MEN ARE MORTAL AND PASS AWAY.

George W. Carroll of Beaumont is a member of the board of trustees of Baylor university. More than 30 years ago he gave Baylor its first large gift of $75,000. Now, he has issued a direct appeal challenging the rich Baptist business men of Texas to provide a fund of several million dollars for endowment as a permanent memorial to Samuel Palmer Brooks. It is said that in 1901 George W. Carroll joined his father, the late F. L. Carroll of Waco, in giving $75,000 each for two needed buildings on the Baylor campus, the father providing a chapel and library building, and the son a science hall. These were the largest gifts that had been made to the cause of Christian education in Texas up to that time.

After 30 years as president of Baylor Samuel Palmer Brooks passed on to his reward. He was a great and a good man. His achievements have been told many times. He knew how to live and he knew how to die. On his deathbed, speaking of the students he said: "My only regret in going is that I shall never be able to stand before another Baylor student body. I have tried to teach them how to live. I wish now to teach them how to die."

These were the closing words of his message before death closed the eyes of the noted educator:

"Carry on. Men are mortal and pass away but the ideals upon which Baylor university is built will never die."

There are many very rich and influential Baptists in Texas. George W. Carroll has thrown his challenge in their direction. They are asked to contribute a large endowment fund as a memorial to the farm boy who fought his way from the lowest to the highest rung of the educational ladder in the Baptist world of the Lone Star state.

UNCLE SAM WILL REFUND HIS DEFICIT.

Uncle Sam will refund his "approaching deficit." A Washington correspondent says a borrowing program to meet a deficit of $800,000,000 or more this year and another, unestimated next year "stood in sharp relief today against criticism heaped upon the revenue system of the nation by treasury heads." Secretary Mellon has called for revision of the tax system. He says the few were paying and the many are exempt. Under Secretary Ogden Mills demands a balanced budget. He would force the government to live within its income. Treasury officials have said that the present system of income taxation had become a class tax and grossly inadequate.

"Uncle Andy" has the figures. Only 380,000 individuals pay 97 per cent of the total income tax "in spite of the fact that there were 120,000,000 persons in the country." Sen. Tom Connally of Texas alleges that 12 per cent of the American people own more than one-half the wealth of the nation. Regardless of all the chatter Uncle Sam is going to be a borrower. Why not? He borrowed 35 billions "to make the world safe for democracy" and the government and American banks and bankers loaned $15,000,000,000 to foreign nations in the years following the signing of the armistice.

AMERICANS ARE SAVING THEIR MONEY.

Postal savings deposits are reported to be at the highest peak in history—$310,000,000. This is an increase since last July of $175,000,000. Savings banks report the greatest deposits in their history. Nothing touching it has ever been known before. Thrift has the call.

FALL DENIED RELIEF BY SUPREME COURT.

Albert B. Fall must present himself before the District of Columbia supreme court for commitment under a sentence imposed on him for accepting a bribe from E. L. Doheny. He was sentenced to one year imprisonment and fined $100,000. He is the only one of the oil conspirators under conviction. Frank Hogan, the famous Washington lawyer, defended all the so-called conspirators. He lost the Fall case but he continued his battle from court to court. Now Fall, who is broken and old and down and out, must journey from New Mexico to Washington and accept sentence. Executive clemency may save him but there is a presidential election approaching.

Herbert Hoover will be renominated for a second term and public opinion is not mercifully disposed toward this former secretary of the interior who had been a United States senator, a judge of the courts of New Mexico, a leader of his party for many years and the political and personal chum of the late Warren G. Harding. Conviction left him a dishonored and disgraced and poverty-stricken son of the republic. He has been through Hell while in the land of the living. He invited it and Hell decreed that he should pay the price.

BOOTLEGGERS AND THEIR HUGE ROLLS.

There is a society known as the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. It reports an apparent increase of over one billion dollars in the nation's drink bill as compared with figures for 1914. Total annual cost of bootleg liquor is placed at $2,848,000,000 annually and the claim is made that most of the liquor now consumed is made at home or purchased from neighborhood bootleggers at fairly low retail prices. Since the 1914 total included the payment of more than $333,000,000 in taxes and fees the lightning calculators of the association stressed the point that the annual cost of bootleg liquor to the American consumer goes far beyond the three billion dollar mark.

Nature must have given the American consumer an asbestos throat, a cast iron stomach and the capacity of a camel.

HOT SPRINGS READY FOR THE DIVORCE SEASON.

Hot Springs is ready for the opening of the divorce season—"two and a half weeks before the new 90 days divorce laws are to become effective." Petitions for a referendum on repeal of the Arkansas law are now in circulation throughout the state. Nevada has a three weeks divorce law. Nevada has legitimized all forms of gambling. Marriage is said to be a lottery. Reno is the mecca of all those who draw blanks. Nevada never did enact a state pro enforcement law but the airplane is a swift messenger and fliers make their way from Canada and the Pacific coast to the desert state.

A reminder that in the long ago Horace Greeley met a crows who had paid a visit to the territory of Nebraska. The great editor asked his friend how he found conditions out there. "Very good," said the friend; "all the territory lacks is good society and good water." "Humph," grunted Greeley; "that's all hell lacks." No reflection on the Sagebrush state.

Says America Lacks Language

CHICAGO.—America is without a language of its own, believes Dr. George O. Curme, professor of Germanic philology at Northwestern University. In his new book, "Syntax," which has been 35 years in the making, Dr. Curme proves that every language in American speech can be traced to various English dialects. Even the Gullah dialect of the South Carolina negroes is not a relic of African days he says, but is merely a corruption of English speech. Dr. Curme is a champion of the use of the split infinitive, condemned by rhetoricians and grammarians, and says it has a scholarly origin in 14th Century England. It is no surprise to read that George Bernard Shaw is writing songs. He has put on airs before.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
 Shawnee, Okla.

Steve Stevenson, editor of the Orange (N. J.) Courier, says: The old man depression would be pushing up the daisies if all of the calamity howlers could be muzzled.

It is true that business conditions are now on the upgrade, but it is similar to a freight train going up hill with the brakes tightened. While the optimists are pouring oil into the fire to make more steam for "going ahead" purposes, the pessimists are throwing on the brakes.

The engine, business, is puffing away, gaining a little headway at a time and will only continue to gain at that rate until the howlers are boot-l off the train. The howlers are now broadcasting that business is slipping and will probably fracture one or two legs this summer. Some of Uncle Sam's children, who are easily convinced by howlers that it will not be long before green-backs are worth two-cents on the dollar, are already planning to "soak" their winter overcoats for enough money to meet any emergencies. These children are a great, big help in a great, big way to the howlers. They form an audience that would stop to watch the whole alphabet.

In the ordinary course of commercial transactions the sound business man is satisfied with watching his "p's and q's." With the howlers going in full blast they now have to watch the whole alphabet. Calamity howlers are derelicts in the path of commerce. They should be sunk along with all memories of a depression if business is to resume its normal status.

PECOS—Plans under way to improve Carlsbad highway from here to New Mexico county line.

Oldtimer Chats Over 2,000 Miles of Line

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Some-one cut in Baltimore, Md., who was in the west 18 years ago, got the "blues" for the west so that he recently has been calling up Chief of Police Pat O'Grady.

One telephone conversation lasted 30 minutes and another 20 minutes as the Baltimorean talked over old times with the chief. Except that the man said his name is H. Palmer, Chief O'Grady cannot place him.

"Say, you're running up a big telephone bill," the chief reminded him once.

"What do you care," came the reply, "I'm footing the bill."

He told the chief he had the "blues" for the west and had to talk to somebody in Albuquerque or bust. And he felt a lot better.

He asked O'Grady if he remembered the time the chief beat him up in the Savoy bar room, "when we almost wrecked the bar."

The chief remembered the incident but still could not place the man.

Then the man told O'Grady he was a new man now.

"Got a wife and family of grown up kids. Doing fine."

The chief thought someone was kidding him in Albuquerque but long distance operators contend the calls are coming from Baltimore, Md.

Mayor's Automobile Is Exempt From Traffic Violations

BOSTON, Mass.—Even if a daring traffic policeman should tag Mayor James M. Curley's automobile the mayor could—and probably would—tear up the tag without thinking twice.

Samuel Silverman, city corporation counsel, has ruled that the mayor's car is an emergency vehicle and so is immune to punishment for parking violations.

You will like the price* as well as the quality...

What must you pay for the car you would like to own? Can you get a car that is well built, fast, easy to drive and good to look at—for the price you want to pay?

Indeed you can—for in Pontiac you get so much for your money. It is an outstanding General Motors value.

For instance, if you owned a small car in the past, you will find you can buy the fine Pontiac today for about what that small car cost you. Yet what extra value Pontiac gives you!

One fine thing you get is a 60 h. p. motor that is smooth and quiet at all times. It is a large motor, and so does all you ask with ease. And you can trust it to work that way as long as you have the car.

Then you will get a fine new Fisher body which is built to shut out heat, cold, rain and noise. The seat springs are deep —the cushions soft. Real mohair and whipcord give the style and long wear you want for pride and lasting value.

You will find the Pontiac very comfortable to ride in. There are rubber cushions at 43 points in the chassis—a fine-car feature which takes up most of the road shocks. Also there are four hydraulic shock absorbers to add to your comfort.

Your friends will say that Pontiac's lines and color and finish make it a car to be proud of. People will turn to watch it as you drive by. You will feel that you have bought fine-car value at a very low cost.

Of course you may say that we think more of our car than you might! Then why not drive the Pontiac and find out just how well it lives up to what we say about it? Any Oakland-Pontiac dealer will be glad to let you take a Pontiac, whenever you are ready to make the test.

An extra-dramatic drama of conflict between the sexes is the Acradia drama. Headed by a notable Pennsylvania actor, Clive Brooks, who has been in "Tarnished" by Rogers, creating a highly dramatic role; Richardson, by Wray and Jean light. "Effie's Secret" is a and town suspense-filled drama. It was written by a prominent writer (Clive Brooks) who lights the scene of the night in which the murder for which an man is about to pay the price. The situation is complicated and exciting. The heart of the conflict appeals to the lawyer American. vs. Indiana. The collection of Brooks sets out to enlighten a revealed man, together to reveal his end, at the same time, and at the same time, a gripping dramatic ending that assures interest in the opening scene to the film.

The MELODY GIRL
 by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, knows that he would never be happy with her half-sister, Irene Everett, and tries to prevent their marriage. Irene is jealous when she fails and Beryl secures a radio contract. Beryl's voice wins her new friends but she cannot forget her hopeless love though she goes to parties with young Prentiss Gaylord. Irene learns that Prentiss is rich and tries to win him from Beryl. Tommy's aunt dies and he loses both job and money through her bad luck and she breaks the engagement. When Prentiss asks her to marry him she accepts. In despair, Tommy drinks heavily and Beryl finds him. She tries to cheer him up and tells Irene she must go back to Tommy or Irene Prentiss how heartlessly she has acted. Irene promises, then slips away and marries Prentiss, telephoning the news home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV
 Among the cards Beryl held in her game with Tommy there was one ace. It was a black ace and she hoped it would trump anything that Tommy could produce. It should, she thought, as she drove slowly toward the Larkin house. It had cost her enough to impress anyone with the slightest sense of honor. And she could not believe that Tommy's character had become completely undermined. The look of worry on her face tonight (she did not often drive near the Larkin place at night) was marked. She had not seen Tommy for three weeks. The avalanche she feared had descended upon her only the day before and she was certain Tommy had not heard about it. The night was chilly. It was early fall. Beryl had not brought a wrap and the sweater she was wearing was scarcely warm enough. She shivered slightly. "I'm always either too hot or too cold," she thought impatiently. But impatience was such a slight burden compared with the black despair she had known. She hoped never again to feel as she had when Dr. Auguston told her, "Your voice is gone, Miss Borden." They had left her alone. She had asked them to. And what she had thought and what she had suffered had blocked out her youth—left her a woman. She was a woman tonight as she went to find Tommy. She felt charitable toward him. She might have lost her voice anyway without tramping in the dew and being out when she should have been in bed. Tommy hadn't asked her to do that. She couldn't blame him. Besides Tommy had helped her. His need was the price of her misfortune. Her future should not be sacrificed for nothing. Ever since the thought had come to her that now she could make an appeal which Tommy must listen to Beryl had been resigned to the hopelessness of her situation. She had even found it a relief not to have to worry about the inadequacy of her sweater. It wouldn't matter now if she caught cold. Her voice was gone. Something in her throat had hardened. The voice wasn't coming back. Her face was a little white but in her eyes there was a vision of Tommy—tall and slim and brown and gay. Tommy as he had been, not the unkempt loafer he had become. How she hated those blood-shot streaks in his eyes. He had even talked roughly to her when she had dogged him until he was exasperated. It had happened the night Pol had got into trouble. Pol had got out of it, but Tommy wouldn't have. He'd have been made the fool. Beryl had parked her car in front of Pol's house when he and Tommy came out to get into a truck which stood in the driveway. Beryl went over to them and input the palm of her hand down hard on the button that sounded the horn of her car and sent forth a raucous call. She repeated it in rapid succession several times, making it too peremptory for anyone to ignore—at least of all Tommy who might reasonably expect that it was one of the crowd calling him. Beryl held her breath as he came to answer the call. She had purposely parked her car in the shadow of a large maple tree. Tommy did not recognize it until he was within speaking distance. Then he swore under his breath and prepared to retreat, but Beryl was out of the car in a flash and clinging to his arm. "Don't be a coward!" she challenged. "Besides there's no one home, is there?" "Why can't you mind your own business?" Tommy retorted. "That's just what I am doing," Beryl said. "Please come with me Tommy somewhere where we can talk. I want to tell you something—about myself. I'm in trouble too now." Tommy drew back and tried to peer at her in the semi-darkness. People rarely thought of giving Beryl sympathy. She never seemed to need it. Beryl continued urging while he hesitated. Her voice was fraught with despair and it was genuine. She clutched at Tommy, suddenly afraid with a blind unreasoning fear, that he would not listen to her. "Please, Tommy. You've always helped me when I needed you. Don't you see, I need you now? There's no one else I can talk to." Tommy turned back toward the car. "Get in," he said gruffly. "I don't want you hanging around here. Pol won't stand for it." "You drive," Beryl said, and slipped into the seat at the right. She was trembling so she could not have held the wheel steadily. Tommy became aware of her increasing agitation. "What's the matter with you?" he asked bluntly. Words to answer him were jumbled in Beryl's mind. She did not know which to use. How could she tell him? Suddenly she put her face down in her hands and Tommy was astonished to hear the sobs that were torn from her lips. He drove the car to the side of the road and stopped. Beryl, crying, was a complete stranger to him. "Gee," he said awkwardly like a little boy, "gee Beryl, don't cry." Beryl lifted her head. "I know," she said, "It's a nice way to act after dragging you out here to listen to me." She dabbed viciously at her eyes. "I've had a tough break Tommy. It's tough for you, too, because I've got to tell you the truth. My voice is gone. I may never sing again and . . . and they say it wouldn't have happened if I'd obeyed the doctor." "Why didn't you?" Tommy asked logically enough. "Because I couldn't," Beryl told him. "It was you, Tommy. You needed a friend. And you can't deny that there were times when you'd have got a lot deeper with Pol if you hadn't had me on your trail." "Yes," Tommy admitted, "I guess that's so. Do you mean that?" He paused and Beryl finished for him. "I should have been in bed when I was chasing all over the country looking after you," she declared. "And now, Tommy, it's a show-down. I've paid a big price to help you. I'm not going to cry any more but I can't endure it unless you make it count for something. If you do I won't care. I'll even be glad." Tommy stirred restlessly. "What can I do?" he asked vaguely. "You can be yourself now and quit the Larkin gang. You know you can't stick with them forever, Tommy. I'll bet you're sick of it already. They know how to take care of themselves better than you ever will, but they'll slip some day. You're not a fool, Tommy. You know that. Come on back with me now—come to our house. We owe you a lot—our family—but you owe me more. And I'm licked. If I've got to admit that all I had to hold on to this old earth has gone down before the viciousness of Pol Larkin. "Think of it, Tommy," she hurried on, "my whole future—everything that has given me a chance to lift myself out of the routine of working in a grocery store. I'll have to go back to that now, and I loved singing. I love the luxuries I never had before. It's horrible to think that I lost all that just because certain men are crooks! But I won't, mind if it proves you're what I think you are. You've never been a welcher or a double-crosser, Tommy. You're always been regular. And now it's up to you to make good. I've bought your release from the Larkins with everything I had. Will you take it, or will you let me down?"

Berry Crop May Bring Big Profit

By United Press.
 BENTONVILLE, Ark.—Farmers of Arkansas and Missouri berry districts will market this year's crop for a total of approximately $6,500,000, according to a survey completed by horticulturists. While a higher return is expected only 22,500 acres are in production compared to 50,000 last year, the survey disclosed. Acreage in other states is reported shorter than in this region and berry growers expect an average return of $4 a crate or higher for strawberries. While many fields were damaged by last year's extensive drought, plants surviving are in good condition and are expected to produce heavily. A production of around 50 crates to the acre is predicted.

Seattle Policeman's Duties Are Many

SEATTLE, Wash.—Policemen are called upon to do all sorts of things, from settling family arguments to starting furnaces, and the Seattle police department considers extra-special service a part of its routine duty.

Included among unusual calls recorded in the police report book are requests for help in redeeming a strayed chicken from a neighbor's yard; assistance in dealing with a husband who was about to be notified of the price his wife paid for a hat; help in buttoning up the back of a woman's dress; assistance in starting an elderly woman's furnace each morning; a police car and guide to show some honeymooners the city.

Tokyo Medicos United To Oppose Birth Control

TOKIO.—Tokio physicians, members of the Association of Graduate Medical Practitioners, have decided to oppose the birth control movement and shortly will present a memorial to the government to that effect, according to the vernacular press.

Before any national policy with regard to the birth rate—which increases to such an extent that many observers believe the empire within a few years will be unable to support its increasing population—is adopted, the physicians believe the question should be studied carefully and statistics collected showing the influence of birth control on eugenics and social conditions.

Birth control clinics already are operated by social welfare bureaus in the larger cities of Japan.

FREE BEDS FOR 4,660

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Free beds were furnished to 4,660 homeless men by the Salvation Army during the winter and spring, officers of the army reported in checking up on welfare work.

Women Members On Board of C.I.A. Doing Commendable Work With the Girls; Ranger Has One Member

The five women who became the first feminine group in majority government of any Texas college, all are outstanding in civic, welfare and club work in the state. They are: Mrs. Lee Joseph, Austin; Mrs. H. F. Ring, Houston; Mrs. W. E. Spell, Waco; Mrs. E. P. Turner, Dallas, and Mrs. M. H. Hagaman, Ranger.

The masculine minority of the board is made up of Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, chairman; K. W. Dentman, Lufkin; R. W. Hoffman, Denton, and C. E. Mays, Sweetwater.

The word "majority" refers to numbers only, and not to votes in the board, because the board is functioning in full harmony in carrying on the administration of C. I. A.

The school has been held back to about 1800 to 2000 students because of lack of dormitory facilities. The new Fitzgerald hall will remedy this. In future, other dormitories are to be erected on the self-financing plan. The college, now ranking with the largest women's colleges of the nation, unquestionably will become the largest of all in future years.

Its women regents all have important offices in the board. Mrs. Ring is vice president. Mrs. Turner is secretary. Mrs. Joseph and Mrs. Spell are members of the executive committee, with President Fitzgerald of the board, President L. H. Hubbard of the college, and Mr. Hoffman the other members.

A woman senator, Miss Margie Neal, two years ago sponsored a law that increased the board from six to nine members.

Members of the C. I. A. board take extreme pride in having won the government of the woman's college. None more so than Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, Austin, for 10 years a member and long chairman of the board.

In the next vacancies on the board, ex-students of C. I. A. will be available to be appointed for the first time as regents.

The college late in May, set up another precedent for Texas institutions of higher learning, by completing the first college dormitory in the state to be paid for under the self-financing system authorized by law for several institutions last year.

By unanimous vote of the other eight members, this new dormitory was named Fitzgerald hall, in honor of the board's president. Mr. Fitzgerald, veteran Texas newspaperman, was the first editor in Texas to urge the creation of the college, back in the days when Gov. Joseph D. Sayers approved the bill establishing it.

Mrs. Hagaman has been named on the committee, along with Mrs. Spell and a masculine member, to select the school's auditor.

The girls of this college were placed more "upon their own," assured of greater confidence of their governing board, encouraged in the freedom of personal accountability, just as soon as the women studied the rather strict social regulations and regimentation of conduct that long prevailed.

Here are some of the ways in which the younger students were given greater latitude, and in which women's sympathetic understanding eased up the restraints upon the daughters of Texas in the college:

Junior girls advanced to division of seniors with old privileges and new privileges conferred on both. They and seniors will wear white uniforms, will be allowed to have men callers three evenings a week; may chaperon under-classes, attend theaters in groups; to ride alone with men callers certain afternoons of the week.

Seniors will occupy the new Fitzgerald hall next year, and juniors will then be admitted to senior houses.

Lower division students also will share easier regulations, in visiting Denton homes, in making out-of-town visits, in cutting or attending dinner, and in other social and conduct regulations.

LESSON-SERMON GIVEN

"God the only Cause and Creator" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, June 7.

The golden text was from Psalms 33:8, 9. "Let all the earth fear the Lord; let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him. For he spake, and it was done; he commanded, and it stood fast."

Included in the service was the following passage from the Bible (John 1:1, 3): "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made."

The lesson-sermon also included the following citation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 249):

"Mind is not the author of matter, and the creator of ideas is not the creator of illusions. Either there is no omnipotence, or omnipotence is the only power. God is the infinite, and infinity never began, will never end, and includes nothing unlike God."
