Union Usuals and Unusuals

By Mrs. Veda Yarbrough

Hi neighbor! Good old summertime is here again and I don't mean maybe. 95 and 100 degrees the past three days. The weather is dry and hot. Lightening tonight in the west and north, but I doubt very much if the rain reaches here.

Last Thursday the Mobley girls called me and asked me over to eat fish with them. Our good friend, Jim Bob Gunn went fishing and brought them a good mess of fish. Of course, I like fish so I went over and ate with them. They were real good, and Mabel made some delicious salad to go with the fish. Then about three o'clock, we drove to Baird to see the rodeo parade. Vella Sandlin went with us, but Ruth did not feel like going and she stayed home. We thought the best they had ever had and we enjoyed it very much. We did not stay for the rodeo, but everyone who saw the rodeo said it was real good.

Johnny May Ramsey said she picked a real big bucket full of English peas Saturday out of her garden. John Mc planted black-eye peas and beans for me the other day. I saw some of them had got up this morning. There are so many old black bugs I think they will be eating everything as it gets through the ground. I kill every one I can find and oh say, do you have all those old miller bugs at your house as I do here? I believe I have killed two hundred tonight. I don't believe I ever saw them any worse than they have been the past three nights.

We were glad to have Clarence Boatwright worship with us in church Sunday. Mr. Boatwright is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Roland Nichols. He has been living in Mineral Wells, but is moving to Amarillo today. We are always glad to have him.

We were glad to see Mr. Marvin Eubank in church Sunday. Mr. Marvin is doing pretty good for one to have been sick as he has. We hope he soon gets his strength back.

We are sorry to say Mr. Epp Free passed away at his home in Putnam Saturday afternoon about two o'clock. Mr. Free has been ill for quite a while.

I went over to Scranton Sunday after church to the Homecoming. Saw several people that I had not seen in a long time.

Was sorry when I got home to find a note that Fay and Emmitt Wood came to have dinner with me and spend the evening. Guess I run around too much.

Roma McIntyre and I went over to Abilene after school and shopped a little and had supper before we came home.

Bettie Mobley and Mabel Carico came over this morning to get some of this good black dirt to put in the flower beds. I guess I am getting lazy as I am not trying to have any flowers. I will fool the old grasshoppers this time, I won't have anything for them to eat and maybe they will go away.

Say, if you know anything I can sprinkle on my lawn to kill these little old pests, red-bugs or chiggers I call them. They have begun to eat on me already and I can't understand why they are so mean to me.

Good morning this nice Tuesday. Cloudy and cool, which is better than that hot sun.

Bill and Retha Brown visited the Burnams Sunday afternoon. Mark Burnam is still kinda on the "puny" list. Last night about 12:15 Gayle called me to come down, as he had some kind of a spell and passed out and fell. I rushed down, but he was much better, still white and sweating something terrible. He said he thought he had just fainted and I guess it was. I came home at 1:30 this morning. He said he was feeling pretty well, just weak. I just now called to see how he was and Ollie said he was feeling pretty good and was going to work at something about his plow. He has been having trouble with his neck, but can't seem to find out just what it is.

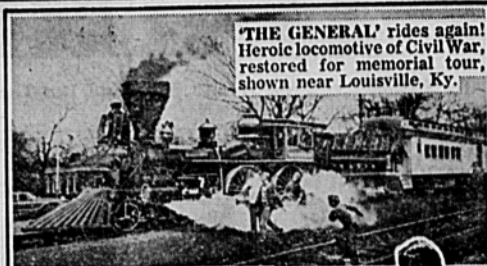

Well, guess I better stop this chatter, so be good till next week and I'll be seeing you.

Neurotic Parents May Injure Teenager

The parent who scolds, then retracts may be responsible for the delinquent behavior of a teenage son or daughter.

People, Spots In The News

versity of Texas Southwestern Medical School, cites this as one of the reasons why teenagers exhibit such extreme behavior, ranging from passionate love relations to indifference, and from egotism to self-sacrifice.

Writing in the April issue of the Texas State Journal of Medicine, Dr. Stubblefield stresses, however, that adolescent behavior disorders are a combination of several factors. Biologic or organic changes in the teenager's body may disturb him, prolonged feelings of being unloved or unlovable may affect him; or social stresses placed upon him by his own acquaintances may hurt him.

To become a mature adult, the adolescent must achieve several needs; he must emancipate himself from his parents, become properly oriented toward the opposite sex, choose a vocation, and establish personality integration so that he can accept mature responsibility. In addition, a girl must choose marriage and homemaking, a business or professional career, or a combination of these two. To accomplish these needs, the child must have firm consistent guidance from his parents.

Dr. Stubblefield quotes a young mother, who watching her child bite another child on the arm, asked, "Why do you bite so hard?" The mother, a quiet, passive, charming person vicariously enjoyed the child's aggression.

In another case, Dr. Stubblefield reports that a 14 year old boy was arrested several times for choking women. His father was socially distant and his mother unconsciously acted out her own hostility to her husband by treating the boy as a baby. When his sexual interests were awakened, they were combined with his fury toward his mother.

"Because his emotional needs are unintegrated (usually unconscious) and unacceptable to the parent himself," Dr. Stubblefield writes, "the child in every instance is sooner or later placed in conflict by the inconsistent permissive and inhibiting parents, and his experiences offer him no durable satisfaction."

The normal adolescent suffers from two types of conflicts, Dr. Stubblefield reports. In his internal conflicts, the adolescent desires the protection and gratifications he received as a child and at the same time he is torn between his emotional needs which may be either centered upon himself, upon other persons of his same sex, or upon persons of the opposite sex. In addition, the teenager suffers external conflicts. Desiring acceptance by his friends and acquaintances, the teenager rebels against his parents but then suffers from guilt and anxiety afterwards.

Many other adolescents, Dr. Stubblefield notes, suffer more severe problems for which physicians must be consulted. A complete psychiatric examination can help many of them to mature into normal well-adjusted adults, even in cases in which parents have consciously or unconsciously taught them undesirable behavior traits.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — Annual payments of corporation franchise taxes helped knock down the enormous deficit in the state's General Revenue Fund in just 12 days.

On April 24, State Treasurer Jesse James reported a deficit of $80,341,045. Twelve days later, the overdraft was down to $28,053,885.

James noted that the deficit was markedly lower than the $98,000,000 peak reached a little more than a month ago. But he did not state when the next big payment will be made out of the revenue fund... which might make the deficiency soar again.

STATE WINS ESCHEAT SUIT — Texas' General Revenue Fund will reap $3,665 as a result of the state winning its first judgment under the new escheat law.

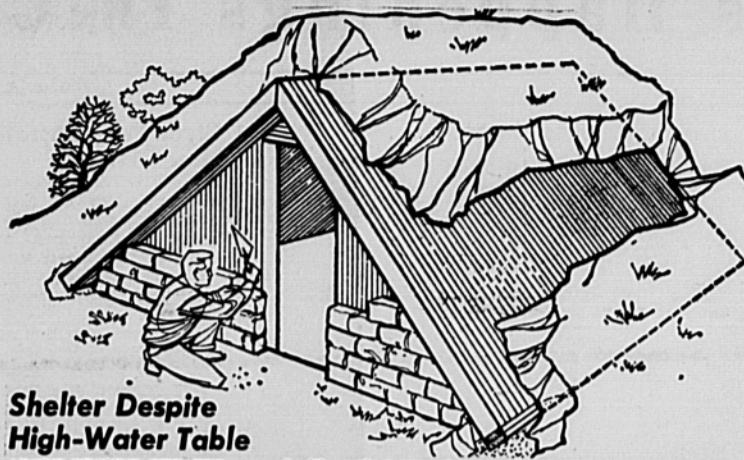

Although the judgment by the 53rd District Court at Travis County was for $103,665, the State General Revenue Fund benefits by only $3,665. Reason is that the first $50,000 escheat must be kept in the treasury in case owners are located. Another $50,000 annually must be allocated to pay for the cost of administering the program.

Funds were placed in the treasury under an old law which had no provision for disposition. But the escheat law passed in 1961 paved the way for use of the money.

Attorney General Will Wilson immediately started seeking more escheat money. He asked the U. S. Supreme Court to determine whether Texas, Pennsylvania or New Jersey has the right to escheat $37,853 that Sun Oil Company owes to more than 1,800 people whose whereabouts are unknown.

Texas claims the money because transactions were made here. New Jersey filed suit because Sun Oil was chartered there. Pennsylvania wants to attach it because the company headquarters in that state.

IMPORTED STEEL TO BE BANNED — District Judge Herman Jones of Austin has given notice to both sides of the case of the Texas Association of Steel Importers, Inc., versus the State Highway Department that he will uphold the Highway Commission's authority to order a ban against imported steel in constructing state highways. Steel importers challenged

Shelter Despite High-Water Table

ABOVE-GROUND SHELTER covered with earth for areas where basements or underground construction are not feasible would provide good fallout protection for up to 10 persons. The shelter, costing $550 for materials, is one of eight in the "Family Shelter Designs" booklet put out by the Department of Defense, and available to the public at no charge through civil defense offices.

this authority when they found teachers a wider selection trial in March ended in a hung jury.

Highway Commissioner Herb Petry Jr. testified that some imported steel was found to be "inferior," and stated that it wasn't "worth the risk."

Judge Jones concluded that the importers had failed to show the invalidity of the highway department's order. He is expected to enter judgment for the state next week.

COMMISSION ADOPTS TEACHER SERVICE — Texas Employment Commission has undertaken a new statewide program to answer the problem of placing teachers for the State's 2,500,000 school children.

TEC Administrator R. L. Coffman announced that the commission will run a placement service as a clearing house for applications from teachers. Also they will list vacancies.

New plan is expected to afford teachers a wider selection of teaching opportunities and provide school administrators with a choice of instructors from all over the state.

Local offices of the employment commission are stocking application forms, which also may be secured from the Austin office.

UT LEASES UP FOR SALE — Some 35,000 acres of oil and gas leases owned by the University of Texas will be offered for sale at a public auction in the Commodore Perry Hotel in Austin on June 28.

All of the 101 leases on West Texas land parcels, ranging from 82 to 343 acres, will be sold for a term of five years, or as long as the oil or gas on the lands is produced in paying quantities.

Big difference in this 45th public auction is that the royalty from gross production has been raised from one-eighth charged previously to one-sixth. Land Commissioner Jerry Sadler insisted on the change since the state public school lands long have been sold on a one-sixth basis.

For good news, I'll say this: we are getting our road graded up, with caliche on top. Don't know how far the caliche will go, but they have some of the bad spots done. This road I speak of is the cross country road south and east of the cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulon Crawford of Abilene have recently purchased a 2 bedroom trailer home this is very nice. They have

As some of your know, I was with my dad the past week end and until Monday afternoon. He was running some temperature, but was clear of that Monday morning. His doctor, B. H. Allts is a long ways from his patients, spending some time in Rome, Italy. He gave instructions as to how to take care of Papa Reynolds, as the nurses call him, this is being carried out with good results, but he is a very sick man.

Clyde Johnston visited Papa last week and greeted him with a very pleasing smile when he recognized who it was visiting him.

Recent donations to the cemetery fund at Denton Valley were: Mrs. Sam I. Smith, $1.00; Mrs. Vernon Walker, $2.00; Ira Crawford, $5.00.

Thanks for the donations and if anyone has a donation of any amount for paying someone to mow the weeds and grass, I'm sure it would be appreciated at this time.

M. E. Jolly Thanks Voters

I wish to sincerely thank the voters of Justice of the Peace Precinct No. 5 for the fine support which I received in the primary election. I am deeply appreciative of gaining enough votes to be in the run-off on June 2nd, and would like to take this opportunity to ask for your continued support and vote at that time.

The race is still far from finished and I plan to work hard in the coming weeks to talk to you and ask your support. I feel that it is important that we continue to be interested in our public offices and the men who are elected to them, and I ask that you investigate my qualifications in deciding your vote.

Thank you again for the support already shown me. I am grateful and hope that I may be fortunate enough to gain the extra votes which will be needed for election to this office.

I wish to express my deepest feelings of appreciation to the voters of the entire county for the splendid vote which was cast for me in the Democratic Primary Election.

Between now and the run-off election, I will make every effort possible to personally contact each voter in the county. I also wish to take this opportunity of soliciting your vote and influence in the June 2nd election.

Thanks a Million For The Splendid Vote You Gave Me In The Primary
To the Voters and My Friends of Baird, Precinct No. 1

RAY HASS EXPRESSES THANKS
I am indeed grateful to all who favored me with their vote for Justice of the Peace, Precinct 2, in last Saturday's Democratic Primary, and it is with heartfelt appreciation I say, Thanks to Each of you, for your consideration in giving me an opportunity to serve you.
I greatly appreciate the confidence you have shown in me, and humbly solicit your continued support in the coming run-off election.
I assure you, I will do my best to serve you efficiently and conscientiously. Again thanks,
RAY HASS

Joe Ellis Writes Letter to Grandson

Letter to my first Grandson:

Dear Mike:
In the past I have written you many times and tried to portray days of my boyhood at Baird. And some of the games we played, as well as some of the Tours I made in my early youth and later in life.

Now I'd like to tell you of the first friend I had that I can remember.

He was some 14 or 15 years older than I. Yet he never did seem to mind how young we were. That is, all the kids at that time in West Baird were very young.

His family lived a block from our home. Kanda cat-a-corner across the block. We on the North corner of the block West of his home. Far back as I can recall, and his father had a wood yard, and when cutting wood for their customers, us kids would gather across the street and watch.

How strong that boy was. Ah, we kids wished for the day to come when we could remove our shirt and make such large cuts in a log as he could. Reason we squatted across the street, instead of being under the men's feet- Well, the chips would fly from the heavy double-bitted axes with speed of a bullet, and could cripple you.

Now he had a brother about my age, along with Earl, Hub Bowyer, Farley Bell, Charlie Kerndhal, Frank McQueen and Blondy Lane. Most of us had a kid brother and these kids were a source of much displeasure to us older boys. Now you can appreciate this as Sevie, your kid brother will soon be tagging about.

But when the lad's dad would tire, seemed to me he tired sorta easy, our friend would come over and talk to us. Perhaps fix a nigger-shooter or even give us a sling shot or pretty pebbles he had found last trip out for a load of wood. After a breather, wedges and sledge hammer were used. This we enjoyed very much as both would strike the wedge, and at each blow, would grunt something like this. Ah-huh-ugh-uh. Some time with whew. And us rail-birds would join them in a chant as we thought it to be.

We moved to the farm in summer, and then this friend would come out to see us, toting his kid brother on his back. Now I am not joking when I say that this lad was strong as a bull, for he never knew how strong he really was.

We loved for him to come out. Some time they would stay all week, then would work for dad, perhaps cut wood or plow. There his dad would call and back he went to the ax. Or if they were splitting large knotty logs, the always seemed to be lots of work to be done on a farm.

When we had idle moments, and we made all idle moments we could, of course, we would crawl through Mr. Ross's fence into the woods. Once there we would be told the difference in the small tracks left in the sand. He knew every tack, it seemed, and would tell us of the life of each, what they fed on, where they made their home or nest, or he would climb a tree and tell us the color of the eggs, and what kind. He seemed to know all of this. How he learned the ways and the knowledge of the small creatures I never knew.

But he did. Told how the Lord gave each creature the means it had for defense from killer birds and animals. After many years, I have not forgotten much of the tutoring in the woods those days long ago.

We learned the difference in the tracks of coyotes and the dogs. Of all the small four-footed animals, or the birds that left their sign in the sand, also.

Did you know all birds and animals have different shaped feet and toes? They do, and our friend would explain the difference, in the spread and the length of the toe, or spread of the foot.

Then the larger animals tell us if the wolf was hunting or running from the hunters. The tracks are easy to see shortly after a rain. He would explain that the coyote or any animal hunting would show urbed from the close to the ground position he would take as he stalked his game. And if being chased by man or beast, would show the mis-mangled foot print where he had leaped from a log or in a long jump.

Then he would tell us what the squirrels lived on, acorns, nuts and even corn from the fields. Possums were plentiful in those days, and this was a never ending bit of fun to find one and have him "sull" and hiss at you. Take a stick and place in his mouth and he would hold it indefinitely. Could tote him home this way.

He learned some of us to swim in the ranch tanks of Mr. Hinds, Mr. Ross and Uncle Sam Pack. And never once did I recall seeing him swim. I suppose he could. And never did I see him mistreat any bird or animal. Of all the things he taught us kids he never would let us curse and though he smoked and chewed tobacco, not once did he let us have either.

I know in all the years that I knew him, when I was home, he never missed a Sunday at church or a Wednesday night service. And he did attend the revivals of any church.

Just recently I saw in my home town paper, The Baird Star, where he had passed away at the age of 89. He had a wonderful memory. I have heard my daddy say many times that he knew the length of every cook stove fire box in town and the width of all the fireplaces and heating stoves. How he could recall all this and learn so much of the woods, I never could understand. Now his family as well as mine are about all gone. Most of them lie out in Ross Cemetery.

Some folks called him eccentric, perhaps he was to some extent. But to us kids in West Baird, from 1895 to around 1903 he was our friend, and if being eccentric was the cause, this world could do with more of the same.

O course, I am speaking of the late Jess Boland, the friend of many of the West Baird kids.

By now, Mike, and hope you don't neglect your school work for the Little League or golf.

Love from Granddad,
Joe Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Norrell, Mrs. Felix Mitchell, Mrs. R. F. Mayfield and her sister, Mrs. L. D. Windham of Lawn, attended the Memorial service held at Cottonwood Sunday. Following services at the Baptist church, dinner was spread, then the group took flowers and went to the cemetery to decorate the graves.

About Your Health . .

In 1955, several large meat packing companies in Texas which needed a freedom of movement for their products throughout the State, arranged for their products to be inspected and stamped by the Texas State Department of Health as an indication of wholesomeness.

This request followed on the heels of permissive legislation earlier in the year which permitted the State Department of Health to collect fees from meat producers to defray the expenses of a meat inspection program originally established in 1945.

Meat packers had long seen the need for a comprehensive meat inspection program which would allow free intra-state movement of their products, in addition of letting the consuming public know that those products meet the high standards required under the state laws.

From this beginning, the state meat inspection program has grown to its present inspection services which now covers 22 meat packing and producing plants, plus an additional 80 plants operating under the municipal - state cooperative meat inspection program.

The program has resulted in improved quality and wholesomeness of food and meat food products, cleaner plants, more up to date facilities and equipment and the employment of improved sanitary procedures.

Briefly, the inspection program consists of examining food animals and their carcasses at the time of slaughter; inspection at all stages of preparation of meat and meat food products to assure sanitary handling;
destruction of condemned products to prevent their use for human food products to assure fitness for food; application of standards of identity to inspected meat food products; and enforcement of measures that insure informative labeling and prohibit the use of false and deceptive labeling.

The Texas State Health Department's stamp of approval now assures the consumer that the product on which it appears has been produced and slaughtered under sanitary conditions.
It is proof that the product has been carefully inspected and found to be sound and wholesome and that the labels are not deceptive or misleading.

Oplin Observations
By Daphene Floyd

J. R. Poindexter received some bad burns on his right leg last Wednesday morning while burning brush for Glen Swor.
He was starting the fire with diesel, which was in a can that had contained gasoline and it supposed the gas had formed the fumes which when ignited quickly spread from the brush to where J. P. was standing.
His clothing did not catch fire
but the flames went up his trouser leg, leaving him some third degree burns.

Last week, Winifred Scott and his young daughter, were among a group that were doctoring a sick calf for one of his relatives.
Later a veterinary found that the calf had rabies, and all the men involved are taking the rabies prevention shots, even the darling little Kathy has to take them.

Sunday before last, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Betcher drove down to Mineral Wells and visited an uncle, Hester Mayfield. Era reported that her uncle Hester sure looked bay, but was so glad to see them and asked about his Oplin friends.

tery fund: Ernest Gwin, $5.00;
