Three Tornadoes Spotted In Area

No Injuries; Little Damage Is Reported

Three tornado funnels were reported sighted in Eastland County Wednesday afternoon, and two of them touched ground, causing minor damage. The twisters were accompanied by rain and hail.

The first tornado funnel to hit ground destroyed a barn near Carbon. Two others were seen about eight miles southeast of Eastland on the Whit Graham place. One of the twisters touched ground and tipped up a tree, but the other failed to touch down, it was said. Half the size of golf balls accompanied the small tornado funnels in that area.

Heavy hail broke out windshields on vehicles near the Carbon storm area. And in the Nimrod community the home of Garland Pharr was damaged when lightning struck in the kitchen, starting a small fire in electrical fixtures. A radio and electric mixer were damaged.

The Ranger area escaped the heavy storm path. Approximately one-half inch of rain fell in the city limits area. There was no wind damage reported.

The Lake Leon area was hit by heavy rain and hail. The hail falling in the lake area was small in size, but large in quantity. There was a report of approximately three inches of rain in part of that area.

Little League Park Scene Of Vandalism

Ranger's Little League Baseball Park was the scene of a disgraceful demonstration of vandalism Wednesday night.

Some Ranger juveniles broke into the concession stand at the Little League Park and took coke bottles and broke them all over the playing area of the park. Approximately four cases of bottles, some full and some empty were broken and scattered over the field. Broken glass was scattered all through the grass and on the base pattern.

There was no evidence of anything being taken from the concession stand other than the bottles that were thrown on the field.

The act could endanger the safety of any of the little ball players if the glass is not all picked up. It wasn't an act of youthful prankism, but an act of vandalism that shows the true character of those that were involved in the act. It is hard to visualize what could prompt an act of this type. It would have to be called a crime against society, and the minds that thought up the act would have to be motivated by a terrible disposition.

Ralph Veal, constable, started to work on the case early Thursday morning, shortly after the damage was discovered. By 9:30 Thursday morning he had secured a confession from one of the boys involved in the act, and had the name of another boy involved.

Plans Made For Civic Organization

A group of local citizens held a meeting at the Ranger College cafeteria Tuesday night and founded an organization which all interested parties think will be of great benefit to the city of Ranger.

It is the desire of the organization to enlist in its ranks the entire population of Ranger. All that is needed for membership in its ranks is active participation.

At the Tuesday meeting the organization elected for its officers, Carl Black, chairman; Leon and Pauline, vice-chairman; and Byron Galley, secretary.

The city of Ranger was divided into 15 residential districts with a neighborhood representative elected for each district, plus three business district representatives. The neighborhood representatives are Curtis Dawson, Charles Miliken, Nath Pirkle, E. F. Artobryn, Carl Black, Ronald Carroll, Mrs. H. C. Crona, Dr. Charles Verlon Tollet, Bill Ogden, Jim Blair, Leonard Pounds, Ted Nickstick and Jesse Cole. The business district representatives are (F. P.) Pete Brasher, Floyd Killingsworth and Byron Galley.

President McKinley Once Said—

"I do not prize the word CHEAP. It's not a word of hope, nor cheer, nor inspiration. To the contrary, it is a badge of dishonesty, the sign of distress. Cheap merchandise means cheap men and cheap men a cheap country". The quotation reminds us of a friend who bought a ranch in another state, demanded a cheap abstract and got it. He's busted now and the abstractor who accommodated him died of a broken heart. The moral is, don't do it!

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

PARENTAL CONSENT NEEDED FOR CHILD'S MEDICAL CARE

It's a good idea to give written consent for necessary medical care if your child leaves home for a visit or a camping trip, or if you plan to be away for any length of time.

For example, a summer camp nurse may bring a boy into a hospital with an acute case of appendicitis. But the doctor may well hesitate to go ahead and operate without the parent's consent.

Is the doctor arbitrary, and is such permission just a legal technicality? No, he is well within his rights, though he may give first aid—but only for emergency treatment where a child's health or life may be at stake. He is likely to put off follow-up care until he can reach the child's parents. A relative or baby sitter generally cannot consent for a child's treatment.

Even an adult must request treatment and grant consent to medical care on his own before a doctor can give it to him. Children cannot do this.

By going to your doctor you show your willingness and consent to accept his treatment. Your consent is assumed also when you ask for a house call by the doctor, or if as a result of an accident you come to a hospital for emergency treatment. If you are unconscious, the doctor may well give you emergency care, yet later he should get your consent to further treatment.

Minors cannot consent to medical treatment, and except in dire emergencies their parents or guardians must give it for them. The consent should not be broadly or loosely phrased, but should be as specific as circumstances permit.

The principal reason for having the consent in writing is to avoid later misunderstandings. It is a protection both to the patient and physician.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Quick Relief of HEADACHE

For faster, more complete relief of headache, neuralgia, neuritis pains, take STANBACK Tablets or Powders. STANBACK'S S. A. (Synergistic Action)—the combined action of several medically-approved ingredients in one easy-to-take dose—eases anxiety and tension, starts bringing relief right away.

Desirable Birds Can Be An Asset

Birds appeal to nearly everyone because of their natural beauty, sp. gilly actions and pleasing songs. Much can be done to attract song birds to the home and garden to increase enjoyment of bird study, reports Ed Cooper, extension wildlife specialist. Feeding trays and nest boxes can be constructed to offer the lawn and garden more appealing to native birds. Many types of shrubs can be planted to offer the food, shade and protection required by certain types of birds.

There are many things to take into consideration when planning to make an area attractive to birds, Cooper says. Certain birds require nest boxes of specific dimensions. Cats and other natural enemies must be prevented access to bird houses and nests. Certain types of food are necessary to attract desirable birds rather than undesirable species such as the English sparrow. Good watering facilities also add much to a bird sanctuary, Cooper points out.

Texas Scientists Receive Cancer Society Grants, Garrett Reveals

Three Texas scientists and one institution received American Cancer Society grants totaling $81,313 it was learned here today by H. R. Garrett, district director. Two of the scientists are at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston. Dr. A. Clark Griffin received $12,846. "To Isolate Factors from Malignant Tissue affecting Metabolism" and Dr. Saul Kit received $13,900 to study "The Nucleic Acids of Normal Tissues and Tumors."

Dr. William C. Levin of the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston was awarded $39,767 to investigate the "Methods for the Diagnosis and Management of Dysant Paraproteinemia Associated with Malignancies." An institutional grant of $15,000 went to the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School and is under the direction of Jack A. Pritchard.

Garrett revealed that these new research grants brought to $1,839,736 the amount allocated for cancer research since 1945 in the state of Texas as part of the American Cancer Society's nationwide research program.

Currently, he stated, 13 grants totaling $228,356 are in effect in Texas, including M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Clinic, Baylor University College of Medicine, Houston; Southwestern Medical School, Dallas; and the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston. These, he stated, are part of the $15,409,353 in ACS research projects now in effect throughout the nation.

Garrett stated that these recent grants and others in effect are funds returned to Texas from the annual April educational fund raising Crusade conducted by the society in each Texas community. In addition to the 68c of every cancer dollar which stays in Texas,

Plant Temporary Pastures for Summer Grazing

Summer temporary pastures are valuable for several reasons. Probably the most important is that they offer one of the most dependable sources of summer grazing, says George McBea, extension pasture specialist of College Station. Also, with proper management they will provide a large volume of high quality grazing, permitting permanent pastures to be rested.

Several types of plants can be used. Sudan is still one of the most dependable. Varieties of Sudan include Sweet, Common, Tift, Piper and others.

Pearl millet is suggested for use where Sudan does not produce satisfactorily, mainly on acid, sandy soils of East Texas and severely eroded soils of Central Texas. Varieties include Georgia Hybrid No. 1, Common, Starr and Texas No. 7.

Perennial sweet Sorgrass can also be used the agronomist says. It has a sweet stalk which is coarser than Sudan and the peak of grazing is mid-summer to fall. It should be handled as an annual.

Another, sorghum alnum, is nonsweet and has a larger stalk than Sudan. It gives more grazing in mid-summer to fall than Sudan and is more successful when handled as an annual.

Planting in 36 to 42 inch rows will give a longer grazing period than will broadcast planting, McBea says. Other advantages of planting in rows are: livestock won't trample as much of the pasture and weed control is easier. He suggests more than one planting in order to extend the grazing period.

Fertilizer should be used if needed and applied according to a soil test, McBea adds. During growing season, when moisture is available, applications of 20 to 40 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre

T. W. McClearn Participates in Army Exercise

Army Specialist Four Thurman W. McClearn, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barney E. McClearn, Gorman, is participating with other personnel from the 1st Armored Division in Exercise Big Thurst, a two-week field maneuver at Fort Hood. The maneuver is scheduled to end May 15.

Big Thurst, being conducted under simulated combat conditions, is providing nearly 6,000 participating troops with training in military operations expected on the modern battlefield.

Specialist McClearn, a mechanic in Company B of the division's 1234 Ordnance Battalion at Fort Hood, entered the Army in 1957. He attended Stephenville High School. His wife, Opal, lives in Killeen.

Producers Alerted On Hog Cholera

The percentage of pigs vaccinated for hog cholera is not adequate to prevent widespread losses in the event of an epidemic, warns Dr. C. M. Patterson, extension veterinarian of College Station.

Last year, with seven million head more pigs farrowed than in 1958, this follows a general trend which has prevailed for the past five or six years.

If the trend toward less vaccination continues, only about one-third of the nation's hogs will be protected against hog cholera. This is too low a percentage to stop heavy losses if the disease becomes widespread, Dr. Patterson says.

There is no evidence at this time that the incidence of hog cholera is increasing. However, fewer vaccinations could set the stage for costly outbreaks of the disease.

Available vaccines and vaccination procedures are effective, but they should be used before summer, when the incidence of this disease is usually greatest.

The best time to vaccinate is in the spring or fall when pigs are young. Also, it is the most economical time to vaccinate, since pigs are smaller and easier to handle. Vaccinating now would decrease the chances of a widespread epidemic, the veterinarian points out.

Losses from hog cholera are estimated to be about $40 million annually.

The disease occurs in practically all parts of the country, and without protection in major swine-producing areas, it could seriously affect farm income.

Hog cholera is caused by a virus and is more prevalent in the Midwest and South, where hogs are raised in large numbers. Vaccination is not a cure or a treatment for the disease—only a preventative, says Dr. Patterson.

New Book Tells Story of Indian Tribes in County

The history of the Indian tribes that once roamed Eastland County and the pioneers who settled the land is vividly brought to life in a new book, "Arrows Over Texas," a recent release of the Naylor Company, San Antonio.

The author, Robert S. Reading, has spent 26 years compiling the material for his book which promises to be an important contribution to the archeological records of the state.

Reading made a careful search throughout more than 170 Texas counties for Indian campsites, cave paintings and artifacts and has collected more than 44,000 artifacts.

Eastland County has an important place in this serious documentary, engrossing study.

Presents of Equal Value

Dear Mrs. Post: We recently had our first baby. Friends of ours, a young married couple, gave the baby a quite expensive present. This couple are expecting a baby in several months and we would like to know if we are obligated to give their baby a present of similar value. We are both in the same financial bracket but I feel that a present of the same value is beyond our means at the present time. My wife thinks it would not be proper and very "cheap" to give anything less to their baby.

Answer: It is not necessary to give a present of equal value. You give their baby the nicest present you can afford. You might explain that it isn't as wonderful a present as they gave your baby but that it is the best you could afford at the present time.

When One Is Paged
Dear Mrs. Post: When staying in a hotel and one is paged, is the page boy supposed to be given a tip, and if so, how much?

Answer: Yes. A quarter is the usual tip.
A Present That Arrives Broken
Dear Mrs. Post: One of the wedding presents sent me, through the mail, was broken when it reached me. In my note of thanks, should I mention this fact, or do I simply thank her for the lovely dish? My sister thinks that if I write that it was broken, the person who sent it will feel obligated to replace it with something else.

Answer: It will be best not to say the gift was broken unless it came by insured mail or directly from the store in which it was bought. In this case, they would be responsible for its safe arrival and would surely replace it.

Repaying Real Kindness
Dear Mrs. Post: I have been seriously ill and a neighbor of mine has been bringing meals over to me and has taken my laundry home to do for me. I would like to show my appreciation for her kindness but am afraid to offer to pay her for fear of insulting her. What would be the best and proper way to show my appreciation?

Answer: You thank her and express your appreciation, and hope that some day you may be able to return at least a part of her kindness. In the meantime, try to find something for her house that she would like, or a plant, and send it to her.

Typewritten Personal Letters
Dear Mrs. Post: I had an argument today with a friend on the subject of using the typewriter for personal notes. He said that it was not proper for social notes and I said it was, and gave you as my authority. But he said I have to prove that you wrote it before he'd believe it.

Answer: One should never use the typewriter for third person invitations, acceptances or regrets. And notes of sympathy as well as thank-you notes for presents must be written by hand. But personal letters—especially if of any length—are not only proper, but in many cases preferably written on the typewriter.

Eating Honeydew Melon
Dear Mrs. Post: We recently had a discussion on the correct way to eat honeydew melon. Some said that it should be cut with a knife and the others said that it should be scooped out with a spoon. Which is correct?

Answer: Most people prefer to use a knife and fork to eat a honeydew or other melon served in portions that are one-third or less of the whole. To use a spoon instead of a knife and fork is not, however, incorrect.

Blowing One's Nose at Table

Dear Mrs. Post: Quite often of late I have noticed an increasing number of people blow their noses in a public dining room. Not too infrequently have I had someone at my own table do this. I find this habit quite nauseating and since these are people of seeming refinement I have often wondered if my resentment is in error, or is it permissible to do this? Eating alone, I would say it would be quite all right, but never when another person is seated at table. I would appreciate your comments on this not very pleasant subject.

Answer: One should, of course, avoid blowing one's nose at table if possible. But if this is unavoidable it should be done as briefly and silently as possible, and one does not draw further attention to it by spitting. It is not necessary to leave the table.

A Widow's Wedding Anniversary
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me if it is correct to send gifts and cards on a fiftieth wedding anniversary to a person whose husband is no longer living?

Answer: No! Most certainly not. Anything sent to her on this day would only remind her of her great loss.

An All Day Wedding
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to have the wedding ceremony in the morning and the reception take place in the evening?

Answer: Correctly, the wedding reception should follow immediately after the ceremony. In my opinion, nothing could be more inconsiderate of wedding guests than to expect them to go home and change into other clothes, watch the clock, dress again in wedding clothes and go back for the reception. And in the case of out-of-town guests who can't go home the inconvenience is even greater.

Bringing a Cake to Dinner
Dear Mrs. Post: We have been invited to dinner at the house of a former neighbor of ours who recently moved to the suburbs. When they lived nearby we visited them often but never had dinner with them. I would like to know if it would be proper for me to take a homemade cake with me for the hostess. I am considered a very good baker and I thought it would be nice to take a cake. However, I have been told that it is not proper to take food when invited to anyone's house for dinner as it implies that she might not have enough to eat. I certainly don't want to do the wrong thing.

Answer: Unless your cakes are an outstanding speciality and you have reason to believe that she would very much like to have one, I would not advise you to take a cake.

Shaking Hands Properly
Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me the proper way to shake hands?

Answer: The proper handshake is made briefly; but there should be a feeling of strength and warmth in the clasp. This does not mean a vise-like grasp that temporarily paralyzes the fingers of the other person nor should you proffer a boneless hand as though it were a spray of seaweed or a broiled fish. Women merely clasp hands, give them a dropping movement rather than a shake, and let go.

A Simple Reception
Dear Mrs. Post: I'm having a small wedding (about 75 guests) and the same number also to the reception, at which only little sandwiches and cakes will be served with champagne. I think we could enclose reply cards for answers and Mother feels these might suggest more of a reception; that is, more food. Do you think so?

Answer: I agree with your mother that the request for a reply would suggest a rather elaborate collation.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-21, entitled "Model Notes," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E. P., care of (name of newspaper), P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

CLASS OPTIMIST

Glenda Rains
Did you listen to the Class Grumbler? Honestly, I began to tremble when he got up, and his final words fairly made my teeth rattle. The unpardonable sin couldn't possibly be worse than inflicting such a gloomy outlook on a group of people gathered for what should be a pleasant occasion. Perhaps I can say something which will overcome the effect such ideas are bound to have on unsuspecting listeners.

I think Ranger is a grand town, and Ranger High School is a super-grand school. The teachers know their business, and every one of them is interested in every single pupil in the whole school. Nothing anyone could say would change my mind. In Mr. Russ's classes, it is true that no one needs hearing aids, and we all sit up and pay attention and in that way we are guided into learning. Mr. Wilhelm may always give Don the hardest problems but I think each of us has had his share of hard problems and each of us is a better student because of that fact. And, as far as the rules and regulations, there are not any which do not make life better for all of us if we obey them. Nobody, I am sure, would want to live in a country without an

"The Grumbler also seemed to think that there isn't room in the world for the average man or woman. In fact, he tried to give the impression that only a favored few are permitted to hear Opportunity knock on their door. Let me assure you that the Grumbler is wrong! There is always room at the top for the people who are willing to put forth every ounce of effort of which he is capable. Perhaps the world does not roll out the red carpet at commencement night and wait at the door with a brass band, but there is a place for a man or woman who fits

"I do not prize the word CHEAP. It's not a word of hope, nor cheer, nor inspiration. To the contrary, it is a badge of dishonesty, the sign of distress. Cheap merchandise means cheap men and cheap men a cheap country". The quotation reminds us of a friend who bought a ranch in another state, demanded a cheap abstract and got it. He's busted now and the abstractor who accommodated him died of a broken heart. The moral is, don't do it!

himself or herself to occupy it.
Don would probably have even objected to Class Day and Commencement Programs if it hadn't given him a chance to tell every one his pet peeves. I think Class Day is wonderful. It gives the graduates a chance to dress up in their best b-b and tucker, and all their parents a chance to sit in the audience and enjoy what their children are doing. Don would probably want the President of the School Board to hand us our diplomas as we left the building on the last day of school and then the members of the class would be deprived of the privilege of walking across the stage with all the dignity they could muster.

And then Don said Homer thought so much of himself because he was a football star. All of us know Homer put his best into what he was doing even though he didn't know which one was his man. And after all, don't you think that Don's idea of staying on the bottom of the pile to keep warm was a pretty good one?

One time I heard a man say the difference between a pessimist and an optimist is that when everything looks dark the optimist turns on a light, but the pessimist slips up and turns it out!

We need optimism all through school. Some way, it makes everything better when you can catch a gleam of hope and find something beautiful in what otherwise might be humdrum. To me, optimists are people who see things as they are, as they could be if people everywhere looked at them right and did their best to engineer the world's affairs so they would remain right.

Don and I have been looking at the same building, the same people, and the same circumstances. Think over what each of us has said and decide for yourself what you will believe and how you will govern your own life.

GREETINGS:

The world today is in great need of your time and effort. The very best of luck in the years ahead.

Presents of Equal Value

Dear Mrs. Post: We recently had our first baby. Friends of ours, a young married couple, gave the baby a quite expensive present. This couple are expecting a baby in several months and we would like to know if we are obligated to give their baby a present of similar value. We are both in the same financial bracket but I feel that a present of the same value is beyond our means at the present time. My wife thinks it would not be proper and very "cheap" to give anything less to their baby.

Answer: It is not necessary to give a present of equal value. You give their baby the nicest present you can afford. You might explain that it isn't as wonderful a present as they gave your baby but that it is the best you could afford at the present time.

When One Is Paged

Dear Mrs. Post: When staying in a hotel and one is paged, is the page boy supposed to be given a tip, and if so, how much?

Answer: Yes. A quarter is the usual tip.

A Present That Arrives Broken

Dear Mrs. Post: One of the wedding presents sent me, through the mail, was broken when it reached me. In my note of thanks, should I mention this fact, or do I simply thank her for the lovely dish? My sister thinks that if I write that it was broken, the person who sent it will feel obligated to replace it with something else.

Answer: It will be best not to say the gift was broken unless it came by insured mail or directly from the store in which it was bought. In this case, they would be responsible for its safe arrival and would surely replace it.

Repaying Real Kindness

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been seriously ill and a neighbor of mine has been bringing meals over to me and has taken my laundry home to do for me. I would like to show my appreciation for her kindness but am afraid to offer to pay her for fear of insulting her. What would be the best and proper way to show my appreciation?

Answer: You thank her and express your appreciation, and hope that some day you may be able to return at least a part of her kindness. In the meantime, try to find something for her house that she would like, or a plant, and send it to her.

Typewritten Personal Letters

Dear Mrs. Post: I had an argument today with a friend on the subject of using the typewriter for personal notes. He said that it was not proper for social notes and I said it was, and gave you as my authority. But he said I have to prove that you wrote it before he'd believe it.

Answer: One should never use the typewriter for third person invitations, acceptances or regrets. And notes of sympathy as well as thank-you notes for presents must be written by hand. But personal letters—especially if of any length—are not only proper, but in many cases preferably written on the typewriter.

Eating Honeydew Melon

Dear Mrs. Post: We recently had a discussion on the correct way to eat honeydew melon. Some said that it should be cut with a knife and the pieces taken up with a fork and the others said that it should be scooped out with a spoon. Which is correct?

Answer: Most people prefer to use a knife and fork to eat a honeydew or other melon served in portions that are one-third or less of the whole. To use a spoon instead of a knife and fork is not, however, incorrect.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her leaflet E-13, entitled "Let's Give a Shower," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E. P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y. Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail.

Blowing One's Nose at Table

Dear Mrs. Post: Quite often of late I have noticed an increasing number of people blow their noses in a public dining room. Not too infrequently have I had someone at my own table do this. I find this habit quite nauseating and since these are people of seeming refinement I have often wondered if my resentment is in error, or is it permissible to do this? Eating alone, I would say it would be quite all right, but never when another person is seated at table. I would appreciate your comments on this not very pleasant subject.

Answer: One should, of course, avoid blowing one's nose at table if possible. But if this is unavoidable it should be done as briefly and silently as possible, and one does not draw further attention to it by apologizing. It is not necessary to leave the table.

A Widow's Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me if it is correct to send gifts and cards on a fiftieth wedding anniversary to a person whose husband is no longer living?

Answer: No! Most certainly not. Anything sent to her on this day would only remind her of her great loss.

An All Day Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it proper to have the wedding ceremony in the morning and the reception take place in the evening?

Answer: Correctly, the wedding reception should follow immediately after the ceremony. In my opinion, nothing could be more inconsiderate of wedding guests than to expect them to go home and change into other clothes, watch the clock, dress again in wedding clothes and go back for the reception. And in the case of out-of-town guests who can't go home the inconvenience is even greater.

Bringing a Cake to Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: We have been invited to dinner at the house of a former neighbor of ours who recently moved to the suburbs. When they lived nearby we visited them often but never had dinner with them. I would like to know if it would be proper for me to take a homemade cake with me for the hostess. I am considered a very good baker and I thought it would be nice to take a cake. However, I have been told that it is not proper to take food when invited to anyone's house for dinner as it implies that she might not have enough to eat. I certainly don't want to do the wrong thing.

Answer: Unless your cakes are an outstanding speciality and you have reason to believe that she would very much like to have one, I would not advise you to take a cake.

Shaking Hands Properly

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me the proper way to shake hands?

Answer: The proper handshake is made briefly; but there should be a feeling of strength and warmth in the clasp. This does not mean a vise-like grasp that temporarily paralyzes the fingers of the other person nor should you proffer a boneless hand as though it were a spray of seaweed or a broiled fish. Women merely clasp hands, give them a dropping movement rather than a shake, and let go.

A Simple Reception

Dear Mrs. Post: I'm having a small wedding (about 75 guests) and the same number also to the reception, at which only little sandwiches and cakes will be served with champagne. I think we could enclose reply cards for answers and Mother feels these might suggest more of a reception; that is, more food. Do you think so?

Answer: I agree with your mother that the request for a reply would suggest a rather elaborate collation.
