Well over 2000 guests were on hand for Ward's Fashion Show and beauty contest Tuesday night in Ranger as Ward's kicked off their spring Ward Week Sale.

Miss Truesdell is no newcomer to winning contests. She was selected as the Buckaroo Queen at Breckenridge High School this year. She was PFA Sweetheart last year and also Sweetheart of

PAR-BUSTERS—The Ranger Junior College golf team, the best in the history of the college, are all capable of shooting a below par score. The team is in Amarillo this week-end playing in the only all junior college invitation golf tournament in the state. Twenty-five junior colleges from all over the southwest will be participating in the tournament. Players, left to right, are Larry Richter, Billy Wiggs, Bob Thomson and Tommy Warford. Ranger College Golfers In Amarillo Tournament

The Ranger College golf team left for Amarillo at noon Wednesday to represent Ranger Junior College at Amarillo College April 13-15. On Thursday the Rangers will play matches with Amarillo College golf team, and on Friday and Saturday they will play in a golf tournament sponsored by Amarillo College. Twenty-five junior college teams are entered in this tournament, teams not only from Texas but also from all the surrounding states.

As the Ranger College golfers have shown up well this far in the season, they should give a good account of themselves in play at Amarillo. They have met teams from both junior and senior colleges of Texas, and they have defeated such teams as Cisco Junior College, East Texas State College, and Austin College in dual matches.

The regular third Sunday singing at Bullock Community Center will be called off due to the State Singing Convention.

Larry Richter, Billy Wiggs and Bob Thomson are all transfer students from North Texas State College. Richter played on both the junior and senior high school golf teams in Denton, his home, and he has also played in the Jaycee Tournament in Denton and in the Eastland Tournament. Wiggs, also of Denton, won the Wichita Falls Junior Tournament and the Denton Jaycee Tournament in 1957. This earned for him the right to play in the state tournament in Midland, where he finished in the top twenty. He won the Sherman and the Denton Jaycee Tournaments in 1958 and has done well in many other tournaments in which he has participated.

Thomson, whose home is Begonia, Saskatchewan, Canada, won many golf titles before coming to North Texas. In 1957 he won the junior title and the city junior title in his home town, the Southern Saskatchewan Title, and the Closed Saskatchewan Title.

The Rangers have several other matches scheduled before the conference meet which will be held in San Antonio on May 1 and 2. They will play Tarleton at Stephenville Monday, April 17, and San Antonio Junior College at San Antonio on Monday, April 24. Also on the schedule, but an upset date is TCU freshmen at Fort Worth and Odessa at Eastland.

All four of the members of the Ranger Junior College team have had a great deal of golfing experience. Tommy Warford, the only home town boy on the team, is the only returning letterman from last year's Ranger College team, which won fourth in the Texas Junior College Tournament. He not only played three years on the Ranger High School team that won three district titles and one regional title but also was runner-up in many tournaments and won the Eastland Tournament in 1958 and 1959.

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—When you hear the term "backdoor spending," it means the expenditure of Federal funds from the Federal Treasury which have not been directly appropriated by Congress. This is not to say that the Congress is not responsible, because in years past it has authorized the practice. These funds, however, are not included in the Federal Budget, nor are they appropriated by the Congress.

Prior to 1920 no one committee of the Congress had the authority for the overall review of appropriated money to all the agencies of government. In that year there was established the Appropriations Committee and since then exclusive jurisdiction for annual spending rests with this Committee.

In subsequent years, however, methods were found to circumvent annual appropriations, and there are now several methods whereby money from the Treasury of the United States can be spent without the Congress appropriating for it.

This comes about chiefly by the Congress having authorized numerous Departments and Agencies to borrow money directly from the Treasury and outside the annual Budget.

In addition to this method, continuing long-term programs costing hundreds of millions of dollars, having been approved by Congress, must be paid for each year. Many of these programs receive their support by direct appropriation, but it is the same as buying on the installment plan.

Another method of spending public funds without appropriation is that of note cancellation, whereby a Government agency's notes to the Treasury are cancelled without mention of an appropriation. Many times the Agency again borrows from the Treasury and bypasses annual budget review.

Still another method is practiced by those agencies which charge a fee for services performed. The agency receives appropriated funds for the payment of personnel, office space, and so forth, but uses funds collected to carry out its program which monies are not subject to review by the Congress.

The Constitution of the United States, Article I, Section 9, Paragraph 7, states:

"No money shall be drawn from the Treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law."

This provision was placed there by the authors of our Constitution to assure that expenditures from the public Treasury to carry out Congress' policies would be carefully weighed in terms of necessity, availability of revenue and solvency of our Nation.

There are two steps in the regular appropriation of money. First, Congress must authorize or establish a purpose and policy. The second step is to provide the amount of funds to carry out that purpose.

In 1943 a decision was made that the methods mentioned above were Constitutional and declared not to come under the definition of appropriations. Consequently the Congress lost control of the expenditure of billions of dollars annually.

At the beginning of the present congress resolutions were introduced to overcome the decision in 1949 and to make the Rules of the House of Representatives clear that the House Committee on Appropriations has full jurisdiction and control over all annual expenditures.

After a hearing, the now enlarged Committee on Rules rejected the resolution by a vote of 8 to 6.

Efforts to bring about this reform will be continued, and until it is accomplished, a high percentage of the taxpayers' money, excluding national defense, will be spent by people not directly responsible to Congress and for purposes not directly under Congress' control.

The Delta Tau Chapter of Phi Theta Kappa of Ranger College wishes to express appreciation to the people of Ranger for their support of the games night last week. Ticket sales were good, and a large group attended.

The money received from this activity will be used for a three-day trip the first part of May to Carlsbad Caverns. A trip each year has become traditional; the chapter two years ago went to Monterrey, Mexico.

The group would also like to express appreciation to those who made donations of cakes and money. The Phi Theta Kappa is especially grateful to Mrs. Mildred Bonney, cafeteria manager, for her encouragement and help in putting the affair over.

Other money-raising projects are planned for the near future to raise funds for the Carlsbad trip.

Luncheon Club Meets at Lone Cedar Friday

"Spring Flowers" was the theme used when the Lone Cedar Luncheon Club met Friday, April 7. Large straw baskets filled with Dutch iris, tulips and bridal wreath were placed throughout the dining area. Small containers of panades centered the quartet tables where the members were seated.

Mrs. Johnnie Bates of Ranger won the bingo prize and Mrs. Paul Woods of Cisco won the door prize.

Members from Gorman were hosts with Meses, Keith White, W. T. Shell, M. E. Shell, John Kimble, and C. O. Alshbrook acting as hostess committee.

Odessa to Host State Garden Club Meeting

Borrowing a bit of Horace Greeley's advice, Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., says, "Go West, girls." Just another way of inviting garden club members throughout the State to attend the 31st annual convention in Odessa April 25 through 27, with headquarters at the Lincoln Hotel.

Mrs. O. R. Little, convention chairman, and Mrs. Garland Braham, co-chairman, both of Odessa, through the theme "Kaleidoscope of the West", promise a changing western picture to those in attendance. Specifically, the convention program will present the changing pattern in irises.

Immediately after the state board meeting on Tuesday, April 25, a chuck wagon get-acquainted supper will be held in Floyd Gwin Park. Gardeners clubbers will get their first change—into patio attire—for this event. The typical western affair will tell the visitors the "Cattlemen's Impression of Iris". Western background music will be played—or can you have a background of western music? It may just be way out front!

Registration and business sessions will follow the two breakfasts scheduled for Wednesday, April 26. One breakfast will be held for those interested in garden therapy with Mrs. Dorothy Denn as speaker. At the Junior Breakfast, where awards won by sponsored junior garden clubs will be presented, Mrs. A. P. Shirley of Midland will speak on "Know your Awards."

Wednesday's luncheon, honoring national and state officers, will tell the story of the "Farmers Impression of Iris". The principal speaker will be Mrs. George L. Doolittle of Albuquerque, N. M., who is speaker will be Mrs. George L. Doolittle of Albuquerque, N. M., who is director of Pacific Southwest District of American Rose Society. Her subject will be "Roses and Iris in Landscape Design". Mrs. Doolittle is an author of note, having compiled and published material on the advancement of gardening in the Southwest. She has written many articles on gardening, and for some years wrote the section on "Arid Southwest" for the American Rose Society Magazine.

A tea and tour of Odessa gardens is slated for Wednesday afternoon followed by the banquet with its theme of "The Oldman, His Impression of the Iris".

Don Johnson, instructor in landscape design at Texas Technological College, Lubbock, will present the program "Let's Arrange Flowers", that evening.

On Thursday the National Judges breakfast will start the day, with additional business sessions following.

Luncheon, honoring the governors of Texas Garden Clubs, will be at the Odessa Country Club. Mrs. Guy Rogers, well known iris hybridizer of Wichita Falls is to be the speaker. Her subject will be "Iris Around the World."

A highlight of the afternoon will be when Mrs. Frank G. Harmon of Dallas, president of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., presents the Sears Roebuck & Company awards for Landscape Improvements projects undertaken by clubs. This is a first time event for TGC.

Thursday afternoon a tour of pioneer Rimrock City will be made. The awards banquet, with Mrs. Robert H. Dooley of Dallas, state awards chairman presiding, that evening will culminate the convention proper. There is a post convention tour of the Big Bend Country.

Installation of officers by Mrs. Harmon will follow the awards presentations and immediately thereafter a reception will be held at the Odessa Athletic Club honoring Mrs. Chester B. Kilpatrick of San Antonio, the new president, and other incoming officers.

Learning the Lesson the Hard Way—

... is not always a virtue, neither is it advisable. The person who buys a home or other real estate without first investigating the title is a perfect example of one who learns his lessons the hard way. True, he will learn better later, but too late for his own good. Any real estate that is worth buying is also worth the extra cost of an abstract, for upon the title rests the value and security of every real estate investment.

ABOUT YOUP HEALTH

It is a sad thing to disillusion those who cherish the myth of their "immunity" to poison ivy or oak or sumac, but the season of prevalence of these toxic plants is fast approaching, and forewarned is forearmed.

Botanical scientists say it is doubtful that anyone is absolutely immune to their poisonous substance. More and more authorities agree that susceptibility is a mere matter of degree, varying with the condition of the individual, the condition of the plant, and the circumstances of exposure.

Texas has its fair share of the 100-plus plants and plant products known to be capable of causing sometimes severe skin irritations. Among them are the parsnip, lady-slipper, cultivated primrose (especially when in flower), lily bulbs and stalks, stinging nettle, and vanilla beans.

Not by far the most common cause of plant dermatitis in Texas and elsewhere in the United States is poison ivy, known to botanists by the tongue-twisting name of Rhus toxicodendron. A cousin—poison sumac, by name—is common to the swampy regions of eastern Texas, and can sometimes produce severe reactions.

For all practical purposes, poison ivy and poison oak are the same thing. Poison oak is simply any poison ivy that grows as a bush rather than a vine.

Poison ivy is an unusually inconsistent species of plant. Besides growing as a bush and a vine, the size of its berries and the outline of its leaves often vary widely. Its leaves are characteristically egg-shaped and pointed, but the edges may be smooth and unbroken or saw-toothed. Moreover, these variations might occur on a single plant, or the leaves on an entire plant may be similar.

But in one matter, poison ivy is almost invariably consistent—it leaves practically always grow in clusters of three.

Most researchers agree that actual physical contact with the plant juice either directly or indirectly is necessary before the poisoning agent can cause the typical blisters and skin inflammation.

Texas ivy poisoning is best prevented by learning to recognize the plant and avoiding it. And, of course, it is always prudent to wear protective clothing such as leggings and gloves when going into areas where poison plants are known to flourish. Once exposed, immediate washing with laundry soap and water helps to remove the resin. (A weekly feature of the Health Education Division, Texas State Department of Health.)

In Texas, compensation for service-connected disabilities and pension for total and permanent nonservice-connected disabilities were paid to 157,508 living veterans in the amount of $136,149,619.

Death compensation and pension were paid to the dependents of 48,202 deceased veterans in the amount of $42,831,386.

Certain GI insurance provided and indemnity payments totaling $42,679,301 were made to veterans and their beneficiaries.

An average of 468 disabled veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict in Texas trained during the year under the vocational rehabilitation act to overcome the handicaps of their disabilities. They received $734,747 in subsistence, tuition, supplies and equipment.

An average of 16,146 veterans trained during the year under the World War II and Korean GI Bills. They received $21,491,567 in cash allowances.

The remainder of cash benefits, services and other VA expenditures in Texas during the year totaled $80,424,803.

The cash benefits and services included war orphans' educational allowances, hospitalization, loan guarantee and direct loan programs, automobiles for certain disabled veterans, wheel chair homes for the seriously disabled, administrative cost and miscellaneous benefits.

TRACTOR TALK

Carburetor Float Setting Can Affect Spark Plug Performance

When working on tractor carburetors, don't overlook the float setting as a possible source of poor overall engine performance. According to Champion Spark Plug Company's Technical Services Department, an improperly set float may cause trouble in either the high or low speed adjustment, and can actually contribute to both spark plug overheating or fouling, depending on whether the float setting is to high or low.

Champion advises that spark overheating frequently occurs when the float is set too low, since the engine may be starved for fuel. Also, the engine may fail to respond when accelerated and difficulty may be encountered in maintaining satisfactory carburetor adjustment.

Both spark plug fouling and excessive crankcase oil dilution may occur if the float level is too high, since here too much fuel will enter the combustion chamber. This condition also may cause the carburetor to leak.

- Causes of a high float level are: 1. Wrong float setting 2. Leaky float 3. Dented float 4. Fuel inlet needle not seating properly 5. Needle seat improperly installed 6. Excessive fuel pump pressure

Correct Alignment Important

When installing Ventilated Points Many late model engines employ distributors with ventilated-type breaker points. When installing this type point, particular care should be taken to insure proper alignment of the contact surfaces.

The contacts must be perfectly centered and strike squarely for maximum performance and long point life.

Alignment should be checked by turning the cam until the points close, then observing the position of the hole in the vented

If alignment is necessary, bend the stationary breaker arm until the points make full face contact. Never bend the moveable breaker arm when adjusting points.

Breather Cap Important Too

Most farmers know that periodic air cleaner maintenance is extremely important to long engine life. Many, however, frequently overlook the maintenance of another less conspicuous filter which also is important to engine operation—the oil filler breather cap filter.

Service engineers at Champion Spark Plug Company point to the fact that a breather cap filter which is clogged with dirt and chaff may result in the accumulation of sludge, varnish and gummy deposits within the engine.

Primary purpose of ventilating the crankcase is to eliminate the various water and gasoline vapors and other blowby products that accumulate in the crankcase, and prevent the formation of crankcase sludge.

When operating properly, the crankcase breather system does this by drawing clean air into the crankcase through the breather cap and circulating it through the crankcase to remove these various waste vapors. The air then is exhausted through a suitable vent pipe or orifice.

If, however, the system becomes clogged, the various waste gases and blowby products will not be properly exhausted, and may greatly increase overall engine wear.

Hot Starting Tip

Hard starting of hot engines generally is caused by excessive fuel vapors present in the intake manifold, a result of percolating, spill-over from the carburetor fuel bowl and other conditions. This means a deficiency of oxygen in the intake manifold.

If encountering this trouble on your tractor or truck, open the throttle wide to bring in oxygen and "flush" the manifold—but be sure not to pump the throttle. This merely dumps more fuel into the manifold and worsens the condition.
