MINISTER OBJECTS TO CLUB PROGRAM

Places His Disapproval on Vaudeville Acts at the Annual Meeting.

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 1.—Because the annual meeting of the Spokane chamber of commerce was enlivened by three high class specialty acts from a local theatre, one of the preacher members of the commercial organization, Rev. Conrad Blum, pastor of the Centenary Presbyterian church, took offence and expressed his views in his sermon, January 11. The Spokane chamber of commerce numbers many ministers of the gospel in its membership, all of whom have been strong boosters for commercial progress and this is the first occasion where a minister has expressed disapproval of clean vaudeville specialties. Recently members of the chamber of commerce started a movement to build a large downtown tabernacle to be used for religious purposes. Rev. Mr. Blum said in part in his sermon Sunday, "One week this honorable body railroads the intorsement of a tabernacle scheme to sidetrack dangerous competition in the city race course for commissioner and in almost the next week selects the annual event to boost the stench of a local playhouse."

RESCUE OF GREELEY

Frank B. Copley, who has been writing a series of three articles for "The American Magazine" on the Greeley expedition, contributes many new facts and items of interest concerning that ill-starred expedition which heretofore have not been made public. In the February issue of the magazine there appears the last of these articles and in it Mr. Copley describes the dramatic rescue of the seven survivors who a day later would have all been found dead. The actual moment of rescue, the writer describes as follows: "In the evening all the men were in their bags, waiting for death. Greeley, Frederick, Bierderbeck, Ellison and Connel were under the fallen canvass of the tent. Brainard and Long were under the fallen canvass of the adjoining shelter. Connell had passed into unconsciousness which was the prelude to death. The other six men, supremely indifferent to every thing lay their heads down. "But the evening was still young when seemingly from a distance, there came a sound that forced itself upon their attention. "Once came the sound! Twice came the sound! A third time came the sound! Each time it was a long insistent screech. "At first it was annoying. But with the second repetition of the screech, Brainard and Long sat up and looked at each other. "From under the canvas of the tent came the complaining voice of Greeley: "Brainard, did you hear it?" "Yes, sir." "What was it?" "I think—I am sure that it was the whistle of a steamer." "Greeley asked Brainard and Long if they could get out from under their canvass, and report if anything was to be seen. They said they felt able to climb to the high, rocky point on the ridge where the Brainard had set a signal flag. "Do your best," said Greeley. "Slowly and painfully, Brainard and Long crawled up the narrow path in the snow to the point which commanded a broad view. "There was much open water, but nothing was to be seen on it save the old monotonous fogs and bergs. "Long said they must have been mistaken in the nature of the sound they had heard. Brainard agreed. "After a few minutes, Brainard, chilled through, said he would go back and report to Greeley. Long, who was more warmly clad, said he would stay up there a while longer. "Brainard crawled back into his bag, fully believing that he never would leave it again and fully resigned to the prospect of death. "Brainard began to argue that the fact that no ship was to be seen from the point above them did not necessarily indicate that they had been deceived in believing that the sounds they heard were those of a ship's whistle. He suggested that the ship might be in Payer harbor, which, just to the south of Cape Sabine, could not be seen from their ridge. "Greeley aroused himself sufficiently to say that he did not consider this probable. "Bierderbeck, however, went on arguing in his persistent German way that help was near. At length Greeley whose nerves were a wreck and whose mind was fast giving way, turned on Bierderbeck, and cursed him for making a disturbance. "Shut up!" he ordered; "and let us die in peace." "So once more there was quiet. "Lying outside in his bag, Brainard vaguely wondered if he ever again would see Long. "Presently he heard footsteps. "Some one was coming. "It could not be Long. "Whoever was coming was running. "God! he was running! "Then came a shout—the shout of a hale and hearty man. "There was no mistaking the voice, with its Scotch-Irish accent. The voice was that of James W. Norman, ice master on the Proteus when that steamship transported the Greeley expedition to Lady Franklin bay three years before. "As Norman shouted, two big ships of the United States navy were anchoring just at the foot of the ridge.

COMMEMORATE AN ACT OF HEROISM

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Named for Brave Ensign Monaghan of Spokane.

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 1.—To commemorate one of the bravest acts of heroism in the history of the American navy the torpedo boat destroyer Monaghan will be launched at Newport News, Va., February 18. The sponsor for the destroyer will be a sister of the brave ensign who lost his life while endeavoring to rescue a comrade April 1, 1899. Ensign John Robert Monaghan was a Spokane boy. He lost his life in an engagement with the Samoans near Apia, Samoa, April 1, 1899, in which seven members of an allied force of 167 British and American sailors and marines lost their lives, three of the seven being officers. His death was due to his determination to stand by his wounded comrade, Lieutenant Philip V. Lanadale, U. S. N., who commanded the American detachment of 60 men. When last seen alive he was defending his wounded comrades single-handed against a horde of savages. In the official report of the fight Captain White of Philadelphia said: "Ensign Monaghan stood steadfastly by his wounded superior and friend—one rifle against many, one brave man against a score of savages. He knew he was doomed. He could not yield. "He died in the heroic performance of his duty." "A monument to his memory erected by the citizens of his native state, Washington, stands in a public thoroughfare. It was unveiled October 6, 1904. James Monaghan of Spokane, father of the late Ensign Monaghan, received the following message from George Von L. Meyer, secretary of the navy, and his eldest daughter, Miss Eleanor R. Monaghan, will christen the torpedo boat destroyer February 19. "The torpedo boat destroyer Monaghan, named in honor of your son, the late Ensign John R. Monaghan, will be launched at Newport News, Va., February 18. The navy department would be pleased to have you name a young lady member of your family to act as sponsor at the launching."

I have opened by office in room 217 of the new Kemp and Kell building, where I will handle real estate, collections and rentals in the same satisfactory manner that has kept my clients with me for more than 17 years. My experience and knowledge of values in Wichita Falls and the Wichita country is at your service. H. C. McGlasson, Real Estate and Rentals. 227-116

TEXAS WILL LEAD ALL OTHER STATES

Will Show a Greater Increase in Improved Farm Acreage in 1910.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—It is acknowledged in official circles here that Texas will lead all states in the per cent of increase in improved farm acreage 1910 over 1900. The Texas reports have not all been compiled to date but the highest increase made of any state so far announced is Pennsylvania showing four per cent. The trend of immigration during the past decade has been Texasward. The virgin prairies and boundless forests have a touch of the wild in them that makes life romantic and attractive. In addition to the magnificent climate and fertile soil the woods abound with animal life; the prairies are stocked with game and the streams are stocked with fish binding the hearts of the young people to nature. Those familiar with Texas conditions affirm that the cutting up of numerous ranches into farms and the clearing of a large area of the timber belt will give Texas a lead over all other states. When the Texas reports are announced she will show an increase in per cent in this important item that will stagger them all.

Notice. There will be a special meeting of the Knights of Columbus Council Wednesday evening, Feb. 1, at 8:30, at the hall, corner 8th and Ohio. We will be addressed by Bro. Sherlock, a national officer. All members and all Catholics interested in the Knights of Columbus, are expected to attend. P. J. DONOVAN, G. K. 225-27c

Our new year resolutions will not be serviceable to us if they are not faithfully carried out. There should be more activity at this season of the year than any other, because this is the time for making plans and working out systems. Most of us do not give enough of our time to study, but we all claim to be studious farmers.

It is hoped that William Barnes, Jr., of New York, intended no invidious comparisons when, upon learning that the colonel was coming to Texas in March next, ejaculated, "To h—l with Roosevelt!"—Laredo Times.

WIT AND WISDOM.

The Pest. Oh, there's an individual who everywhere abounds, Through trains and shops and offices he makes his busy rounds, And in and out forever he is going o'er and o'er, To keep somebody after him attending to the door.

Anything to Oblige. The conductor of the old-fashioned slow-going London horse bus turned to the driver. "Look here," he exclaimed indignantly, "a bloke's just got in that wants yer to pull up at the next 'ouse after the fourth lamppost wot's got yeller blinds!"

The Critic. Somerset Maugham, the well known playwright, said at a theatrical supper in New York: "Critics are fine chaps, but I must confess that when they condemn your play you feel annoyed. 'I wonder why we call the people in the top of the house gods?' an actress asked the unsuccessful playwright once. "We do that," the unsuccessful playwright answered, "so as to distinguish them from the people in the bottom of the house who write the criticisms."—Washington Star.

COL. MOSBY'S NERVE.

"The man with the coolest nerve I ever met," said Colonel E. S. Belford, who was in a rampant mood, recently, "was Colonel John S. Mosby, late C. S. A. He was high private at Harper's Ferry when that place was captured by Stonewall Jackson, in 1862. After waiting for some time for our exchange we were ordered down to Fairfax Courthouse, Va., where we were on the lookout for Mosby. "One cold clear night in February 1863, I was on picket duty on the Warrenton road. I had my post almost on the double-quick, trying to keep warm, when I heard a troop of cavalry coming down the Warrenton road at a quick trot. They were stopped by the man on post one all right, and then came down on my post. "When they were close enough to me I halted them. "Friends with the countersign," with the answer to my challenge. "One man dismount and advance with the countersign," was my next command. "A well dressed officer dismounted and advanced to the point of my bayonet and gave the countersign, 'Jam-mac.'" "Countersign correct," I shouted. "Pass on."

"There was about three hundred of them; a motley crew in appearance, but they were a jolly lot, singing, talking and laughing. They passed on, and in due time I was relieved and sent on my way. "Early next morning the sergeant of the guard roused me up and told me I was wanted at headquarters. In charge of an orderly I went. When I got there, the man who was on post, one was ahead of me. He was ushered into the presence of General Alexander, commanding the division, and when he came out I went in. "You had post, two at last night!" demanded the general. "I had a."

"Tell me about the troop of cavalry that passed your post." "I told him what had happened. "Well," he said grimly, "you played hell," and he dismissed me. "I discovered pretty soon that the man that 'banged' Mosby's command with Mosby at their head. They had ridden through the entire camp, taken the tent of one of the general officers, mounted him on a mule and escaped to the confederate lines. "How did he get the password? We found out afterwards. A one of the outposts was the worst kind of a raw German. While he was on picket duty a man dressed in a captain's uniform with the red sash of the officer of the day across his breast approached him. He challenged and the officer responded. "Officer of the day with the countersign."

"The officer advanced and gave a word which was not the correct one. "That's not right," said the sentinel, "and you can't pass." "After considerable wrangling, the officer insisting that his word was right, he exclaimed angrily, 'What word have you got?' The man said, 'The sergeant of the guard gave me the word 'Jam-mac,' and nobody can pass without it. "The officer was no other than Mosby himself. He had all he wanted, and, waiting for night, got his men together and made this successful raid.

"For cool nerve it beat anything I ever heard of."—New York Herald.

LITTLE STORIES

The Dumb Girl Speaks. Helen Keller protests against the imprisonment of Editor Warren of the Appeal to Reason, she offered a reward to anyone who would kidnap Governor Taylor and take him to Kentucky. The supreme court had decided, in the case of Haywood and Moyer, that kidnapping of persons accused of crime was legal. Warren wanted to know if it made a difference if the kidnapping was practiced on a prominent politician of a powerful party instead of workingmen. He sent his offer of reward through the mails, was prosecuted, fined $2500 and sentenced to jail for six months.

Helen Keller, who is very advanced in her views, was deeply aroused by the incident. She is blind, deaf, and dumb, yet in her blindness she sees oppression, in her deafness she hears the cry of outraged humanity, and in her speechlessness she voices the demand for justice. "Right or wrong, Helen Keller is a brave woman and sustains the best traditions of her native Massachusetts.

A woman newly rich was invited to an aristocratic dinner party. During the course of the meal, she noticed with dismay a caterpillar crawling on her topmost leaf of lettuce. Glancing up, she met her aristocratic hostess's eye. Her glance implored the guest to save the dinner from catastrophe.

The guest gave her hostess a reassuring smile. Then she asked a caterpillar to crawl around in a caterpillar and calmly swallowed it. The look of awe and gratitude that her hostess gave her was assurance that her footing in society was at last firmly established. "Do you think," she said to her daughter afterward, "that I'd use a chance of establishing the family socially for a little thing like a caterpillar?"—Commonplace.

Twice, as the bus slowly wended its way up the steep Cumberland Gap, the door at the rear opened and slammed. At first those inside paid it no heed, but the third time they demanded to know why they should be disturbed in this fashion.

"Whist!" cautioned the driver. "Don't speak so loud. She'll overhear us." "Who?" "The mare. Speak low! Shure O'm desavin' th' creature. Every time she 'ears the door close she thinks wan o' yer is getting down her walk up th' hill."—Success.

Infants usually cry while undergoing baptism, but this one was quiet as a lamb. Throughout it smiled cheerfully in the canon's face. "Madam," he remarked later to the young mother, "I must congratulate you. I have never christened a child that behaved so well as yours."

"No wonder he behaved so well," was the reply. "His father and I have been practicing on him, with a pail of water for the last ten days."—London M. A. P.

There was once a mayor of an ancient borough who was a staunch teetotaler and well known to be so. He attended the festivities promoted by a neighboring borough, and somebody who knew the mayor well put a glass of milk punch close to his plate. The mayor saw the glass; he could not resist it; he took it up, and quaffed it off and set it down, saying: "Lord what a corker—London Times."

An Optical Illusion. "I suspect Mistah Rastus Pinkley is in trouble," said Miss Miami Brown. "Las' evening I saw de leardrops streamin' down his face." "Dem 'ard's 'spects," replied Miss Cleopatra Jackson. "He dees got his sof' a little spattered up fillin' his Christmas 'th' fountain pen."—Washington Star.

"Why do you make that patient wait three hours every day in your anteroom?" "He needs rest," exclaimed the doctor, "and that is the only way I can compel him to take it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Looks for Good to Come. "I look for good to come and not ill results from the legislative proceedings up to date. "Twice Texas has declared for submission, and in the last primary we carried two-thirds of the Senatorial and Representative Districts.

"That we are not now able to get a majority to stand together, even in the matter of restricting the State, is regrettable, but not disastrous. It only proves that to banish the saloon from Texas we must go to the polls in July next and vote prohibition into our constitution. "This Legislature will submit the prohibition amendment as requested by the Statewide prohibition convention on July 22, 1911, and pass a law giving adequate representation to prohibitionists to see that the votes are fairly cast and honestly counted and returned.

"There and then only the people of Texas who wish to destroy the liquor traffic must find the relief sought. "We cannot depend upon legislative or executive action. "Put prohibition in the Constitution by act of the committee of the whole people, the sovereign source of all power in Democracy, and then parliamentary wrangling will cease, points of order be of no avail and Banders County no longer a place of refuge for fleeing Senators."

Important Notice. It is very important that Circle No. 3 meet with the mothers and grandmothers in the baby contest at the residence of Mrs. E. B. W. will meet tonight for the institution of officers and all members are requested to be present. Wm. Baughman, Recorder.

The San Antonio Express cartoons Charley Culberson as wearing a plug hat. Just what the grouch of the Express is against him we are at a loss to know. Another newspaper calls him "Texas Grand Old Man," while one of the legislative orators speaks of him as a "beardless boy." These matters ought to be investigated.—Houston Post.

Bathing Machines.
 Somebody has inquired why "bathing machines" the comfortable privacy of which, for ocean bathing has never attracted bathers in this country, are called machines, remarking that there is nothing of a machine about them except the horse which draws them to the beach. The answer has been found in the new Oxford Dictionary. It appears that a "machine" was originally a "structure of any kind, material or immaterial, and has nothing to do with machinery, a later word. Ships were called machines, and it would have been proper to speak of a pupil as a machine. Argonaut.

Laughter and Death.
 He can be said to have won the game of life who at the last can laugh. That final speech of O. Henry, the short story writer, was finer than any story he ever wrote. Just as he was dying he turned to the doctor and said: "Pull up, the curtain, doc. I'm afraid to go back in the dark." The speech had in it wide humor and a sense of values. One forgives the royst' Charles much frivolity for the sake of his dying speech. "Gentlemen, I fear I'm an unconscionable time a-dying."—Harper's.

GREENE AND GAYNOR ARE NEAR FREEDOM

Will Be Released from Federal Prison at Atlanta Within a Few Days.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 1.—Messrs. Gaynor and Greene, two of the most noted inmates of the Big Federal prison here will be released from that institution within a few days. Under the good behavior rules their sentence of four years was cut down to three years and one month, which period will expire next week. The exact day of their leaving the prison has been kept a secret, owing to the desire of the prisoners to avoid publicity. They will be met at the prison gates by the members of their families, who have resided in Atlanta the most of the time since Gaynor and Greene began serving their sentences. According to popular belief both prisoners have managed to retain a considerable part of their large fortunes and it is rumored that long sojourn in Europe will follow their release.

It is doubtful if any case of its kind in the history of the country has attracted more attention than that of John P. Gaynor and Benjamin D. Greene, chiefly because of the long legal battle they waged to escape trial. Their troubles began in December, 1906, when both were indicted by a grand jury in Savannah, of having defrauded the Government in conspiracy with Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, of the United States Engineer Corps. It had been demonstrated that Carter for years had conspired with the Atlantic Construction Company, of which Gaynor and Greene were the chief partners, to the end that only this company could bid for the work of river and harbor improvements around Savannah; that Carter drew specifications that only the Atlantic people could meet on time, and that in this and other ways the Government was defrauded of about $2,000,000.

Carter was convicted and sentenced to prison and to pay a fine. Gaynor and Greene, being arrested in New York, began to contest extradition to Georgia. They carried the case finally to the Supreme Court, which decided against them; and on the eve of their being taken to Georgia they fled, leaving their bondsmen to forfeit altogether the sum of $500,000. On May 11, 1907, they turned up at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec. Proceeding charges for their extradition were at once begun. The Canadian officers, fearing delay, arrested them and took them by boat to Montreal. The prisoners' lawyer tried to stop the tug and serve writs of habeas corpus; but they failed.

With the prisoners confined in Montreal there was a repetition of the old struggle between the courts. The Quebec courts wanted the men back there, whereas Extradition Commissioner LaFontaine wished to hear the case against them in Montreal. Finally the Quebec judge scored and they were returned to that city. On Aug. 13, 1907, Judge Caron dismissed all charges against the prisoners, a decision which aroused a storm of protest from the press in both Canada and the United States. The United States Government then appealed to the English privy council, which decided against Gaynor and Greene. The men then applied for a writ of habeas corpus, which was denied.

Following their return to Savannah Gaynor and Greene, who already had spent over $750,000 in their defense, appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States on a technicality, but they again lost and the judgment against them, which covered a fine of the same amount as the money supposed to have been taken, was affirmed. The legal battle lasted over six years and it was not until the beginning of 1907 that the men were received at the Federal prison in Atlanta to begin serving their sentences.

Fruit growing is a fine art that many have not acquired. To fail to plant and cultivate an orchard is to miss much of the pleasure that farm life affords. There are certainly many reasons for planting the house orchard and no argument is plausible against it.

Robatch's Mineral Well.
 This is to certify that I have been drinking Robatch's Mineral water for months. I have suffered with stomach trouble for about eight years. Indigestion, gas collecting in the stomach causing severe pains to shoot through the lungs, which continued to get worse. I had been sick all summer and was a walking drug store. The last severe attack I had my husband called in Dr. W. H. Walker, and he prescribed Robatch's Mineral water as the best remedy he knew of. I had very little faith in it, but was determined to give it a fair trial. Before I had used one case I knew it was helping me. I have taken less strong medicine since I have used this water than I have taken in sixteen years. It has been of great benefit to my son. I heartily recommend this water to those who suffer with stomach or liver trouble.

Respectfully,

Paragraphs Worth Pondering.
 A very low winter temperature often kills peaches, but by far the greatest loss from cold is the late spring frosts. Study your location carefully and see if some means can not be devised to prevent some of this damage.

Notwithstanding the drought, we are pleased to find in our travels over the Southwest that considerable progress has been made in breaking land. We have made a good beginning for the crop of 1911.

Cudahy, the packer, says that the price of hog products never was higher. Quite right, because the price of these products are out of all proportion to the price Mr. Cudahy is paying for hogs on the foot.

Let your friends keep posted upon the work you are doing to improve your farm and the efforts you are making to benefit your fellow farmers. This will probably help others to see their duty and enable them to render effective help.

Begin a system of farming that will build up the soil before it has become depleted in fertility elements. It is much easier and less expensive to restore lost fertility if you begin before the farm is run down. A tithe in time saves nine in soil improvement.

An inexpensive blacksmith shop on every farm is a money saver and will save many a trip to town. This shop to be useful for most purposes need contain nothing but a forge, an anvil, work bench, a few blacksmith tools and an assortment of bolts.

In 1870 there was one cow to every 3.8 people, in 1880 there was one cow to every four people, in 1890 there was one cow to every 3.3 people, in 1900 there was one cow to every 4.5 people, in 1910 it is estimated that there is one cow to every 5.1 people. This shows that consumers are increasing much faster than cows. Of necessity the price of all milk products must keep up under such conditions.

National Capital Notes

Special to The Times. Washington, Jan. 24.—There is not likely to be much dissent from the country at large over the passage of the new pension bill adding $45,000,000 to the expenditures of the government; and yet there was here and there a voice raised against it on the floor of Congress. At the risk, perhaps, of encountering the animosity of the "soldier vote," Sergio Payne, of New York, said:

"We have never had an estimate of that was not exceeded by many millions of dollars by the actual payment under this act are likely to be nearer $50,000,000 than the $45,000,000 estimated."

"The astonishing statement was made in debate. 'Already this year, after we have paid the expenses of this great Republic from the retention laws of the country in the first six months, we have $30,000,000 surplus, and it is fair to say on the 1st day of July next that $30,000,000 will be doubled to $60,000,000.'"

On the contrary, the tally statement of the Treasury Department dated January 9, 1911, reported a deficit for the fiscal year beginning July 1 last of $6,528,616.04, without counting the further deficit of $19,922,655.57 disbursements for the Panama Canal, making a total deficit of $26,451,271.61. Here is a mistake amounting to more than fifty-six and one-half million dollars. If this bill is enacted, it will produce an enormous deficit."

Mr. Payne referred to the President's approval in his message, or approval of the President, but he added that care had been taken by those who quoted the President on the floor not to quote him where he said:

"But while we should be actuated by this spirit to the soldier himself, care should be exercised not to get absurd lengths or distribute the bounty of the Government to classes of persons who may at this late day from a mere mercenary motive, seek to obtain some legal relation with an old veteran now tottering on the brink of the grave."

"The true spirit of the pension laws is to be found in the noble sentiments expressed by Mr. Lincoln in his last inaugural address, wherein, in speaking of the Nation's duty to its soldiers when the struggle should be over, he said: 'We should ever for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphan.'"

"When we get all the President said on this subject," commented Mr. Payne, "no one will seriously contend that it is an argument in favor of the passage of the pending bill. It is a caution to Congress to exercise great care in the consideration of a bill of the character under consideration."

"I have met every argument that was urged in favor of the passage of this bill by the cold facts gathered from official sources. This bill was uncalculated for it did not receive the sanction of many veterans until after it was reported favorably to the House, and during the whole period I have received a letter but from one veteran in my district who asked for his passage, while I have received many others protesting against it. The veteran who served for three and a half years protest against being placed on the same plane for service pension with the man who served only 90 days, and he has just cause for complaint."

Orient and advised his colleagues on the House Commerce Committee to aid the Nation in developing its commercial business by naming San Francisco as the city for celebrating the completion of the Panama Canal. As he frequently makes public speeches at the request of the President and speaks in a large measure with authority, the following from him is of interest.

"The foreign policy of the United States is to reach out and as quickly as possible lay the foundations of future trade and commerce. What better agency could be used for this purpose than for the opening in San Francisco of a great international fair, so that these nations of Asia in close proximity to us, in closer proximity to us than any other part of the United States, may bring to us their wares and exhibit them and thus become acquainted with our American civilization?"

"We have gone over into the Philippines. We don't know how long we will remain there, but the Philippine territory is becoming valuable. Last year their consumption of products amounted to $40,000,000. Up to two years ago we secured only $5,900,000 worth of Philippine trade. Last year our trade jumped to $15,000,000."

"So, out in the Atlantic countries, out in these nations bordering the Pacific we must look for the real expansion and the real progress of industrial and commercial America. I do not believe that for a long time America will be halted. I believe that we shall find some means to restore our merchant marine, and that we shall get our share of the trade of the Orient. Through the Exposition I believe we shall get that thing most desired, a business interest with the Asiatic lands and throughout all the Orient, that will be of lasting benefit to our Nation and to our people."

A Lecture on Education. Representative Herbert Parsons of New York, delivered a speech in the House on January 7 on an amendment to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill providing $50,000 for the Bureau of Education to collect and diffuse information regarding education in the States. Mr. Parsons' speech would be worth the trouble of every person to read, and doubtless a request to him would result in its being mailed to the applicant.

In the course of his remarks the gentleman from New York said that public education is the largest, as well as the most important, business in America, and yet we have no available standards by which the efficiency of school administration can be gauged. We are far behind Germany, said Mr. Parsons. We do not even know what is being done in different parts of the country. The experience gained in one city is not available in another. In the matter of architecture, for instance, if a country school board wished to know what it could do best with a certain amount of money, it could not find out except in two States—Maine and California. The National Bureau of Education does not furnish such information.

"From nearly every city in the land comes the call for help in making up new high school courses which will prepare for life and vocation the 500,000 high-school girls and boys who want more schooling than that given in the common schools, but who do not want to go to college. The rural schools contain a majority of the school children of the country, and yet, strange to say, declared the Congressman, no one knows the results of rural school work and experiment in other States."

Mr. Parsons sent to the desk to be read, an extract from a speech by Rev. Dr. John M. Thomas, President of Middlebury College, in which he spoke of the need of work among the rural teachers in New England and cited the following answers given by the teachers in an examination—greatly to the hilarity of the House: One teacher, naming four places of historic interest in the United States, wrote: 'Boston, Tipconderoga, Spain and England.'"

Defining "disinfectant," another teacher wrote: "Disinfectant is something that does not agree with one's system." The third teacher, defining "deodorizer," wrote: "Deodorizer is a person that has a desire he doesn't know about."

COLONEL TILLMAN DYING IN POVERTY

Edgerfield, S. C., Feb. 1.—Estranged from his wife and relatives, deserted by his one-time friends and practically penniless, Colonel James H. Tillman, recently lieutenant governor of South Carolina and slayer of N. G. Gonzales, is dying of tuberculosis. He is gradually growing weaker, and it is believed he cannot survive many weeks longer. He has not been able to sit up in bed for months. Colonel Tillman is occupying a small cottage of four rooms, and is attended by only one nurse, who is his sole companion. It has been reported that his relatives have no communication with him, that he is without money and that but for the nurse he would have starved to death. He lived a hermit's life in a teat last summer and later went to Asheville, N. C., in the hope that the mountain climate might restore him to his health. The maidly did not, however, relax in its grip.

Colonel Tillman's star began to wane in 1903, when he shot down and killed Mr. Gonzales, who was editor of the Columbia State, as the result of editorial attacks made upon him. Mr. Gonzales was murdered, was taken by surprise, and the killing aroused great indignation. Through a change of venue Colonel Tillman was tried in Lexington county. The jury found him not guilty. But since then he has been shunned by many who formerly were friendly to him. He sought to enter the military in 1904, but nothing came of his application. Colonel Tillman, always of a somber nature, became morose. His wife left him and he became stricken with the illness from which he is dying. He is now in the hands of Benjamin D. Tillman and a son of George D. Tillman, who was a representative in congress.

Reduced Pullman Rates. Chicago, Ill., Feb. 1.—As a result of the agreement reached between the Pullman Company and the Interstate Commerce Commission after long negotiations the reduced rates for Pullman sleeping-car berths were put into effect today throughout a large section of the country. The reduction amounts to an average of 50 per cent for upper berths and about 10 per cent for lower berths. The reduction means a decrease of about $1,500,000 in the annual revenues of the Pullman Company, which operates its cars over all the principal railroad lines of the United States, including the New York, New Haven and Hartford, the Great Northern and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

Kansas City Has New V. W. C. A. Kansas City, Feb. 1.—The new home of the Young Women's Christian Association in this city was opened for occupancy today. The building is one of the largest and best equipped owned by the organization in any city of the country. It cost $50,000 and will offer living accommodations for about 100 girls, besides spacious offices, library, gymnasium, parlors and sewing rooms.

METHOD OF PROCEDURE In Alleged Liquor Law Violation Cases. Defined by Attorney General. Austin, Texas, Feb. 1.—The attorney general's department, through Assistant Attorney General Meade, today furnished Comptroller Lane with directions of how to proceed with the complaints filed with the comptroller by the Texas Brewers' association against two South Lake saloon keepers, Higgins and Malvasia, for the alleged violation of the Fishburne-Hobertson law. Judge Meade advises that the commissioner appointed to take the depositions in these complaints is the person who shall give notice to the accused of the time and place when a hearing will be held and not the comptroller. Such commissioner shall be vested with the power to administer oaths, take depositions, etc. For this task Comptroller Lane has appointed H. B. Tucker, a notary public of Hardin county, who will be advised of the mode of procedure. The comptroller has referred to the attorney general's department for the license of a saloon keeper, but this ruling has not as yet been made.

Lady Violet Manners a Bride. London, Feb. 1.—The marriage of Mr. Hugo Charteris, son of Lord Echo and heir to the aged Earl of Wemyss, and Lady Violet Manners, one of the three beautiful daughters of the Duke and Duchess of Rutland, was celebrated this afternoon at St. Margaret's Westminster. There was a large attendance both at the church and at the reception held afterwards at the town house of the bride's parents.

Really good preserves, that is preserves that are made right from pure, fresh fruit and the best of sugar are sometimes considered as a luxury and undoubtedly the majority of home made preserves are for, they are expensive and not easy to make; so usually there is only a small amount made. That's where Bismark preserves step in and help you. They are fully as good as home made goods, in fact some people like them better. Certain it is any way they are as pure, clean and wholesome as home made and far cheaper. You can produce Bismark quality at home for 40c per quart. Your choice of blackberry, strawberry and peach at 40c PER QUART JAR.

The Napoleon of Baseball

New York, Feb. 1.—John J. McGraw, Giants manager, has been called everything from 'The Little Napoleon' to things not repeated in conservative circles.

As a side line, McGraw has a billiard palace, where he is to be found when the National game isn't being played. I dropped into the big room with its shaded drop lights and green-covered tables in time to hear Jawa give voice to the, by this time, widely quoted utterance, that he was strong for the 'chesty' player.

And John J. said more. He said he believed in getting an early start, not only to separate the dead wood as quickly as possible, but because the team that gets the jump comes home in front several times out of many. He gave advice which future 'Lajoies,' Wagner and Cobb will do well to tuck inside their hat bands.

"The Giants will report at Marlin, Texas, early," said McGraw. "I believe that getting away on the right foot means much. The team ready physically to start at full speed and hold the pace is better fitted to land in front in November than the one that has to come from behind."

"I look for a splendid year. The fact that the public wants a fast, hard-fighting team was shown conclusively by the attendance figures. We outdrew every team on the road last season."

"How do you recruit look at a distance?" I asked. "Recruits generally look good at a distance. Some retain their appearance when they reach the majors; the majority fail to. I think we have a bunch of fast boys."

"The trouble with the average minor leaguer is that he starts in by trying to be too good. As the days pass and he isn't sent back he gets confidence and by the time he is carried into the championship season and lands a berth he is prone to consider himself a fixture and act accordingly."

"This is a mistake. No man's job is safe on a live team unless he continues to deliver the goods. Baseball is a continuous struggle to hold jobs."

The youngster who is good in April, and thinks his job is secured may decorate the bench in September. I don't mean the cocksure player, because I like men who have confidence, but the man who grows careless when success is shaking hands with him.

"The life of a major leaguer is not the 'easy' way. It's hard, earnest work. No player can make good unless he devotes himself to the game heart and soul. No man can play baseball and highballs. He's got to drop one or the other. Disipation doesn't double with success in the major league any more than it can in any other business."

"Some men are wonderers one year and bums the next. There's generally a reason. Success makes some conceited. They believe they can abuse themselves and be as good as ever, but they can't. The man who abuses himself and his team, and who has had and offered to cut out the same, built an epigram, but he boosted a sucker's game. The minors are full of players who played the white light circuit in fast company. When a certain physician said the foothold of a man's mind is his habit, he didn't mean his incandescence, but his habits."

"I'm against cigarette smoking a drinking. Both are bound to ruin a best batting eye that ever looked the seam on a ball. You'll find cigarette stubs are the guide posts to the path to 'baseball oblivion.'"

"What advice do you give your stars?" I was asked. "I tell them that if they hope to stay they must shake booze and cigarettes, pay no attention to pral from the crowds of newspapers (which apt to cause a big head), read very little and have natural ability. If artificial light is necessary, watch it lead them along the primrose path. Remember they are hired to play and not to play hell. If they can go with this and have natural ability they are pretty sure to read the same in black face type in the metropolitan dailies for some time."

"How about Bugs Raymond?" I asked. "Raymond is a great pitcher with an unfortunate weakness which has all but ruined his career. But I have heard Bugs Raymond, 'The Little Napoleon' added quickly. 'I'm satisfied, he wants to reform. If I am right I will be a great help to us next season. Raymond will go to Marlin Springs from the sanitarium. He realizes this is his last chance and I think he is making a good thing of it. He will be all that goes with it alone in the future.'"

BASEBALL NOTES.
The Detroit Tigers will start the season without a veteran left-hander on their pitching staff.

ANOTHER CLASS D LEAGUE ORGANIZED

C. H. Genslinger of San Antonio Made President of the New Organization.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 1.—Another organized baseball league for Texas came into being yesterday at Longview when the Texas Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, comprising the cities of Marshall, Palestine, Texas, Tyler and Longview, was organized and Charles Henry Genslinger, of San Antonio was elected president, secretary and treasurer. The league will be in Class D and will be made up of eight clubs, three more of which will be selected from the applications of the cities of Shreveport, La., Jacksonville, Corsicana and Nacogdoches, Texas.

J. H. Farrell of Auburn, N. Y., secretary of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs was telegraphed asking for protection in the matter of signing players and other business pertaining to the league.

Most of the clubs have had their players lined up for some time and were only waiting the formal organization of the league to sign them.

A schedule will be drawn at a near date which will provide for each team to play six games at home and six away from home. The season will open April 1. The salary limit will be $1,000 a month including a manager and umpires will be paid $100 a month and railroad fare. The directors of the association are C. F. EFFORTS TO AVOID VOTE ON LORIMER

With Twenty-Three Legislative Days Left, Much Business Awaits Senate.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Inalient appeals are being made to Senators by friends of Senator William Lorimer to avoid a vote upon the motion of Senator Beveridge to declare vacant the seat occupied by the Illinois Senator.

The friends of Mr. Lorimer say that they are not conducting filibuster. They have merely objected to unanimous consent to fix a time for voting. The majority of the committee submitted its report on Dec. 21, practically six weeks ago. Immediately after Congress reconvened Senator Beveridge presented his minority report. Congress has been in session exactly one month since the Christmas recess, and in the face of the knowledge of men who signed the majority report that they would be called upon to defend their action, only three have spoken up to date. These are Senator Burrows, chairman of the committee; Gamble and Sawyer, with Senator Bailey fitting in and out of the debate. Six days have elapsed since the last pro-Lorimer speech.

Four weeks and three days remain of the present session. Three days of the present session, three days of the Senate for the delivery of speeches in honor of dead Senators. There are four Sundays and one holiday, George Washington's birthday. There remain exactly twenty-three legislative days, and in that short period of time there must be disposed of the appropriation bill. The Senate proposes also to act upon ship subsidy and consider Canada reciprocity, perpetuation of the tariff board, popular election of Senators and fortifications for the Panama Canal, to say nothing of the Lorimer case. In the meantime some Lorimer defenders object to every request to fix a date for a vote.

RANGERS ARE REDUCED TO TWO COMPANIES

Famous Force of State Police Cut in Half by the Governor.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 1.—In accordance with the views of Governor O. B. Colquitt, a material reduction has been made in the force of State Rangers, effective today. As was indicated in this paper a few days ago, the force now shall consist of only two companies A and B, the two other companies having been ordered mustered out of service. The official reorganization took place today. Company A will be commanded by Captain John R. Hughes and he will have his headquarters at Yalets, El Paso County. Company B will be commanded by Captain J. J. Sanders, and the quarters of this company will be at San Benito in the Brownsville county. Each company now consists of six men. The captains of both the reorganized companies were here and will leave in a day or so for their quarters.

Much speculation has been indulged in as to what disposition Governor Colquitt would make of the Rangers, some thinking that possibly he would decide to abolish this branch of the State police, but the Governor determined otherwise and from now on will maintain two companies. As to whether or not the present Legislature will follow the recommendations made by former Adjutant General J. O. Newton has not as yet been indicated. General Newton recommended an increase in the salaries of the Rangers. He proposed that the salaries of the privates be increased from $10 to $12, sergeants, $50 to $75 and that the salaries of the captains, $100 per month, remain the same. The lease on the quarters of the company of Rangers which was stationed here was today cancelled.
