THOUSANDS ATTEND ANTI RALLY AT FORT WORTH

FORCES OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION MAKE AN ENTHUSIASTIC DEMONSTRATION—CROWD ESTIMATED AT 25,000.

GOV. COLQUITT SPEAKS

Says Conservative People Should Give An Overwhelming Majority Against State-Wide And Assure Peace.

Special to The Times.

Fort Worth, Texas, June 5.—It is estimated that over twenty-five thousand visitors are here attracted by the opening rally of the anti-state-wide prohibition or by the low rates. Thirteen special trains arrived this morning. The prospects are that some of the crowd must sleep in parks or in private homes if they stay all night. The visitors are from every section of the state and including a few clergymen.

By six o'clock this morning large crowds paraded up and down the streets. The Houston delegation brought a brass band. Father April, a Catholic priest from Falls county led one street parade from the station this morning. The program commenced at ten o'clock.

Governor Colquitt, who was one of the speakers said that prohibition was not a moral question but a political issue. He said this was demonstrated by the fact that at the last session of the legislature, one branch spent most of the session wangling over an effort to "make political in decline against me." Colquitt said he again invoked the principle of local self-government adding, "Under our local option system those counties and communities where the majority favor it can now have local prohibition and can enforce it because the will of county communities counts. But the people of one county who want it cannot sit on juries nor elect officers of another county where people do not want it. It is even better from the standpoint of the prohibitionist to hold onto local option and control yourselves locally than to force it upon those who don't want it by state-wide prohibition. Teach self-reliance, self-dependence, self-respect and you will forbid over consumption of liquor," he said.

"Let me appeal to the conservative people of Texas and those who oppose sumptuary laws and statewide enactments on prohibition to help themselves and settle the issue in this state for years to come by giving an overwhelming majority against state-wide prohibition. We shall then go forward in the development of the rich resources of our state and the upbuilding of the moral strength of our individual manhood."

The Methodist pastor's Association this morning adopted a resolution denouncing Governor Colquitt for his views on statewide prohibition.

The following program was carried out as a feature of the rally being a great barbecue at which it is estimated nearly ten thousand participated.

Chairman's Walters' Address.

One of the principal addresses was delivered by J. F. Walters, chairman of the anti statewide organization.

He declared that there could be no doubt that Texas would repudiate the effort of the Ohio political holding corporation to destroy the local option and regulation system of our state.

He charged that the anti saloon league was backed by John D. Rockefeller.

His address in the main was an attack on the anti saloon league. In part he said:

corporation appears, political dissension and strife follow, and as a result, in their petty quarrels over the liquor question the people forget the real economic troubles that beset them.

"In the excitement that is always occasioned by the effort to fast state-wide prohibition upon the people they forget to guard their orchards, and the plunderbund carriers off the fruit."

"The effect of the operations of this political corporation is to destroy parties of fixed principles and substitute in their places hybrid organizations that disrupt all character of investment and business by reason of an erratic administration of public affairs and obliterate all ties of neighborly interest and confidence so essential to the moral and material development of the people of a State.

"So arrogant is this political corporation that in its booklet of instructions it boldly proclaims that its hirings will not be permitted to present its work in any church in the land unless they are allowed to take up a collection or subscription.

"Its policy has been always and everywhere to defame and traduce the man, in public or private life, who does not bow his neck and bend his knee in servile obedience to its dictates to the end that his character may be destroyed.

"If any man doubts the accuracy of this statement that this political corporation is the sower of strife and dissension in the political and social affairs of the people, then let him turn to Alabama or Tennessee where the people are now reaping the harvest of its planting.

"Alabama began the experiment of effective laws tending to control the great public services corporations owned and operated by the possessors of predatory wealth, and the antisaloon league came and induced the substitution of the local option system and the license system with state-wide prohibition.

"Immediately the attention of the people was turned from the consideration of those economic questions that ought to restrain the efforts of the interests to prey upon the people, and was directed to the prohibition question.

"With an executive and legislature willing to do its bidding, enforcement laws supplementing the prohibition system were enacted that were so drastic and destructive of the right of local self-government that all laws of like kind enacted under the reign of the Blue Laws paled into insignificance.

"Yet, in that state, statewide prohibition was impracticable of enforcement in many sections, and especially so in the larger cities.

"When the Supreme Court of that State rendered a decision which was not to the liking of the antisaloon league, the decree went forth that the venerable justices who occupied the supreme bench must be defeated and their places taken by a servient tool of the Ohio corporation."

"It included the legislation of this state to submit to the people a constitutional amendment providing for state-wide prohibition, and the people, after an experience of two years with the system under statutory enactment, repudiated the amendment by that overwhelming majority, and followed that up by electing a governor and a legislature instructed to repeal the statewide system and re-enacting the local option and license system."

"The demands of the people were carried out to the letter, and Alabama stands forth again under the system which has proven so satisfactory in Tennessee, but it will take a generation to heal the wounds the Ohio corporation inflicted.

"Tennessee began the prosecution of the traffic including Standard Oil, and immediately the anti saloon league entered that State and stirred up strife and dissension to such an extent that the people of the Old Volunteer State are divided into warring factions.

"It disrupted the democratic party of Tennessee and proscribed the republican party.

"It imposed statewide prohibition upon the people of that state, and as a result there are now in Memphis 1,282 saloons operating without legal restrictions and contributing no taxes to the expense of government where only 700 saloons existed under the license system, regulated and paying tax."

"In Nashville where before the adoption of statewide prohibition the best excise law to be found next to Texas, there existed only 168 saloons while today there are 582 saloons running without restriction and in open defiance of the law.

"Tennessee is a seething pot of political and social turmoil and strife. The people have forgotten important economic questions while they are at war over the liquor question."

"In Texas we were intelligently, calmly and deliberately working out the troublesome economic questions that confronted us. So well had we succeeded that students of the science of government interested in the perplexing problem that required solution at the hands of the American people of their respective states had been attracted by our system of muni-

DISORDERLY HOUSES TO BE INVESTIGATED

JUDGE MARTIN IN CHARGE TO GRAND JURY CALLS ESPECIAL ATTENTION TO LAWS ON SOCIAL EVIL.

CROWDED COUNTY JAIL

Judge Suggests That Cases of Men in Jail Be Given Precedence Over All Others.

In his charge to the newly empaneled grand jury this morning, District Judge P. A. Martin called their attention especially to the law against theft, robbery and burglary, assault to murder, swindling, perjury, violations of the local option laws, the Terrill election law and to the law against hawdy houses. Of these he stated that it was understood that there had been charges of violations in references to all of these offenses, with the possible exception of the local option law and the Terrill election law.

The charge of the judge was an exhaustive one in which he urged the members of the jury to be diligent in their deliberations, impartial in their findings and altogether faithful to the trust imposed in them by virtue of their position and the law providing therefor. He also explained to them in detail the duties involved and pledged to them the cooperation of the court in the exercise of these duties.

In opening his charge Judge Martin called attention to the importance of the grand jury as a local body and outlined the manner of their selection and the work devolving upon its members in connection with their deliberations. He enjoined that degree of secrecy provided in the oath administered and reminded them that no one had a right to know the work transacted inside the room. He also called attention to the fact that no one had a right to suggest to them as to their duties, stating that it would be an insult to the honor and integrity of the jury for any one to attempt such an influence. He stated, however, that there was nothing wrong in their attention being called to violations of the law in a general way, but other than that absolute secrecy should obtain. In this connection the judge called attention to the fact that not even the state's attorneys were supposed to be present following the consideration of a case when the jury began its deliberations as to whether or not a bill should be returned on the evidence presented.

Having presented these suggestions the judge called attention to the various offenses, first mentioning theft from the person, for which several parties had been bound over in this county. He also referred to the offense of robbery, and of burglary, both of which he stated were understood to be of too frequent occurrence in this county. He urged a thorough investigation and the return of bills in all cases where the evidence so justified.

Further reference was made to the offenses of swindling and perjury, as also that of assault to murder in which he urged the same diligence as in dealing with other violations.

In this connection Judge Martin reminded the jury that it was not necessary for him to inform them of the law with reference to such matters, as the state's attorneys would do that. He did instruct, however, that those cases for which men are in jail be given precedence over all others, in justice to the men who were deprived of their liberty, calling attention to the fact that the county jail was understood to be crowded with parties charged with violations of law. In this connection he also suggested that following the consideration of jail cases, that the cases of those out on bond should next be taken up and disposed of, after which the jury could enter into a consideration of such other cases as might be brought to their attention.

Continuing his charge, Judge Martin called attention to the Terrill election law which duty he said was made imperative under the law. This law, he said, defined a large number of crimes, the most important of which was that of giving or loaning money for the payment of a poll tax. This, he reminded the jury, had been declared a violation of law by the supreme court, and indictments should be returned in all such cases reported wherein the evidence was sufficient to convict.

The object of this law, as explained, was to provide a pure and un purchasable ballot in order that the will of the people might prevail in all elections held within the state.

Another matter to which the judge referred as being required in connection with his charge was that of giving rebates to shippers by the railroads. Judge Martin explained, in this connection, that the law intends that all men shall be treated alike and he insisted therefore that indictments be returned if such violations came to the knowledge of the jury.

The violation of the local option law was also referred to and the jury was charged that it was their special duty to see that this law was enforced and that violators be indicted therefore.

JUNE TERM DISTRICT COURT OPENED TODAY

GRAND JURY ORGANIZED AND PETIT JURY EMPANELLED FOR THE WEEK

TRIAL OF CASE BEGUN

Criminal Docket Will Be Called On Monday, June 19th—Question of a Special Judge.

Judge P. A. Martin convened district court here this morning at 10 o'clock for the June term, the first work of which was empanelling and organizing the grand jury. The jury as organized is as follows: W. J. Bullock, foreman; W. L. Robertson, W. H. Gwin, S. V. Ferguson, W. R. Ferguson, L. H. Lawler, L. H. Partridge, J. T. Williams, G. W. Elko, J. T. Overby, J. T. Young, A. L. Huys, W. J. Howard was appointed doorkeeper and W. W. Humphries, Tom Pickett and Deputy Sheriff Johnson, bailiffs.

Immediately after empanelling the jury the members retired to the room of the Justice of the Peace, which will be used during the term of court, and began their deliberations.

After the grand jury had been provided for the petit jurors were called and those who were not excused qualified for the week. Quite a number of those summoned were not in attendance and but a few were qualified at the morning session, they being excused until 1:30. When court convened this afternoon two additional jurors were present, but as this was not enough to complete the panel the judge ordered the sheriff to summon five additional men to report in the afternoon.

At the morning session of the court the judge discussed with the bar the question of a judge to preside during the trial of cases in which he was disqualified by reason of his service as district attorney and suggested to them that he would either secure an outside judge to occupy the bench during the time or the local bar could select one of their number as a special judge. The matter was not finally decided, although it seemed to be the desire of most of the attorneys present to have a member of the local bar. In this connection the cases on the docket in which Judge Martin is disqualified were all set for the fourth week of the court and in the meantime the matter of a judge will be decided upon by the court.

The regular criminal docket was set for Monday of the third week of the court, the first two weeks to be occupied in the trial of civil cases. Following this announcement the assignment docket was gone over by the judge who heard suggestions from the attorneys interested as to the time of trial of their respective cases, the greater part of the number being passed for future assignment.

This afternoon the case of W. E. Keenan vs. Fort Worth & Denver railway was called for trial and is in progress as the Times were to press this case is one in which Keenan is suing the Denver for damages as a result of personal injuries alleged to have been sustained.

JUDGE MARTIN IN CHARGE TO GRAND JURY CALLS ESPECIAL ATTENTION TO LAWS ON SOCIAL EVIL.

CROWDED COUNTY JAIL

Judge Suggests That Cases of Men in Jail Be Given Precedence Over All Others.

In his charge to the newly empaneled grand jury this morning, District Judge P. A. Martin called their attention especially to the law against theft, robbery and burglary, assault to murder, swindling, perjury, violations of the local option laws, the Terrell election law and to the law against bawdy houses. Of these he stated that it was understood that there had been charges of violations in references to all of these offenses, with the possible exception of the local option law and the Terrell election law.

The charge of the Judge was an exhaustive one in which he urged the members of the jury to be diligent in their deliberations, impartial in their findings and altogether faithful to the trust imposed in them by virtue of their position and the law providing therefor. He also explained to them in detail the duties involved and pledged to them the co-operation of the court in the exercise of these duties.

In opening his charge Judge Martin called attention to the importance of the grand jury as a local body and outlined the manner of their selection and the work devolving upon its members in connection with their deliberations. He enjoined that degree of secrecy provided in the oath administered and reminded them that no one had a right to know the work transacted inside the room. He also called attention to the fact that no one had a right to suggest to them as to their duties, stating that it would be an insult to the honor and integrity of the jury for any one to attempt such an influence. He stated, however, that there was nothing wrong in their attention being called to violations of the law in a general way, but other than that absolute secrecy should obtain. In this connection the Judge called attention to the fact that not even the state's attorneys were supposed to be present following the consideration of a case when the jury began its deliberations as to whether or not a bill should be returned on the evidence presented.

Having presented these suggestions the Judge called attention to the various offenses, first mentioning theft from the person, for which several parties had been bound over in this county. He also referred to the offense of robbery, and of burglary, both of which he said were understood to be in the list of offenses in this county. He urged a thorough investigation and the return of bills in all cases where the evidence so justified.

Further reference was made to the offenses of swindling and perjury, as well as that of assault to murder in which he urged the same diligence as in dealing with other violations.

In this connection Judge Martin reminded the jury that it was not necessary for him to inform them of the law with reference to such matters, as the state's attorneys would do that. He did instruct, however, that those cases for which men are in jail be given precedence over all others, in justice to the men who were deprived of their liberty, calling attention to the fact that the county jail was understood to be crowded with parties charged with violations of law. In this connection he also suggested that following the consideration of jail cases, that the cases of those out on bond should next be taken up and disposed of, after which the jury could enter into a consideration of such other cases as might be brought to their attention.

Continuing his charge, Judge Martin called attention to the Terrell election law, which duty he said was made imperative under the law. This law, he said, defined a large number of crimes, the most important of which was that of giving or loaning money for the payment of a poll tax. This, he reminded the jury, had been declared a violation of law by the supreme court, and indictments should be returned in all such cases reported to them. The evidence was sufficient to convict. The object of this law, as explained, was to provide a pure and unimpaired ballot in order that the voice of the people might prevail in all elections held within the state.

Another matter to which the Judge referred as being required in connection with his charge was that of giving rebates to shippers by the railroads. Judge Martin explained, in this connection, that the law intends that all men shall be treated alike and he insisted therefore that indictments be returned if such violations came to the knowledge of the jury.

The violation of the local option law was also referred to and the jury was charged that it was their special duty to see that the law was enforced and that violators be indicted therefor. The most extended feature of the

GRAND JURY ORGANIZED AND PETIT JURY EMANELLED FOR THE WEEK.

TRIAL OF CASE BEGUN

Criminal Docket Will Be Called On Monday, June 19th—Question of a Special Judge.

Judge P. A. Martin convened district court here this morning at 10 o'clock for the June term, the first work of which was empanelling and organizing the grand jury. The jury as organized is as follows: W. J. Bullock, foreman; W. L. Robertson, W. H. Gwin, S. Y. Ferguson, W. R. Ferguson, L. H. Lawler, I. H. Parria, J. T. Williams, G. W. Fiko, J. T. Overby, J. T. Young, A. L. Huey, W. J. Howard was appointed doorkeeper and W. W. Humphries, Tom Pickett and Deputy Sheriff Johnson, bailiffs. Immediately after empanelling the jury the members retired to the room of the Justice of the Peace, which will be used during the term of court, and began their deliberations.

After the grand jury had been provided for the petit jurors were called and those who were not excused qualified for the week. Quite a number of those summoned were not in attendance and but seventeen qualified at the morning session, they being excused until 1:30. When court convened this afternoon two additional jurors were present, but as this was not enough to complete the panel the Judge ordered the sheriff to summon five additional men to report instantly.

At the morning session of the court the Judge discussed with the bar the question of a Judge to preside during the trial of cases in which he was disqualified by reason of his service as district attorney and suggested to them that he would either secure an outside Judge to occupy the bench during the time or the local bar could select one of their number as a special Judge. The matter was not finally decided, although it seemed to be the desire of most of the attorneys present to have a member of the local bar. In this connection the cases on the docket in which Judge Martin is disqualified were all set for the fourth week of the court and in the meantime the matter of a Judge will be decided upon by the court.

The regular criminal docket was set for Monday of the third week of the court, the first two weeks to be occupied in the trial of civil cases. Following this announcement the assignment docket was gone over by the Judge who heard suggestions from the attorneys interested as to the time of trial of their respective cases, the greater part of the number being passed for future assignment.

This afternoon the case of W. E. Keeran vs. Fort Worth & Denver railway was called for trial and is in progress as The Times goes to press. This case is one in which Keeran is suing the Denver for damages as a result of personal injuries alleged to have been sustained.

The petit jury as empaneled for this week is as follows:

- Joe M. Erwin, J. S. Bridwell, K. Bauch, Geo. E. Boyd, H. V. Collier, Jno. T. Brooks, G. W. Eagle, D. B. King, J. R. Chandler, W. Claasber, W. H. Downing, C. R. Coker, J. H. Colburn, E. G. Cook, P. C. Maricle, Jno. Bradley, O. C. Robertson, H. J. Jachman, W. J. Price.

RIVER SUBSIDIES SAND BEDS BARE

For the past ten days on account of a rise in the Wichita River here W. E. Willett, who has the contract for furnishing the sand for the street paving improvement, has been unable to deliver that product to the Gulf port Paving Company. That handicap however, was relieved this morning when the sand bar near the railroad crossing was found bare and Mr. Willett put fifteen teams to work that during the day delivered about 150 loads of sand on the several streets where the paving company has resumed operations.

CURTAILMENT IN LUMBER PRODUCTION

Many Texas And Louisiana Mills Closed And Others Running Short Time.

Due to a slow lumber market, the Houston Chronicle estimates that 75 big saw mills in Texas and Louisiana are closed and that many others are running very short time.

The Chronicle writer in commenting on this curtailment says:

This curtailment proposition is the only hope of the market, and yet the lumber manufacturers dare not come together and arrange to curtail uniformly, on account of the law. Therefore they follow their own individual inclinations as arranged by their business affairs. Some mills are running five days a week, others four, others three, others two, while some are running a week and then shutting down a week. Still others are running full time, but they are far in the minority.

A well known yellow pine lumber man recently conferred with a high official of the department of justice at Washington regarding lumber matters, and the following conversation took place:

"Supposing that all the yellow pine mills and this yellow pine timber were owned by the United States government," said the lumberman, "and that the demand became so slow that you could not possibly sell the lumber that the mills made in their regular operating time. What would the government do?"

"They would shut down the mills," replied the government official.

"Exactly," replied the lumberman "and that is what we could like to do, but the government won't let us."

That is exactly the situation that the lumberman faces. They could, by working in concert, keep the yellow pine market on the crest of the wave all the time. Instead of doing so they have been fighting for their lives for four years past.

And in spite of that fact they are being assailed more than ever before as "lumber trust" members, and law breakers, when, if they were doing what they are being continually accused of doing they could have the price of lumber up to the ceiling to day instead of in the pickle they are in.

It is a strange thing that in 1907 and 1908 nothing was said about the "lumber trust," and the price of lumber was $3 a thousand feet higher than now, and stumpage and cost of production was considerably lower.

If the lumber trust investigators would examine the financial condition of the yellow pine manufacturers to day as compared with their condition four years ago they would immediately cease their investigating.

1ST MONDAY CELEBRATION NOT HELD TODAY

The First Monday, inaugurated May 1, is not being held today, although it is expected to resume this feature the first Monday in July. The committee did not think it advisable to attempt a celebration of the occasion at this time and for this reason an announcement of a program was made.

According to present plans the event will be revived on July 3 at which time it is proposed to have an especially attractive program with a number of new features and with a list of premiums that will attract all, including textile and culinary exhibits in which the ladies will be pleased to take an interest. There is nothing requiring an equal outlay of expense that is more beneficial to a town than a regular monthly trade day and it is to be hoped that the matter will have the attention during the next coming that a matter of such importance deserves in connection with the development of the business interests of the city.

United States District Attorney Henry A. Wise, who, standing his ground alone against ten of the most brilliant lawyers in the country, secured the conviction and sentence of the officers of the United Wireless Company for using the mails to defraud, by the selling of United Wireless stock, in one of the most sensational cases ever heard in a New York court room. Another of the great orator's triumphs was his successful handling of the Government's case in the spectacular customs fraud proceedings in New York.

INDUSTRIAL AND COMMERCIAL REVIEW OF PROGRESS IN TEXAS LAST WEEK

Development Notes in Lone Star State Reported to Texas Commercial Club Secretaries' Association—Good Roads Campaign is Enlisting More Support.

Majority Vote To Govern Bond Issues.

The Commercial Secretaries' Association has been gathering data on the road bonds issued in the State during 1911, and find that nineteen elections have been held and fourteen carried and five failed to receive the required two thirds votes. In every instance a majority of votes were cast in favor of the bond issue. The law requiring a two-thirds vote to authorize issues is operating to deter good roads, advocates in many instances from calling an election. A good roads campaign of education but unfortunately the educator in many instances don't care to go up against a two-thirds handicap; it is too much education, and the result is few bond elections are called.

The Association estimates that bond elections to the amount of $10,000,000 would be called immediately in the State, if the majority rule instead of a two-thirds vote and in response to numerous inquiries from Commercial Clubs, the subject was taken up by the Association with Governor Colquitt with a view of having the law amended at the coming special session of the legislature, so that a majority of the votes cast in the election would govern, and the full text of the Governor's reply follows: "I am most heartily in favor of an amendment to the law which will permit the voting of bonds for good road purposes by a majority vote, but I have written parties that I would not commit myself to submitting this question to the special session of the legislature. I am exceedingly anxious that the legislature shall first pass the appropriation bill and make it absolutely unnecessary for me to have to call but one special session. If the appropriation bill is promptly passed, I can then submit other matters for consideration."

Illinois Heads the List.

The Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's Association has compiled information showing the number of persons from other States making inquiry about Texas through the past six months more than 500 letters have been received from parties desiring to locate in this State. Of this number perhaps the largest amount came from the Middle Atlantic States, Illinois heading the list in the amount of inquiries sent in to the Association.

Death Rate Among Cattle Lowered.

Dr. M. Francis, Veterinary Surgeon, of the A. & M. College who has been making a special study of fever among Texas cattle since 1888, reports that the results of his experiments have been highly successful and that the death rate among Texas cattle from fever which was 50 per cent in 1888, is now only about 5 per cent. Over 60,000 head of cattle have been saved during this time by Dr. Francis, an approximate saving to their owners of a half million dollars. The Texas experiment station of the A. & M. College, great food for the agricultural and live stock interests of Texas, and its department of veterinary surgery deserves special commendation for their efficient services to the stock growers of the State.

Boys Training School.

The Abilene Chamber of Commerce has just completed the raising of $11,500 for the erection of a training school for boys in that city. The building grounds are to be under the care of a Board of Directors selected from among the citizens of Abilene, and the building and grounds are to be the property of the citizens of Abilene.

New Cotton Oil Mill.

Sealy recently held a mass meeting for the purpose of discussing the construction of a cotton oil mill. $25,000 was subscribed as a start, and an additional $10,000 has been promised. Work on the new mill will be started at once and it is hoped to have the mill in operation for the Fall Cotton crop.

The Sun Never Gets On Texas Press.

The Commercial Secretaries Association has been conducting an investigation into the number of copies of Texas weekly papers that circulate outside the State. There were 425 papers reporting, and they show an average out-of-State circulation of 12 per cent of the total and in many instances the papers report as high as 60 per cent of their circulation going to other States in the Union, and many of them cross the ocean. Kansas leads all State in subscribing for our weekly papers, and in foreign countries; England and Canada make the best showing. In nations speaking foreign languages, China takes the lead. It can be truly said that the sun never sets on the Texas press.

Raising Goats Profitable.

Mr. C. M. Evans, Superintendent of College Extension work at the A. & M. College in a recent bulletin advises the farmers of Southwest Texas to raise Angora goats, and suggests that it is one of the most profitable pursuits that the farmers of that section can engage in.

So many hundreds of catarrh victims who have taken the HYOMEI treatment, have written thanking us for publishing our method of taking the HYOMEI vapor treatment in connection with the inhaler that we gladly publish it again.

The vapor treatment is especially recommended in stubborn cases of chronic catarrh of long standing, but remember that the inhaler should be used daily.

This treatment only takes five minutes time before going to bed. Pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI into a bowl of boiling water, cover the head and bowl with towel and breathe for several minutes the vapor that arises.

You will be surprised at the result of this treatment; it makes the head feel fine and clear; you will sleep better and that stuffed up feeling will gradually disappear.

This method will break up the worst cold in the head in one night. A bottle of HYOMEI cost 50 cents at O. F. Marchman, who guarantees it. Complete outfit, with the little pocket inhaler, costs $4.00.

The Bonham Favorite suggests that when we get a "four-hour-day" it may be necessary to raise the scale of wages to meet the increased cost of loafing.

Before sailing from Vera Cruz, ex-President Diaz in an address said he would return to his country when needed. From the present outlook, Mexico's troubles have just begun, and if there is not another revolution within the next year we miss our guess. But it may require a younger and more vigorous man than General Diaz to put it down and keep it down.

WHY NOT DISFRANCHISE THE VOTE BUYER

It will doubtless be remembered that Judge Blair of Adams County, Ohio, made himself famous by disfranchising and fining about 2,000 voters of that county who, for years, had made a practice of selling their votes at prices ranging from $2.00 to $7.00 each. Many bouquets have been thrown Judge Blair on his action, but these were thrown in haste, it seems. When there are vote sellers, there must of necessity be vote buyers, but we have waited in vain to hear something from Adams County about who were the buyers of these vote-selling people, and if any of them had been convicted, fined and disfranchised.

On a recent visit to Denver, Judge Blair is credited with the following interview: "I prosecuted the vote seller only. In the first place, he was easier to catch. In the second place, the buyer, I believe, was honest. I mean by that that he was working for his party. His attempt to buy votes was a sincere effort, according to his light, to help his own state, while the vote seller had no principle, nor even a party loyalty to back him." Since giving out that very remarkable interview, it develops that Judge Blair himself was one of those who, apparently made a practice of buying up votes in Adams, and according to the affidavit of more than a dozen of those people in Adams County who peddled their suffrage as if it was corn or potatoes, some of whom were convicted in Judge Blair's court for the offense, sold their votes to Blair in person. We would like to make some comment on the conduct of Judge Blair that would be of some good to somebody, but find it impossible. The rank partiality shown in this instance is so great as to make our editorial spirit quail should we attempt to even try to suggest a plan by which such judicial policy is to be gotten rid of, and yet when the "recall" is suggested, especially when it is to be applied to "the judiciary," some people high up in politics are inclined to throw a fit. Yet, in our humble judgment, The Times will venture to suggest that Judge Blair's case is a least one where "the recall" could be invoked without much danger of hitting the country.

Morris Sheppard of Texarkana is being urged by friends from every part of the State to become a candidate for United States senator, and if he does, it will make the race a three-cornered affair with two antis and one pro as the candidates. There are those, however, who believe that Sheppard would fare better if he had only one opponent.

lpal government, our transportation regulations, our anti-trust laws, yes, our local option and license system, while the public officials were prosecuting the trusts, including Standard Oil.

"In the midst of our activity and progress this political corporation, with the money of John D. Rockefeller in its coffers, silently stole into our State with its paid agitators who set about promoting a campaign for statewide prohibition and demanding a repeal of the system under which we have operated harmoniously and peacefully, thus diverting the attention of our people from the more important matters affecting the public welfare.

"Shall Texas permit this political catamount to impose upon her the conditions it has inflicted upon her sister states in the South?" "With an abiding faith in the patriotic intelligence of the people of our State, we appeal from the mandates issued to us from Ohio to the great body of voters to not permit Texas to commit so serious a blunder.

"Let it be understood at the outset of this campaign that with those of our fellow citizens who have been led away from the teachings of the fathers by this political corporation, we have no quarrel.

Chicago, Ill., June 5.—Plans for an aggressive fight for the license, regulation and control of the liquor business are to be discussed at the convention of the National Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association of America, which is in session here with an attendance of more than a thousand members from all parts of the country. Mayor Harrison delivered an address of welcome at the initial session at the Hotel Sherman today.

FASHION HINTS BY FLORENCE FAIRBANKS

SEPARATE COATS AND WRAPS IN EMPIRE STYLE ARE VERY POPULAR.

NARROW SILHOUETTE

Most Coats Are Cut So As To Give This Effect—Extremes, However, Should Be Avoided.

New York, June 5.—Fashion experts are of the opinion that separate coats and wraps will be prominent this spring, not only for evening wear, but for street use as well. They are seen most frequently as are the suits, in the Empire styles. Often this effect is obtained by a cord or tassel, where the waist and skirt of the coat join, or sometimes a belt is employed, visible in the back or front only.

Although there is a tendency toward the raised waist line, some of the newest models show instead the very opposite, or the elongated waist. Nearly all the most modern spring coats are cut so as to give the fashionable narrow silhouette, but care must be taken to avoid extremes, which are distinctly in bad taste this season. The new coats are made in such a way as to be comfortable in walking.

For evening wear, the draped wrap is most seen, in all sorts of soft, supple materials. The side fastening continues in vogue in these wraps, some fastening at the side just below the waist line and others as far down as the knees. All varieties of revers are seen, the long narrow ones, the soft draped and the incroyable. Colors include the Nauch shawl, sailor Charlotte Corday or fichu, and large round or pointed effects. On storm coats military collars wastenings up to the throat are much seen. There are a few hoods, and false or simulated hoods are much in favor.

In most of the tailored coats, the sleeves are like those in men's overcoats, put in without fullness at the top, cut straight and finished off with a small turnback cuff or a few buttons. In the utility and auto coats both peasan and raglan sleeves are seen, particularly the former. In evening and afternoon wraps three-quarter sleeves are much in favor. They are sometimes finished off with deep turnback or gauntlet cuffs, and are cut wide, so that the wrap can be slipped on or off without difficulty.

Full length coats are distinctly in the best style. A few tailored coats are seen coming just below the knees, but short coats are for the greater part conspicuous by their absence. For tailored coats, the favorite fabrics are Scotch tweeds and homespuns, fancy mixtures in men's suitings, ratines and serges. These are seen in checks, broken plaids, stripes and double-faced effects.

Black satin, especially in the wool-back styles, is much in favor for evening and even for afternoon wear, although it is to be very much preferred exclusively for the former purpose. Taffetas has also some slight popularity. These are seen chiefly in black, but in various colors to some extent as well. Light colored broadcloths, crepe, meleroy, chicon, lace and embroidered net, to be worn over summer gowns during the hot season.

Liens and light summer things are still kept in the background, but the silk coat and skirt or coat and frock furnish a happy medium ground (twixt wool and linen and a costume of this kind is a satisfactory possession throughout the summer. Black satin of various weaves and surfaces is still favored for the so-called tailored or semi-tailored costume, though the flood of cheap models in this material has damaged its prestige, and to be truly chic nowadays a black satin suit must be especially well made of beautiful material and must have some original note to set it aside from the original model. These requirements naturally are associated with high prices, and the women who has little to spend will be wise to have her suit in some silk other than black satin unless she is fortunate enough to know of a tailor, who can copy an imported model cleverly from a sketch and charge moderately for doing it.

Very dark blue rivals black among the smart silk suits, but it must be the extremely dark tone if it is to be in satin, for any save this corbeau shade has a tendency to look cheap in a satin tailored suit, no matter how good the material may be. With some of the other silken staves a brighter tone is less objectionable, although the darkest blues are most favored for tailoring purposes by all of the authoritative designers.

One may group under the satins all of the satin finish crepes and even the plain satin surface foulards. Satin delaine has lost popularity with the coming of the warm season, but there are other satins of high finish and rather more firmness than the charmeuse and its class which are liked by some tailors. A silk poplin, very supple and charming of texture, yet with enough body, to end itself well to tailoring, is beginning to make itself a place among tailor suits. Sure or silk serge, is making a strong bid for popularity and is made up into attractive frocks and three pieces or two piece models, though the tailors complain that it is difficult to handle.

There are, of course, many forms of the silk serge, ranging from at will almost invisible to a heavy diagonal, but the surah weave is a medium twill and is extremely good-looking either in plain one-tone colorings or in black or color with hair-line stripes of white. A very light weight moire with irregular and only vague water design is used for silk coat and frock costumes but not extensively and much more often in combination with serge chicon, stomaine or other materials than as alone. LATE SPORTING NEWS

DUPREE WAS EASY FOR LAD SWATSMEN

LOCALS SLAM THE PILL FOR ALL DISTANCES AROUND THE LOT SUNDAY

FINAL SCORE WAS 11 TO 1

Team Leaves to Be Away From Home The Remainder of the Month.

Gainesville went down in defeat before the Irish Lads yesterday afternoon in a very poorly played game, the score being 11 to 1. The visitors did not have a look-in during any stage of the game and it did not take them long to realize the fact that defeat was to be their portion, and this fact, or something else, took all the ginger from their work and the remainder of the game was more of a farce than anything else. So uninteresting was the contest that many left the grand stand before the finish and when the game was over the crowd resembled some of those seen at the city park on week days. Fact is, the attendance yesterday was the lightest of the season for a Sunday game, if not the smallest crowd that ever assembled at the lake on a similar occasion.

There was nothing connected with the game worthy of special mention except a recall of the fact that the home team annexed four home runs during the progress of the game, also one three base hit and three two-baggers. Dupree was easy for the boys and they slammed the pill for all distances and in every direction. Green was very effective yesterday and kept the few hits he gave up well scattered.

Lawrence, recently secured from the Lawton team in exchange for Streeter Taylor, showed up well at third and very materially fattened his batting average, pulling down a home run, a two-bagger and a single in three times up.

Terhune, a pitcher from Iowa, back was on the bench yesterday. He is also a Stubbfield, formerly a Texas League catcher. Terhune will be given a try-out and it is probable that he will remain with the team if his work is up to that claimed by his friends.

Both teams left the city last night, Gainesville going home for a series with Altus, while Wichita Falls went to Cleburne for three games. According to the new schedule adopted the Lads will be away from home for the remainder of this month.

The Justweds Go Fishing

When Mr. Justwed announced he was going fishing on the morrow, Mrs. J. was not in the least surprised. For that, in the Justwed household, was one of the infallible signs of spring. When he also announced that he intended setting out at half-past six in the morning she regarded him intently, fearing he might be suffering from the oppressiveness of a hard day's work at the bank. But when he amplified his previous statements with the announcement that he intended taking her along she really thought seriously of sending for the doctor without delay.

"Fishing?" she said, in a tone that betrayed her amazement. "Why, Homer, I don't know the first thing about fishing."

"My, my," remarked Mr. J. slowly, shaking his head as one gravely disappointed and trying to comprehend matters, "there's no pleasing you women, is there? Here you are forever and a day complaining about us men wanting our pleasures alone. Why can't a man do the things he does in his hours of play along with his wife, you say. And, why is it a man is content to spend an entire evening with other men, and yet grumbles like the dickens if he has to stay twenty minutes in his wife's company? Well, here I want to go fishing tomorrow and instead of stalking off by myself and leaving you at home to twiddle your thumbs I ask you to go along with me—and you refuse!"

"No, I did not refuse to go, Homer," interrupted Mrs. J. "You are jumping at conclusions. I merely remarked that I did not know the first thing about fishing—which is a simple statement of fact. Indeed, I'd like mighty much to go. I've always wanted to learn how to fish and, besides, a day out of doors will do both of us an immense amount of good. I sure will go—but you'll have to show me how to do everything."

"Oh, I see," conceded Mr. J. with a smile. "Of course I'll show you. Only you must promise to follow my directions closely—without argument. Fishing, you know, is—"

"Yes, teacher, I promise," responded Mrs. Justwed playfully.

It was way, way after six-thirty when the Justweds left the house the next morning. Mrs. J., following instructions, was up at six and had a piping hot breakfast on the table a half hour later. But Mr. J., despite several ghostly tinkles of the early morning bell and precisely three calls from Mrs. J., walked serenely into the dining room at ten minutes past seven.

A half hour or so, he explained, didn't make any real difference. Mrs. J. did not remind him, as she might well have done, that "half hour or so" seemed to make a whole lot of difference to him—when it came to getting out of bed. Which shows that Mrs. Justwed purposed following instructions and taking things as they came.

An hour's ride in the trolley brought them to the chosen spot—a broad expanse of river flowing between verdant banks with huge rocks scattered here and there along them. That it was an ideal location was attested by the fact that other urbanites had journeyed there for the same purpose.

Mr. J. selected one of the boulders on the water's edge as the scene of operations. He spread an old blanket for Mrs. J. to sit upon, deposited the lunch basket in a shady cranny, gave her a magazine, baited his hook and threw it overboard.

Mrs. J. regarded him a moment in mild surprise and then turned patiently to her magazine. Apparently, she was not to fish. She made herself comfortable and watched Mr. J. work his way out to the extremity of the rock. Presently she saw his rod jerked up in the air, the while he scrambled excitedly to his feet.

"What's the matter?" she called.

Mr. J. didn't even deign to turn his head. "Sh-s-s-sh!" he cautioned. "I had a bite!"

Mrs. J. resumed her reading and had progressed but a paragraph or two when, out of the corner of her eye, she saw the rod whip-saw the air again.

"Did you get him?" she asked.

"No, doggonit!" growled Mr. J. "Of course I don't know anything about fish, but Homer," suggested Mrs. J., "but don't you think you—well—you pull the hook out of the fish's mouth by jerking it so hard?"

Mr. J. laid down his rod—ominously. "Now look here, Blossom," he said. "I'm always ready to listen to your opinion on things you know something about—and on many you do not. But when you begin to tell me how to fish—well, that's a different proposition!"

He refused to be inveigled into conversation and sat stolidly on the rock with his line trailing listless in the water. The sun beat down with greater intensity every moment.

"Seems to me, Homer," she insisted, "that I've read somewhere that fish bite only on an 'ebb tide'—what ever that is. So what's the use of waiting?"

Mr. J. yanked his line out of the water.

"That settles it!" he exclaimed. "There never was a woman born who could make a good fisherman. They haven't the patience! And I'd thought maybe you would! It's all right to talk about sharing your husband's pleasure with him, but hereafter there's nothing doing when it comes to fishing—we might as well understand it right here and now. I know other, resting them alternately. The sun sank lower and lower and it was nearly 6 o'clock before he partially surrendered. But it wasn't a real surrender—oh, no! He simply weighted his rod down with rocks and leaped back, keeping a vigilant eye on the bobbing float.

Presently Mrs. Justwed awoke. "What a good sleep she had had! And Mr. J. was all in!"

Just then his boat bobbed under the surface. Mr. J. grabbed his rod and hauled in a whopping yellow perch. They were beginning to bite again!

Mrs. J. could stand it no longer. "Give me a hand-line, Homer!" she fairly commanded. "They are biting now! I told you they would bite only on certain tides! But you're so stubborn—there, I've got a big one—and I've had a nag! Pass me the bait, please."

For many years General Wright has been engaged in the collection of military records for the War Department at Washington. Why Do Women Live Longer?
By Gordon Lloyd, M. D. in Houston Post

Statistics show that women live longer, especially among Russian Jews, than men; but there is no where among Christians. A larger number of boys than girls die during the first two or three years of life. After the third year there does not appear to be any special difference in the mortality of the sexes until after thirty or thirty-five when the ratio turns in favor of the women and continues in years old. Speaking of the comparative favor until about seventy, when the mortality of the sexes, a writer there appears to be but little difference is more marked the further the age goes toward extreme old age. At 100 there are slightly more than 105 about eighteen, the age of chlorosis and weakness in girls, there appears to be eastern markets.

The June Bride's Gown

It was predicted many months ago that the June bride of 1911 would have little trouble in arranging her trousseau, on account of the great number of ideas to select from; and this prediction has been realized. Never before have such a vast number of fabrics been placed at her disposal, and never since women have loved pretty things to wear have so many varieties of gowns been placed before her. This is a bride's season. Everything seems to have been originated with the idea of pleasing her alone, and her only trouble will be in deciding on the frocks with which she is to bedeck herself.

There has been a limit placed on the wedding gown, of course. This applies, however, only to the gown's simplicity. The materials can be just as rich as the bride desires them, but the dress must be built on simple lines. The simplicity of the wedding gown has always been followed to a certain extent; it is a dictum of fashion long obeyed.

And this is the season of the slender bride. She will wear a clinging gown of the most simple variety, veiled in great clouds of tulle and the finest of lace. But, even in case the bride is not in harmony with the ideal—slender and girlish—she must try and conform with the plan in the best way possible. Her gown must be built in a manner similar to that one belonging to the ideal bride, and all the frills and furbelows must conform with the remainder of the dress. Wide silhouettes are things of the past, according to this year's styles, and even though the bride be quite plump in appearance she must follow out the designer's models.

The average trousseau can be arranged along no set lines. It is quite elastic and can be planned according to the liking of the bride herself. Her choice colors can predominate and she the whole field of this season's fashions to select from. The silk-tailored and the semi-tailored costumes are coming in to reinforce the early spring tailormades of wool.

It is a splendid plan for the bride to have two tailored suits for the summer wear. One can be a practical, plainly tailored suit for the rougher wear, and the other of a dressier type. Attempts have been made to combine the two, but without much success. Coat and frock costumes of grenadine and etamine and silk, with loose outlined coats trimmed in silk, will be much worn for the summer season. They are being shown in many attractive designs, and there are very serviceable little costumes in the plain meteor, foulards, silks and charmeuse.

In the severe tailormades, dark blue serge will predominate with the spring brides. But mixed homespuns and tweeds will be much worn and will run to stripes. Morning frocks are being constructed of gingham and make up exceedingly well for young girls. With any summer outfit pretty and very serviceable frocks in foulards are desirable, and several of the Parisian makers have turned out foulard models that are modish and dainty, although easily copied. One-piece frocks of one tone are useful, and there are quantities of them from which to make selections.

A pretty little model in this class is of serge, and has a very simple skirt and bodice joined a little above the normal waist line and buttoned straight down the front. The only trimming is in the shape of silk scarfs lacing across the chest through huge round embroidered eyelets to tie in a bow under the collar.

Going back to the wedding gown itself, the most important part of the wedding outfit, it can be said that the princess style has about given place to the girdled frock. The princess style was popular for a considerable length of time, and the unbroken panels are still much used with the girdled frock. Many of the prettiest bridal gowns of this season will be made with skirts rising high to meet a simple, clinging little bodice. This latter will be entirely of lace or some other very sheer material.

The skirt resembles a satin tunic more than anything else. It is wrapped softly about the body, the two sides crossing in the manner of a surplice in front, opening to show a glimpse of the under robe or petticoat in lace or other light stuff, and sweeping backward so as to form the long train. In case the train is not fashioned in such a clinging way it is usually made separately. It frequently falls from the shoulders or the waist line after a manner known to dress designers as "Watteau."

This season bridesmaids will wear frocks of net and lace. Little coats of silk are a new idea and there are many models of the kind. The large picture hat is always looked forward to by the bridesmaid, but this year caps and bonnets will take their places, in case the maids are types to lend themselves to quaint effects.

Many of the sheer materials of this season are prettier than ever before and they lend themselves to the many ways of the needlewoman. Fine laces are duplicated in such a manner that they are quite reasonable in price and they can be distinguished from the genuine only by an expert. New colors, the most delicate shades, have even been originated, and these, together with the lace and embroideries, make the bride's trousseau one of the prettiest that could be imagined.

The bride in planning her trousseau usually arranges her lingerie many weeks before the wedding. If she does not she will find herself handicapped, as this portion of the work takes considerable time and trouble. It is the decree of the fashion makers that all of the lingerie materials of the spring shall be of the sheerest variety. Dainty laces and chiffons are used wherever possible, and new shades of ribbon seem to have been originated especially for the bride's lingerie.

A DRY WEATHER TALK! In 1889 we opened our Store where we are now located, now known as 608-610 Ohio Avenue, then known only as Bean's Store—it was on a narrow, crooked path through the sunflowers that grew on either side of the road. We've been there ever since; good years, bad years, dry years, wet years, fat years, lean years and will be there for years to come. We've got lots of customers that commenced with us and its a matter of satisfaction to us that counts for more than the money we've made. We've always had the reputation of having a complete stock of the very best goods, no matter how hard the times. We assure you we are not going to loose that reputation. We believe we have always sold them as cheap as is consistent with sound business principles, good service and square treatment—that's a reputation we want to build to. 608 Ohio Ave. Phones 35 and 604.
