris on a charge of auto theft, decided he didn't like the Stamps jail and proceeded to escape. Arthur rode a freight train from Stamps to Texarkana, and catching auto rides from Texarkana to Paris, he arrived in Paris and gave himself up to Sheriff Bud Walters.

BROWNFIELD.—Because "mother" took them, a little boy and girl here thought strychnine tablets were it was discovered they had obtained it was discovered they had obtained possession of the poison. The result was the death of the year-old son of John Dumas. Physicians said the girl, 3, would recover. Mrs. Dumas had been taking the strychnine under a doctor's order.

BRECKENRIDGE.—Ed Riddle, about 35, employee of the Lone Star Gas Company, died here from burns received in a gas explosion at the Breckenridge well, 20 miles south of Breckenridge.

LAMESA.—Roland Baum, 24, of the Flower Grove community is dying in a hospital at Big Spring, where he was taken after a shotgun was discharged during a playful scuffle between Baum and a girl whom he had stopped to visit while returning from a hunting trip.

WASHINGTON.—House democrats will caucus March 1 to nominate their candidate for speaker and other leaders of the minority party for the next session of congress. Representative Garner, democrat, Texas, will be nominated as the candidate for speaker, it was understood.

LUBBOCK.—Equipment for showing of talking motion pictures is being installed in the Palace Theatre here.

PERRYTON.—Fire losses in the city of Perryton were almost a negligible item during the year 1928, according to Fire Marshal R. H. Gamel, the fire losses in this city amounting to only $1,740 on a total insurance valuation of $1,200,000. Practically the entire loss resulted in two fires.

AMARILLO.—A warning was issued to residents of River Road and persons living along the North Highway against dogs afflicted with rabies by Dr. E. W. Little, city veterinarian. Mr. Little reported that while that section was out of his jurisdiction he wanted to caution the residents of the danger.

MIDLAND.—Tourists along the Broadway of America, in those long distances between towns in West Texas, will not have to walk miles to a town hereafter to get aid. Telephones are being installed in section houses and other convenient points for travelers. The phones will be operated on the toll basis.

LUBBOCK.—A widened scope for the military training unit at Texas Technological College is provided with receipt of information here to the effect that the college's request for reserve officers' training camp aid had been sanctioned by the War Department. The new rating provides that with the enrollment of 300 cadets in the college, a senior R. O. T. unit may be secured, which will provide full equipment and officers, together with full pay of 70 cents a day for all seniors and juniors taking the work.

SMITHVILLE.—The six year old daughter of W. M. Breeden, a merchant died here from burns received several days ago when her clothing ignited while playing with matches.

SAN ANGELO.—L. B. Horton has been appointed president of the All-West Texas Exposition, San Angelo's annual fair, by A. A. Glover, president of the Board of City Development. Walter Bell is secretary.

SAN ANTONIO.—Labor and devotion which Mrs. Fannie Frame gave through 18 years to her husband, the late David A. Frame, is worthy of the $5,000 reward that he promised in a promissory note given her before his death, the Fourth Court of Civil Appeals held.

AUSTIN.—Senator W. A. Williamson of San Antonio put the legislation on notice that he has begun a movement to create a new state commission to take over the regulation of bus and truck lines, removing such authority from the railroad commission. If the measure is not passed at this session, it will be at the next, he said, although in the meantime the house is considering a bill by Representative W. E. Pope of Corpus Christi to transfer motor transportation to the Highway Department.

AUSTIN.—Persons possessing chattel mortgage property and refusing to divulge its location to the owner shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor under terms of a bill written by Senator Woodward of Coleman, which the house has passed. The provision of the criminal statutes formerly applied only to automobiles but now would include household furniture or any other commodity.

HAMLIN.—Hamlin is to have an airport soon with H. R. Harwell, local aviator, backing the movement.

AUSTIN.—A third substitute rural aid bill was presented to the senate last Thursday by Senator J. P. Greer of Athens. Greer's measure would appropriate slightly less than $3,000,000 annually while the original bill offered by Senator Thomas G. Pollard of Tyler called for an annual appropriation of $5,000,000.

AUSTIN.—A law making it unlawful to sell citrus fruit between Sept. 1 and Dec. 15 of each year, unless the fruit has been inspected and passed by a citrus fruit inspector of the state or of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, is pending in the house. It is aimed at the marketing of unripe, overripe and frost-damaged fruit, it was said.

SHAMROCK.—Shamrock won the county cage tournament here Thursday, defeating Lela 56 to 5 and defeating Wheeler 24 to 14.

AUSTIN.—A county depository is liable to the state and county for interest from the date all credits are given the collector's account, Attorney General Claude Pollard ruled in an opinion to S. M. Terrell, comptroller.

CROSBYTON.—A deal has recently been closed in which Mrs. J. K. Pullingim sold the City Hotel to C. C. Stephens of Seminole. Practically all of the old-timers of this section have stopped at this hotel in the past, as Mr. Pullingim was noted all over West Texas for his hospitality.

AMARILLO.—"The Panhandle-South Plains area is attracting nationwide attention with its agricultural development," said L. R. Neel, editor of the Southern Agriculturist, of Nashville, Tenn., who was in Amarillo recently securing data for a series of articles about this territory.

CANTON.—Tom Wood, Hereford plumber, sustained injuries which may prove fatal when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another machine near Umlinger one day last week.

BORGER.—Charles J. Carnes, city secretary, tax assessor and collector of Borger, died at his home here Thursday after an illness of a week. Death was due to a paralytic stroke following a severe attack of influenza.

AUSTIN.—Texas pharmacy laws were made the most stringent in history through house passage of a measure to prevent any person other than a graduate of a recognized college from applying for a license, and to prohibit merchants from retailing drugs in broken packages. The bill had previously passed the senate.

DALLAS.—Frustrating what they believed was an attempt at a jail delivery, county authorities Thursday found that a 21-year-old youth was carrying six saws sewed in his clothing.

EARTLAND.—Injured in an automobile accident on the Bankhead Highway near Olden early Wednesday evening, Samuel Wright, 25, of Abilene, died in a hospital here two hours later.

AUSTIN.—The senate paused on Thursday amid the hurly burly of legislation to pay tribute to the living, in unveiling and accepting the portrait of Col. Beaumont B. Buck of San Antonio.

AUSTIN.—The Texas senate Thursday afternoon paid tribute to the memory of James W. Swayne, for many years a resident of Fort Worth who died here last week. He was a member of the senate during the Hogg administration and was floor leader for the governor.

AUSTIN.—The house paused in its legislative program Thursday to eulogize George W. Ware of Jermy, a member of both the Fortieth and Forty-first sessions, who died Wednesday night at his home.

COMANCHE.—An increase of 500 per cent in the sheep and goat population of Comanche county in the last three years is reported by J. A. Barton, county agent, who gives the chief credit to the local sheep and goat raisers' association for its activity in trapping and cleaning out 200 wolves and 42 bob cats. This work is also said to have increased turkey production which suffered so many losses from wolves three years ago that some farmers lost as many as 100 birds in one year.

SAN ANGELO.—Extension of the Orient system to Sofoza, Sutton county, Texas, 62 miles south of San Angelo by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, long a dream of this wealthy ranch and farm section, has been announced by W. L. Aldwell, president of the First National Bank of Sofoza and a director of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railroad of Texas.

PLAINVIEW.—The Hale County Dairy Association's co-operative creamery building is complete and the plant will be placed in operation about March 1, according to Manager C. M. Anderson.

MEMPHIS.—Memphis is to have a modern creamery plant, according to a statement made public this week by John F. Cates, general manager of the Gate City Creamery of Childress, the erection of which will be started at once, which will total about $20,000.

MIDLAND.—Clyde Y. Barron, business man and poultry fancier of Midland, is the new Texas vice president of the National Jersey Black Giant Club. Barron won first prize on a pen of the Jersey Black Giant chickens at the Madison Square Garden Show in New York City.

FORT WORTH.—Fort Worth has been selected as the location for the first factory of the "Dry Ice" Corporation of Texas and Louisiana and construction will begin within 10 days on the local plant, according to announcement from officials of the concern.

WEST POINT.—It is generally estimated the goose population has doubled in the last three years and the demand for them is the best in the history of the county. One farm manager says they have 1,000 geese and gladly would buy as many more. The geese are used to kill Johnson and Bermuda grass and to keep grass down in cottonfields.

BAND TO FEATURE
SOME SPECIALTIES

Special to Sudan News:
The concert which comprise the first of the Lamb County Band attractions promises to be something out of the ordinary run of concerts. According to the director, the specialties which will be presented on the evening of March 8 will be particularly attractive.

The Lamb County Saxophone Octet will undoubtedly be a favorite feature. Eight of the best players of this instrument form the group, and they play horns ranging in size from the little straight Soprano Sax to the big Bass Sax—nearly as tall as a man. They will play marches and popular numbers in true Brown Brothers style.

The lover of orchestra music will enjoy the antics of the Nine Fortyniners, an unusual group of tough western musicians from Sudan, Amherst and Littlefield, by gosh. Their variations and syncopations are calculated to put a wiggle in the most rheumatic toe.

Two trombone solos by Conrad Lam, accompanied by Mrs. C. R.

Hooton, pianist.

In addition to these specialties, the numbers by the Lamb County Band proper will be deserving of note. It should be remembered that approximately sixty musicians will be on the stage at one time. This will be the largest band which has ever performed in Lamb county. The citizen of Sudan who misses this attraction will undoubtedly regret it for many a day.

CLAIMS vs. FACTS

You hear all sorts of tire claims:

MORE MILEAGE, MORE RUBBER, MORE COMFORT. Interesting—if true.

A man buying tires wants Facts—not Claims. One tire fact cannot be overlooked. It stands out boldly:

MORE PEOPLE RIDE ON GOODYEAR TIRES THAN ON ANY OTHER KIND.

Goodyear uses one-seventh of all the world's crude rubber—almost 50 per cent more than any other manufacturer.

Goodyear makes more tires and they are "The World's Greatest Tires"—big sturdy fellows with the extraurable, extra-elastic body of SUPERTWIST. Ours is the standard Goodyear Service—approved by one hundred million tire buyers. Buy your Goodyears from up. Get our constant friendly service with them.

Just Like An Ostrich

A medical authority says that a person who tries to cover up skin blemishes and pimples with toilet creams and powders is just as foolish as an ostrich that buries its head in the sand to avoid danger. Skin eruptions are nature's warning that constipation is throwing poisons into your blood stream and weakening your whole constitution. Remove the constipated condition and you will strengthen your system against disease and clear up your disfigured skin. The best way to do this is with a course of Herbie, the vegetable medicine that acts naturally and easily, which you can get at H. G. Ranby Drug Store.

bark was ripped and the branches more or less broken. Somebody, or something, had been up there—something real, not a ghost.

Then I went back to the house and investigated the ballroom. I found no signs of ghostly presence, but I did find something that I was sure had not been there when I left the house for town a month or so before. On the floor, right where the dancers had been prancing to the strains of "Too Much Mustard," I found two long chalk lines marking the sides of the triangle within which they had danced. Moreover, close to the apex of the triangle, just where Mr. Ghost and Miss Ghostess had stood when Mr. Braxton broke in, I found a narrow strip of wood nailed to the floor. I'm no Sherlock Holmes and I didn't know just what those things meant, but I did know that they didn't mean ghosts. I refused to believe in ghosts that walked—or danced—a chalk line.

It followed that somebody had been using my house and grounds without permission. Of course my first idea was that Perkins had been having in a lot of village people for a dance if he had it would explain a lot of things—why he was so anxious to prevent Josephine and me from staying at Dinsmore that night, for instance.

But the more I thought of it the more I saw that this explanation wouldn't hold water. Perkins wasn't a dancing man, for one thing. I couldn't believe that he had ever been a dancing man; and I was sure that at any rate he hadn't been for a good many years. And he didn't look as if he had enough of the milk of human kindness in his veins to make him take an altruistic pleasure in other folks dancing. Of course he might have rented the ballroom to somebody who wanted to have a dance. This was a lot more credible. But on consideration I couldn't believe it, either. Nobody would dare to go through with such a thing with the owner in the house; or, supposing that they didn't know that the owner was in the house, no crowd of dancers would ever vanish in a minute when the owner turned up. It simply couldn't be done.

Besides, Mr. Braxton was in it—in it up to the hilt. No murmured word nor brush of mustached lips could alter that fact. I made up my mind then and there that he would have to tell me all about it very humbly before I could forgive him. I resolved, too, not to question him, but to let him think that I believed it all a dream. At least, I would do this for one day. Then when night came I would lay for those ghosts. If they ventured into the house again I would see to it that they didn't get away without explaining who they were. Having quite made up my mind to this, I left the ballroom and started upstairs to wake Josephine and Mrs. James.

I did not need to wake them, however. Both of them were up and dressed and ready to come down. I must have been prowling about for a good deal longer than I had supposed. By the time I had explained my proublings the clang of a breakfast gong downstairs told that Perkins had gotten some sort of breakfast ready for us.

At the foot of the stairs we met Perkins. When he saw me he shrank back as if he expected me to fly at him with questions. But I didn't. I merely sent him to ask Mr. Braxton if he felt able to join us at breakfast or whether we should send him something.

While we waited we mapped out a course of action. That is, I mapped it out, and the others promised to follow it. I wanted to keep absolutely quiet about those "ghosts," to ask no questions either of Mr. Braxton or of Perkins and to let them think I was persuaded that all I had seen was a dream. Josephine and Mrs. James did not like this plan. They wanted to question both Mr. Braxton and Perkins and to threaten them with arrest if they refused to talk. They both became convinced that something secret was going on in the house and they wanted to take the direct way of stopping it.

I didn't. I didn't want to threaten Mr. Braxton. I owed him too much and he was my guest, besides. I wanted to punish him but I wanted to do it myself. As for Perkins—well, Perkins was small fry.

"Don't say a word today," I begged. "Tomorrow, perhaps, we'll be ready to say a lot. But today I want to keep quiet. I feel it in my bones that those make-believe spooks are going to walk again tonight; and if they do I want to catch them red-handed. I'm willing to call in Fred as a guard, but I'm not willing to scare them away by letting Perkins know that we suspect anything. See? They saw; or, at least, they were silenced for the moment. Probably they wouldn't have been silenced for long. But at that moment Perkins came back with a note that he had found on Mr. Braxton's table.

Perkins blinked. "Mr. Braxton's gone awn, miss," he said. "He left a letter for you."

"Gone?" I know I lost my color. "Gone where? . . . Give me the note quick."

With maddening slowness Perkins extracted the note and handed it over. "I dinna ken whaur he's gone, miss," he said. "I dinna see him gang. He left the note in his room."

I had the note open by this time. It was short.

"My dear Miss Edith," it ran. "I am going away with the doctor, who has just come in. I am going much against my will, but the doctor insisted. In two or three days I shall return, if I possibly can, and explain some things that must have perplexed you. I need hardly add that I am very sorry you should have been frightened last night. I am leaving this note rather than wake you up at this hour of the day. Will you kindly tell Miss Dinsmore how grateful I am to her for her hospitality?"

"Sincerely yours,"
"MAYO BRAXTON."

Perkins shuffled away for the breakfast while I was reading the letter. I looked up and saw that he was gone. Then I read the letter again. Then I said—No, on second thoughts I won't put down what I said. It was a plenty. Having said it, I cried with pure rage.

Then Josephine came out strong. She seemed to understand, though I don't know how she found out. She took me in her arms and petted me. "There, Edie," she said. "Don't fret. He's coming back, you know."

Sure enough, he was coming back. That was some consolation. "Well," I said, "let's eat breakfast, anyhow." So we ate it.

It isn't necessary to tell what we said as we ate nor how we said it. If there was any phase of the day before or the night before that we didn't discuss I don't know what it was. Of course I did most of the talking. I always do. But the others did their share.

But it all came to nothing. None of us could suggest any explanation that was at all satisfactory. We ended just where we had begun.

We had scarcely finished breakfast when a messenger boy arrived on a wheel with a bundle of newspapers and a note from Fred commending them to Josephine and myself. While Josephine was reading the note (which was addressed to her) I fell on the bundle of newspapers and tore it apart and distributed its contents. For a half second all was silent, then pandemonium began.

The papers were full of startling news that bore more or less directly on our case. They had a lot about Father, of course, and most of them seemed to speak about him more favorably than they had the day before. Fred's paper had an account, under big headlines such as papers use when they think they've got a scoop, of Josephine's and my flight from the boat just before it sailed. It ended with the statement that we were staying with friends until we could find Father, of whose whereabouts we were as ignorant as the rest of New York. All the papers had scare-head articles on the stock market, which it seemed had been cutting high links the day before and was expected to repeat the performance that day. But what really excited both Josephine and me was a wireless dispatch from the Silver Heels which opened up an entirely new line of thought.

Father had been found! At least the officers of the Silver Heels thought he had been found. Suspicion for some reason had centered—after Aunt Candice had changed to a homeward bound steamer—on a passenger who had remained carefully secluded in his stateroom. Suspicion had increased, as suspicion does, and the aforesaid passenger had finally been forced to come on deck and had been identified by a lot of people.

True, nobody on board had ever seen Father close up, though several claimed to have seen him from a distance. True, the accused man denied that he was Father and claimed that he was John Smith of New York. If he had claimed any other name he might have been believed, but nobody can claim to be John Smith of New York and get away with it. This seems queer, since there are so very many John Smiths. But it is a fact, nevertheless. He claimed, too, that he had stayed below because he was seasick. And this, for some reason, was taken for proof that he was hiding.

It seemed to me that the identification was pretty slim—especially as I was still sure I heard Father talking over the telephone the day before. But, of course, it might be correct. You never can tell.

We didn't have very long to consider it, for at that moment Perkins shuffled in. "There's a pack of young devils outside," he said. "They say they are reporters from the papers and they're fair wild to talk with the two of you."

Of course, we should have expected this, but as a matter of fact we had not. I suppose Josephine and I had taken it for granted that the other newspapers could get the facts from Fred's paper and would content themselves with that. But it seemed that each paper had to get a story of its own. How they found out where we were I never knew (Fred hadn't told our address in his story), but find us they did. I asked Fred about it later, but he laughed and said they followed their nose for news.

I wasn't afraid of reporters. In fact I rather liked them. So I rushed out to the front porch to talk to them at once. Josephine came along behind. Josephine didn't come to talk, of course. She came to hold me down—if she could.

The reporters were roosting all over the porch. They filled the chairs and blocked the steps and draped the rail. There seemed to be a regiment of them. I never knew how important Josephine and I were before. They were all young and most of them were good-looking and they were all just as nice as could be. I could not imagine why Father always hated the breed so. I may mention right here that I found out why Father objected when I read their interviews with me later. I talked to them all at once, and yet no two of them put the same words in my mouth. They all had the main facts correct, but when they got off that solid basis they seemed to do the solid and let their imaginations suffer. Some of them laughed at me, others laughed with me, others pitied me in the most outrageous impersonal manner, and others made me talk like a forty-year-old sufferer from orotax.

They all wanted to know whether Father was really on board the Silver Heels. Of course I didn't know and I said so. "If we had thought he was on the steamer we shouldn't have left it," I protested. "If he is on it we don't know anything about it. But I don't believe he is, for—"

Josephine trod on my foot here and I turned to look at her.

"We don't know where Father is," she said. "We haven't had any news of him since we came ashore."

"And besides," I began. "I heard—"

Josephine trod on my foot again and I stopped short.

"Yes!" said one of the reporters—a particularly nice one with an ingratiating manner. "You heard—"

Again Josephine trod on my foot and this time I caught on. I didn't know why Josephine wanted me to keep quiet about my hearing Father's voice on the telephone, but I understood that she did. So I kept quiet. That is, I changed the subject.

"I mean I read in the papers that he was still in town. I don't believe he was ever on the steamer at all."

I was looking over the heads of the men on the steps as I spoke, and I saw an auto coming rushing up the drive. Mr. Paul was in it.

"Yonder comes Mr. Paul," I said. "He's Father's lawyer. Perhaps he knows something and has come to tell us. You might ask him."

The reporters groaned in chorus. "No use asking Mr. Paul anything," explained the nice one. He's got the sphinx backed off the map. A claim is real valuable compared to him. If you wouldn't mind asking him and then tipping it off to us, we'd be awfully grateful."

I laughed. The man's impudence was refreshing. "Well," I said, "I'll think about it. Meanwhile, I'll have to talk to him first. If there's nothing else you want to ask me I'll talk to him now."

This was a pretty broad hint and I hated to give it. They were all such nice boys. But I was getting scared. They were altogether too nice. I didn't know what they might make me say if I kept on talking.

A Great Discovery
When Pasteur discovered, in 1852, that the infection of wounds was caused by malignant bacteria, he performed a service of inestimable value to mankind. Since then medical science has been producing better and better antiseptics, to kill these germs that may enter the smallest cut and give us diseases such as typhoid, tuberculosis and lockjaw. Now, all you have to do to be sure that these dreadful germs will not infect a wound, is to wash that wound, however small, thoroughly with Liquid Borosone, the modern antiseptic. MAN LEGALLY KILLED DIES
A remarkable instance of the way things may be mixed up by the war department is given in the case of George Perry, 20, legally dead since he disappeared in battle during the Civil War, died at the home of San Francisco relatives recently on the eve of his re-establishment as a citizen and a veteran of the Civil War. Perry was a Union soldier at the Battle of Fredericksburg in '61. Struck in the head by sharpshooters, he lost his identity temporarily and wandered away from his home, where he was being cared for. Later, when he recovered his memory he sought an army discharge but was informed that he was dead.

An army mate had signed an affidavit telling of his death and burial in a trench full of unidentified dead. Perry did not care at first. But as he grew older the difficulty of being legally dead became apparent. He was ineligible for a pension and had lost track of relatives who might have cared for him with advancing age.

For years he lived in a lonely little shack on the outskirts of Oakland. Then a brother went to his aid and Congressman A. E. Carter, of Alameda County, prepared a bill to restore Perry to his Civil War status. Carter had planned to induce the pension bureau to take cognizance of the aged man's plight had failed.

Blind and suffering from arthritis, Perry applied to the Alameda County hospital Thanksgiving Day and was given treatment. Last week relatives in San Francisco to Oklahoma and then death called him.

To the last, Perry never gave up hope that the 87 years' accumulation of governmental red tape would be finally ycut, but it was not until Congressman Carter was interested in the case that success seemed near.

REACH FORTH
We smile about New Year's resolutions; smile, and make them. We make them because we feel we need them. The beginning of the new year is a good dividing line. There are things in the year just passed that we wish were not there. We can wipe them out so far as the past can be wiped out by good resolutions that are lived up to. We can establish standards that we hope to live up to in the years ahead.

The great apostle understood human nature when he spoke of forgetting those things which are behind. Forget! Reach forth!

METHODIST NOTES

Last Sunday Dr. W. E. Lyon of Abilene was with us in the morning service and preached a splendid sermon on the educational opportunities of the Methodist Church. Dr. Lyon complimented the Sunday School during the Institute in the afternoon, in that our officers and teachers have reached a high degree of efficiency in the points scored. Although the school rating was lower than it should be, the quality of work being done is of the highest.

Following the Institute it is certain that interest will pick up in the work of the Sunday school. Attendance has already increased.

At the evening hour the pastor preached on "It Can Be Done," using Judges 6:16 as the background of his message. A large crowd evidenced unusual interest in the service.

Monday night the Junior Board organized with Forrest Weimhold, chairman, Ledger Lam, vice-chairman, and Clyde Holt, secretary-treasurer. The other two members of this fine body of young Christian workers are Reagan Ormand and Bernice Holt. The Board meets twice each month to study the work of the church and of Christian growth.

THANKS!

We wish to thank the good people of Sudan for the beautiful and useful gifts presented us, not so much the value of the gifts we appreciate, as the love and admiration of good Christian friends. We deem it a pleasure to live in your midst. May you, too, ever be surrounded by such friends.
