But 21/2 per cent of the total capital stock is required to assure for Wichita Falls a $400,000 cotton mill with a 20,000 spindle capacity and employing 250 people. Fully 97½ per cent of the amount has been subscribed or is in sight, and there is little doubt that the enterprising citizenship of Wichita Falls will come forward with the remainder of the stock. The committees are to continue work with increased zeal and it should be the pleasure of every property owner or citizen not on the list to respond readily when approached. This list will stand as an honor roll to the enterprise of this people and will be an enduring monument to the already well established reputation for pulling together.

In this connection it may be stated that while the sentiment of the meeting was such as to indicate a feeling of accurity as to the proposition, yet the fact remained that there is the additional $10,000 to the additional $10,000 to be raised and it devolves upon those who have not put down their subscriptions to come to the rescue of the city in this important matter. Those who have in-terested themselves in the matter have done all that they feel able to do and the matter of securing this important institution rests with those who have not been seen, or who have so far declined to subscribe to the stock of the proposed company. That they will not fall to do their part was the opinion of those in attendance this morning, and so pronounced was this belief that Mr. Kell made a motion which pravailed by a unanimous vote, that Mr. Carter be invited to return to the city prepared to execute a bond Growing Friendliness Between Those for $200,000 for the faithful perform.

HICKEN ORDINANCE ADOPTED AT THEIR SUGGESTION-NOW WANT PICTURE CENSORSHIP.

Regular Sessions of Council Hereafter Will Be Held on Monday Uights.

Women may not vote in Wichita Falls but just the same they exert as much influence over the city council as the men, as was evidenced in the council meeting this morning when two measures proposed by women's organizations of the city were acted up on favorably. One was the adoption of an ordinance prohibiting chickens urkeys, guineas, ducks and other fowls from running at large. This ordinance which is now in effect pro ides that violations may be fined in ny sum not exceeding $200 and that fowls caught running at large may be impounded and sold to pay costs of such impounding. A committee of ladies from others' clubs of the city appeared before the council with a petition requesting that a board of censors be inspect the shows and to allow only pictures of a ligh moral character to be exhibited houses are kept clean and well ventilated. Nebraskan Will Undoubtedly Be Fac tor in Coming Legislation

Special to The Times Washington March 21.-With the meeting date of Congress drawing near, there is still much uncertainty regarding the programme that will be adopted for legislation. Champ Clark as the Democratic leader in the lower House and prospective Speaker, is receiving many suggestions from members of his party as to what should be done. Some of these suggestions are confidential while others are in the nature of open letters, and those who submit them are seeking the approval of the party at large.

It would be impossible to summarize all the suggestions that are being made, but they cover a very wide range, from the very conservative to the exceedingly radical. Some think that Congress ought to act on the President's reciprocity treaty and adjourn while others believe that this is the time for the Democrats to enter upon an extensive and radical legislative programme. The course adopted probably will be between the two exremes, and it is pretty safe to assume that the more important things which Congress contemplates taking up will be referred to committees which will have several months' time to make an investigation so that there will not be very much precipitate and poorly considered legislation.

There is even less information available regarding prospective Democratic tariff legislation than there is with regard to the general legislative pro gramme. There has been no lack of prognostication on this subject, and a good many statements have been printed purporting to reflect the intentions of the Democratic majority. As a matter of fact, however, there is practically nothing certain, or at least nothing known about any plans that may have been formulated. The Ways and Means Committee has been work ing assiduously to put into shape the mass of information in its possession so as to form a tariff bill. The Committee is working as it did on the Payne Bill; that is to say the majority of the Committee is making up the bill and the minority will have nothing to say about it except the privilege of submitting a dissenting report. None of the Democratic Members of the Committee will say a single word about their deliberations, so that it may be taken as an accepted fact that anything printed on the subject is pure guess work.

William Jennings Bryan will doubtedly be a factor in the legisla-tion which Congress is about to take But how much of a factor it is very difficult to foresee. Of course Mr. Bryan is one of the great leaders of the Democracy, and as such his views are entitled to very serious consonal following and it is purely matter of speculation whether his in fluence is on the wane or not. Howwhen he dropped into Washington for the purpose, it is alleged, of giving counsel as to the organization of the House. One of the things that Mr. Bryan was alleged to have opposed was the preferment of Representative Fitzgerald, of New York; and it was also stated, as with authority, that he had failed in his purpose. This, howdence that the counsel of the great proval and support is earnestly courted by the friends of every man who is mentioned in connection with the next

The most intimate revelation yet made of the girlhood of Mary Baker Eddy is in a most interesting series of letters written by her in her early years, and published in the April is sue of Munsey's Magazine for the first These letters were found by accident in an old trunk in the residence of Mrs. Eddy's sisterin-law, Mrs. George Sullivan Baker, at Tilton, New Hampshire. They were hidden away in a mass of thousands of old documents and records which had been assembled by the Bakersover a period of seventy-five years. The first letter was written at Bow, Mrs. Eddy's birthplace, September, when she was fourteen years It is the second epistle she ever

These letters range all the way to 1847. In a concrete way they really tell the whole story of the childhood of this remarkable woman, intimating, among other things, what Scientists believe to be the vague forerunner of the world-wide movement which she inaugurated. They show also a sense humor which really manifests itself in every one of the communications. This article is illustrated by two hitherto unpublished portraits of Mrs. Eddy. One of them was unearthed with these letters. It was in an old leather album containing pictures of most of the members of the Baker

As each cycle of civilization comes and goes, we find that we outgrow our law, and customs and have to revise Even our creeds become out of date, and now they say Old Father Time himself must better his ways. The calander, we are told, must suffer investigation and improvement.

It seems that up to the time of Ju lius Caesar they had only a happy-gomethod of determining the length of the year and months, but during his reign things got to moving so fast that they had to make the calendar more exact; so Julius, of whom they say our dear T. R. is a reincarnalon, decided to fix it—and he did, forty-six years before the birth of Christ. But he made a slight miscalculation, so that about 1600 years is ter the calendar was ten days ahead of Pope Gregory XIII, in the year 1582, took another fall out of the calendar and when he got through with it, we were minus those ten days. Russis and Greece, not submitting to edicts of the Vatican did not and have not to this day accepted the change, and so they are now thirteen days ahead of the times (which shows again the er ror of popular opinion, which says that they are behind the times.)

Now that Julius (or T. R., as like it) is with us again, history is recoming irksome always to have to look from the savants-the state and customs of civilization demand a change year to be called "Leap Day," and in in our calendar. This call has been serted at the end of the first half going out for some time, and many schemes for improving the calendar, most of them very radical, such as to have thirteen months in the year or us two thirty-day months and one thir months and twelve whole months of

have been proposed.

In ancient times, when most people were engaged in rural occupations, the movements of the moon meant a great deal to them, and the month (or moonth) was originally based upon the lunar periods of twenty-eight days. But in these days of electric lights we have no use for lunar periods, and all we need is some method of dividing the year into equal parts. Calendar reform can only be brought about by practically unanimous consent of at least all the Christian nations, and anything so radical as a proposal to change the number of days in the week or the number of months in the year would certainly stir up so much antagonism as to make its universal adoption extremely difficult, if not In any change of the calendar the division of the year into twelve nonths and fifty-two weeks, as at present, undoubtedly must be conserv ed. This arrangement is not only too deeply rooted to be easily changed but it has also the great advantage of making possible the division of the year into almost equal halves and quarters. So we are obliged to take t as axiomatic that any change must be based on our present arrangement must be considered that are not rea

and clear improvements. The real evils of the present system ure (1) the great difficulty and irregularity in the lengths of the months, (2) the changing of the position of the weeks from year to year, and (3) the necessity for several movable feasts on account of the changing of the weeks. The changes necessary to vercome these defects can all readily be attained by a slight modification of the present system and with no per ceptible change in present dates

The proposed solution of the pro lem is to divide the year into equal quarters of thirteen weeks. This will eave one day over in ordinary years peating itself and things are begin-land two days over in lean years. The ning to move so rapidly that it is be extra day in ordinary years is to be at the calendar to find out what day it some distinguishing name, such as is. So once more we hear the cry "Sylvester," and inserted at the end serted at the end of the first half customs.

Thus our four quarters would have ninety-one days each which would give ty-one day month in each quarter. A little calculation shows that the best twenty-eight days each in the year, place for the thirty-one day months is at the beginning of the quarters, as this arrangement makes it unneces sary to change the length of more than five of the months. this method the accompanying fixed table of dates for the quarters has been compiled.

Palm Sunday, April 1; Good Friday, April 6; Easter, April 8; Whitsunday May 26; Labor Day, September 4; All Saints' Day, November 1; Thanksgiv-ing, November 30 or 23.

One of the best features is that all the fixed holidays are so well taken care of: Washington's Birthday falls on Wednesday; Decoration Day falls on Thursday; Independence Day falls on Wednesday; the 13th and 31st of so that the small boy may have un-limited fun on "Corn Night, and Hallowe'en; and then Christmas holidays could not have been planned especially for them; Christmas falls on Monday so that one will have Saturday and Sunday for preparation. Sylvester, the 31st day of December, will be the holiday instead of January 1st, as at present, and as Sylvester comes be-tween Saturday and Sunday, that will make another group of three days. Many persons will be able to throw out the four days between Christmas and Saturday the 15th, and thus the holidays for them will be ten days of uninterrupted leisure.

In addition to all the present holidays so well taken care of, there will be also in leap year "Leap Day," the 31st of June, which will fall between Saturday and Sunday, the same as Sylvester, and thus a third group of three days will be mored which at this season, with only two days interven-ing between it and the Fourth of July, for many persons will prove six days of uninterrupted leisure.

This question has decently been very much agitated in the papers of Europe and has been developed to its present stage by scientists of various nations in the Internacia Scienza Renations in the Internacia Scienza Revuo, published in Geneva, Switzerland, by means of the language Esperanto.

The plan suggested was originally published anonymously by Camille Flammarion in 1884, and afterward by M. Armelin of Paris, in 1887. In 1900 it was revived by L. A. Grosclande, of Geneva. In the recent discounties

"The reason many English women object to the ankle skirt, I am told by their French-American rivals, is that they have large feet. - The fact is that in bygone days English women wore large and shapeless boots. March Will Be a Great Fish Month-Begin It With Burnham's Fish Flakes

They're Great

The first of March ushers in the season of Lent and whether you attach any religious significance to that season of the year or not, the fact remains that during that month fish producers will make great efforts to supply the market with extraordinarily attractive items from the fish realm.

And among the most attractive will be Burnham's Fish Flakes which is nothing more or less than a fancy form of shredded codfish.

There is a peculiarly fine and delicate flavor to fresh codfish which it is not possible to obtain in the salted article as it is sold in open bulk or package. That delicate flavor is retained in the fish flakes almost intact, for the fish are taken just as they come from the sea, perfectly boned and then packed in cans which are lined with parchment,

The flavor of these Fish Flakes is so good that you can eat it raw from the can without any cooking, and a can is 171/2 cents, which makes it almost as economical as the bulk article. Let us send you a can of this to usher in the Lenten season

CAFFEINE EFFECTS

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 21 -- In the hearing of the case of the United States against the coca-cora people in the federal court here today, Dr. Formad, in charge of the bureau of animal industry at Washington, told of having performed post-mortem examinations on many animals which had died under treatment with caf-feine. In all cases, he said, he discovered abnormal conditions of the incongestion and an arresting of the functional activities.

Dr. B. A. Gallagher, also connected with the bureau of animal industry, Dr. William Worth Hale, pharma-cologist, a graduate of the University of Michigan, said that one grain of caffeine used on a four-pound rabbit has the same effect as four grains on a man weighing 160 pounds.

Dr. William Salant, pharmacologist, graduate of Cornell; now of the bureau of chemistry, in his experiments with caffeine on rabbits, guinea pigs, white mice, rats, cats, dogs and frogs, found that caffeine would inflame the spinal cord, stomach, and brain and overstimulate the heart. He stated positively that caffeine is not a food and that it injures the kidneys and has a tendency to produce dibetes.

District Attorney Cox announced this evening that unless there was unforeseen delay, the government would close its case tomorrow
