The large home of W. H. Bachman was filled with friends and relatives on last Monday evening, Sept. 25th, when Miss Ida Bachman, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. GREATER FULLNESS IN SKIRTS THE LATEST

ALL IMPORTED GARMENTS OF MORE AMPLE DIMENSIONS—TRANSITION GRADUAL NOT SUDDEN

VELVET IS CONSPICUOUS

Brocades Too Find Favor—Gleam and Shimmer of Gold Attract The Eye—Other Fashion Notes.

New York, Sept. 30.—The latest importations from Paris make it clear beyond a doubt that greater fullness in skirts is the latest dictum of the rulers of fashion. Of course, the change is by no means sudden. There is merely a gradual transition but it is noticeable even to the inexperienced eye. To be sure, the average frock is straight in line, but here and there one sees the double skirt, the triple skirt, the skirt of tiny frills and this note of fullness becomes more insistent as the season advances.

The great fashion designers of Paris are beginning to bring out models in which fullness has a decided place. Narrow flounces are seen on the hems of frocks fashioned of chiffon and gauzes. The straight wide hem and the band of satin finishing skirts has claimed the attention of fashionable women for so long a time that a change of this sort immediately calls attention to itself.

There will undoubtedly be an effort on the part of the more progressive fashion makers to widen the skirts very perceptibly; but this is not likely to be taken up, at least during the early season. Frills of Valenciennes and narrow laces will go to give new skirts the desired fullness. Yet even these are soft enough to hang perfectly straight, but give a delightful trou-frou effect without actually widening to any perceptible degree the general lines.

A dainty mode of flounced silk muslin had a group of lace frills set close to the hem. The bodice was almost entirely of lace, with three overlapping frills of lace forming a fichu effect. A sash and girdle of soft peach-pink satin completed this simple but handsome costume. Width is also introduced in some cases by slashing the skirt on the side from waist to hem and inserting an inverted point of some contrasting material or trimming. Pleats that lap under and over are noticeable when the wearer walks are another way of obtaining the new line of fullness.

The coats of very short hip length seem to have gone entirely out of fashion, which will be gratifying to many women who found these coats exceedingly unbecoming. The belief that the new coats would be more closely fitted seems to have been without any foundation, however. There is a slight curving in of front and side lines of some of the new models, and here are of course, certain belted and girdled models while are loosely held in, but the average coat keeps its loose, straight line and its short, wide waist line in the back, an effect usually obtained by clever cutting and handling of the side sections and various seams.

That the kimono sleeve has every intention of surviving the change of seasons is evident. Even among the most of the imported models one finds it, and the domestic models unabashedly confess allegiance to it, but long sleeves are a feature of some of the most successful frock and blouse models, and it seems safe to prophesy that the ultra-modish woman of the winter will choose long sleeves for her daytime frock.

One of the best models seen, a black cloth stunningly embroidered in blue and gold yellow of a sulphur tone and a long close sleeve of black chiffon with a little finish of embroidery under the chiffon where it fell over the hand, and with a fold of yellow chiffon and a shorter fold of blue veil appearing under the embroidered cloth at the armhole. Other models showed full and joining a long, close cuff or an upper sleeve with close under sleeve. A chic velvet frock of fine stripe in green and black had its sleeve down as far as the elbow in the velvet and comfortably loose though not full. Just above the elbow it belted very little and was continued by fine black net for a depth of perhaps four inches. The net was drawn into a close band of the velvet, which headed what may be called a long, close cuff formed by two sections of net separated by a band of velvet.

The frill falling over the hand is a feature of the newest and most modish blouses, long sleeved, of course, and of many other blouses and bodices as well. This feeling for the long sleeve is as yet confined chiefly to imported models, and among the cheaper costume, blouses and frocks one seldom sees a long sleeve but there will probably be a change later if the foreign influence makes itself clearly felt, and the long sleeve is once more accepted by the fashionable folk.

Among the handsome materials employed in the most recent models imported from Paris, suber brocades and velvets are conspicuous. A very large number of the most beautiful brocades have the gold being more or less in evidence, according to the design. Sometimes one is but conceives of a gleaming thread here and there or of a general shimmer of the background upon which the design is boldly handled. There are wonderful chiffons and muselines in color over whose surface run graceful designs entirely in gold. These in vivid color are stunning under shadowy veiling of plain diaphanous material, but the French designers do not hesitate to

New neckwear, keeping pace with other revivals, asserts itself in short broad, plaited frills of black, white and gray mousseline de soie. This frill, exactly like those of long ago is divided into unequal portions, the narrower left for the top, by a ribbon twisted through the middle and then used to tie it together in front as at the back, as one prefers. Although these frills soon lose their freshness and beauty, they are becoming and add just the amount of warmth necessary with the prevailing fashion of unlined guimpes and stock collars. They are especially welcome to the woman who still clings to the round, collarless neck. Occasionally one sees these plaited frills tied with long velvet ribbons that reach below the waist line. Short neck boas of black ostrich feathers are smartly tied with a beige ribbon rosette matching in color the parasol or the feathers on the hat. Rich royal blue is particularly desirable in this connection.

THIS DATE IN HISTORY

- September 30. 1540—Hernando de Alarcon discovered the Colorado River. 1770—George Whitefield, one of the founders of Methodism, died at Newburyport, Mass. Born in England, Dec. 27, 1714. 1777—Sixth Continental Congress met at York, Pa. with John Hancock as President. 1840—Foundation stone laid for the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square, London. 1909—President Taft visited the international exposition at Seattle. 1910—Democrats of New York nominated John A. Dix, for governor.

When the sign gets right it may be that the Hon. Jake Wolters will come forth as a candidate for the United States Senate. Let him come.

Atlanta, Ga., has just rejected the commission form of government. Well, but this is Atlanta's own affair, and the people, had they wanted to be governed by a commission, would no doubt have said so when given the opportunity.

It's funny how these fellows who have made reputations with their fists want to break into Congress and the United States Senate. There's Sullivan, the big old ex-champion of Boston, who says he feels that he has the ability to represent one of the Boston districts in the lower house of Congress, and the friends of Hon. Jake Wolters are convinced that in him Texas will find a worthy successor to Senator Bailey.

NO "UPLIFT" FOR HIM.

New Orleans Item. We are gratified to see that President Taft is not going so heavily for the "rural uplift" as his predecessor did. Mr. Roosevelt always wanted every body except nature fakers to have a "bully time." He was convinced that the farmers were not having a "bully time." He was dead sure that the farmers' wives were not. So he sent a tearful message to Congress, and got a country life commission appointed. That commission was by no means certain what the then president wanted it to do. For instance, he wanted all rustics to lead better lives and enjoy them more. He wanted life in the country to be made "wholesome" and "attractive." On the other hand, he did not think that the farmer's wife who neglected her chief duty of maternity deserved much of a share of the happiness which his commission was to dispense or for which it was to prepare the way. The commission in view of these conditions, felt its efforts somewhat handicapped and didn't know exactly how to go about this job. So Mr. Roosevelt told it that it would simply have to find out the prevailing social, economic and educational conditions in the country and make a report, and somebody would do the rest. The commission then sent out half a million circulars everywhere asking for information, to find out what the farmer lacked, so that Mr. Roosevelt would know how to bestow upon the neglected rural life the simple happiness, ease, comfort, ideal economic conditions and general polity of life in our improved modern cities. The commission, of course, made its report long ago. We do not remember it very clearly, but so far as we do recollect, it skinned with light grace over the somber side of country life, and left the sum total of rural joy at about the same figure. In his remarks about the farmer the other day, President Taft had nothing

It's a Mighty Truth But as Old as Business

THAT real economy in clothes-buying is striking the right average in price. The penny-wise purchaser who puts price above everything else, to whom the dollar in hand means more than the clothes on the back, he goes wrong everytime. He buys at the lowest price and the value is always less than the price is low. Other men forget economy entirely. They forget that after a certain price is reached additional money is simply paid for the fictitious value of the tailor's name and standing.

We offer in the new garments we are showing, direct from The House of Kuppenheimer, the truest economy in quality clothes. The prices range from.....$15.00 to $25.00

And every dollar that you pay for these Kuppenheimer Clothes brings back an actual value in return, a value based on real style, rich worth of fabric, specialized tailoring and expert finish. Let us show you the clothes and prove this economy for yourself.

to say about the "up-lift." He gracefully sidestepped all reference to the neglected duties of farmers' wives. He even seemed indifferent to their having a "bully time." He talked of the farm area which must be extended if the next generation is to have enough to eat and if we do not want even higher prices for food than we have now. He gave some sensible advice about agricultural high schools. He talked a great deal about intensified farming, but not at all about large families. He did not refer to the social side of farm life, except to express the reasonable hope that good roads, the use of the telephone, and the expansion of rural free delivery and the parcels post would give the country family much the same comforts enjoyed by their cousins in the city. His whole speech was thoroughly material. His gospel the wisdom of work and the saving of waste. It seems to us that, although the president said much less about joy than his predecessor did, he offered the farmer a much surer way of getting it. # An Opportunity in the Oil Fields For the Small Investor

AN OIL LOT FOR $10.00

A STRING OF DERRICKS IN THE ELECTRA OIL FIELD—From the Daily Times of September 21, 1911.

Not a stock proposition, nor a wildcat scheme, where you hold the bag and some one else handles the money, but a bona fide land deal where you get the land you pay for, and with all its oil and gas rights, in fee simple, to do with as you like.

ELECTRA OIL FIELD

Within the last four months, the Electra oil field has become the most talked of oil field in the United States. Four stratas of producing sand has been discovered, and the finest quality of oil ever found west of the Mississippi river is being produced. Vast capital is being invested, and new wells are coming in daily. At present there are more than 25 producing wells, and nearly a hundred derricks are in operation. Fowlkes-Townsite lies just six miles southeast of Electra, and every broadening of the proven field is in the direction of our land. Practically on all sides of us derricks are going up and drilling is being done, and it is only a question of a short time when producing wells will be found in our immediate vicinity. A study of the geography of the country will convince any one that we are in direct line with the best producing wells in the territory.

What We Offer in Fowlkes Townsite Oil Company

Fowlkes' ideal location, ten miles from Iowa Park and six miles from Electra, midway between the fertile valleys of Red and Wichita Rivers, and on the main line of the Fort Worth & Denver City Railroad, encompassed as it is by wide spread fields of agricultural richness and destined to be the greatest oil field in the country, makes it an ideal and logical site for a town of one thousand to fifteen hundred people, and the most attractive center of activity for the shrewd investor in Texas today.

Fowlkes is now and has been for sometime a shipping point for grain and cotton with an ever increasing tonnage; she has already an $8,000.00 gin plant, a general mercantile store, a church and school house, a good citizenship, and being in the center of this great oil field, as the government's geological survey of oil in this territory will show, and lying directly between the first oil well discovered in Northwest Texas, and the great gushers of Electra.

The opportunity for wealth from a small investment, and the co-operation of yourself with this company, whose integrity, ability and business record is unquestioned and by spending our money together with yours to develop your own property, makes it unquestionably the most attractive proposition to the small investor ever offered to the public.

A careful study of our plan will convince the most skeptical that our proposition is fair in the extreme and will appeal to the sound business judgment of the logical business man.

Write us or see our agents for prospectus. Expecting and wishing to merit the approval of the sound business investing public we have eliminated even from consideration all form of lottery or drawing propositions where two or three "lucky" ones receive "a house and lot, etc." to the corresponding loss of the great bulk of investors in the proposition, and ask your business consideration of the following offer of this Company:

$10.00 will buy 1 oil block of land (25x10 ft.) that is guaranteed to face on a street, assuring an outlet.

1 Contract entitling the holder to Ten Shares of capital stock of the par value of $10.00 of this Company which will be issued upon the legal incorporation of same. Said incorporation to be perfected immediately on sale of one-third of holdings of real estate.

$25.00 will buy 1 Lot of land (25x140 ft) facing on a 60 foot street, and with alley in rear as per plat.

25 Shares of Capital Stock of the par value of $25.00.

$50.00 will buy 1 Lot of land 25x140 feet out of blocks Nos. Five, Six or Seven, out of said Oil Company's holdings.

50 Shares of Capital Stock of the par value of $50.00 etc., as set forth under preceding proposition.

The promoters reserve the right to increase price of holdings after actual work begins in Well No. One (1).

First oil discovery in Wichita county. A well put down by the Fort Worth & Denver City R. R. Co., for water and plugged on account of oil.

A SMALL INVESTMENT MAY MAKE YOU RICH. Figures have been made in other oil fields on small investments; you may do likewise. Now is the time to buy as the price of these lots may be advanced at any time. We are not exploiting this proposition with any other idea than to give each and every one a fair show, and will carry out our promises to the letter. Act promptly; give your application to our representative or address.
