"THE TALK OF NEW YORK" Jan. 6th

"Babes in Toyland" Tonight.

Mighty few of the real successes of the time in things theatrical have been sent on tour this season, simply because there have been so few real successes, and, naturally, the managers hold such attractions for the big cities. However, "Babes in Toyland," the wonderful success of all the big cities, is to come here within a remarkably short time, and the entire cast is made up of artists who have been identified with the unique play.

"Babes in Toyland," which will be seen here tonight, is produced by a company of fifty people and a trained crew of stage mechanics are required to stage the holding of two sixty foot baggage cars.

In securing such an attraction, Manager Bean has demonstrated his willingness to offer the best to the patrons of the Wichita Theatre, and the theatre-goers can demonstrate that they can support the best.

"The Talk of New York."

"The Talk of New York," a work of the fertile Geo. M. Cohan, and in a measure a sequel to "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," comes to the Wichita Theatre Thursday, January 6, after a long run in Chicago and New York.

Victor Moore, the star of this occasion, came into general prominence by his performance of "Kid Burns" in "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway" and his role in the new play is still that of the slang expert.

The story of the play follows the "Kid" after he has become a successful race track plunger and has succeeded in amassing a considerable fortune. He has fallen in love with the daughter of a millionaire and encounters all sorts of difficulties before finally winning the young lady's hand.

The play is in four acts and is said to be presented with the identical stupendous scenic equipment and the original cast which was seen at the Colonial Theatre, Chicago, and the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York City.

"The Slave in the House."

No other play of modern years has won international fame so quickly, or so swiftly raised its author to an enviable position in the foremost ranks of living playwrights as Charles Rann Kennedy's famous drama, "The Servant in the House," which will be seen at the Wichita Theatre on Friday, January 7th. Produced in Washington a year ago last March, it has become the subject of newspaper comment all over the country before the end of its first week.

It was put on in New York the following week and created a veritable sensation on base Broadway. The day after the opening in New York the newspapers were full of the remarkable drama which, as some of the critics expressed it, presented Christ on the stage. As a result of the furore created by extensive newspaper and magazine discussion, "The Servant in the House" settled down to a record-breaking run that lasted through the spring and summer, notwithstanding the intense heat that prevailed on Broadway. The play was moved across the continent to San Francisco and repeated the New York triumph on the Pacific coast. From San Francisco it moved into Chicago, where it played to capacity houses for ten weeks.

Hundreds of people were turned away at the box office during the last week in Chicago, notwithstanding the fact that two extra matinees were put on to accommodate the overflow. The engagement in Chicago was cut short to permit the Henry Miller Associate Players to return to the Savoy Theatre in New York for a second run that lasted until the end of the year.

TEACH PRINCIPLES OF CONSERVATION

DAUGHTERS OF AMERICAN REPUBLIC WILL TAKE PART IN GREAT CAMPAIGN.

THEIR PLANS OF ACTION

The Work Has Been Carefully mapped Out and Promises to Be Very Successful.

By Associated Press. Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—The conservation committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution appeals to every member of its organization and to all patriotic women to begin the new year with a determination to use all honorable means to support the conservation measures being carried out all over the country.

That is the keynote of what might be called a resume of the first few months work of the conservation committee of the organization which is composed of members from every state and territory in the union.

Conservation of all America's resources is the consensus of the sentiment of the governors of sixteen states and territories who were asked to answer the questions, "What is the especial need of conservation in your state" and "How many women help."

The replies of the governors outline a definite comprehensive plan of action, which would seem capable of producing results. The conservation committee realizes that the support of any measure to be effective, must be intelligent, and to this end a conservation bulletin will be started and will be sent out every two or three weeks to the public and private schools of the country in the hope that the fundamentals of conservation may find root there. It will be the principal aim to give who do not see the daily papers and get the bulletin in the hands of the people who do not see the daily papers, and in that way teach the principals of conservation where it could not be taught otherwise. The conservation committee of the D. A. R., was last April at the Continental Congress, made a national committee.

The replies of the governors indicate perhaps some difference of application, but the principal of conservatism is there. In Connecticut, the particular interest leans to the prevention of streams and preservation of forests. Governor Gilchrist of Florida, emphasized the protection of long and plumage birds. Protection of the forests is the thing needed in Idaho, said Governor Brady, and the women of that state have manifested a great interest in the work.

Governor Carroll, of Iowa, thought conservation might be well turned to the establishment of better social relations in the rural districts and to a promotion of the general welfare of the agricultural opportunities of the state. Kentucky as a whole is not engaged in conservation work, wrote Governor Wilson, but she is the largest contributor to public schools in the United States. Governor Fernald of Maine, endorsed the educational feature of the work. Governor Warner, of Michigan, said: "If he had done nothing else to win the gratitude of his country, the fame of Roosevelt would be secure because of the impetus he gave the cause of conservation." The reclamation of overflowed lands in Mississippi is one of the needs of that state where conservation can play a part, wrote Governor Noel. Improvements of waterways, conservation of forests, conservation of water power and the building of good roads, are all subjects for the conservation movement, Governor Hadley of Missouri, said.

THE STABILITY OF TEXAS BONDS.

It is astonishing to read such a paragraph as this in so great a journal as the Buffalo Evening News:

"It is called by some papers state coercion when capital declines investment in securities subject to the laws of Texas. Even if the securities are good today no one knows what they will be good for when the legislature of that state has had another chance at them. The man who buys bonds of any kind in Texas takes wide risks of getting cheated before he gets his money back, in part."

Since there could be no motive on the part of the Buffalo contemporary to misrepresent Texas, we take it that the statements quoted are entirely the result of misinformation. The Texas legislature has no power to invalidate bonds that have been legally issued, and no state in the Union has more stringent laws governing the flotations of bonded securities than the state of Texas has. The law places a limit upon the volume of bonds any county, municipality, town or school district can issue, and even then such bonds can not be issued until the chief law officer of the state has passed upon them and declared them legal.

The bonded securities of no state are more stable than those of Texas and this fact is well known to bond buyers the world over. Of the millions of bonds issued under the present laws of Texas which have passed into the hands of investors, none have been impaired in intrinsic value by legislation. A Houston bond is as good as that of Buffalo, and so is the bond of any of the cities of Texas.

As for the attitude of the people toward their obligations, it is only necessary to say that when our supreme court recently declared unconstitutional a law under which a school district had issued bonds, the people amended the constitution in order that investors might not suffer.

We take it that our Buffalo contemporary got its information from the impolite letter recently written by the president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, in which he refused to bid on Dallas county bonds because his company had withdrawn from the state as a result of the exactions of the new insurance law. That law had nothing whatever to do with the bonds of Texas.

The president of the Equitable was simply fool enough to think that his refusal to bid on the bonds might result in the repeal of the law. We daresay the Equitable holds some Texas securities and that it will not sell them except at a premium.

Texas is not a repudiation state and never has been, nor is it a wildcat bond state. No fictitious bond can be issued under the laws of Texas. If the laws of all the states were as good in this respect it would be seldom, indeed, that anybody were cheated in buying bonds. —Houston Post.
