4-H PANTRY AWARDS

Judging of the 4-H pantries prepared by home demonstration club women of Lamb County was completed Monday, Apr. 18th by Mrs. D. L. Jones of the Experiment Station Lubbock Texas. The awards are as follows:

1st. Miss V. O. White, Sod House Club.
2nd. Mrs. I. V. Fent, Sand Hill Club.
3rd Mrs. C. V. Harmon, Amherst Club.

Miss White will receive the beautiful pantry shelves given for this purpose by the Cameron Lumber Company of Littlefield, Texas, through the efforts of Mr. John Porcher—Ruby Mashburn, County Home Demonstration Agent.

4-H Pantry Work of Miss V. O. White Sod House Club

When I undertook the task of a 4-H Pantry demonstration for my club I did so doubting that I would ever finish the job. I did not have any shelves, but had something like 300 quart jars. I did not have a sealer and my cooker only a 10 quart.

The low price of farm produce and the farm products caused me quite a bit of worry because I knew that I needed more containers and some storage room.

We had started a concrete cellar three years ago so I persuaded my brothers and neighbors to finish it for me. We used the lumber from the concrete molds for the shelves. I received $2.40 prize money for a jar of pickled onions that I sent to the Tri-State Fair at Amarillo, Texas. I used this money to buy lime and paint to finish the inside of the cellar. The shelves were painted light green and the walls and ceiling were white washed.

My brother gave me an automatic sealer and I made arrangements with a neighbor to can on the halves for him in order to get 150 containers that I needed. This neighbor also gave me corn to can and let me use his 25 quart cooker all the summer and fall.

My pantry was planned for a family of five adults for eight months. I planned it over a period of eight months because the garden season on the plains is very short and I do not have a hot bed.

I planned my garden so that I would have all of the vegetables required in my pantry. By doing this I had 40 varieties of vegetables in my garden besides peas, beans, and several varieties of pumpkins in the field. From this supply I canned 300 quarts of leafy vegetables consisting of 7 varieties: turnip greens, mustard, spinach, cabbage, rape, English peas, and snap beans.

The only starchy vegetable that I canned was corn. I canned this on the halves to get my supply of 146 No 2 cans. I raised enough Irish potatoes to last all summer and fall. I planted enough carrots and parsnips to last through the winter months so I could have these fresh from the garden any time.

For the other vegetables I canned 246 No. 3 cans of okra, carrots, shelled beans, and peas, squash, pumpkin, beets and sweet potatoes.

I canned fruit on the halves for my brothers to get my supply of fruit. I have 130 qts of peaches, apples, pears, green grapes, and rhubarb. I also canned 9 quarts of apple pealings, 2 gallons of fruit juice, and three gallons of apple vinegar.

I have 114 No 3 cans of tomatoes, 52 No 3 cans of soup mixture, and 4 quarts of catsup. My tomatoes did not do so well so my neighbors gave me enough to finish the required amount.

We had 28 No 3 cans of beef left over from last February. We canned 99 cans of beef in November, 11 cans of chicken, 7 cans of pork roast, and 5 cans of meat put up in 28 different ways ready to serve.

I have 155 1-3 quarts of pickles and relishes. I have 5 varieties of jelly, 8 of preserves, and 3 of fruit butters. I have

FARMERS VS. BIG BUSINESS

A few days ago Mr. Hyde, United States secretary of agriculture, spoke out in public in condemnation of the policy of loaning money to farmers of the country, saying the department was being turned into a loan office, and that it was pure bunk. Also, stated the department was still collecting debts from farmers made 10 years ago. Farmers were being ruined by government loans and should be stopped, and much other comment along similar lines.

While all the farmers of Childress who secured loans from the Federal Government a year ago have not repaid the loans, yet more than 90 per cent have reimbursed the government. Not only in this immediate section but the same is true of all sections of Texas, according to reports. A few days ago Senator Couzins of Michigan, speaking in the United States Senate, gave as his opinion that millions of dollars now being advanced to "big business," railroads, banks, and other corporations would never be repaid, that the money was being borrowed with the view of beating the government out of as much money as it was possible to get hold of. One or two of the loans made to railroads will equal all the loans made to farmers in the entire United States, according to figures.

But with the Republican party the idea seems to be to take care of "big business," corporations and the larger banks of the North and East at the expense of other sections of the country. It is money justly spent when those corporations secure the same even if it is never repaid to the national Treasury. But the poor farmer is not to be trusted, if the government lends him a dollar it is thrown away. The farmer is not a business man and does not know how to make a living or how to pay his debts, therefore he should be permitted to suffer and go down, as another will take his place, like the common soldier in the army.

If the corporations make a record as good as the farmers it will be something new and strange in the financial history of the United States government.—Childress Post.

cantalope and watermelon preserves, and crystallized products, 78 quarts in all.

I brined 15 quarts of cabbage and turnips.

I bought enough sea foods to have one serving each week during the 8 months. I also bought 20 pounds of dried fruits since I could get it cheaper that way than to buy the fruit and dry it myself.

My emergency shelf contains: Boston baked beans, Mexican Chili beans, hominy, baked potatoes, candied sweet potatoes, turnip greens, turnips, snapped pinto beans, blackeyed peas, crowder peas, rape, soupe mixture, and collards seasoned ready to serve, sandwich spread, baked apples, cream pie filling, pie crust mixture, fruit cake, and pecans are also ready to use. I always keep bread crumbs in pint jars to use on my meats so I have a supply of it on my shelves.

We have 623 pounds of dried peas and beans that we raised. We also have 550 pounds of pork cured for winter use.

My shelves contain 1611 containers of food of 152 varieties. There are 552 quarts of food ready to serve. The value of my pantry is $521.73.

My shelves would not have been complete had it not been for the cooperation of my family and the unceasing interest and hard work of my neighbors.

BOLER SERIOUSLY BITTEN BY BULL DOG

D. D. Boler, employed by B. R. Haney, was severely bitten by the Haney bull dog on Saturday of last week. The dog was riding in the truck driven by Mr Boler, and when they arrived at the depot the dog remained in the truck cab while Boler attended to business matters at the depot. On returning, Mr. Boler entered the car and was in the act of turning on the switch, when the dog grabbed his hand. In using his left hand to free himself, the dog turned loose of the right and grabbed the left, and both hands were badly lacerated by the time he freed himself.

Mr Boler is now carrying two bandaged hands from the result of his encounterment with the bull dog.

LEARNING TO COOPERATE

In speaking editorially of the depressed condition of dairy farming in New England, the Boston News Bureau recently said: "He" (the farmer) "must do something for a permanent solution. He must relinquish his old insular individualism and learn to cooperate within his own ranks. . . . That gospel has already had a scattered presentation. Now the pressure of adversity is forcing realization home. . . ."

That is good advice for farmers everywhere. Dairy farmers—wheat farmers, cotton farmers—all have felt the bite of profitless prices and poor market. By now they should have learned that that is largely their own fault. They have attempted to do business as it was done 50 years ago—each farmer selling to the distributor on his own hook, and they have failed. The way out is the cooperative way. Nothing else can give the farmer, as a group, control over the market and the price structure.

Hundreds of thousands of farmers are already organized. But a great many are unorganized and they are the ones to which such messages as these are addressed. They are holding back themselves and their organized neighbors—the best managed cooperative in the world is doomed to defeat if the farmers refuse to give it adequate support. It is high time the farmer stopped complaining about his lot and acted.

Strayed—Roach main black mare, and brown horse mule, 1 sorrel mare. Owner may have same by paying feed bill and for this notice. H. F. Cole, 2 miles north of Sudan.

Traylor Finds Too Much Silence Responsible for Business Slump

Chicago Banker Traces Crash to Failure of Leaders to Give Warnings

Danger Signals Disregarded

Speaking before the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington, Melvin A. Traylor, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, said in part:

Business management, however, is not alone responsible for the course it has followed. Unfortunately, it has had the cooperation of finance and government and will likewise have to have their cooperation in adjusting its affairs to a saner course. What, in fact, did the leaders of finance do to encourage the expansion which took place in the last decade?

Melvin Traylor

What, if anything, did they do to prevent such expansion with the consequences which they certainly did know or should have known would follow?

I believe their record in that connection is not an enviable one. As early as 1927, it was clearly obvious to anyone having experience with the granting of credit that if the situation was allowed to continue, and if expansion and speculation were carried on unchecked, there could be but one end—disaster. Yet the record of American financial leadership and of responsible government officials was regrettably one of too much silence.

Sounded Few Warnings

Few warnings were issued, and few attempts were made to attract public attention to the danger that threatened. Credit for the expansion of productive facilities to meet temporary demands was granted to business without adequate consideration of the consequences. Credit without stint was furnished to consumers to buy consumable goods, thereby further increasing false purchasing power and multiplying debt. No one called a halt.

Every kind and character of combination and consolidation was made, regardless of its economic advisability or the possibility of economies in management or increased profits therefrom. Little or no consideration was given to the nature of the businesses involved; in one instance, for example, soaps and candies were united. Such combinations and mergers were promoted and securities were sold on the theory that temporary earnings derived from a false demand would not only continue, but would forever increase.

Furthermore, these securities were not sold to those in a position to buy, or who could buy for investment purposes, but rather to those less able to judge, and to those less able to resist the desire to gamble for big profits. Was such financial leadership calculated to inspire confidence or make for an economic stability which insures social welfare? I am afraid not.

But financial leadership did not stop there. It actively promoted the purchase of equity stocks and split its own unit of stock par in order, as it said, to bring its market value within the reach of the small investor. May I add, parenthetically, that such action would have been unnecessary for their purpose had they waited only a few months.

Financial leaders organized and promoted so-called investment trusts to give the small investor a chance to profit from wise financial leadership, made foreign loans of speculative value, and, altogether, followed the procession obviously intent upon getting theirs while the getting was good.

Must Chart New Course

Are we to have a repetition of this kind of financial leadership? If it be true—as I believe it is—that credit is the life-blood of the nation, and that there can be no economic stability or social progress without a sound financial structure; and if it be true—as I also believe—that no financial system is sounder or more useful than its management, then financial leadership in this country must take stock of itself, turn over a new leaf, and chart a new course of conduct for its future guidance.

If it be objected that not all financial leaders are guilty of such misconduct—and certainly there are some who are not—the indictment, nevertheless, stands. As far as the record discloses, not one had the courage to fight in the open against the tendencies he knew were wrong and to demand a right-about-face. Knowledge is one thing, but courage of leadership is another.

Lack of Courageous Leadership One Cause of World Depression

Melvin A. Traylor, of Chicago Cites Human Failure in World War Crisis

"New Era" Theory a Myth

Speaking before the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington, Melvin A. Traylor, President of the First National Bank of Chicago, said in part:

Reams have been written, countless addresses have been made, and more will follow in the search for the genesis of the present world depression; and, likely, recovery will come and the crisis be only a memory without there having been found a universally accepted cause or unanimous agreement on methods for the prevention of future defaults.

Melvin Traylor

But I cannot escape the conclusion that the dawn of the present situation broke over the world in July, 1914, and it came not from ignorance of the ultimate results of the course chosen, but because of a complete breakdown of world political sanity.

There was no lack of knowledge of the consequences, but rather of courage to face the facts, to throttle national pride, and to demand common counsel in an honest search for a basis of peace. Such a search might have failed, but, unfortunately, history does not indicate that it was honestly made.

Leadership Was Lacking

I am not a pacifist. Until enlightened understanding points us to the council table of peace rather than to the battlefield, there will be a need for armies and navies. But let us not say that we choose the latter course in ignorance of the tremendous costs of the game. Rather let us admit generally the lack of courageous leadership which dares to align itself with the right at the risk of being unpopular.

The point I would make is that, without prejudice as to guilt, the human element did fail in 1914, and the world then began its march to the tragedy of 1930-31. For it is tragedy when in a world of plenty there should be so much poverty, and when, in a nation which boasts of its riches, five million or more people willing to work should be unable to find employment.

It is a challenge to the world, and especially to American business and political leadership, which cannot be ignored and must not be shirked. Causes must be determined with some degree of accuracy and remedies discovered and applied. The task is largely that of business leadership.

We would follow almost endlessly the literature on causes and remedies for the world situation, most of them dealing with the purely economic or the semi-political-economic side of the question. To the lay mind it is all more or less confusing, and to the man at the desk frequently beyond the realm of the practical.

Human Angle of Problem

In speaking more particularly of the character of responsible leadership in America, I am assuming that human conduct has differed little in most countries of the world. It is my purpose to talk about the human side of the problem.

If it is the responsibility of business and political leadership to promote the economic and social welfare of the community, it may be worth while to take stock of our conduct and see how we have measured up to our duty in recent years. This much, however, seems certain. The "new era" theory current in the days of our inflated prosperity was a myth, and is equally valueless in our search of relief.

The forces that have been and are at work are as old as the history of economics. Why should there be in this land of plenty, with unlimited facilities for production, abundant harvests, and a surfeit of credit, millions of hungry and unemployed? It is not the fault of those who would work, but can find no work to do. They have little or no choice in shaping their course and while it is true that society owes no one a living, society as far as humanly possible does owe every one an opportunity to earn a living.

In that obligation we have failed, and until we know wherein we have failed and why, we will not have found that stability which is the universal desire of mankind today.

HYDROPHOBIA AND FOLKS

I lived next door to a fine young fellow that worked as a carpenter in San Antonio back in 1922 and he had bought the house next door.
 He was always busy making the house a better home to live in and one Sunday morning as he was putting around the front door a little white dog that belonged to two nice little tots across the street, flew over the curb and drove straight at the mans hand, a week from

When TEETHING makes HIM FUSSY
 One of the most important things you can do to make a teething baby comfortable is to see that little jewels do their work of carrying off waste matter promptly and regularly. For this nothing is better than CASTORIA, a pure vegetable preparation specially made for babies and children. CASTORIA acts so gently you can give it to young infants to relieve pain. Yet it is always effective, for older children, too. Remember, CASTORIA contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics—is absolutely harmless. When your baby is fretful with nothing or a food upset, give a cleansing dose of CASTORIA. Be sure you get genuine CASTORIA with the name: Wm. D. Galt
CASTORIA

the following Sunday we all stood bareheaded in the beautiful Mission Burial Park and saw his body lowered to its last resting place, and all that was heard was the horror carried to us by the audible sobbing of his pretty little widow.
 He was rushed to Austin to take the Pastuer treatment but to no avail, the agony he suffered as the disease progressed, mental and physical, will never be forgotten by his folks, and as this spring comes again, as a memorial to this needless victim of other folks carelessness, I am asking the editor of this paper to print this story, with this request, kill the dog if you can't vaccinate him.—Another Editor.

COST OF "PATENT" MEDICINES

The committee appointed by Secretary Wilbur to report on "patent medicines" completes its work after three years of investigation and supplies some figures. It finds that one-fourth of all the money spent for medicines goes for simple household remedies which require no professional prescription and little call on pharmacists or drug stores. Another quarter is for prescriptions by physicians, and the remaining half, or about $360,000,000, goes for the so-called "patent" medicines, many of which have no medicinal value and most of which are not patented at all.
 Such an expenditure for "patent" medicines is not a large item, after all. It amounts to only a million dollars a day, or less than $3 a year per capita, or between $12 and $15 a year to the family. At least two or three times as much money is "invested" in blue sky securities every year. The report shows that doctor's prescriptions come to only about $1.50 per capita a year. About twice as much goes into "patent" medicines, and the American people in addition spend about $15,000,000 a year for fraudulent "cures" of one kind or another. A good deal of money is squandered in the numerous cancer "cures". Says the Wilbur committee: "So long as secrecy of composition (of medicines) is permissible, so long as the public is kept in ignorance of the proper uses and value of common drugs, the quack will find some method to ply his trade."

 A good many people who have no confidence in the medical profession are ardent defenders of their favorite quacks, quack medicines, and quack "cures". This is a natural human reaction due to contempt for professions, experts, and specialists. There are people who distrust them all and on all subjects. Probably many more persons regard economists and tax specialists, for example, as pretentious frauds than regard lawyers and doctors as in that class. They follow after noisy but incompetent wind jammers in all professions alike. If all this human falling cost in medicine were $360,000,000 a year, it would not be so bad. But in matters of health the worst of it is that self-diagnosis through patent medicine literature too often delays resort to competent physicians until too late.—Star-Telegram.

ADVISE TO THE MOTORIST

The following advice to the motorist, given by Maxwell Halsey of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, should be impressed upon every driver:
 1. Regulate your speed to driving conditions. Twenty-five miles per hour may be more dangerous than 45 miles per hour under certain conditions.
 2. Do not drive faster than will permit you to stop within the assured clear distance ahead. Some one may suddenly come out of an intersection or around a curve.
 3. Know the rules and regulations and obey them. They are designed to bring safety and their disobedience will cause accidents.
 4. Keep on your side of the

 10. Slow down and be particularly careful when pavement is slippery, when visibility is poor and during the evening peak hour—4 to 6 p. m.
 These rules deserve careful study. Following them should eliminate, to the greatest degree, the possibility of accident. They are based purely on courtesy and common sense—two great friends of accident prevention.

MAPLE FIG PUDDING

Don't get into a recipe-rut! If you have been serving the same dishes for dessert, month after month, try out these two new recipes and watch the smiles that greet their appearance.
Maple Fig Pudding
 1/2 lb. dried figs 1/2 cup self-rising flour
 1/2 cup maple syrup 1 1/2 tsp. sugar
 1/2 cup boiling water 2 tsp. shortening
 4 tsp. milk
 Soak the figs in cold water to cover, until soft. Then cut in halves. Place the figs in a greased baking dish and mix the maple syrup and the boiling water and pour over the figs. Cover the dish and steam for one-half hour. In the meantime make a dough mixture as follows: Mix and sift together the self-rising flour and sugar. Work in the shortening and when well blended add the milk sufficient to make a soft dough. Remove the baking dish from the steamer, cover the figs with the dough, cover the baking dish, return to the steamer and allow it to steam for one hour. This pudding should be eaten hot and may be served with whipped cream, although the fig syrup makes a rich sauce. Serves 6.
Hawaiian Delight.
 1 1/2 cups self-rising flour 1 egg
 1 cup milk 1/2 cup milk
 1 tsp. melted butter 1 tsp. sugar
 1/2 tsp. cinnamon 1/2 tsp. cinnamon
 1 cup grated pineapple 1 tsp. sugar
 Measure and sift together the self-rising flour and sugar. Beat the egg until light and to it add the milk and melted butter. Add gradually to the dry ingredients, stirring constantly. Beat, spread in a greased pan and sprinkle the top with a mixture of one tablespoon of sugar and the cinnamon. Bake at 400 degrees F. for twenty minutes, or until done. Cut in squares and serve hot with the grated pineapple over it. Serves 8.

Industry Must Go On

The wheels of industry must continue to turn—the World must be fed and clothed, and it must have some of those things to which we have become accustomed in modern life.
 Conditions are not always the same, and at times it is difficult and discouraging, as it has been during the past several months. It is a period of adjustment to conditions that obtain now and will likely influence the future.
 "Safety First," should be the keynote, and there is no better assurance of safety than in making our living at home and economizing where economy is possible.
 We are assured of but one thing—that business conditions will be on a firmer foundation than ever before when at last this adjustment is complete.
 Keep the wheels turning, but let your operations be safe and self supporting.

FRIENDS OF DEPRESSION

Idle dollars are the best friends of depression.

They do no one good. Stuck away in strong boxes—or cosks—they are entirely worthless. They are unable to do their bit in carrying on the financial work of the world. They are a sign of fear, of a hysterical kind of conservatism that mistakes hoarding for thrift.

True thrift is a fine thing. It is the source of the money that builds plants, buys and operates machinery, employs men, keeps the wheels of industry going.

As an advertisement of the Northern States Power Company recently said: "The opportunity to earn a return on investment is better today than for years. Banks pay interest on deposits regularly. Sound securities earn, and pay, a regular, safe income."

The hoarder is cheating himself—of greater importance, he is cheating us all. He is prolonging unemployment, profitless prices, the accumulation of goods for which there is no market because people have no money to buy. He is, in the full sense of the word, anti-social.

This is worth remembering: Idle dollars are the best friends of depression.

SILVER AND DEPRESSION

The longer depression lasts, the more important the silver problem become.

The depression price of silver adversely influences employment and industrial activity in every country in the world. Those countries which are on the silver standard of coinage have seen their purchasing power drop away to a fraction of its former level—leaving them with no money to buy in countries which have the gold standard. These latter countries thus lose the foreign trade which, few years back, kept a multitude of factories going and provided employment, in the whole or part, for millions of workers.

Efforts are being made, on an international scale, to stabilize the price of silver and give it a proper relation to the value of gold. These efforts, if they succeed, will benefit the entire world—silver standard countries and gold standard countries alike. Because of that, they deserve the support of the officials and the general public of all nations.

A REAL ISSUE

It is within the realm of possibility that the great issue in political campaigns of the future will be simply this: The growth of Federal bureaucracy with resulting encroachment on the rights and liberties of the people.

This is a real issue which must eventually be decided. The ordinary citizen, both as a business man and as a member of organized society, has seen America become more and more "Russianized." He begins to realize that unless the present trend is stopped, the inevitable consequence will be a political dictatorship. To use an old and melodramatic phrase, a day of reckoning must come.
