Worth Food Mart Began Operating In State in '35

Worth Food Mart, now operating as a division of Food Mart, Inc., a publicly owned corporation with headquarters in Texas, first began operation on July 15, 1935, through the merger of Healy-Seify and Alexander Dale Stores.

This merger was effected to create a company strong enough to survive the history-making depression years and brought together three extremely conscientious, capable and determined men.

These three men, namely Homer Covey, Ira Kernick, and H. O. Childress, not only found time to chart a course of tremendous progress which has seen the organization grow from 13 small grocery stores to the 34 unit supermarket division, but also found time for active participation in all of the larger civic projects of the community.

Homer Covey's handshake became a by word throughout the area and came to represent the wholehearted Texas spirit of friendliness.

FORESIGHT

From the beginning, the founders of Worth Food Mart established a policy of friendly, efficient and courteous service in furnishing high quality merchandise to its customers at the lowest possible prices. This policy has been maintained through the years and is perhaps the one single reason for the firm's tremendous growth.

In order to furnish efficient service Worth Food Mart are strategically located throughout the communities it serves. The new 100,000 square foot warehouse, located at 1250 West Seminary Drive in Fort Worth is another example of Worth Food Mart's policy of building into the future. Although this warehouse should be more than adequate for years to come enough land was purchased to accommodate many times the present warehouse space.

Worth Food Mart operates 34 of the company's 65 supermarkets. Twenty-two of these stores are located in the metropolitan area of Fort Worth, five are located in Dallas and other stores are located in Irving, Hillsboro, Ranger, Eastland, Cisco, Coleman and Graham.

The company's El Paso division operates stores in El Paso, Midland, Odessa, Pecos, Kermit and most of Southern New Mexico. By the end of 1959, Worth Food Mart will open 10 new, modern supermarkets; five in Fort Worth, four in Dallas, one in Garland and a larger store to replace the present unit in Weatherford. The El Paso division will open five new units in its area during the same period.

Not too many years ago on a trip to the grocery store the customer would stand in front of a long counter, calling off each item on his list as a clerk reached for the various items from the shelves behind him. Truly, a far cry from today's modern Worth Food Mart. Today, as you enter the spacious wide-aisled stores you push a free-wheeling, rubber-wheeled cart down the well-lighted aisles and make your selection from a wide choice of the finest items maintained by all the Worth Food Mart's. Today's stocks of merchandise are extra fresh. Special care and attention in storing and displaying the merchandise assures customers of the freshest possible merchandise. This is true in the canned and packaged goods departments as well as the dairy, meat, fruit and vegetable and bakery departments of every Worth Food Mart.

Retailing Of Turkeys Is On the Increase

College Station - Retailing of fresh and frozen turkey parts is gradually increasing in Texas stores, according to Dr. H. E. Branson of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

At least one regional food chain has found a ready market for the product. Inadequate supplies, he said, rather than lack of consumer demand have been the main problem.

A survey of shoppers at a Texas supermarket handling turkey parts showed that they are steady users of the product. More than half the shoppers interviewed served turkey parts three to five times a month, said Dr. Branson. The turkey is sold in many forms such as, parts, steaks, cut-up and in patties.

Retail food stores and processors are increasing their interest in year-round merchandising of turkey in these several forms. These new merchandising methods should be of interest to those food dealers desiring to maximize their share of the expanding market for this product.

The survey showed that the most popular turkey parts are sold to higher income families as parts or as deboned turkey steaks. The bonier parts are purchased by lower income shoppers.

Size, freshness, cleanliness and plumpness of the turkey parts are considered most by shoppers, he said. Those buying turkey parts rated them very favorably as to family acceptance compared with other meats such as beef, pork, fish and chicken.

A wide variety of dishes can be made with turkey parts. Baking is the most prevalent method of preparation. Other methods include smothered, steamed, stewed, creamed, soup and salads, Dr. Branson added.

This survey is available from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station.

Singing to Be Held in Gorman

The regular monthly singing will be held in Gorman Sunday afternoon beginning at 2 p. m. A spokesman reported that several guest singers were expected to be present.

Up a steep mud-choked wash—Positraction pays off!
Through a mountain stream—deep in Avinlaquin Canyon.

NO MOUNTAIN CAT, MISTER...

That's a Chevy with Positraction!

That 3134 Fleetside has the sure-footed ways of a big western bobcat. Roams through high brush country that would buck the life out of most trucks. Crosses streams without benefit of a bridge. Climbs talus grades where pignon won't even grow. But that's all routine for this Chevy, equipped with Positraction* rear axle. It's hard at it every day for the Utah Fish and Game commission. Figure about 60,000 miles of mountaineering before this Chevy is traded. And yet the district officer who drives it would bet his badge the tie rods won't even need replacing!

Out in that wild, climbing Utah country, Chevy's suspension and frame and brakes, its Positraction rear axle and Thriftmaster 6 power are proving themselves under rougher conditions than most test engineers could dream up. They're proving that Chevrolet's advanced engineering and design ideas pay off—in spades—when the going gets especially mean and dirty.

Positraction, of course, is a big plus on this job, providing the sure grip needed to dig through mud, snow, loose sand, whatever comes along. Could be that a Positraction-equipped 1/2-ton pickup is the answer for your area of operation. Or maybe a 4-wheel drive Chevy. We've got trucks that specialize in getting in and out of any kind of country. Talk to your dealer about your needs. He'll show you what tough trucks are made of.

By applying now, a veteran can beat the rush and can eliminate any chance of a delay at the last minute, Onstot said. To help veterans get started, he issued this check list.

1. Since the law allows a veteran to change his GI course only once, he should give plenty of thought in advance, to his goal.

2. If he is undecided about what to train for, he may ask for VA vocational counseling.

3. He should be sure that his course has been GI-approved by the state in which the school is located.

4. He should make all arrangements for gaining admission to his school before he even files his application with VA.

5. The GI training application should be completely filled out and signed. The veteran should send it, along with a photostat or certified copy of his separation paper, or VA regional office.

6. A veteran with dependents should have the necessary proof of dependency.

7. A veteran should take along enough money of his own to tide him over the first two months of training. It takes about that long, ordinarily, for his first monthly GI check to reach him.
