The reason why a village goes backward sometimes is because the stores go backward. The merchants of a town make a town a good one or a poor one. If they make it a poor one poor one, it is mainly because they are not good merchants; if they make it a good one it is mainly because they are not poor merchants. The time has passed when any retail merchant can maintain a flourishing business without appealing to the buying instinct of his possible customers. Advertising reminds the people of their needs, invites them to where their needs can be supplied. A store that nobody mentions is a store that does no advertsing sistently. This is invariable. Manufacturers evidently didn't believe that the "New Deal" was going to increase demand for the different products so fast, as local washing machine dealers, tire dealers, and others report that they are out of "soap" and can't get any more. The latter part of last week when the farmers were in full swing in getting their trailers ready for the cotton harvest a large shortage in 30x3 1-2 tires was reported by local tire and it took several days of urgent ordering to get the shortage filled.

G. C. Holden reports that he has washing machines sold that he cannot deliver, as the manufacturing company is thousands of machines behind the demand.

If the present demand holds up, all of the factories in the United States will be running full speed again, and the nation will see a boom like the one we had in "29.

When there is sickness in the home the family physician is consulted. A lawyer is called when there is trouble brewing and a minister is summoned when there is grief in the family. But when advertising and printing are needed, very often the inexperienced merchant tries his own hand at it and fails of full results. The price of printing is a very small factor of the whole-results are all-important, and it's real economy, good judgement and sensible business for a business man to take his local printer into confidence. He is a specialist in that particular line the same as the doctor, lawyer or minister.

The above was taken from the Muleshoe Journal and we believe local merchants can, too, profit by Editor Mitchell's
