

As I See Ranger

By Gene Townsend

Ranger has accomplished in a few days what it takes months to do in some given situations. The decision of the City Council to make parallel parking on Main Street mandatory has done more for the looks of Main Street than any one thing that could have been done.

It is actually a relief to be able to drive down Main and not have to weave back and forth to get between oncoming traffic and parked cars. The improvement in safety of the street is enough to justify the moving of the meters.

Parallel parking is a problem for most of us, but I believe that with a little practice most everyone will be able to cope with the new parking problem.

Safety can jump up and hit anyone in the face at times. That is what it did to me Thursday afternoon. Off and on for years I have been skiing with the ski rope tied to one corner of the boat instead of fixing a bridle so the weight would be evenly distributed from both corners of the boat.

Accelerated progress is being made this summer in the application of conservation. This is especially noticeable in terrace construction. Since July 1, some 20 miles of terraces have been built by nine landowners in this vicinity.

The licenses will reach these deputies in time for buying by Sept. 1, when a new license is required. They will be available at most sporting goods stores, from county clerks and game wardens.

The 1960 cheer leaders, Jill Watkins, Janice Thompson, Sandra Vinson, Sue Graham and Patsy Nail are in Dallas attending a Cheer Leading School at SMU this week. They will return Friday.

W. W. Franklin, et al., of Eastland has a Caddo lime oil discovery near Nimrod. The try is the No. 1 Olga Schaefer, which flowed oil and gas on a drillstem test.

Gas surfaced in three minutes and oil in 50 minutes on the test taken at 2,860-2,880 feet. The try is three miles southwest of the Jo Kiel (Caddo) Pool.

Area All Wet and Mighty Glad of It!

Eastland County farmers are wearing their best smiles these days following some of the finest August rains ever to grace this area.

During the past week a total of 3.42 inches fell here, pushing the official reading for the month here up to 3.79 inches.

Peanut growers are most optimistic, some even going so far as to say their crops are made. Most wheat, however, that some good warm harvesting climate is still a necessity.

Until the good rains came—1.32 inches was recorded early Sunday morning following 2.10 inches earlier—the county was having a typical dry August. With the two heavy rains things changed considerably.

Area lakes and stock ponds filled back up after some had begun to show signs of a shortage of rainfall.

The total for the month to date is the most rain to fall here in August since 1950 and is 2.02 inches above normal. Total for the year now stands at 17.26 inches, which is still slightly shy of the eight month average rainfall, which is 17.26 inches. There are still a few days left in August, however.

The chart shows rainfall for the year compared to normal rainfall for this area:

Month	1960	Avg.
January	3.09	1.37
February	1.53	1.38
March	1.14	1.59
April	2.36	2.87
May	2.23	4.08
June	1.21	2.56
July	1.91	1.74
August	3.79	1.77
TOTALS	17.26	17.36

As the chart shows, rainfall here has been unusual since the best rains of the year have come in months which are usually dry. And May, which is always a good rain month in this county, was far below normal.

Many Terraces and Farm Ponds Built In County This Summer

Terraces in this area are built primarily for erosion protection in big rains. They are, however, very effective in this area in holding rainfall in place during small rains. Several farmers north of Cisco reported an increase of from seven to 11 bushels in small grain yields from terraced land.

Twenty-six landowners have built farm ponds since the first of July. Farm ponds are the primary source of livestock water in this area, and it is generally recognized that a good distribution of livestock water is essential for good range management.

Landowners who have recently built terraces are: Charles B. Woods, R. E. Baggett and E. C. Johnston all located north east of Eastland; G. C. Kimbrell and W. C. McGough, east of Eastland; Dick Foster of Gorman; H. A. Tyrone south of Carbon; and Jack Payne and Henry Schaefer of Cisco.

Under a recent change in the eligibility requirements for Farm Housing loans, a farmer who owns a farm that will annually produce for sale or home use at least $100 worth of commodities may, if he meets other eligibility requirements, be able to obtain a Farm Housing loan.

Previously, according to H. P. Cole, Farmers Home Administration County Supervisor for Eastland County, an applicant had to own a farm that would produce a substantial amount of the operator's income.

County Is Included In Gas Market Study

A program to expand the natural gas market in a nine county area which includes Eastland County has been initiated by the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association.

The immediate goal is to help promote outlets for gas from wells currently shut in for lack of buyers. The Association says dozens of such wells have been drilled in recent years.

W. N. (Bill) Tindell of Abilene is chairman of the committee and he has called for the cooperation of every gas producer or potential producer in the area to complete the study.

Tindell says drilling activity is lagging in a number of potentially good gas producing counties because pipeline connections are not available.

"A number of us believe the time has come when an improved market situation can be brought about by working together instead of individually."

Questionnaires will be mailed out in an effort to contact operators in the counties involved. The accumulated information then can be used for those prospective gas buyers what the area has to offer.

The fourth annual Central Texas Registered Angora Goat Breeders' Association show and sale will be held in Goldthwaite Friday and Saturday, August 26 and 27.

Courthouse Lighting Topic of County Court

Eastland County Commissioners had a long drawn out meeting Monday, but despite the time spent meeting with individuals and delegations, not too much was accomplished. While a few concrete developments came out of the meeting a lot of future work was lined up for the Court.

Texas Heroes Being Sought By Organization

The Texas Farm & Ranch Safety Council is looking for Texas heroes, people who have exhibited exceptional bravery at a time of crisis or disaster.

That organization will again recognize these outstanding Texans through presentation of "Rural Heroism Awards" on a local and state basis.

Three engraved plaques will be presented to state winners during the Texas Safety Association's annual meeting in March, and local presentations to all nominees are also being planned, said L. O. Tiedt, chairman of the Awards Committee.

In 1959, the single state award was presented to J. Manuel Carral, a Mexican bracero laborer who was lowered into an abandoned irrigation well to rescue a three-year-old boy.

Any heroic act involving personal danger or sacrifice to aid and assist others in a time of crisis is eligible for participation in the awards program, Tiedt said. However, the act must have been performed during 1960.

Edward C. Hart Gets Masters Degree At Tech

Edward Clegg Hart of Eastland was one of 92 Graduate School students who received degrees at Texas Tech Saturday at summer commencement exercises.

Hart received his master of science degree in electrical engineering. In all more than 500 were graduated at Tech.

Half of 1960 Senior Class Choose R. J. C.

A survey of the 1960 Ranger High School senior class shows that the majority of the seniors are planning to further their education, and the majority of these are planning to attend Ranger College.

Several members of the class have married since school was out and others are planning to get married soon.

Some are working and plan to continue on their jobs rather than enter college. Two of the girls are planning on business courses.

Commissioners started their morning by hearing a delegation from the Eastland Chamber of Commerce. With Virgil Seaberry as spokesman, the group offered financial assistance from the C.C. in getting the courthouse lighted up at night.

Seaberry told the Court that the delegation recognized that Eastland citizens would get more benefit out of lighting up the courthouse than citizens from other areas would—although he stressed that the courthouse belongs to all the people of this county.

He said the people of Eastland are willing to pay half of the cost. The Eastland C.C. is willing to contribute $279 of the estimated $525 cost. Seaberry also reported that Eastland citizens pay at least one-fifth of the county's taxes and therefore would share an additional $180 of the cost in county funds.

"Eastland county has the nicest looking courthouse in West Texas," Seaberry told the Court, then praised them for the upkeep given the building down through the years.

The courthouse had lights until the depression. When they burned out they were not replaced. Commissioners took the proposal under advisement.

The second delegation appearing before the Commission was a group from Gorman and Rising Star. That group is interested in getting an emergency base radio station in that area and wants to go through the county so that the Federal government will share in the costs. The Court assured the group it would work with them.

Two members of the Ranger General Hospital board of directors, Bill Herrington of Ranger and Bernard Hanna of Eastland appeared before the Court and discussed hospital operations. Commissioners praised their efforts in operating the city-county hospital, located in Ranger.

In two important business transactions near the end of the session, the county budget hearing was slated for Sept. 19 and another one of the county's voting boxes was abolished.

The Olera voting precinct was voted out after Commissioner Bob Carter announced that the judge of the precinct no longer wanted to serve and that the people of the area wanted to vote in Rising Star.

Two other precincts, Scanton and Nimrod, came under observation. Those are the two boxes which didn't turn in election results until two days after the Democratic primaries. Commissioner Lamb of Cisco said he had been assured that Scanton would do better in the future and Judge Hart urged that Nimrod be kept as a voting box.

Commissioners also heard reports from the two home demonstration agents and received a report that the county trapper would begin costing $45 more a month beginning Sept. 1.

In other routine business, several charity cases were heard.

We Like To Talk About Abstracts—

. . . because making abstracts has been our job for many years. And it's an interesting subject. Every day people come to us with their title problems. Some cases are tragic. Take the example of the couple who have spent their all for a home to find out later they have no title. Most title problems are simple and the abstract helps to make them simple. So before buying real estate better talk to us about the title.

TELEPHONE TALK

by Archer H. Marx, Jr., Manager

HOW MANY CALLS A DAY IN RANGER?

"What is the average number of calls made a day in Ranger? This is a question I often hear, so I decided to look up the answer.

Every day an average of 10,415 calls are made here. That's about 8 calls per phone.

And every day people find new ways to get more value from the phone. Only recently I heard of a fisherman who says he uses his phone as an "alarm clock."

"I like to fish but I have a hard time getting up real early in the morning," he says. "So I have one of the guys phone me when he gets up. That way I can't turn off the 'alarm' and go back to sleep. I haven't been late or missed a trip since my friends started waking me up by phone."

Here's another case I heard of that shows the value of the telephone, day in and day out. One mother, after keeping a record of her calls for a week, figured that her two phones saved her family about three hours a day. "That's the time we would have spent just driving for errands and personal visits," she says.

As these stories show, the more you use your phone, the more value you get from it. So why not use it . . . for all it's worth!

FREE PROGRAMS FOR YOUR GROUP

Since some Ranger civic, church and social groups already are planning fall programs, this seems like a good time to remind you of our standing offer to provide entertaining and informative telephone programs for your organization.

HOW TO CALL LONG DISTANCE AND SAVE 1/3

It's so easy to save yourself a lot of money. How? By placing your Long Distance calls station-to-station (to a distant number rather than to a particular person).

Here's the way to do it:

1. Give the operator the name of the city you want to call.
2. Next, tell her the number you are calling.
3. When the operator asks, give her the number you are calling from.

Why not try it tonight? Remember, rates are lower after 6 p.m. and all day Sunday.

Call by number. It's twice as fast.

Department of Public Safety Has Marked 25 Years of State Service

The Texas Department of Public Safety has marked its 25th anniversary as the state agency responsible for the enforcement of laws protecting the public safety and providing for the prevention and detection of crime in Texas.

Governor Price Daniel and other state officials congratulated Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., department director, and all employees of the department upon the occasion of the agency's quarter-century of progress in the field of modern law enforcement. The Governor said:

"Texas' Department of Public Safety in its first 25 years has become one of the outstanding law enforcement agencies in the world. Much of the credit should go to Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., who has directed the department for 22 years. I congratulate Col. Garrison, his staff and all members of the department on this 25th anniversary."

Garrison, who served as assistant director for the first three years before being named director, said:

"All of us who have been concerned with the public safety in Texas are proud of the strides that have been taken in the state law enforcement and the regulation of the traffic flow in our state since the inception of the Department of Public Safety on August 10, 1935.

"However, we face today much the same challenges we did 25 years ago this week—a relatively small force to combat increasing crime and traffic accidents due to ever-changing techniques and population increases."

Garrison pointed out that the DPS in its first year had the task of patrolling some 20,000 miles of rural highways with a force of 140 patrolmen; while in 1960 it is responsible for 53,000 miles of rural highways with 773 patrolmen.

"Statistically speaking," he said, "this would mean that in 1955 we had one patrolman for every 145 miles of highway, and in 1960 we have one patrolman for approximately 70 miles of highway."

"While this would appear to be an improved situation, however, it is completely offset when it is considered that there were less than a million and a half vehicles on the road then—compared with four and a half million today."

In today's modern operation of the safety agency, Garrison as director is in charge of enforcement of laws relating to the operation of motor vehicles, criminal law enforcement in cooperation with local authorities, educating citizens in public safety and law observance, police training, police records, scientific crime detection, and a statewide police communications system. He performs his duties under plans and policies established by the Texas Public Safety Commission, a three-member board appointed by the Governor.

In a 1957 survey report, the Texas Research League said the department "has earned an enviable reputation for the manner in which it has served the people of our state over two decades. This reputation extends beyond the borders of Texas. National recognition has repeatedly been given the department for outstanding accomplishment in the fields of criminal law enforcement and motor traffic control."

The Research League noted at that time that "few states have gone as far as Texas in placing in one state agency so many different functions in the general field of crime and highway traffic control."

The DPS was created by an act of the Legislature on August 10, 1935, at a time when it was recognized that the state's part in crime prevention and traffic control was inadequate and improperly organized.

A meagre Highway Patrol at that time was under the jurisdiction of the State Highway Department. It was deemed necessary that this police function properly belonged under a police agency. The only existing state police force for criminal activity was the Texas Rangers, which was under the State Adjutant General's office.

These two components formed the nucleus of the Department of Public Safety. Many other functions have been added to its responsibilities since then.

First director of the department was the late L. G. Phares, who was succeeded in 1937 by the late H. H. Carmichael. Garrison, who has been a senior captain in the old Highway Patrol, was named assistant director at the outset, and succeeded Carmichael as director on Sept. 27, 1938.

The Rangers today, operating under the direct supervision of the director, are the criminal law enforcement agents at the state level. Their duties cover the broad field of criminal investigation both as independent agents and through concerted efforts in assisting local, county and federal law enforcement officers.

While the principal duties of the Highway Patrol are in traffic supervision, it also is assigned many general responsibilities in the field of crime prevention and public safety.

The "line" operations of the department are broken down into six regions, with headquarters at Dallas, Houston, Corpus Christi, Midland and Lubbock. Each Regional Commander is responsible in his area for the Patrol service, the License and Weight service, the Communications service, Drivers License service, the Safety Education service, and the Motor Vehicle Inspection service.

Each regional headquarters has a limited crime laboratory, backed up by a complete, modern laboratory located in the state headquarters in Austin.

The four main divisions of the state headquarters and their responsibilities are as follows:

Driver and Vehicle Records: Conducts the drivers license issuance and driver improvement programs, maintaining driver records for 4,500,000 Texas drivers. Supervises clerical staffs and records functions of the Motor Vehicle Inspection and Safety Responsibility programs.

Identification and Criminal Records: Maintains a crime laboratory consisting of chemists, lie detector operators, fingerprint experts, ballistics experts, photographers, and handwriting analysis experts. Maintains a Modus Operandi section, which serves as a filtering agency for all criminal intelligence available from department and local police agencies, as well as the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Maintains a master criminal records file which at present involves 1,050,000 individuals.

Personnel and Staff Services: Is responsible for the training program at the department's Law Enforcement Academy in Austin, fleet operations, general office services, reproduction and supply, headquarters message center and protection. Maintains a statistical section which compiles, tabulates and analyzes traffic accident records, all traffic arrests and crime reported from all governmental agencies, as well as all activity reports from field personnel.

Inspection and Planning: Serves as special staff to the director, in assisting with policy program development. Conducts studies and research into new programs in police science, develops test areas and promotes pilot studies of suggested programs, and makes general field inspection to policies that programs and policies are being followed by the field service units.

The department has two groups of plainclothesmen—the Intelligence Section and the Narcotics Section—both of which work closely with local officers in their respective investigative fields. Both are part of the director's staff.

The Intelligence Section conducts criminal and subversive intelligence investigation and surveillance, collects, correlates and files, and cooperates with federal, state and local enforcement agencies.

The Narcotics Section was established and is dedicated to assisting all law enforcement agencies in combating the dual menace of narcotics traffic and addiction in Texas.

Howard Payne Exes Raising Special Fund

The first two in a series of area campaigns to be conducted over the state by friends and alumni of Howard Payne College to build a $750,000 science building at the college got underway this week.

Brownwood volunteers held a kickoff dinner Monday in the college cafeteria, reporting more than $85,000 in advance gifts already in toward the Brownwood goal of $200,000 for the project. HPC trustees were guests for the dinner.

Fort Worth alumni and friends held a kickoff dinner Tuesday in the Ridgely Country Club, with volunteers starting active work Wednesday morning.

W. W. Dees, president of Brownwood Citizens National Bank, heads the Brownwood steering committee. Chairman in Fort Worth is Dr. Willis Murphey, orthodontist.

Similar campaigns for the project are to be conducted by early fall in Dallas, Austin, San Antonio, Houston, Amarillo and Midland-Odessa.

Heading the statewide drive are Dr. Marvin P. Knight, Dallas, chairman, and Mrs. J. Howard Hodge, Midland, co-chairman.

Kickoff gift for the campaign was a $100,000 gift made by Mr. and Mrs. Hodge last fall at the HPC homecoming. The college's faculty and staff has pledged $17,000 to the fund.
