$200,000 ROAD BONDS ISSUE WAS ENDORSED

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COMMITTEE INSTRUCTED TO CONFER WITH COMMISSIONERS' COURT.

AN EARLY ELECTION

To Vote on Issuance of Bonds Will Be Asked—Gas Company Stock Proposition.

If plans outlined by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce this morning materialize as is expected, an election will be had at an early date to vote on a $200,000 road bond issue for this commissioners' precinct. The directors went on record as favoring such an election under certain conditions and the road committee was requested to confer with the Commissioners' Court with reference to the matter this afternoon, the conference to begin at 3:30 in the event that an audience could be had with the court at this time.

Another matter of importance that came up for consideration was the question of providing 3-cent gas for manufacturing purposes as a means of inducing factories to locate in the city. In this connection Mr. Kemp outlined a plan which he considered the most feasible one, the nature of which involved the purchase by the citizenship of the city of an interest in some company that was in a position to supply gas, and it was suggested that the Wichita Oil and Gas Company of which the Messrs. Culberson are leading factors, might be induced to sell considerable of the stock of that company. The proposition as outlined by Mr. Kemp seemed to meet with the approval of the directors and on motion a committee was appointed to confer with the above mentioned company the following being named: C. W. Bean, J. A. Kemp and T. B. Noble, and on motion the name of R. E. Huff was added to the committee.

Other matters that received the attention of the board at this meeting this morning was a report from the entertainment committee to the effect that arrangements had been completed for entertaining the Oklahoma City trade excursion, the program for which has heretofore been outlined in the Times. The fair committee made a report of an encouraging nature in connection with which it was agreed that the committee named to place stock in the organization should immediately take up and complete this work.

A motion prevailed expressing it as the sense of the directors that the council do the paying in front of the government property, rather than have a skip in the work, it being understood that such improvement was not contemplated by the United States government.

An appropriation of $300 was made to assist in defraying the expense incident to the state meeting of the Christian Endeavor at this place in June. A letter was read from the Neodaha Glass Factory, with which negotiations have been in progress, to the effect that the company had decided to move the factory to Tulsa, Okla.

To Consider Primary Law

Charleston, W. Va., May 16.—Members of the West Virginia legislature convened in special session today to consider a primary election law and proposed amendments to the corrupt practices act, and to prohibit bribery and fraud at primaries and political conventions of all kinds as well as at elections. The primary election law is the all-important matter to be considered. Gov. Glascock proposes a statewide primary for the nomination of all elective officers from United States senator down in

HOTEL GUESTS LEAP FROM BURNING HOUSE

One Man Badly Burned in Dallas Fire. Thrilling Escapes in Which Firemen Assist.

Special to the Times. Dallas, Tex., May 16.—Thirty guests had hardly time to escape with their lives when fire at 145 o'clock this morning badly damaged the North Side Hotel at 509 Main street. Pat McNamar, the proprietor of the place, was awakened by suffocating smoke and heat. He aroused his wife and rushed through the halls of the second and third floors shouting to the guests.

Clad only in their night shirts, men leaped from the third floor windows to the awning and walked thence to safety. Those in the second story came out of the windows and in like manner escaped, except a few who made the stairway before the fire and smoke cut them off. Nobody had time to save any effects. Jack Phillips, in room 14, got into the hall through straggling smoke just in time to hear the faint call of his neighbor, Tom Corb, who was an intimate personal friend. Phillips found him near the door of the room, grasped him about the waist, and the two stumbled to the top of the stairway in the second story, struggling and falling the rest of the way down. Corb's head was aflame when he awakened, and he was so badly burned about the legs and feet that he was taken to the City Hospital. Frank Rohl, clad only in a light undershirt, reached a window, lit a $40 gold watch, was snoring his nose. Fireman got him to the ground, John Lane, for two years a roomer in this place, lost all he had except trousers and shirt.

There were thrilling rescues, men saving men, for men only, except the proprietor's wife were in the place. And men went over each other when they found friends were safe. The building, valued at $15,000, was probably one-half lost by fire and water. Contents, valued at $6,000, had probably two-thirds loss. Firemen directed by Assistant Chief Tom Meyers made a good stop and lowered several persons from the awning. There were no fire escapes.

cluding the members of party executive committees. The Governor has the support of progressive sentiment, but as many influential leaders of both parties are opposed to a statewide primary law it is difficult to forestall in just what shape the measure will pass.

Several bankers will leave the city tonight to attend the state meeting at Dallas. They will be accompanied by Secretary Day of the Chamber of Commerce and the party will make a hard fight for Wichita Falls for the 1912 meeting.

Expedition Up the Nile Tomorrow Afternoon To Help Improve City Park

A Trip Up the Nile is expected to add new improvements and to help keep the Bellevue Park green, cool and inviting during the coming hot summer months. The expedition up the Nile will be conducted by the Ladies of the Civic League. The leader will be Mrs. J. C. Bernay and the expedition will start at the Gem Theatre at four o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The passage will cost adults 25 cents and children 15 cents. All the proceeds at the wharf plank will be expended in the maintenance and improvement of the park. Mrs. Bernay is a well qualified guide insuring a safe and interesting expedition. She is a former president of the First North Federation of Women's Clubs and a student and member of the European Exploration Society. Her lecture will be illustrated with numerous photographic slides and an instructive and enjoyable entertainment is promised.

STANDARD DECISION STIMULATES MARKET

Pardons Man Sent to Prison For Pardon

By Associated Press Austin, May 16.—W. J. Dent has been conditionally pardoned. During the Sayers administration Dent obtained a fraudulent pardon for a life term prisoner and in consequence was sent to prison to fill out the unexpired term of the man he freed.

STRANGER FLEECD CONFIDING YOUTH

Lad Appealed to Police and Now Alleged Confidence Man Repines in Jail.

Officers of the city court this morning heard the story of a young man, aged 17, as he related his experience after leaving home until he reached this city, in which his confidence in humanity was recited, as well as the betrayal thereof in connection with his initial trip in the cold, cruel world. He had left home in search of work possessed of a horse and saddle, but no money, and as is ever the case with a too confident nature, he soon met a pleasant companion who was willing to share his experience in the search for employment. But to this companion travel by horseback was too slow and he persuaded the youth to dispose of the animal and saddle and make the trip by rail. He also, as the young man related it, persuaded the latter to part with some of his clothes together with the price of a ticket to Wichita Falls, and arriving there, to permit him to take care of the remaining cash amounting to some three or four dollars. This balance the new found friend began to use until requested to call a hall by the confident youth and have it where the trouble began. He continued to spend the small capital on pretense that he could get more easily from his father who lived in another state, but by this time with a situation that looked like no money and little prospect for work staring him in the face, complaint was made to the officers and the alleged confidence man was lodged in the city jail, and his case was called this morning. In the meantime the city officers were very kind and considerate of the one who had been imposed upon and assisted him to procure work until he could earn enough to return to his home.

Following a hearing of the case in the Mayor's court this morning the man arrested was turned over to the county to which court he will have to answer for his conduct, and in the meantime he languishes in the county jail.

On being arraigned in the county court today the offender, who gave his name as Tom Baker, entered a plea of guilty on a charge of embezzlement and was fined $25 and five days in jail and at once dispatched to the road gang to work out the amount, not being possessed of sufficient cash to liquidate the fine.

The County Commissioners are working hard on the tax rolls in connection with their duty as a board of equalization and at the progress maker Hanna and Blake Co. The court is going over the matter carefully and thoroughly in an effort to equalize values in the county.

PRICES SHOOT UPWARD WITH A RUSH AND HEAVY GAINS ARE REGISTERED.

A FRUITLESS VICTORY

Against the Money Power is the Way English Newspapers View the Decision.

By Associated Press New York, May 16.—Prices went upward with a rush on the stock market this morning after a week's inactivity. The gains ranged from a large fraction to three points on every active stock. Although Standard Oil opened on the curb market at $75, a loss of 4 1/2 overnight, it quickly recovered in a few minutes and rose to 80.

The market had its ear open for European cables this morning waiting for news of the opening of the European markets, which would test the effect of yesterday's oil decision. The first news was reassuring and apparently not unexpected. The London stock market opened but half point below yesterday's. New York closing and quickly strengthened on New York buying orders. At New York the opening for United States steel started off with a sale of fifteen thousand shares at from 77 to 78, a maximum gain of 2 1/2. Other gains were Reading 2 points, Virginia and Carolina chemical 2 1/2; International Harvester 2 1/2; General Electric and Consolidated 1 1/2; United States rubber and Lehigh Valley 1 1/2; Southern Pacific 1 1/2; Atchison 1 1/2. Values were then set back sharply by a big profit taking sales after which the market worked slowly up to the opening level again.

American Tobacco Co. stocks jumped fifteen points at the opening on the curb. On the Stock Exchange American Tobacco opened ten points higher. The crowd of traders on the Exchange was the largest in many weeks. The opening gains were as a rule well maintained.

In the first hour of trading over four hundred thousand shares of stock were traded in, which was three times the amount of business done at the entire session yesterday. The bull operators continued in complete control of the market up to noon and then showed no signs of letting go. The noon prices were two to three points above yesterday's closing figures for the principal stocks. Bonds also were strong and active.

Theatrical But Fruitless Victory.

London, May 16.—The afternoon papers generally hold the opinion that the oil decision is "theatrical but probably a fruitless victory over the money power." Standard Officials Statement New York, May 16.—Standard Oil Company's first word on the decision came this morning from M. F. Elliott, the company's general solicitor. The company purposes to obey the decree, he says, and it will be some time before any reorganizations plans are given out. Meanwhile the companies affected will carry on the business as usual. Mr. Elliott said: "Having only before us the press reports of Chief Justice White's oral opinion and the remarks of Justice Harlan, and not having yet seen the opinion of the court in full, it is impossible to make any lengthy statement. The full opinion"

Will Dying Man's Statement Explain Almost Forgotten Tragedy?

Will a statement made a few days ago by J. W. Lee alias J. W. Duckett, who died here Monday morning to his landlady, Mrs. Leroy, who conducts a boarding house on Ohio avenue, explain the tragedy in connection with the finding of the frozen body of an unknown man in a corn field near Bloomington, Ill., nearly twenty years ago? Lee died yesterday morning of a hemorrhage following an illness of several weeks with dropsy. When his funds became exhausted the county took care of him. A few days before his death Lee told Mrs. Leroy that he was entitled to a pension but that he was afraid to file a claim for it as he had killed a man at Bloomington, Ill., twenty years ago and feared that he would be arrested and tried for murder; if he permitted his identity to become known. He said that he had killed the man in a quarrel over a girl, and that he was justified in the killing, but that he feared his story would not be believed.

Mrs. Leroy placed little credence in the story and did not think of it again until after his death. A dispatch received by The Times from Bloomington, Ill., last night says that Lee or Duckett, as he was known, is believed to have been a hack driver there. The telegram reads as follows: "The crime which Lee confessed to was committed here in November, 1891. The body of an unknown man was found by hunters in a corn field east of the city, and had evidently been dead for several weeks, being frozen into the earth. The dead man's identity was never discovered, but was supposed to have been killed in a house of ill fame, and the body hauled to the cornfield. Lee is said to have been a hackman in this city at the time, but suspicion of the crime was never directed against him. Murdered man buried in Potter's field. Mrs. Leroy did not question Lee, or Duckett, concerning any of the details of the killing in which he claims he took part and his lips are now sealed in death."

BANKERS WILL LIMIT RAILROAD BUILDING

Big Financiers Favor Trackage Agreements—Additional Equipment Instead of New Laws.

The leading bankers of the United States have now fully made up their minds to a new principle of railroad management, after having approached it gradually for many months. In a nutshell, they have decided that hereafter there shall be no construction of new lines where existing lines, of whatever ownership, can be made to serve the increasing demand for transportation. In furthering the new policy, J. P. Morgan and Co. have taken the lead and have been followed in some cases reluctantly by all of the other important banking groups. Bankers say that there is still plenty of money for the railroads to use, but what they have in mind is to employ it for refunding purposes for additional equipment and increased facilities on existing lines, and to build a comparatively small amount of new mileage in regions clearly lacking transit facilities of any character. Railroad managers make no secret of the conditions laid down for them by their bankers and for the most part concede the wisdom of the new plan.

As an expedient for bridging short gaps, trackage contracts have been familiar for many years, but never have they been used on anything like the scale provided for in contracts recently made and now under negotiation. Railroad executives of high position say such interchange of facilities is bound to play a conspicuous part in the new school of railroad economy now coming into vogue, and that in no long time it will effect savings of an amount to dwarf even the imaginings of a Brandeis. It will mean proportionately less railroad mileage as the population of the country increases and fewer local stations, but in their opinion no real lack of transportation capacity, while the public will benefit in the end through comparative reduction of burden of interest on capital invested in the carriers. —Wall Street Journal.

Harry Armstrong, formerly of this city, now manager of an advertising concern in Wichita Falls, was in the city this morning on his way to Olustee, where he was called by the illness of his wife, who is visiting her parents there. Grateful and Attractive Women. If you are thin and want to be plump; if you have wrinkles in your face that you are not proud of; if your skin is sallow or subject to pimples or blackheads take MI-ONA stomach tablets for two weeks and notice the change. Nine tenths of the thin people are thin because the stomach is not active; it is not mixing thoroughly with the natural digestive juices the food put into it, and consequently is not extracting from the food enough nourishment matter for the blood. If the stomach does not do its work properly the nourishment in the food you eat is passed along without giving to the body any flesh building elements. MI-ONA stomach tablets quickly build up the stomach so that it extracts from the food all the elements necessary to form good solid flesh. If you are thin try a two weeks treatment of MI-ONA stomach tablets; two with each meal will work wonders. MI-ONA stomach tablets are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic, or money back. CURTAILMENT IS NOW THE CRY

MOVEMENT AMONG SOUTHWESTERN LUMBERMEN IS A VOLUNTARY ONE.

LIKE A BURNED CHILD

They Fear the Fire and Will Not Take Risks—The Export and Railroad Situation—Will Edward Hines Resign?

(By J. C. Dionne in Houston Chronicle) "More curtailment" is the cry of the lumber manufacturers in the milling districts of the Southwest, and it looks as though the industry was entering upon the heaviest line of voluntary curtailment that has been known since the panic. It has been apparent for some time that the consumption of yellow pine lumber is not sufficient to justify the mills in running full time—through seasons like the present, and there has been a lot of voluntary curtailment practiced during the past 30 days in Texas, Louisiana, and Arkansas. The trouble is not that there has been any slump in the yard stock market, but the demand for lumber, ties, railroad and car material of all kinds, export material, etc., has not been what was expected during the past 30 days, and the heavy milling operations that were known to be making too much lumber. It began to heap up on the yard of the mills, and in the sheds, and in order to prevent too high a price the manufacturers began curtailing their production to keep in perfect balance with their shipments. They did not want to cut their own prices and injure the market in that way, since they know that the demand for lumber is just as strong at present prices as it would be if the price were $2 a thousand lower. They did not want to heap up lumber on their yard and hold it for the time when the demand will want it, because they know that when they do that the hand of Providence will be against them. His agencies of southern sun and rain would reduce the grade of their lumber in a short time, and by discoloring and staining it, reduce its market value and make it difficult to sell. It is purely self protection that the lumbermen are doing. Many of them are curtailing his production when he finds that his sales department can dispose of all he is making.

Twenty Per Cent Curtailment. At the present time more than 90 per cent of all of the saw mills in Texas and Louisiana that make yellow pine are curtailing their production at least 20 per cent. A large number of mills are running five days a week and shutting down one. Many others are running exactly three-fourths. Many others are running just four days a week, and shutting down two. Falls a score of mills report that they are running no more than one-half time, and about a dozen large mills are shut down entirely, waiting until they get a stock of lumber on hand before starting operations again.

In this way the amount of curtailment necessary to prevent the heaping up of stock and the breaking of the lumber market is being arrived at. Everybody is doing the curtailment that he thinks necessary to fit his own case. Along that same line there are still many mills that are running full time, but they are the ones that, for some reason, have not a good stock of lumber on hand to meet the demands of customers.

How long this curtailment is going to last no one knows. It depends entirely upon market conditions. The mills will increase their output whenever there is a demand for more lumber than they are making at the present rate of running, and vice versa. The manufacturers have been very badly scorched during the past three years, and like the burnt child, they have learned to fear the fire. For three years they kept down the price of lumber below a living price, strictly through their own efforts and sacrifices to cut and sell. They could not stand that program much longer, and they have learned much wisdom. Today each mill man is resolved that when the market does stop selling he is going to stop cutting, and that is absolutely the only solution to the lumber problem.

During the past week there has been a better tone to the market than there was during the month of April, and the demand is a little more briskly felt by the majority of lumber of flocks. This is generally ascribed to the fact that the Northern market is opening up some and sending in some orders, as the firms that cater strictly to the Texas market are not making such optimistic reports as those that seek all markets where they can sell their stock. Good orders from as far north as the Canadian border have graced Houston sales desks of late, and this is helping things along. Export and Railroad Business. The railroad business does not improve, however. Small orders continue to float in, and some of the more fortunate mills have many lumber orders on their books, but the competition in timber lines is stronger than ever in ward stock, and there is lots of fighting for the railroad orders that appear.

PENNINGTON'S THE BIG BUSY STORE

Manufacturers' Association meets in Chicago on May 24 there will be many Houston and other Texas lumbermen in attendance eager to hear Edward Hines explain—the former middle from his standpoint. Mr. Hines is president of that association, and there has been much argument among the trade as to whether or not he should resign the presidency and protect the association from blame in the trouble which has embroiled him. There are many loyal members who believe him thoroughly innocent of the charges against him and hope to see him exonerated, but the majority seem to lean the other way in this part of the world.

TEXAS BANKERS ARE IN SESSION TODAY

Large Delegation In Attendance Boostin for Wichita Falls in 1912.

Special to The Times.
Dallas, Texas, May 16.—Seldom if ever before in the history of the Texas Bankers' Association have its annual gathering attracted such a large and representative attendance as marked the opening of the twenty-seventh annual convention in this city today. Scores of leading bankers and financiers from all parts of the Lone Star State and from several other States as well filled the auditorium of the Dallas Opera House when President W. H. Fuqua called the gathering to order at 10 o'clock this morning. The initial session was given over to welcomes and responses and to the annual reports of officers and standing committees. This afternoon the bankers listened to addresses as follows: "Safeguards Against Recurring Panics," George M. Reynolds, president of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago; "Banking Conditions in the Southwest," George H. Harrison, vice president of the New England National Bank of Kansas City; and "State Banks—the Laws Controlling Them and Suggestions as to Their Conduct," Ben L. Hill, State Bank Commissioner of Texas.

Wichita Falls will ask for the convention in 1912. A number of Wichita Falls bankers are here boosting for their city. Among them are J. A. Kemp, C. W. Snider, W. M. McGregor, R. E. Huff, J. R. Hyatt and W. R. Ferguson.

Alfalfa will soon be on the local market. Fields are in full bloom and ready for the sickle. Alfalfa is the earliest crop marketed in Altus and notwithstanding a backward and cold spring the crop is up to the usual standard.—Altus Times.

Mad Dog at Frederick.
About 6:30 this morning a mad dog came running up the alley where Mrs. C. M. Meyers resides on Floral avenue, and badly bit a hound belonging to her son, Jake Heater. A small pet dog belonging to W. D. Betrum and family, came running out of their residence to the assistance of the Heater hound when it too was bitten. After again biting the hound the mad dog left, and Marshal Waggoner was notified, who at once killed all three of these dogs.

The mad dog belonged to Sallie Douglas. Yesterday it had a fight with another dog which it chewed up badly, but no one thought at that time that the dog had rabies. Later it killed a cat, when it was surprised to have been bitten by the mad dog.

Marshal Waggoner and Constable Walter Phillips have been busy today shooting dogs that were supposed to have been bitten by the mad dog.—Frederick Enterprise.

Meddling Mothers Blamed for Many Woes of Young Couples

When young couples cease to be interfered with by parents, especially mothers, the Supreme Court, where divorces are granted, and the Domestic Relations Court, where troubles are aired, will hear fewer rehearsals of marital woes. The custom of going to court with domestic differences is so increasing that the question has become one of vital interest to society at large, of especial importance to the social worker, the economist and the court.

Desertion and abandonment frequently follow the unrest in the family. The breadwinner leaves his home and compels his wife and children to depend upon their own resources to seek aid from those who are neither by law nor morals compelled to support them.

Justice Kelly of the Supreme Court Brooklyn, urges parents not to take up the troubles of their married children, thus crushing many cases in which cruel and inhuman treatment or desertion are charged.

"They should appreciate how trivial their disturbances look to others," said he. "A failure to wash dishes, a failure to come home at the exact minute, a failure to bring home fresh eggs and the young wife goes to her mother. An old-fashioned mother would have sent her straight back to her husband where she belonged. The young husband runs to his mother, when his feelings are hurt and is petted to death."

In the Domestic Relations Court, which strives to adjust the married lives of persons, to bring about the reconciliations, or, failing in that, the payment of money for support into the hands of the Department of Public Charities there is also seen the penalty of interference.

Judge Cornell, who at present is sitting in this court, has plenty of opportunities for observation, as often fathers and mothers appear before him to tell where the blame lies in the distracted lives of their married children.

"In nearly half of the cases which come before me," said he, "I believe the wife has been as much to blame as her husband. Many of them have bad dispositions and are nagging and impossible; some are addicted to drink and some are just impossible. These women marry, knowing what their husband's income are, and yet they manifest no desire to live within their means."

"Mothers of the women, instead of smoothing over the differences that arise and influencing their daughters to make the best or most of things as they are, foster the nagging spirit until home life is a torture to the man and he bolts away from it."

"In treatment of a recalcitrant husband we use every form of moral suasion to induce him to reform, and we ask his parents to assist us in every way they can.

"It is difficult to punish the man without also punishing, and perhaps to a greater extent, his wife and children, for when imprisoned the man is sure of support, while those independent on him are not."

"Although the chief effort of a magistrate should be to keep families together, there are many cases which come to court where the relations of husband and wife have been so often strained that they may be said to have at last broken and, for the time at least, there is no hope of a reconciliation. Sometimes, the best advice is that the husband live apart from his wife. When the husband is able to furnish a bond the best remedy is to place him under a bond to pay his wife a certain sum each week."

"In cases where the domestic troubles are not of long standing or aggravated by parental advice the family should not be separated, but the husband should be placed under the special charge of intelligent probation officers, and the court should not lose sight or hold of them."

"When real friendly interests and other moral influences fail, more strenuous methods must be employed and the strong arm of the law must be invoked to bring a man to a realizing sense of what he owes to his family as well as to society at large."

Miss McQuade is a probation officer at this court, and she settles a generous number of cases in her little office. She smooths tempers and sometimes sees a husband and wife leave the magistrate's court arm in arm, after vowing, that very day, they never would speak to each other again.

"Often when young complainants come here I find the mothers of both set their heels, each declaring for justice—which means that her own should be given the best of it."

"Only this morning," resumed Miss McQuade, "a young woman brought her husband here, charging him with desertion. He had found fault with her because she drank a bottle of beer and declared she did it when her mother came to visit them. She had promised him before marriage she never would. It seems she did it only once. She pawned a gold chain he had given her and bought herself a coat. He discovered the ticket, but decided to give her another chance. She gave a dinner to some friends, at which he noticed there was particularly fine cloth on the table. She said it was a wedding present. Later he found out she had borrowed it for the occasion from a neighbor. He told her his confidence in her was gone forever, and she went home to her

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

- May 16 1760—The French retired from Quebec. 1790—Honoré de Balzac, celebrated novelist, born in Tours. Died in Paris, Aug. 18, 1850.

It now looks very much as if President Diaz of Mexico, is going to be forced to resign, and when that takes place the man who succeeds, whether it be Madero or some other, will find more revolutions than now exist to put down, and it is doubtful, extremely so, that this can be done.

"If, in order to keep your town in the limelight—or on the map it is necessary to send out stories of scandal, then scandalize a little but," argues an exchange. The Times, however, takes a different view of such matters.

It is easier to get factories after we get good roads. The Times is pleased indeed, to note that the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce has at least taken that view of the matter, and will now unite its influence with that of the farmers of Wichita county in an effort to vote bonds for the building of good roads. There should be but little if any opposition to the proposition, and the quicker it is put through the better. This is ideal weather for good roads visitation and good roads building. It does not require the wisdom of a prophet to tell in plain words just why the work should begin at once.

Wichita Falls extends to the Oklahoma City Trades Excursionists a most hearty welcome to Texas and to this city, and assures them that if anything is lacking in their entertainment it is not because our feeling toward them is any less friendly.

The people of Wichita Falls have looked to Oklahoma City as a model of enterprise and progress, and what Oklahoma City has accomplished in a large way, Wichita Falls is trying to do in a way smaller in proportion only. We like Oklahoma City so well that our citizens have long been planning a more direct rail communication with you. There are indications that this hope will be realized in the near future. In this connection the Times expresses the belief that such a connection would be no less advantageous to Oklahoma City than to Wichita Falls.

"The federal government is now going to investigate the express companies," is the cheering announcement that comes from Washington. That the rates of the express companies are extortionate and the service bad, scarcely anyone who has dealings with them can deny. As an evidence of the prosperity enjoyed by the express companies, it is only necessary to note the fact that even after declaring a cash annual dividend of 25 per cent two years ago, the Adams Express Company has since that time declared a dividend of 200 per cent. Much of this "high cost of living" is directly traceable to the extortionate express rates charged for transportation of vegetable and farm products from the farm and truck gardens to the markets, and as a result much of it is not marketed at all, but allowed to decay and go to waste because the express charges are so excessive that it does not compensate the grower to prepare his product for the market. In other words, there is little or nothing left for the grower after the express charges are settled. They, the express companies, have a monopoly of the business, and there is a suspicion that they are owned and controlled by the railroads, and that being the case, it is to the interests of the railroads to not come in competition with the express companies, but on the contrary make it possible for them to get all the business they can. The federal government moves slowly in such matters, and for that reason it may be a year or so before the express companies are compelled to give more reasonable rates for service rendered.

What this country needs more than anything else is a rest, from the rule of the demagogues and the disturber of business a chance and it will make progress. Correct evils that have grown out of the raw conditions of new and rapidly growing communities. Having corrected these evils let us treat our railways and industrial corporations as other nations treat theirs—with an idea to their encouragement, development and growth. Other nations appreciate that the foundation of their prosperity rests upon the development of business enterprises, manufacturing industries and facilities for cheap and convenient transportation. These have meant much to them in the past and they mean much more in the future if we develop them on proper lines. And we have one advantage over the other great commercial nations—we have an enormous development of agricultural production and it is this factor, added to the growth of our industries, that gives us the great lead we hold over all competitors.—Leslie's Weekly.

SONG FOR STATEWIDERS BY A WICHITA WOMAN

Mrs. B. F. Dutton Composes Song for Wichita County State-wide Prohibitionists.

Mrs. B. F. Dutton of this city composed a song which will be sung in statewide prohibition meetings in this county and other places in the campaign that is now on to vote Texas dry.

The title of the song is "For God, and Home and Native Land." The words are as follows: For God and home and native land Oh! make the welkin ring. For God and home and native land, Let everybody sing.

CHORUS. Temperance forever, Shout boys, hurrah! Down with the despot And up with the Stars. And we'll rally round the flag boys Rally once again Shouting our battle cry of temperance.

King Alcohol has had his day He will never reign again In Texas, where he's ruled so long. There are too many men, who Love their homes and families. They're loading up the guns With ballots white for next July They'll make the monster run.

We boys and girls of Texas land, Are bright and precious. So our fathers will not let our lives Be ruined by this foe. He has slain us by the thousands In the days that have gone by. Now it's our innings, and Our cry is "let the monster die."

Y. M. C. A. ANNUAL MEETING MONDAY

NEW DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS ELECTED FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

SECRETARY MAKES REPORT

Membership, Nok 314—Much Good Work Done—Permanent Home Needed. A movement will be launched within the coming year for a permanent home of its own by the Y. M. C. A. This will be one of the problems which the new officers elected at a membership meeting Monday will have to consider.

The directors are as follows. For term expiring January 1, 1912: J. T. Roberts, W. J. Bullock, J. C. Myltinger, Patrick Henry, J. J. Dolman. For term expiring in 1913: R. C. Carey, J. W. Bradley, T. B. Noble, T. L. Toland, W. E. Huff.

STANDARD DECISION (Continued from Page One) In its decision yesterday the Supreme Court held: That the Standard Oil Company is a monopoly in restraint of trade. That this giant corporation must be dissolved within six months. Corporations whose contracts are "not unreasonably restrictive of competition" are not affected. Other great corporations whose acts may be called into question will be dealt with according to the merits of their particular cases. The court was unanimous as to the main features of the decision, Justice Harlan dissenting only as to a limitation of the application of the Sherman anti-trust law.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

The opponents of State-wide prohibition in Texas will open their State campaign in Fort Worth early in June. Speaker Champ Clark was formerly president of Marshall College, and next to politics his chief interests are farming and books.

According to a statement just issued from the headquarters of the National Socialist party in Chicago there are now more than six hundred thousand voters of the Socialist ticket in the United States. Congressman Robert E. Diefenderfer of the Eighth Pennsylvania district had a somewhat remarkable career.

CO-OPERATIVE GAS CO. IS PROPOSED

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE APPOINTS COMMITTEE TO NEGOTIATE WITH NEW GAS COMPANY.
3 CENT GAS THE OBJECT
Such a Company Would Be Very Attractive to Manufacturers.

There is a movement on foot, which if carried out will mean the organization of a gas company in this city the stockholders of which will be largely consumers, with the ultimate object to furnish gas at the lowest possible rate. The corporation will be organized along the lines of the usual industrial enterprises in the hope of providing a rate as low as 3 cents for manufacturing purposes.
The idea which was presented to the Chamber of Commerce this morning by J. A. Kemp, was as he expressed it, the most feasible solution of the proposition for promoting manufacturing enterprises, as there was nothing that would appeal to the investor so much as cheap fuel. Wichita Falls now has a reasonable rate, but it is thought that organizing a company and selling the matter to the lowest possible rate indicated above the rate can be cut in half and an inviting proposition such as no other town could offer could then be held out as a further inducement in securing manufacturing enterprises.
In advancing his idea it was the opinion of Mr. Kemp that an effort should be made to secure the stock of some company that had sufficiently developed the business to provide the service desired and in this connection it was suggested that some of the stock of the Wichita Oil and Gas Co. might be had on a reasonable basis.
Acting on this suggestion a committee was appointed, as indicated in the report of the meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, and this committee met with the members of the company referred to in the office of Mr. Kemp this afternoon and the matter was gone over thoroughly.
After hearing the proposition of the committee the Messrs. Culbertson took the matter of disposing of a part of their stock upon this plan under advisement and promised to give them an answer within the next few days.

MONDAY'S GAME A HOWLING FARCE

EXHIBITION YESTERDAY STARTLING CONTRAST WITH SUNDAY'S GAME.
Visitors Apparently Quit Trying—Bonham Short On Pitching Talent.
One of the poorest exhibitions of baseball of the season was perpetrated on a suffering public at the city park yesterday afternoon, in the game between Bonham and the local team. The game started off reasonably well, but developed into a howling farce before its conclusion.
The condition was so reverse to that of the day before that those who witnessed both games could not be impressed with the striking contrast. It soon developed yesterday that Bonham did not have a "look in" and after permitting the Lads to register runs the visitors quit trying it seemed, and let it go to the limit. The great trouble with Bonham seemed to be an absence of available pitchers and they evidently used every man they had who could throw a curve with the exception of Jost, who pitched the day before, and Hancock, who it was expected would do the twirling today. Four men occupied the box during the game including the catcher, third baseman and shortstop, Lunsford, who began the game, had no control and besides was hit on the pitching arm in the third, rendering him less effective.
Green pitched a good game for the Lads and with the exception of error by Taylor was given perfect support.

Effective Pitching of Trammell, Allowing Only Three Hits, Gives Victory—Good Fielding Features.
Ardmore, Okla., May 16.—Lawton was defeated yesterday afternoon the effective pitching of Trammell. But for Wessinger's error in the second inning the visitors would probably have been shut out, the all-around work of McCullum in center being a feature. He made two sensational catches and got a single and three-bagger out of three trips to the plate. FRIBERG-THORNBERRY.

One-half the conference year is gone, and we look now towards the end. What shall we have accomplished then? Just about as we wish.
Lee Leisler left Frisberg Tuesday for Galveston where he will visit his parents.
The Boys' Corn Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Frisberg school house last Thursday and received their club badges.
Rev. and Mrs. Cunningham visited with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Osborn near Thornberry on Wednesday of last week.
The pastor will preach at Thornberry next Sunday morning and evening.
A Philathea class has been organized in the Thornberry Sunday School. This is in keeping of the times. "Advance" is the command.
Joseph Stephenson was a petit juror at Henrietta last week.
It looks now as though what would be cut in his community the latter part of this week, unless it rains.
A great deal of sympathy was aroused in the Frisberg vicinity last Friday by the drowning of Frank and Jerry Krajca. They were pupils in this school the past year.
The Second Quarterly Meeting was an interesting occasion. Dr. Summer-ville is a progressive executive. He wants things pertaining to the church carried on in a business way, as it should be. The pastor reported making 63 pastoral visits requiring him to drive 484 miles to make them. In spite of all the good things he got to

A Paper Prepared by Col. Henry Exall of the Texas Industrial Congress for the Texas Press Association at Port Lavaca

The Texas Press Association, Port Lavaca, Texas. Gentlemen:

I deeply regret that at the last moment sickness makes it impossible for me to give myself the very great pleasure of having a heart to heart talk with the members of the Texas Press Association...

Editors like preachers and school teachers, as a rule, talk to a crowd that cannot talk back. It is therefore necessary that they search themselves...

A man thoroughly conversant with a given subject, is too apt to think those stupid who do not immediately understand him. Successful teaching requires that degree of patience...

Through the kind co-operation of the press of the state, the Congress has been enabled to reach more than one million people...

The population of Europe and America at the beginning of the Nineteenth century was about 180 million; it is now over 450 million.

The people must be taught the absolute necessity of returning everything possible in the line of fertilizers to the soil...

The corn and cotton rows should be 4 or 5 feet apart instead of three feet apart...

In behalf of the Texas Industrial Congress I desire to thank you a thousand times for the support you have given this work...

Again thanking you, I remain, Very truly yours, HENRY EXALL, President Texas Industrial Congress.

In Memory of Victoria. London, May 16.—The pages of English history would be turned back in vain to find a parallel for the imposing ceremonial that London witnessed today at the unveiling of the great national memorial to Queen Victoria...

And yet, after all the gorgeousness of the display, there yet remained the most impressive of all—the presence of the hundreds of thousands of common people, who stood by with heads uncovered and listened reverently to the eloquent words of praise bestowed upon Victoria the Good...

The arrangements for the dedication were of the most perfect and elaborate character. At every detail of the program was carried out without a hitch. The War Department had the supervision of the military part, while the Archbishop of Canterbury prepared the religious service...

With the Caloric Cooked In The Caloric

Come to the Demonstration all this week

The "Caloric" does better cooking and baking than is possible by any other methods.

That may sound like a strong statement to you who do not know the possibilities of this wonderful time and labor saving stove, but it is founded upon absolute results. Foods cooked in the "Caloric" are far more nutritious and palatable.

The "Caloric" roasts and bakes food in its raw state without first partially cooking it in an ordinary stove or reheating it before serving.

If you have never tasted food cooked in the "Caloric" Cookstove you cannot realize the vast difference in flavor.

Come to our store and let us demonstrate to you how you can reduce your meat and grocery bills with a "Caloric" Fireless Cookstove. Come and bring your friends.

Facts Concerning Bermuda Grass

Our common name, Bermuda, for the grass so called, would indicate that it originated in the islands of that name, but such is not the case. It is believed that India is its place of nativity, where it is called "Dhab" and is the safeguard of the cattle against starvation.

For years the botanical name of Bermuda grass has been Cynodon Dactylon, but in a reclassification of the grasses the name was changed to Cynoplocha Dactylon. But that makes no difference, as the change of name has not affected the grass as such as it would have done a grass wild-ow.

The exact date of its introduction into the United States is not known, but it was found growing in Georgia in 1825, where it had probably been growing for some years. There is no data upon its introduction into Texas. Perhaps some reader of Texas Farm and Fireside may be able to throw some light on the subject. At all events, it has been in Texas a long time. I have found it covering the valley lands of prairie creeks in Central Texas. Lands which to all appearances had never been in cultivation.

Texas are so familiar with the grass that it is not necessary to describe it for them, but many readers of this paper are newcomers.

The most conspicuous feature of the mature grass is the tassel or seed-head. It looks like a miniature crab-grass seed-head. The head is usually composed of four fingers, though it may have only three, or it may have six or seven. The leaves on the stem are numerous. Authorities say that from two to four leaves are formed at each joint. I don't remember having seen more than two. However, the leaves are numerous enough and fine enough to give the turf a very soft and pleasing effect. There are two kinds of stems. One grows prostrate, that is, flat upon the surface of the ground. The other is subterranean, growing just below the surface of the ground. The other is subterranean, growing just below the surface.

The latter stem does not develop freely in hard or heavy soils, but in mellow earth containing much vegetable matter they will be found in abundance. The prostrate stems are the ones which give the leafage. They take root at every node and every bud makes a cluster of upright, leafy stalks. These stems will extend in all directions from the original stool and will grow to several feet in length. They have been known to reach a length of twelve feet, but eighteen inches to two feet is usual. The conditions under which growth is made determines this matter.

One of the valuable qualities of Bermuda grass is its adaptability to varying soil characteristics. It will grow almost pure sand and if the sand is kept moist enough, and it will grow on clay. Like most grasses it will do best on a rich moist loam. It will not thrive on a gravelly soil. It will grow luxuriantly in wet soils, as, for instance, on the banks of stock-water tanks, or canal banks or levees, even where it is sometimes submerged during short periods. At the same time it is considered a resister of drought. This quality is fast making it the favorite grass of Oklahoma. It is said to excel all grasses even the native ones, in its adaptability to the climatic conditions of that state, except cold as it sometimes freezes out there. In Texas it has been frequently seen to be killed by drought in central Texas when growing upon sandy or gravelly soil, though it is never killed by heat or drought when growing upon suitable soil. It is an excellent grass for the heavy damp soils of the upper coast country, where the native grasses are not very nutritious. On these lands it will produce abundant pastures during the summer months, and in mid months, it will produce scant pasturage during the winter months also. The upper coast has no native grasses which supply winter grazing with certainty. This fact is one of the drawbacks to stock raising in this territory.

Bermuda grass does not correct the soil, but its habit of growth makes it possible to improve the condition so far as the stock farm is concerned. In this way, I know of no better winter grass than Bromus, called also Fescue and Rescue. This grass is as strictly a winter grass as Bermuda is a summer grass. If the Bermuda grass is harvested with a weighted tooth harrow early in the fall after seeding, the seed on it the grass will grow all winter and even on the tough sod will make fairly good grazing. And more than that, it will reseed itself so that harrowing will be the only requirement for succeeding crops on it. This same fall harrowing is an excellent thing for the Bermuda as well as the soil is a lighter loam clover may be used in the place of bromus and with greater benefit to the stock, as the pasture will then furnish more of the nitrogenous food element. In northeast Texas on the red soil, bromus and clover grow together spontaneously and make a beautiful landscape when encouraged by a little human intervention. There the clover is the Carolina variety; here, probably the best clover would be burr clover, though we have a very promising pink-blossomed clover which might be better.

Another great advantage that bermuda has over other grasses is its quality of resisting alkali. This quality will make it of great value in arid or semi-arid countries where irrigation has caused the soil to become impregnated with alkaline salts which are dissolved by the irrigation water which, on lands that are not under-drained rises to the surface and destroys the grasses. All persons so situated should plant bermuda. Bermuda grass will not endure shading. For this reason it is a poor grass for a lawn where it is covered with trees, but for open lawns nothing is better. It is a tropical or semi-tropical grass. It is killed by very low temperatures. Old grass has endured 15 degrees below zero in Oklahoma when young grass near it was killed. (See Oklahoma Station Bulletin, No. 85.) Bermuda is not a Texas weather unless it be that of the panhandle. It will tolerate any amount of sunshine and luxuriate in it if given sufficient moisture and nourishment.

Prof. Francis of the Oklahoma experiment station has been making some investigations into the increased constitution of Bermuda grass with a view to learning its feeding value. The laboratory experiments have been supplemented by feeding experiments for their corroboration. The feeding experiments so far as they were carried seem to have sustained the laboratory experiments.

These investigations make some disclosures which are a surprise to me. Protein is the most valuable feeding ingredient in the crop. To my surprise Prof. Francis finds that during its first stage of growth it contains the first year of its growth bermuda grass is as rich in protein as alfalfa and continues, for after the first year it falls lower in the protein content.

Still the old grass is superior to any other of pure grasses barely stands up to its first stage of growth. This relation may be shown by quoting the "nutritive ratios" of some of these. The nutritive ratio of Bermuda in its first year of growth is, according to Prof. Francis, 1:3.06. The nutritive ratio of alfalfa is 1:3.8. Only a little more than that of Bermuda in its first year. The ratio for three-year-old Bermuda is 1:6.1, for barley 1:7.7, for buffalo grass 1:12, while prairie grass is so poor that it has a ratio of 1:84.2. These investigations of Prof. Francis put a valuation on Bermuda grass that is surprising.

In digestibility Bermuda hay does not show some of those advantages under the other basis of comparison, yet it stands well and is more digestible than most of them. I am inclined to think that its deficiency in this respect is due to its fineness. It is so easily swallowed that the animal does not masticate it properly. If this is the case it can be overcome by the methods of feeding and a large percentage of the nutrient it contains be obtained by the animal. However, the fact that the test of digestibility was made with sheep is rather against my supposition that lack of mastication was the cause of deficiency in this quality. The author of these experiments says: "There is the expense of these foods is considered it will be apparent that Bermuda hay has no equal."

As commonly grown Bermuda grass does not make much of a hay crop, yet it is capable of making large yields. Prof. Newman, writing on this subject in 1902, says: "There is a well authenticated record of 1800 pounds of cured Bermuda hay per acre, from three mowings during one season, on the Ocoee river bottoms in Georgia." On this point Prof. Francis of Oklahoma says: "Certainly two cuttings may be made, and in some cases as many as seven or eight cuttings will run from half a ton to over two tons per acre."

Nevertheless, as a cheap feeding material the chief value of Bermuda grass is in the formation of permanent pastures. A good sod will keep a large number of animals busy. One authority says that Bermuda clover or lupizilla will stand close grazing better than other plants. The test was made with cattle.

Another use for Bermuda, which is of great value in East Texas, is the renovation of worn and washed soils. If a field which has ceased to be profitable under a tenant's management, be set to Bermuda grass and pastured for a few years, it will be restored to productivity quicker than if turned out, will be returning a better annual revenue and come into cultivation again free of brush and roots. All of these benefits can be improved by additional care in the management of the field while in grass; as, for instance, by sowing to burr clover and harrowing every fall.

In a hilly country where the soil is of a loamy nature great injury is often done by the washing off of the soil or the gullies of the field. In many cases it seems almost impossible to stop the washing by any arrangement of fields or ditches. A part of this kind will be so ruined by erosion that it will be useless under a tenant's management. Under such conditions parts of the field endangered should be set to Bermuda grass after shallowing out the washes in such a way that a mowing machine can be run through them to cut the hay and to prevent the possibility of erosion by not setting the acidity. These, too, can be sowed to burr or other clover to provide a winter crop for grazing purposes. But in a damp climate these strips of grass should never be enclosed during the cultivation of crops. The fields should be dotted with the boundaries formed by the grass strips. If rows cross these drainage belts so that cultivators or other implements are dragged across them the whole field will, in a short time, become infested with Bermuda. Bermuda, in such a climate, is like fire. It is splendid in its proper place.

On many hillside farms traces are being used to prevent washing and gulching. If properly laid and cared for they are very useful and effective, but they are a nuisance as producers of weed seed, and if neglected become a blemish to the farm because of the lines of weeds and trash they carry. It is a decided improvement in appearance when the terraces are planted to Bermuda. As the Bermuda does not, in this country, produce seeds, its care does not increase the labor of the field cultivator. The weed seed which does produce seed. Other farms utilize sidewalk ditches instead of terraces. If these are not constructed with just the right fall they will be either inefficient or destructive as a result of washing. If the latter error has been made Bermuda grass will correct it. If the ditches have been given just the right fall and Bermuda is planted in them they may be ruined, I believe it would be better to give them a little to either side so as to be able to use Bermuda in them and so be rid of the weed nuisance.

On irrigated farms Bermuda is the right thing to use on canal banks both inside and outside. Water will flow with so little impediment over sat by the bed side of a youth upon whose manly brow the glassy stare of death seemed slowly but surely settling, friends of childhood days and gathered around his couch and the great pain convulsed his powerful athletic was near and wept bitterly for one so young and strong yet beyond the reach of human aid. He gazed with unseeing eyes around the room and tried to speak but the pallid lips refused to move, with powerful surges he seemed to try to release himself from the clutches of some cruel unseen force that held him in its grip, finally with an almost superhuman effort he raised his mangled right hand and beckoned the physician who quickly bent over him and listened intently to the words he tried to speak and in a hoarse whisper breaking the death like stillness of the room he asked if the Giants won out yesterday and if Stopper Witherspoon has still leaning down the park fences, the doctor patiently nodded, his head and the young man raised himself on his elbow and said: "Doc can't you patch me up so I can go to the game tomorrow?"
