ANCIENT SUPERSTITIONS

From the Chicago Tribune:
Perhaps nowhere else in all the range of human life has superstition played a greater role than in the providing of means for the alleviation of all the ills that man is heir to.

We in this modern day of "knowing things," pride ourselves on our superiority. Yet who of us has not avoided crossing through a funeral procession to avert ill luck; who has not walked around an open ladder rather than under it, for the same purpose; what good mother has not refrained from beginning a new garment for the children on Friday, in the fear that she might not live to finish it; who has not lamented the death of a canary or the breaking of a looking glass, because they were sure precursors of a death in the family; who has not dreaded to have a black cat follow them home, because it was bound to bring them bad luck; and, how about the carrying of a rabbit's foot? And who has not at some time or another worn a little bag of asafoetida around the neck to ward off some innocent, unsuspecting disease? Call to mind how you always had your mother rub her plain gold band ring—a wedding ring was best—on your eyelids seven times in order to remove the sty that was always coming? In England the proper way to remove these helms or pimples from the eyelids of children is to pass the tail of a cat nine times over the affected part. There is no end of these little, real, born-in-the-blood age-to-age superstitions.

Remember how your good old mother rubbed a piece of ham rind or a bit of rotten potato, or a strand of yarn from an old home-made sock on that big wart of yours, then buried the ham or the potato or the yarn in the back yard near the blackberry bushes or under the dripping eaves of the cowshed, and when the "charm" decayed the wart disappeared? Certainly, but over in England today they remove warts differently. In Northumberland a cure for warts is to take a large snail, rub the wart well with it, and then impale the snail on a thorn hedge. As the poor snail wastes away the wart will disappear. Over in the west of England eel's blood serves the same purpose.

We are not so given to these superstitions, however, as are the people of the "mother country," where a wen or goller may be reduced by rubbing the hand of a dead child over the lump nine times, or, better still, the hand of a suicide may be substituted.

A good remedy for the toothache in Devonshire, England, is to bite a tooth from a skull in the churchyard and keep it in the pocket always. In America if you trim your finger nails regularly on a Friday morning you will never have the toothache. In Ireland Christian pilgrims who visit the holy well of Tubber Quan on the last three Sundays in June to worship St. Susan are required to give an offering of hair as a charm against all possible danger of toothache in the future. To get the best results it is necessary to go three times around a neighboring tree on the bare knees and then cut off a lock of hair and tie it to a branch of the tree. This tree, fringed with human hair, is a sight, but, nevertheless, is an object of deep veneration.

In Lincolnshire if a girl is suffering with the ague she cuts off a lock of her hair and ties it to an aspen tree, imploring the latter to shake in her stead. In good old Rosshire, where every once and a while a rooster is buried alive as a remedy for epilepsy—not in the rooster, but in the person who does the burying—some of the hair of the patient is generally added to the offering.

A fine cure for the whooping cough is made of offerings of hair in Scotland. The best way here is to shave the crown of the head and hang the hair on a bush, or small tree, preferably, and as the birds or wind carries away the hair, the cough will disappear. A still more potent remedy for whooping cough is had in the Northumberland idea, which is that the cough can be cured by putting the head of a live trout in the patient's mouth and letting the fish breathe into the latter. A still more strenuous way is to pass a hairy caterpillar through the mouth, after which the worm is to be put into a small bag and tied around the victim's neck. The cough ceases when the caterpillar gives up this early life. The whooping cough is not so bad, after all, is it?

In Ireland spiders are largely concerned in the cure of ague; in many localities the sufferer is advised to swallow a living spider. This ought to make one shake nearly as bad as the ague, and, no doubt, the better way would be to put a large black spider in a box and leave it to perish; as the vogue in Somerset and some of the near-by countries. A lingering faith in this old world superstition must have been alive until quite recently, for the making of spider web pills is not an uncommon industry in England, and Longfellow tells of a popular cure for the fever "by wearing a spider hung around one's neck in a nutshell."

This was one of the most approved remedies for our British forbears for "chills and fever," and even now, in 1916, in Sussex a live spider neatly rolled up in butter and taken inwardly without examination is considered good in obstinate cases of jaundice.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

An extra essay way to lose a girl is to be sure you've got her. It is a great temptation to do an easy thing the hardest way. When a man really learns all about a thing he can stop showing off about it.

The more songs a man brings up the more he proves he doesn't know how to do it.

A woman would not be willing to get old, even to cash in an endowment policy.

It's almost as easy for some men to keep a promise as it is for some women to keep a secret.

Musical talent in children is as common as the judgment of their parents who think they have it.

There are lots of married people, but they are seldom heard of because of the noise made by the unhappy bunch.—New York Press.

THE FINANCIER.

J. Harvey Jinks, the financier, was raised in Arkansas, and he was green and gawky, and tall and lank and raw; but when it came to swappin' things he all the farmers fooled. At times they called him even then another Jay Gould.

He moved into the village and in winter peddled wood; in summer he bought cotton, or anything he could, in truck and trade and traffic his senses all were schooled. The village prophets callin' him another Jay Gould.

Next jump he hit the country town and goes to havin' notes; and then broke into politics and went to buyin' votes. On the road to fame and fortune his ardor never cooled, and bankers now were callin' him another Jay Gould.

He moved up to Chicago, still accumulat' rocks, in skin game speculations down to bogus minin' stocks; by mergers and by cornerin' he soon the market ruled, the papers now a-callin' him another Jay Gould.

In wider fields and larger game he panted to compete; right soon his shingle dangles out in wicked old Wall street. How deftly and how swiftly and well his leg was pulled; the papers overline tonight another Jay gulled.

AS TO TOWN BUILDING.

The Board of Trade is betraying a little too much inclination to build the city instead of spreading literature whose effect would go toward peopling the lands adjacent. Those who love Henrietta best would, as conditions now exist, like to see her grow by receiving factories and lines of business not now represented here, but not go one store or business house beyond what the trade territory will properly support. To work or hustle for townbuilding on other than these is rank folly, and every intelligent person who has arrived at years of discretion and has been an observer knows that it would be ruinous. And it becomes us as people not lost to sense of the eternal verities to keep this before us and no build backward.

Take for an example the line of dry goods. We have splendid stocks here and conducted by capable men who have worried with the rest of us through that long period of inverted prosperity—the period of transition from beef to line and grain—and who have latterly built up businesses that are a matter of pride to our community and examples of prosperity to any beholder. They must strike any prospector with the idea that the country supporting this aggregate of business is worth taking hold of. What benefit will you have worked Henrietta in securing another dry goods house? Or, following to a legitimate conclusion, two, or three or five more? We submit in all candor and cold judgment that you will have worked positive injury to the men now here in this line, cheapening the men and dividing and subdividing the business as a whole until it is worthless; an injury to the retail buyer and consumer, inferior goods and at the comparatively higher price that will enable the seller to live and continue business, and the prospecting stranger will mark these conditions of trade, and perhaps, blame it to the wrong cause. Add the illustration will hold good for every line now here. Building the town first, or a little too fast, means inevitably that the butchers, the bakers and the candle-stick makers must divide up business with the newcomers in like lines—and a general gloom of prosperity lack is very easy to find. Many a man has found that the dollar above liabilities can mean 'millions' for joy and gladness, the one dollar below just the bass drum word.

In the absence of an abundant and unflinching water supply on which with cheap fuel inducements could be held out to manufacturers, the present efforts of the Board of Trade should be addressed to the securing of titlers of the all-enveloping vacant lands. When you have done that the problem for Henrietta is solved; and with thrift and comfort in the meantime the growth to respectable proportions will be assured.—Henrietta Peoples Review.

The above view is certainly well taken and while our Chamber of Commerce should not neglect no effort to build up the city they should give special attention to induce immigration and have our vacant farm lands taken up. There is plenty of room for an additional rural people of 30,000 in the counties of Archer, Clay and Wichita, and their coming will not only benefit themselves but also the farmers who are already here and every one of the towns in the three counties.

If you expect to have a vote in the coming city election for mayor and aldermen, and also the election to determine whether or not more bonds should be issued for street improvements, you can not gratify your wish without having a 1909 poll tax receipt.

A New York man is going to spend $50,000 in an endeavor to find the North Pole. If he will come to Texas and buy a wheat farm in Wichita county, he will not only make lots more money, but will do the world a great deal more good.

The great trouble with speeches like that made by Senator Hepburn against Lee is that there are some deluded mortals who will take them seriously.

We haven't the slightest idea what these English elections are all about, but we are glad the plain people are winning, just the same.

We don't tell you to pay your poll tax just for our amusement, but because we want you to qualify as a citizen. Pay it today.

Dr. Knapp says the boll weevil wins mostly by bluffing. He doesn't even get that far in the cotton fields of Northwest Texas.

The 'strong arm gang' referred to in yesterday's issue of the Times had no reference to the local fire insurance rates.

The Petrolia gas gusher has ceased raging, but our friend, Col. Bill Edwards of the Henrietta Review, is still in action.

Whenever we figure your bill, we sell you.

216-lite THE PARKER LUMBER CO.

A RUSSIAN PRISONER.

Experience of a Man Who Was Chained to a Wheelbarrow.

In writing of the Schliusselburg prison in McClure's Magazine David Boskice tells of a prisoner who was chained to a wheelbarrow:

"Schledrin had been condemned to hard labor in the convict mines of Siberia and for an attempt to escape from there had been sentenced to be chained to a heavy wheelbarrow. When the order came for his transfer from Siberia to St. Petersburg no conveyance could be found large enough to contain him, the wheelbarrow and the convict. The gendarmes were afraid to leave it behind. It was therefore decided to place Schledrin with his conveyance in one cart and the wheelbarrow behind in another. For several months, day and night, Schledrin and the gendarmes galloped through Siberia upon a troika (a three horsed cart or sledge), while another sled behind them upon which the wheelbarrow reposed, causing the deepest amazement among the peasants in the villages through which they passed. Upon the arrival of the prisoner in St. Peter and Paul he was once again chained to the barrow, and only after he had been six weeks in the Schliusselburg was he finally detached from it and given freedom of movement within the narrow confines of his cell.

"When they unchained me," said Schledrin subsequently, "I could not get enough movement. I wanted to run and run, and it seemed to me that I could never stop. How strange it is that men who can enjoy perfect freedom of movement never realize the wonderful happiness that is theirs."

HENRY CAVENDISH.

A Recluse, He Lived Far From the Making Crowd.

Henry Cavendish, the famous natural philosopher and chemist, was a recluse who astonished England.

A son of Lord Charles Cavendish and a nephew of the third Duke of Devonshire, possessed of enormous wealth, the subject of universal admiration because of his scientific attainments, he preferred the solitude of his study and the company of his books to the pleasures society could offer him.

For many years he lived at Hamstead in a large, roomy house, attended by a number of female servants, who, however, were strictly enjoined to keep out of his sight. If a domestic by the merest chance came into the presence of Cavendish she was instantly dismissed.

Every morning the philosopher would leave a note on the hall table naming what he wanted for dinner. No one saw him place the note there; but, accustomed to the strange customs of the establishment, the men would be prepared, and only the remains of the repast signified the presence of the master of the house.

When Cavendish died in 1810 he left behind him nearly a million pounds sterling, besides a lasting reputation as a scientist and writer on natural philosophy.—London Telegraph.

Trend Toward the Farm.

It begins to look as though the farmer has got to pay the prices that other people pay for labor. The panic made the situation a little easier, but it has not relieved it permanently. It will be easier for a few years, but manufacturing and other enterprises will again absorb the supply of labor and leave the farmer just as he was.

KING EDWARD VII. AND DAVID LLOYD-GEORGE, LEADERS IN LIBERALS CAMPAIGN

RECENT SNAPSHOT OF KING EDWARD

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

This year's general elections in England have been accompanied by more bitterness, radicalism and all round excitement than any similar event in that realm in a century. Vituperation and mud slinging have rarely been indulged in by speakers and politicians of repute heretofore in England, but the traditional dignity of these men was cast to the winds in the present fight. Even as long ago as the budget fight in the house of lords, which really marked the beginning of the campaign, scores of hot headed young peers armed themselves and vowed they would use their weapons if molested by the Liberalist sympathizers outside the parliament house. A Conservative member of parliament while making a speech in Hammersmith was heckled by a radical hearer and promptly stepping down from the speaker's stand, gave his annoyances a sound drubbing. The public meetings in various parts of London, Glasgow and Birmingham were frequently attended by scenes of disorder. King Edward has counseled moderation on the part of the Conservatives, but his counsel has been of little avail.

Tomatoes? YES, FINE ONES

Our tomato stock is one we can talk about freely. Our White House brand is an especially fine article, solid ripe tomatoes packed whole and cans full. More tomato meat in these cans than ever before. Most all of last year's crop was good, a great deal of it was fancy, and White House brand was packed from the fanciest.

EAT MORE CHEESE

That is good cheese, for it's a fine food. Don't be blinded by the old-fashioned idea that cheese is hard to digest. Poor cheese may be, but good cheese, such as our Burnham, American Cream, is not only easy to digest, but very wholesome and nutritious. The last cheese of this brand that we cut was something very classy and we have another now just like it. Have a pound?

THE SKIPPER'S WHITE LIE.

What Happened at Night and What the Passenger Was Told.

It was a dirty night, to use a sailor's phrase, and the talk in one corner of the smoking room drifted to events at sea and the childlike faith that passengers repose in navigators.

Said the scientist who had been collecting specimens on a coral reef:

"I've often heard men and women say they felt so safe with Captain So-and-so, and I've wondered, too, whether their sense of security would still be retained if these favored travelers knew exactly what happened on shipboard during a voyage. For my own part, I have more confidence than ever in a captain of my acquaintance since I learned that he could tell a white lie when it was necessary to calm the fears of a nervous traveler. If so happened that one foggy night I was awakened by the sudden stoppage and reversal of the engines. I jumped out of my bunk, went on deck and was told by the second officer that we had had a narrow squeeze. It appeared that we had nearly run down a schooner as she silently crossed our bows and disappeared into the haze.

"Next morning a woman passenger who sat at the captain's table asked him whether the engines had been stopped and reversed, and he replied: 'Yes; we sometimes do this to test the engineer's watch and see if our machinery is in proper order. We do it at night so as to create no excitement.' Then he got the woman to describe what she had heard and asked her: 'Did you find much time between the stopping and reversing?'

"No," she replied.

"Then," said the skipper, 'that showed how well everything was working, did it not?'

"When I got the skipper's ear, I told him confidentially that I didn't think the schooner's engines had worked as well as ours, and he remarked that it might have been worse. Whether he meant the lie or the incident I didn't inquire, but I suspect it wasn't the lie."—New York Post.

Sit Down and Do a Little Figuring

If you cannot figure out where it will be the best kind of economy to make certain repairs about the place, or put up certain much-needed buildings, and do it right now, instead of putting it off, we will be very much mistaken. The longer you put off these things, the more they are bound to cost you. So why wait any longer?

So far as the cost is concerned, we will make you prices for any lumber that you may want, that will certainly not embarrass you. And as the quality of our stock is exceptionally fine, there is no better time than the present. Drop in any time and let us quote you on what you need.

A BLOW IN JAMAICA

Things That Happen When a Big Storm Breaks Loose There.

A WEST INDIAN HURRICANE.

It Will Leap Out of a Clear Sky and Level Almost Everything in Its Path—Then Comes a Territorial Downpour That Ends in a Flood.

"Have you ever been through a West Indian hurricane?" said a man who has lived in the tropics on and off for a number of years. "Do you want to know what the experience is like?"

"A hurricane will leap out of a clear sky, swoop down on a city, blow everything in its path flat and pass on. Then follows the tail of the hurricane, a steady breeze blowing in the same direction, but at a much lower velocity. This is likely to continue for many hours, sometimes for many days, and is always accompanied by a torrential downpour of rain."

"I was in Kingston, Jamaica, at the time of the hurricane of 1903. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon I was in my office on the top floor of a rickety wooden building. As suddenly as a clap of thunder the room went dark."

"I had a pretty good idea of what was about to happen and, going to the window, looked out across the roofs. A black cloud had whirled up out of the southwest, obscuring the sun, but the mountains back of the city were still golden with light."

"In less than a quarter of an hour the wind reached us. The first structure that went was a wooden watchtower about 200 feet high that had been used in the old days to locate ships approaching the harbor. It had weathered all previous hurricanes, but this time it went down like a house of cards. Spars of lumber from that tower were carried as far as twenty blocks before they came to the ground."

"Then the spire of the church went, the roofs of a good many residences were torn off, and some fine palm trees in the public gardens snapped off about halfway from the ground. Buildings in Kingston, however, are calculated to stand a pretty severe blow. They are built only a few stories high, and the roofs present a broad and comparatively flat surface to the wind. Considering the velocity at which that hurricane was traveling, the damage was not great. Even my crazy office building withstood it. But the tail of the thing followed, with a heavier rain than I have ever seen before or since. To say that it came down in bucketfuls would be mild. It was as if the clerk of the weather had taken the plug out of some huge vat suspended above our heads and allowed the water to pump straight down on us."

"In three hours the macadam on the streets had been washed into the harbor. The street outside my window was a rushing river as much as four feet deep in places. I saw a cart try to cross it, but with the water above the axle of the wheel and the horse's legs being washed away from under it it was an impossible task, and the driver turned back. Big casks and packing cases were dancing on the surface like corks."

"As you can imagine, I did not get home to supper that evening. It was 9 o'clock before the rain stopped and the water in the streets had drained into the harbor. Even then traffic had not begun to reorganize itself."

"The trolley car tracks had been washed out, and no cars were running. Cabs, however, were doing a roaring business, and eventually I got a cabman to drive me home for three times his customary charge."

"The damage to property in Kingston mounted up to hundreds of thousands of dollars, but the real destruction was wrought in the country districts. Floods wiped out many a negro village and sent the flimsy houses floating down the rivers. The railroads were tied up for nearly a week. Every banana tree in the path of the hurricane was uprooted. Oh, yes, a West Indian hurricane can do a lot of damage when it gets busy."

"Loss of life, did you say? Of course there was. Nearly 200 people were killed throughout the island on that occasion, but we grow accustomed to that in the West Indies. We expect a hurricane every once in awhile, and we know that it will take its toll of human life when it comes. If you had been telling the story you would probably have mentioned that first of all, but sudden death is so common below the tropic of Cancer that we get callous, I suppose."—New York Sun.

Albion and Columbia.

"Albion, the Gem of the Ocean," was written and composed by Jesse Hammond, an English government dock official, about 1829 and was heard above all others in the theaters, music halls and on London streets. It is apparent that "gem of the ocean" fits an island more aptly than our large tract of continent, and "borne by the red and the blue" (the red of the British army and blue of the navy) is more logical than the meaningless line "borne by the red, white and blue." The lines of the English songs are almost word for word identical with our version, "The Red, White and Blue."—Exchange.

A Manly Woman.
"Why do you say she is a manly woman?" asked Jinks.

COLLIER & HENDRICKS

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN.

By Harriot Russell.
She is such a happy sort of woman, with the most placid disposition imaginable—never irritable, hurried or rushed. And I am inclined to the belief that her sunniness of disposition is largely due to the fact that she rarely, if ever, procrastinates.

She is the most systematic human you ever saw, with a place for everything and everything in its place, a day for everything—and everything done on the right day.

There are numbers of us who allow unanswered letters, calls, darning, mending, work of all kinds to accumulate until we are so snowed under we can see no way out.

That is really a very poor way of doing things. A little done each day doesn't tire one and then one is free of the incessant worry that seems a part of the life of the woman who is negligent about the little every-day duties that must be done.

A bit of mending each week before the laundry is put away; a certain morning or afternoon for darning, a letter or so a day, two or three afternoons for calling, certain evenings for reading—system simplifies things wonderfully.

Sit down some afternoon—some rainy afternoon when you're bored and longing for something to do—and make out a list of the many things to be done about the house. Then when you've completed your list of duties, big and small, try to figure out the best time for the performance of them, and when you map out your day's stick to your plans in spite of any and everything.

A clever idea is the little memorandum pad. Jot down the things you want to do as you think of them, and when you've finished each task scratch it off the list—it is fun to watch the list diminish in length.

One of the fads of the day is the collecting of fern bowls. They can be found in all sorts of pottery, brass, silver, wood and glass. Some of them are very attractive and nothing enhances the beauty of 'indoors' more than growing ferns.

The flat, round, hairdressing now in vogue, has a remarkable number of names, the newest of which is 'confiture a la Circassienne.' A few of its other names are Mop, Sans Gene, Brittany, Dutch, Moyen-Age, Swirl and Turban. However, there are more ways of doing it than there are names for it.

EVERYBODY'S FOR INSURGENTS.

Says Re-Election of Beveridge, Clapp and La Follette is imperative.

Everybody's Magazine, as its readers know, is in no sense a partisan publication. But partisanship is not involved in the insurgent movement. Representative government is at stake. For this controlling reason Everybody's does indorse, without qualification, the noble stand taken by the insurgents of the senate and the house. These men have risen above party. They have faithfully and courageously represented the people at large in congress.

The re-election of Beveridge, Clapp and La Follette is of national moment for these men not only represent the people of their respective states; they are senators of the whole people.

In the house every insurgent who voted against the Cannon rule should be loyally and enthusiastically supported, together with every follower of Champ Clark, who stuck by his party. Retribution should be meted out to the democrats who turned traitor.

And before the primaries—at least before the congressional election—every candidate should be compelled to give a pledge that he will vote against Cannon for speaker, and vote for a change in the rules which will take away the speaker's power to appoint committees substituting therefor the naming of committees by a bipartisan committee of the whole house, thus terminating that un-American official's domination of the committee on rules.

Get a pledge from your congressman—get a pledge that will bind his action, not alone in the party caucus, but, far more important, on the floor of the house.

Better get the pledge in writing.

NEW COYOTE ERADICATION.

Washington Prospector Feeds Them
Nitro-glycerine.
Spokane, Wash., Jan. 21.—Unique and certain of results is the method employed by S. G. McMahon, a mining prospector, in killing coyotes and other predatory animals in the Whiskey Valley district of Central Washington.
He uses nitro-glycerine and has already collected more than $250 in bounties on scalps brought to the office of the auditor of Kittitas county since the first of January.

While at Ellensburg with a wagon load of pelts the other day he told a number of sportsmen and habitués at the court house the secret of his success as a bounty-earner, saying:
'I am out in the hills prospecting most of the time and my only companions are the coyotes and other wild things. In this instance the company is worth money only when dead and is nothing more or less than an annoyance when alive.

'I haven't the time to hunt coyotes, but to make a little 'easy money' and at the same time rid the district of some of the nuisances, I 'load' pieces of meat with nitro-glycerine, such as I use in blasting the ore-bearing rock, and scatter the tid-bits near the coyotes haunts in the hills.

'The coyotes come along, sometimes singly, but more often in twos, threes and in packs; they find the meat, as it looks good to 'em, they gulp it down and then—it is all over with 'em.

'The explosive kills instantly, but does not injure the pelt enough to prevent the county auditor from paying the bounty of $1 each, as provided by the state law.

'I've killed hundreds of these pests in my time and I expect to 'bag' many more before the end of the year. The game is worth while, for I not only get the bounty, but also help the farmers and stock growers in getting rid of their worst enemies.'

MI-ONA PUTS THE STOMACH IN FINE SHAPE IN FIVE MINUTES.
If your stomach is continually kicking up a disturbance; you feel bloated and distressed; if you belch gas and sour food into the mouth, then you need MI-ONA Stomach Tablets.

MI-ONA stomach tablets give instant relief, of course, but they do more;
they drive out the poisonous gases that cause fermentation of food and thoroughly clean, renovate and strengthen the stomach so that it can readily digest food without artificial aid.

MI-ONA stomach tablets are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back. This means that nervousness, dizziness and biliousness will disappear. Drugists everywhere and Mater-Walker Drug Co. sell MI-ONA for 50c.

'I was under the care of four different doctors during nine months and was cured of dyspepsia by MI-ONA.'—

FACING STARVATION.
Chicago News:
Some years ago the excursion steamer returning from Alaska to Seattle dislocated its propeller in a dreary portion of the inner passage. For two days the engineers labored to repair the break, but without success. The ship's stores were not abundant, and alarm bred in the minds of pessimistic passengers. Starvation might assail the vessel before help arrived. A former California official took it on himself to reassure his timid companions, but his closing sentence added to the gloom.

'Let us behave,' he said. 'If the worst comes and that dread necessity which in such misadventures has met others must be faced by us, let us remember that it is good to die that our friends may live. The one or more that may be sacrificed will be consoled by that thought.'

Then a cheerful voice was heard:
'You should be taken first, Governor Booth. You know the bravest are the tenderest.' And even the terror-stricken smiled once more.

A BIG SALE

THE NEW WYATT HOTEL.

THE Floral Heights Realty Company wishes to announce to the public that beginning February 1st, they will put on a thirty day sale of lots in FLORAL HEIGHTS with a guarantee that the prices on all unsold lots will be raised 25 per cent. at the close of the sale. This practically insures every purchaser that his lots will be worth 25 per cent. more on March 1st 1910. The sale will be advertised extensively throughout Texas and Oklahoma. Excursions will be run into the city on all railroads and it is expected that nearly every lot in the addition will be sold.

If you would like to have the pick and choice of these lots before the big sale now is the time to get busy. Any reliable Real Estate Agent will be glad to show them to you and can quote you prices, as we have but one price, from which we will not vary. Terms are one-third cash, balance in one and two years at 8 per cent. interest.

FLORAL HEIGHTS will have every convenience out to the bend of the car line within the next thirty days with the exception of sewerage, and we expect to have that by the first of April. Many beautiful homes are to be constructed and inside of another year FLORAL HEIGHTS will be the best residence section of the City.

You can't buy lots anywhere else in the city on the car line for double what you will have to pay in FLORAL HEIGHTS. Buy your lots today before the price is advanced and while you can secure choice locations.

SCENE FROM "POLLY OF THE CIRCUS."

"Polly of the Circus." Did it ever occur to you that the most successful comedy in the country could also be the most prolific tear-producer on the American stage? Whether it did or not, it doesn't matter. "Polly of the Circus," which comes to the Wichita Theatre tonight, in which winsome little Miss Fay Wallace is breaking the theatrical records of the nation, has one hundred and thirty-eight good, hearty laughs in all—laughs which sweep through the audience like a summer breeze and cause every diaphragm between the top row in the gallery and the front row in the orchestra to vibrate with joy. It also brings to every throat at least a dozen big gulps, and at eleven different times forces tears to the eyes of every man, woman and child present who has eyesight and can hear. At these eleven points in the play the whole audience reaches for its handkerchief, and during the succeeding moments or two the house from the stage looks like a pier crowded with friends waving farewell to an outgoing Atlantic liner. Not that the audience is waving handkerchiefs, but the appearance of sixteen hundred people wiping their eyes simultaneously is not unlike the sight of an equal number of people wig-wagging 'au revoir.

The other day a newspaper statistician figured that at every performance of "Polly of the Circus" each person in the audience shed ten tears, besides laughing 138 times. That made 16,000 tears a night, or 144,000 tears a week.

Seats are now on sale at Bean & Huey's. Prices, 25c to $1.50.

"The Red Mill."

Contracts have been signed between Manager Bean and Martin & Emery, under which their famous production of "The Red Mill" will be seen at the Wichita Theatre next Tuesday night, January 25th.

The New Orleans item says: "The Red Mill," which opened to a 'S. R. O.' house at the Crescent Theatre Sunday, is one of the best musical comedies ever seen here. Good songs, jokes, pretty girls, good acting and a comfortable semblance of a plot characterize the performance.

"The curtain opens up on 'The Red Mill' in Holland. Near by is a little inn. Wilhelm, keeper of 'The Red Mill Inn,' complains bitterly of the actions of two Americans who owe him for a week's board and who criticize in harsh tones the best provender furnished them.

"The two Americans are Con Kidder and Kid Connor. The two Yankees, hearing that 'Gretchen,' the daughter of Burgomaster Jan Borken, is being forced to marry the governor of Zealand, though she loves a sailor, Captain Dorris Van Damm, offer their services to help the course of true love and defeat the governor.

"In the meantime their poverty is exposed and they 'accept' positions as waiter and interpreter in order to escape jail. After several amusing escapades, during which the versatile American represents 'Sherlock Holmes' and his friend, 'Dr. Watson,' the governor marries the aunt of 'Gretchen,' and the two Americans get fifty thousand gulden, the two lovers marry and—the curtain comes down in one last burst of song by a really tuneful chorus.

"Miss Mabel de Bordenborg had the role of 'Gretchen.' She has a sweet voice and dances cleverly. Georgia Harvey played Bertha, the Burgomaster's sister, and played the part well. Vernice Martyn as 'Fina,' the barmaid, scored the hit of the show. She can sing, she can dance and she has a piquant way of speaking and singling her lines which instantly draws the favorable attention of the audience and Miss Helen Tilden as Countess De La Torro, was well received.

"Bert O. Swor, as 'Con Kidder,' and Franker Woods, as 'Kid Connor,' kept the audience in a continual uppour.

"Their efforts as interpreter and waiter, respectively, were especially funny.

Carl Hartberg as 'Wilhelm,' keeper of the 'Red Mill,' looked, acted and sang the part so well indeed that it would have taken but little imagination for one to have believed that he saw before him a real Dutch inn keeper.

"The songs were all good. 'You'd Better Go, While the Going is Good,' was very amusing, and when Miss de Nordenborg, Bert O. Swor and Franker Woods sang it together, it took two or three reappearances to satisfy the audience."

Seats go on sale tomorrow (Saturday) morning at 9 a. m. Prices, parquet, $1.50; balcony, 75c and $1.00; Gallery, adult, 50c; children, 25c.

SHORT ITEMS OF INTEREST

Chief of Police Guinn authorizes the Times to say that he does not believe there is a gang of "strong arm" people operating in Wichita Falls, the story of the man who claims himself to be a secret service man, or detective, to the contrary, notwithstanding. The story as related to the Times by the detective, seems to have caused quite a stir in police circles.

The case of Travis Keyes, charged with robbery, is still on trial in the district court today, and will probably go to the jury late this afternoon.

Mrs. C. B. Nutt was operated on for appendicitis this morning at the Wichita Falls Sanitarium, and at last accounts was doing nicely.

The "Polly of the Circus" company arrived in Wichita Falls this afternoon for its engagement at the Wichita Theatre tonight.

THE PRICE OF WOMEN'S HATS.

Bills of French Royalties Compared With Those of the Present Day. American Register, London.

The importance of the feminine head-gear is an old story in many lands, but in none is it more interesting than in France, where from time immemorial the women of all classes seem to have given it their particular attention.

The Empress Eugenie and the Princess Mathilda it is well known, were never women to waste money on frivolities such as poufs sentimentales, although the descendants of Worth, the first man dressmaker in Paris, has many souvenirs of the Empress Eugenie's patronage of their house in its early days. At that time $40 was a very high price to pay for a bonnet, and in the records of a fashionable woman of the day are the following details: A white straw bonnet trimmed with lavender ribbon and rosebuds, $20; a wreath of roses for evening wear, $5.40, and a nightcap of fine lace and lawn, $5.

Compare any of these prices with those of today, and it will be seen that the increase of late years is considerable. The feather hats of last season were sold for enormous prices, some being as much as $200, and none being under $60; the most simple of morning hats running between $20 and $30, and an evening coiffure can quite easily mount up to $40.

Yet it cannot be that material is so very much dearer, for the same old record tells us that broad satin ribbon cost from 3 to 10 cents a yard, while crepe $4, and feathers varied between $9 and $20. It must be, therefore that the workgirls are better paid than they were, and in this case we can have nothing to say; unfortunately, however, higher wages always create new wants, and there is the same story of poverty to be told all over again.
