BROWN OF NEBRASKA ON INCOME BILL

SENATOR TALKS ON ATTITUDE OF GOV. HUGHES OF NEW YORK ON MEASURE.

AMENDMENT IS FAVORED

He Points Out That New York's Attitude is Not Necessarily a Criterion.

By Associated Press.
Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Admitting that he had "greater respect for New York in the senate than for New York out of the senate," Senator Brown of Nebraska, author of the income tax amendment yesterday joined the debating society which is composed of Governor Hughes on the one side and some of the members of the United States senate on the other.

Mr. Brown spoke in the senate on the resolution of Senator Borah directing the senate committee on judiciary to make an inquiry concerning the legal effect upon state securities of the adoption of the income tax amendment to the constitution.

He devoted his efforts especially to determining that the New York governor has not been wrong in his assumption that the amendment would have the effect of laying a burden on the states and in showing that even if it did have that effect, it should be adopted by the various state legislatures.

Accepting the governor's pronouncement as an evidence of opposition, Mr. Brown declared that in his antagonism Governor Hughes stands alone among all the governors who have addressed their legislatures on the subjects of the amendment.

Alabama, Ohio, Virginia, New Jersey and other states have governors who not only favor conferring the power, he said, but favor the proposed amendment, which, if adopted, confers the power. It cheers our hearts to read in the press that President Taft agrees with the governor of New Jersey, who in a message to his legislature on Feb. 7th and since the New York message was transmitted, took immediate and direct issue with the governor of New York.

Calling attention to the fact that no one in congress or out had pointed to the possible effect of the amendment on state affairs, Mr. Brown said:

"In this body the state of New York enjoys representation of the very highest character and most eminent ability and yet New York on the roll-call as shown in the Congressional Record, was in favor of this amendment as it passed congress and was silent as to any suggestion that the language was faulty. I have greater respect for New York in the senate than I have for New York out of the senate on this question.

"The fathers provided that amendments to the constitution should be ratified by state legislatures. The approval of the governors is not required. They don't even have the power to veto a legislative resolution of any proposed amendment, although I suppose as a friend of the state, a sort of amicus curiae, a governor may volunteer a harmless veto in advance of action by the legislature if he chooses to do so.

He contended that the amendment does not alter or modify the relation today existing between the states and the federal government.

"That relation will remain the same under the amendment as it is today without the amendment," he said. "It is conceded by all that the government cannot, under the present constitution, tax state securities or state instrumentalities. Nor can the state lay its taxing finger on federal bonds or on federal agencies. Each is beyond the reach of the other, so far as taxation is concerned. The proposed amendment in no sense seeks, nor can it reasonably argued to suggest any change in the independent or sovereign rights of either society as enjoyed and defined by the courts ever since the government was organized.

"Still it does not follow even if Governor Hughes were right, that the amendment should be rejected. On the other hand, it follows that it should be ratified because, under the interpretation, all incomes would be treated alike. No exemptions would be allowed and no exemptions permitted, save as congress might and should exempt all incomes up to a certain amount."

Arguing that as the safety of the state depends on the safety of the nation, he said:

"Should a foreign fleet bombard the city of New York, I can imagine the borrowing capacity of the empire state might be impaired. But the impairment would be measured by the danger the assault brought to the republic. In other words, New York's credit will be protected in proportion to the ability of the federal government to protect itself against the enemy.

"When regiments must be equipped and armed; when battleships must be rushed to the scene of danger, without counting the cost, this government should have the power to lay its tax upon the income of those who have them. I hope the emergency I have described may never arise, but should it come, the Empire state should be closed with full and ample authority to lay a just share of the burden upon the income of the whole country."

He declared that if New York should reject the amendment, it would do so because of inherent objections to lay tax on incomes and not because of any fear of the effect on her borrowing capacity. Indeed, the experience of all income taxing nations has shown that the credit of the state is not impaired by imposing a tax on its bonds.

Asserting that the perpetuity of this nation's plan of government depends on the co-existence of the state and federal authority, he said that neither could be destroyed by an amendment to the constitution. If that must result at all, it must come through revolution and he did not believe revolution to be in sight.

"THE CLIMAX" TONIGHT.

What the Houston Post Thinks of This Great Play.

"The Climax" is one of the season's most delightful comedy dramas, and for genuine pleasure which its presentation gives one is entitled to be classed with "The Music Master," which until now has been conceded the most pleasing offering of the season at the Prince Theatre. It is unquestionably the neatest and prettiest stage story since David Warfield's interpretation of his masterpiece and in many respects recalls memories of the picturesque character of the music master.

If one considers "The Climax" as purely comedy, then he must necessarily admit it to be as sparkling as champagne and if considered as purely drama, must admit its sincerity and appeal to the lovers of artistic charm. But in no sense of the word could it be termed a problem play, as this term is used nowadays.

The play is one dealing directly with the unusual power of mental science—and its application is used in this instance as the means of furthering the love of one of the two suitors for the girl's hand in marriage.

There are but four characters, three of whom are of the masculine sex and with a cast so small, the play itself and those portraying the roles must necessarily be finished artists—and such is the case.

The story is that of Adeline Von Hagen, who comes to New York from the West to have her voice cultivated, as it has given great promise of being one of extraordinary power. After remaining in a cheap lodging room for a while, she resides with Luigi Golfanti, her musical instructor, who is a distant relative of her mother's. The son of her teacher, Pietro Golfanti, falls in love with her, but she doesn't consider his attentions at all seriously. Incidentally, he is a composer of much promise. Then there is John Raymond a young physician, who has known her since childhood, who is also in love with her, but she refuses to listen to him when he pleads his devotion, for she has determined to become an operatic singer. Then it is that he employs his mental suggestion, together with medicinal application. She undergoes an operation for a slight defect which, if successful, will improve her voice. It is then that John Raymond brings his mental suggestion into play, insinuating that the operation might not prove successful and that her voice may never again regain its strength and sweetness. This suggestion takes a wonderful hold upon the mind of Adeline and some two weeks after the operation, when she tries to sing, finds that her voice is lost. And with no future upon the stage, she consents to marry Raymond and six months later, upon the day of her wedding, in the excitement incident to the occasion to be celebrated in the evening, she forgets to use the medicine for her throat which Raymond has prescribed for her and when she attempted to run through her old songs found that her voice had been restored and that in fact it was the fault of Raymond all the time. Naturally, she repudiates him and determines not to marry.

And what a wonderfully fine voice Miss Pauline Perry has! It is one of the sweetest of high soprano voices, well cultivated, and the delight of her audiences yesterday was manifested by warm and enthusiastic applause. Her rendition of "The Song of the Soul" in the last act, when she finds that her voice is regained is the musical treat of the season. And besides, she is a charming little actress in the role of Adeline.

Albert Tavernier as Luigi Golfanti, the teacher, gives a delightful portrayal of this character. As Pietro, Carney Christie is equally as good, and Robert Tabor as John Raymond, is most acceptable.

Those who refuse the opportunity of seeing "The Climax" during its Houston engagement will have cause for sincere regret, as it is one of the season's greatest plays.

WICHITA FALLS, TEXAS

Notes About "The Bunch"

The bunch does not have to rely on Zim, however, for all the spiritual unction it desires. J. W. Hoopes of Austin, secretary of the state association, also lays claim to the title of spiritual advisers. "Fred" Hoopes is his real name, for what reason the Lord only knows, as there isn't a suggestion of "Fred" in the initials J. W. Fred was cashier of a bank at Manor, a small Swede settlement near Austin up to a year or so ago, but he was not allowed to waste his sweetness on the desert air for long, and he was brought to Austin.

R. A. Zimmerman of Pittsburg, or "Zim," as he has come to be known by this time, is one of the spiritual advisers of the bunch. At least, so he says, and you can look in his face and know he is telling the truth. But, to the average eye, he fits in exactly with the popular conception of "Pittsburg Phil." Zim has been going the gait since he hit Texas and has taken rides in patrol wagons, fought badgers and otherwise covered himself with glory. Pittsburg's fame does not suffer with boys like Zim.

The cares of office do not rest lightly upon some men, if we take Thomas B. Love of Dallas, for an example. Mr. Love retired from office recently to become an insurance man, and as a result of his long service, his head is almost destitute of hair. There is a broad, glistening expanse at the top of his nose and extends south, and save for a delicate hedge of hair on the east and west, Mr. Love is completely bald. It must be awful to be an office-holder.

A badger fight was pulled off at one of the places the bunch visited in Texas, but for some reason, details of the combat cannot be obtained. It seems that the animal was possessed of a very retiring disposition and it was only after being coaxed from his hiding place by one of the northern bankers that he was able to fight. If you see one of the bunch wearing a handsome leather medal, you can know that he is the brave one who bearded the badger in his lair.

The Times man started out this morning to keep track of all the nice things the bankers said about Wichita Falls. In view of the fact that the Times is only an eight-page, six-column paper, he was unable to get them all in. The bunch seemed every bit as tickled to be in Wichita Falls as Wichita Falls was to have the bunch, which is saying a great deal.

All the visitors have been decorated with little shield-shaped badges, stating the occasion, place and date, with a place below for the name. This makes the formality of an introduction unnecessary and has added materially to the good fellowship of the meeting. The local bankers are wearing sassy-looking yachting caps with "Reception" on them and all the local lights, especially P. P. Langford, look very distinguished in them.

No convention in Wichita Falls is ever really welcomed unless Lon Mathis makes the welcoming address, and today's was no exception to the rule. While embarrassed, as he explained, in the presence of so many bankers, Mr. Mathis was, nevertheless, able to extend to the visitors a heart-warming welcome that was most thoroughly appreciated.

"It looks to me," said Frank D. Brundage of New York, this morning, "like Wichita Falls has greater prospects than any city in the Southwest. I've been all around with this bunch, but it seems to me that Wichita Falls has more to grow on and more actual prospects, than any place I've visited."

A feature of tonight's display in honor of the visitors will be four big gas lights in the business district. The pipes for these are being erected today and after dark, high pressure gas will be turned on and lit, making four spectacular torchlights, thirty feet high. The Clayco Company is pulling off this stunt.

Mr. Business Man:—If you want a sign now—any kind of an electric sign—we can handle it for you. Get you a nice, clean sign and we can save you money. Get the prices, then get mine. —243-6tc W. L. KEMPER & CO.

Employment of Negro Laborers Arouses White Citizens.

Special to The Times.

Henrietta, Tex., Feb. 22.—At 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning the first excavation for the new high school building was begun. A number of white laborers, citizens and tax payers of Henrietta were present seeking employment, but the superintendent in charge refused them work and instead put eight negroes to work.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon in the neighborhood of two hundred citizens assembled in mass meeting in front of Schlosberg's store, and took the matter under discussion. A. D. Terrell was selected as chairman of the meeting. As a result of this meeting, a committee, composed of J. E. George, W. H. Davison, E. P. Maney, J. M. West and Guy Rich was appointed to visit the superintendent, and remonstrate against the discrimination against the white laborer.

The committee at once proceeded to the site of the new building and conferred with Mr. Goodman, who has charge of this part of the work.

He said that "he had always employed negro laborers, as he had found that they could stand this heavy work of excavation better than the white man."

However, when the committee explained the feeling created by his employment of negroes, some not residents of our city, he generously agreed to put white men to work this morning.

FIRE IN HIGH SCHOOL.

Dalhart Pupils Are Marched Out in Perfect Order.

Special to The Times.

Dalhart, Tex., Feb. 22.—For the first time in the history of Dalhart schools, the fire drill was put into practical use on yesterday afternoon when a fire broke out in Mrs. Miller's room of the high school during the middle of the afternoon and a large building was emptied in two minutes. The pupils failed to make the record that was made in the last practice, but the building was emptied with ample promptness to have saved every life had the fire been a serious one.

The blaze was only a small one and the damage amounted to very little. The fire was caused from the flue. When discovered the blaze was just breaking through the baseboard near the floor and was extinguished by Supt. Gable before the building was actually emptied. The fire department was not called owing to the insignificance of the blaze.

Both Supt. Gable and the other teachers were pleased to see the perfect order in which some of the rooms were emptied. The test showed that the fire drill practice had been a success. Cries of "fire!" caused some little excitement in the room where the fire was visible, but not enough to interfere with the order in which the drill was put into use. The damaged woodwork will be repaired at once.

Stomach Misery for Over Six Years
Read what Mr. Hoffman, landlord of the Webster hotel, writes:

"I suffered misery and intense pain from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-o-na. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly and upon using it awhile I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-o-na I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my general health is much better."—Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y. Aug. 2, 1909.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets relieve distress in five minutes. They act like magic. They are guaranteed to cure sour stomach, gas eruptions, heartburn, dizziness, biliousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by The Week's Drug Co., for 50 cents a large box.

Long, Lithe Lines that Express Suppleness and Grace

THERE! We have given you the story of Corset styles in one brief sentence. You, madam, who are posted in fashion matters will realize its truth at once. You will likewise see that Gossard Model 'F' carries out Fashion's dictum with remarkable faithfulness.

These are the corsets which are built according to the tenets of the 'New School' of corset design. Through 'New School' methods every seam and gore is placed with scientific precision—every bone is located with the accuracy that obtains in adjusting the balance wheel of a fine watch.

Every Gossard Corset is boned with Electrobone, a boning which in resiliency and strength excels whalebone. The basis of Electrobone is high carbon clock-spring steel, which is the only quality considered adequate to mould the figure to the exquisite Gossard lines. And the only quality that can be rust-proofed without destroying its flexibility.

But in commending the Gossard Corset to you, we particularly call your attention to the fact that in the Gossard we are showing not merely a model for every figure, but a 'long model' for women of every height and build. This is an innovation that you will appreciate.

The Gossard is the American modification of the original French front-lacing corset. Its constructive principle is: that beauty and hygiene should have their closest union in a corset that essays perfection. The beautiful sculptured back and the adjustable front-lacing features of the Gossard are the product of this principle.

It is the only corset that has the unqualified approval of physicians. Instead of injurious pressure, it affords support for the organs, compels a correct standing position and carriage, and imparts that poise which never fails to elicit the admiration of the beholder. The proof of the corset is in the fitting.
