MEAT PRICES LOWEST IN 20 YEARS.

Meat prices are said to be the lowest in 20 years. Dozens of livestock growers in every locality have been wiped out.

Prices are 33 per cent lower than last January.

Hogs are at the lowest level of 19 years.

Cattle are at the lowest level in 20 years.

An organization known as the National Livestock Marketing association is in session in the city of Chicago. C. A. Ewing is its president. He is responsible for the information contained in the foreword of this news editorial. He discussed the "exploitation of meat products." He advised a parade in the city of Chicago "two miles long down Michigan Avenue to call attention to the cheapness of meat." This parade, designed to put meat back on the American diet as heavily as in years gone by, will be staged by the Livestock and Meat Board. All the speakers agreed that improvement in the economic condition of agriculture was "necessary, essential and compulsory" before the business depression could end. President Hoover will be invited to review this procession "and to make a speech."

If the meat prices are the lowest in 20 years, how will it be possible to maintain high wage schedules in the face of the lowest price levels for the products of the farm and the ranch? It should be easy for the president to unravel the riddle.

COST OF GOVERNMENT IN TEXAS.

Governor Sterling is a busy man. He has the oil white elephant to carry. He has the huge appropriations bills to either slash or cut or veto. A catsup of all the appropriations made by the 42nd legislature discloses a total of $54,290,260. In comparison with the financial statement of April 1, the governor's new figures, including the latest taxes, show a net increase of $3,263,126 "due largely to the tobacco tax and slightly to the cement, sulphur increase and gas production taxes."

Texas is said to be the white spot on the map of the United States, Texas has a population of 6,000,000. Texas is a six billion dollar state. Bank failures have been reduced to the minimum in Texas. Great crops of foodstuffs and feedstuffs are on the way. For 150 years Americans have solved all problems and conquered all depressions and adversities. It goes without saying that the people now on earth will walk in the footsteps of their forefathers. Not many years ago all the deans of gloom the wide world over predicted that the end of civilization was approaching. They were false prophets. A better civilization was born. Speaking of world diplomacy, it is said to be "easy on the brain but hell on the feet." Ambassador Dawes predicts, first a great wave of optimism and then a great whirlwind of prosperity. "You pay your money and you take your choice."

TEXAS WHEAT GROWERS SHOCKED.

Texas wheat growers are shocked. The last of the pegs put under the Chicago grain market by the federal government last fall was withdrawn June 3 "and wheat slid more than 13 cents before it found the new level for trading." A telegram from the federal farm board caused the sliding. It is a matter of record that the board had promised previously not to sell its holdings until July 1, but "the time was ripe for a change due to the heavy harvest and prospective movement of the new crop in Texas." Chairman James C. Stone of the farm board and Geo. S. Milnor, head of the stabilization corporation, decided that it would be unfair to buy Texas wheat at the stabilized price at the expense of "Kansas farmers who will begin harvesting and shipping next month." Texas growers are expecting a yield of 45,000,000 bushels, the greatest in the history of the state. They did not anticipate the change from July 1 to June 3 by order of Chairman Stone and his lieutenant and they were a bit dumfounded when the Chicago sliding event took place in the big wheat pit on the shores of Lake Michigan. Now, on with the Texas harvest.

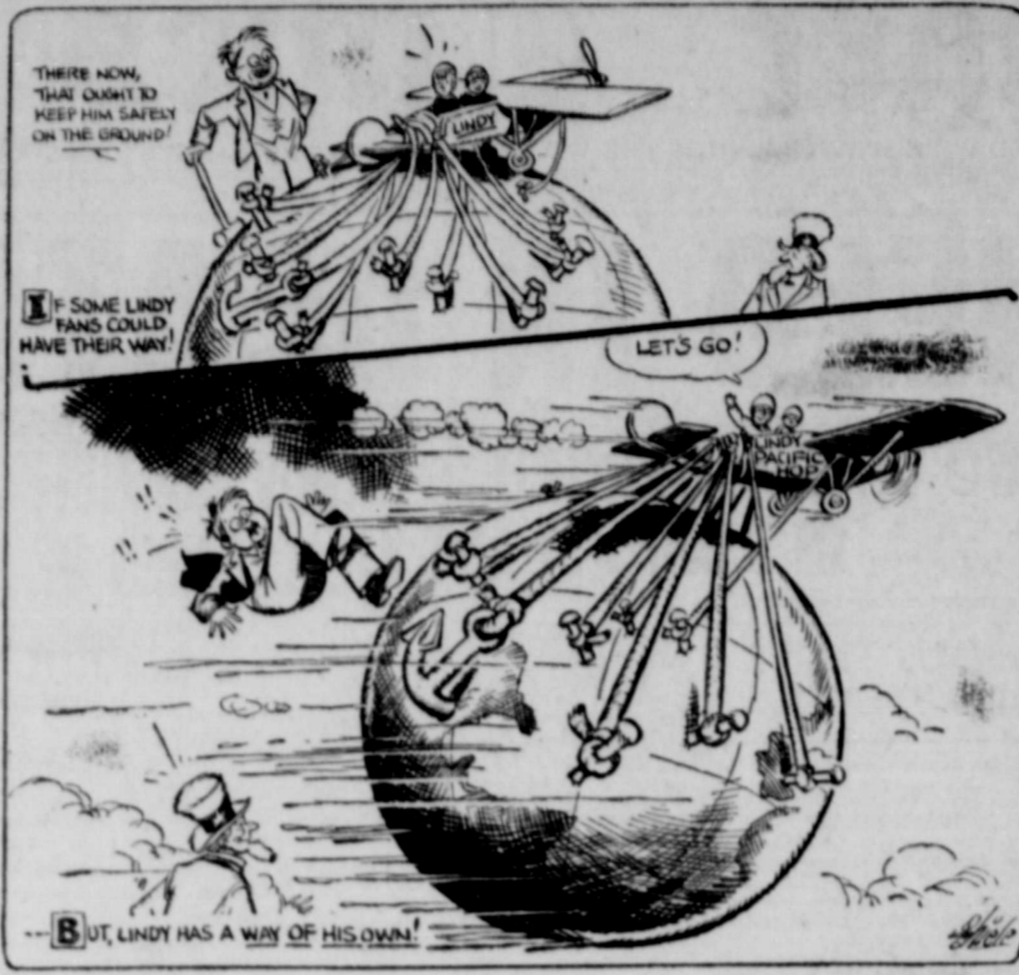

FOUR MAJOR COMPANIES SLASH CRUDE PRICES.

Four major companies slashed crude prices in the East Texas field. Why? Pres. W. S. Farish of the Humble Oil and Refining company has the floor. Let him tell it: "The railroad commission's program for the control of production in East Texas has completely broken down. Oil is being produced far in excess of the market demand and in utter disregard of the commission's order. A few fortunate producers monopolize what market there is, entirely excluding adjacent less fortunate producers from any share in it. Intolerable inequities result and economic disaster will certainly follow if control of production in East Texas is not promptly set up. Individuals and corporations face bankruptcy; banks financing such operators likewise face failure; counties and school districts dependent upon oil property valuations for tax income face insolvency; the state's revenue from oil production has declined to a small fraction of its normal value; the entire oil industry faces a general reduction in salaries and wages and wholesale unemployment must result. Oil companies, themselves, are hopeless in this situation. No one concern or group can solve the problem. The active interest and support of the entire public must be aroused and made effective. We have done our utmost to avert the impending calamity."

Governor Sterling is sitting on the lid. Senators and representatives who are opposed to the Howsley bill are as active and determined as ever in their opposition to the enactment of the oil control legislation. Individuals and organizations affected in the other fields of Texas are clamoring for a special session. Robert R. Penn of Dallas is urging the formation of a huge corporation to take over operations of the new East Texas field admitted to be the most potential in the world and Penn is positive that something must be done immediately "since flooding of the market with East Texas oil has depressed prices to such an extent that a daily loss of $960,000 is being suffered."

Many cases are pending in the courts and regardless of special legislation or the Penn proposal of corporation control of the entire East Texas field the courts will have the last word. If oil proration by law is constitutional, then it will be possible to bring about wheat and cotton acreage proration by law in order to stabilize the production and marketing of these main American staples. There are knotty problems facing governors and lawmakers and high court judges.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 SEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Newspaper reports that loans to veterans on their bonus certificates have now exceeded a billion dollars, interesting as it is in view of the fact that the demand for loans has been so much greater than anyone expected, is even more so in the light of persistent reports that a strong movement will develop in favor of forgiving the loans altogether. The demand is expected to be heard at the American Legion convention in Detroit next September and although most Legion leaders presumably will oppose it there is bound to be some support in Congress and there is always the possibility that rank and file sentiment will run away with the more conservative officers of veteran organizations.

The same authority reports that Zachary Taylor, James K. Polk, Andrew Johnson and Woodrow Wilson are also to be found in the local telephone directory.

INVITED TO THE big Red Cross Golden Jubilee 50th anniversary banquet here, one Washington editor returned his ticket with word that he didn't think he would enjoy the food and decorations because so many people were starving.

CONGRESSMAN DAVID J. LEWIS of Maryland, returned to Congress after about 20 years, probably will be the foremost Latin scholar and the hardest-working student in the next House.

During his previous service he learned French so that he might read authorities for an exhaustive study preparatory to a speech of reorganization of the House. When his bill to create the parcel post was up and they were about to divide an hour's time between sides, Speaker Jim Mann announced that he would not say either side who knew anything about parcel post and he might as well have all the time. So Lewis had the whole time.

Meeting of Cotton Group Directors Is Called for June 15

COLLEGE STATION.—Directors of the Texas division of the Association for the Increased Use of Cotton have been called to meet here June 15, to elect active officers and perfect plans for a sustained use-more-cotton campaign in Texas.

Directors were named at the organization meeting held in Houston during that city's cotton festival, at which J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture and vice president of the national association, was instructed to call the second meeting.

In issuing the call, McDonald emphasized the need for a restoration of agricultural prosperity. "If the proper emphasis is placed on the use of cotton," he said, "within a few years America would consume its entire production, thereby filling a gap caused by the loss of world markets for American cotton."

"We believe you will agree that the barometer of prosperity in America is agriculture, and that by re-establishing this important industry we can rapidly return our people to a state of prosperity and happiness."

JAIL TALK INCENTIVE.—William Leonard 23, was taken to police court, charged with begging. He professed to be deaf and dumb. Court attaches tried various puses, attempting to make him talk, but all failed until Judge John B. Gordon suddenly caught his eye and asked, "Do you want to go to jail?" Leonard quickly replied "No." He was escorted to a cell.

DANBURY, N. H.—Danbury's dilemma is how to cut the cost of prosecuting hoboes. The selectmen carried their problem to state officials after a check-up showed that it cost the town $14 for every hobo brought to court.

Drinking Habits Changed, Claims College Official

SEATTLE.—The main difference between college men's drinking habits today and those of the first few years after prohibition became effective lies in the fact that "drinking is done in the home instead of in the alley, in the opinion of William Taylor, Jr., men's personnel officer at the University of Washington. Taylor has tried in constant touch with social conditions on the campus for the last eight or 10 years.

"For the first three or four years after passage of the prohibition law," Taylor declared, "college men took their liquor to the back alleys to drink it. But now their drinking is gentlemanly. They have liquor in their homes and most of them confine their drinking to a few cocktails after dinner."

He expressed the belief that drinking is no more prevalent at the university than it was in former days.

PIGEON CHICKS' MOTHER.—BLUEFIELD, Va.—Mrs. D. F. Worley placed a small hen egg under a pigeon which had laid no eggs. Four weeks later the egg was hatched, and the pigeon is giving the tiny chicken motherly attention.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
 Shawnee, Okla.

That in some sections they seem to try to run legitimate business in the grave.

Radical legislation that does not recognize honest business is put over. They are hanging their fangs into business in a way that is causing much trouble and cutting down both employment and development.

If more thought and consideration are not given business, many honest concerns will be thrown upon the shoals of disaster.

Business cannot go ahead when it is being constantly goaded by men who seek to destroy all legitimate business. Business must be given the consideration it deserves.

Every means should be used to help business.

Better business means better payrolls. It means prosperity and contentment.

MUNICIPAL HOUSING URGED.

PHILADELPHIA.—Municipal housing for the industrial classes was urged during a recent address by Paul Blanshard, director of the city affairs committee of New York at a meeting here of the League of Industrial Democracy.

Air Tour May Have 25 Entries Officials Think

DETROIT, June 9.—Entry of four additional contesting planes in the 1931 National Air Tour for the Edsel B. Ford reliability trophy, scheduled to start from here on July 4, was announced today by Ray Collins, tour manager, following his completion of a pathfinding flight around the event's 6,900 mile route.

The newly entered planes, Collins said, include a Sikorsky S-39 amphibian, built by the Sikorsky Aviation corporation, of Bridgeport, Conn., a States monoplane, product of the States Aircraft corporation, of Chicago Heights, Ill., a Great Lakes Trainer, built by the Great Lakes Aircraft corporation, of Cleveland, O., and a Mercury Chic, built by the Mercury Aircraft Corporation, of Hammondspont, N. Y. These ships, he stated, swell the entry list to 12, three Buhls, two Fords, two Birds, and one Curtiss-Wright entry having been previously received. Exclusive of more than 10 planes which will accompany the tour carrying officials, newspapermen, and others, the number of craft expected to be entered in competition for the coveted reliability and efficiency trophy by time the event begins is expected to approximate 25, according to the tour manager.

Because of poor weather conditions prevailing in Mexico during the month of July, Manager Collins last week was forced to abandon all plans for routing the 1931 event into that country. It had originally been proposed to visit Mexico City, Tampico, Monterrey and other cities of the Mexican republic. With Mexico off the itinerary a portion of the contest's route will be altered. Under the revision the following cities will serve as a nucleus: Walkerville, Ont., Binghamton, N. Y., Bradford, Pa., Pittsburgh, Pa., Memphis, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., Montgomery, Ala., Gulfport, Miss., New Orleans, La., Shreveport, La., Houston, Tex., San Antonio, Tex., Fort Worth, Tex., Wichita Falls, Tex., Ponca City, Okla., Kansas City, Mo., Little Rock, Ark., Jackson, Miss., Nashville, Tenn., Lexington, Ky., Akron, O., and Kalamazoo. A definite route will be announced later.

The short course program will be opened with joint meeting for men and women the morning of July 27, with President T. O. Walton of the college and Director D. Martin of the extension service as the principal speakers.

Speakers scheduled for the general meeting July 28 include C. W. Warburton, director of extension service, U. S. Department of Agriculture; Washington, D. C.; E. T. Thomas, Texas Electric Service, Fort Worth; R. W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture; Col. C. S. E. Holland, Houston, chairman agricultural committee, Texas Bankers association; Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, Columbus, O.; E. F. Creekmore, vice president and general manager, American Cotton Cooperative association, New Orleans.

Va., argued their own cases in federal court here when Swearingin sued for judgment in an automobile accident. It was the first time in the history of the court litigants appeared without counsel.

MOM'N POP

BEGIN HERE TODAY Beryl Borden, secretly in love with Tommy Wilson, knows that he and her half-sister, Irene Everett, would never be happy together and tries to prevent their marriage.

REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD! Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden—A story we have all heard since childhood—Consider your Adam's Apple—the possession of each one of us, man or woman—your voice box—containing your vocal chords—your larynx—Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—Be careful in your choice of cigarettes.

Irene is jealous when she fails and Beryl secures a radio contract. Beryl's voice wins her new friends and she tries to forget her love by going to parties with young Prentiss Gaylord. Irene learns Prentiss is rich and tries to win him from Beryl. Tommy's aunt dies and he loses both job and money through her husband.

Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XXXVI "All's right with the world," Beryl turned swiftly to Tommy. "Isn't that a wonderful line?" she exclaimed rapturously. "Look at that harbor! No, don't, for you'd surely drive us straight into the sunset. You couldn't take your eyes from it."

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

Tommy grinned and swerved the car, pretending to lose control of it. Beryl laughed. "It knows which is its sunny side," she said. "I never knew a nicer brought-up car, did you?"

LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTES "IT'S TOASTED"

"I never did. It curtsies every time it sees a Lincoln." "So much better behaved than its new brothers and sister," Beryl said snootily.

WILHELMINE WAGNER CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

"Better get your nose down before some mistakes it for a buttercup," Tommy told her. And so they drove along, care-free and merry. If each had a dark cloud in memory it was kept for private viewing and never brought out to spoil the sunny hours they spent together.

"It's toasted"

Beryl was particularly happy this day. It was Sunday and the grocery store was closed. Tommy too was released from his labors in a garage. And tomorrow he would return to college—to night classes, keeping the new job, making his own way and proving to Beryl's entire satisfaction that he always paid his debts in full.

appeared at the store with a brighter face than Beryl had seen him wearing for some time. "Your mother's written to Irene," he explained. "That's great," she said, and turned hastily away.

As the days passed and nothing was heard from Irene the brightness vanished from Mr. Everett's face. Beryl knew that he had quarreled with her mother, but would say nothing. There was a look of stubbornness on her mother's face that Beryl heard Mr. Everett describe as mulish.

Perhaps her mother didn't realize how things were. "I guess," Beryl said to her one day, "you don't know how serious it is with Dad. He's pretty badly in debt. He's got to have a life line or he'll sink."

The lines of stubbornness deepened around her mother's compressed lips. "You might have thought of that," she answered, "when you wouldn't take care of yourself. Irene is married and gone. It seems to me the ones to help are those at home."

Beryl bit her lip to keep back a sharp answer. There would be something in what her mother said, were it not for the many dollars of her earnings that had gone into the family exchequer. "I am doing all I can," she said quietly.

"And I've done all I can," her mother retorted. "I've stood over this stove and baked until I'm black in the face. Irene was the only one with sense enough to look out for herself and I'm not going to hurt her pride for the sake of some who criticized her."

Beryl knew that she was the "some" referred to. "I don't want her to help me," she said. "I could get a job if I didn't have to help Dad in the store. And I can't see that it would hurt Irene's pride to do something for her mother and father."

"You can't? Don't you suppose that it would humble her to ask Gaylord for money for her family?" Beryl admitted. "But I'm sure Gaylord wouldn't mind if she were grateful."

"Well, I wrote to her once about it and she hasn't answered. I'm not going to do it again!" Beryl was quieted by the finality in her tone. The task she'd been about was finished. She took off her smock and rolled down her sleeves.

"I'll take the salad to the store," she said hurriedly. "Is the cake iced?" "No, you'll have to come back for it."

"I haven't much time. It's Saturday, you know," Beryl reminded her. "You don't need to tell me! Hasn't every Saturday seen me chained to this kitchen for a month?"

Beryl felt suddenly very sorry for her. Perhaps she was suffering in silent disappointment—too loyal to Irene to complain. "Never mind the icing," she said. "I'll whip a bottle of cream at the store."

"And suppose the cake doesn't sell?" "Mrs. Barstow will take half of it, and Tommy will buy the other half. We're going on a picnic tomorrow to celebrate Tommy's return to college."

Beryl could not be depressed with the prospect of a picnic with Tommy, especially when it marked a signal triumph. Before starting she resolutely put trouble behind her. And the whipped cream cake was sold as a whole besides all the salad. Beryl decided she must make more of the salad since people had begun to ask for it. Perhaps the Everett craft could be floated on salads and cakes.

She remarked to Tommy when she served him store cookies that ships ought to have spires made of spun sugar and keels of chocolate and oars of peppermint sticks and he asked her if she were rational.

"What's that about the path to your door?" she said dreamily. "I think I'm going to start one on stepping stones of brownies and deviled eggs. Maybe I'll get a stand out here somewhere in the country and serve hobo sandwiches . . . you know, Tommy, people have to eat and if you make it a pleasure for them—if I made something better than anyone else made it and . . ."

Tommy reached out and took her hand. "Cut it out," he said huskily and Beryl said, "Making a success of anything is thrilling, Tommy," for she knew that he was contracting a career running a lunch stand with ones and sixes.

She had to be very careful with Tommy in some respects. He had changed. To Beryl—he was vastly more interesting than he had been before. He was repentant and gentle and sympathetic when he was serious.

After a bit she managed to turn the conversation into a discussion of Tommy's future. She had a beautiful time listening to him, and watching the sun glint through the autumn leaves on his hair. Tommy would be somebody some day.

They drove home in mellow dusk. Most of the way they had the road to themselves. Beryl's old car shot past other vehicles easily. Some drivers swore at and others envied the young couple.

Beryl closed her eyes that night with a happy sigh, and did not wake the next morning until her mother came to show her a telegram from Irene.

King's Editor Tells Why Siam's Queen Opposed Law Against Polygamy

Although she is the only wife of the king of Siam, whose father had over 600 in his harem, Queen Rambai Barni opposed legislation which would have prohibited polygamy. How the royal couple, who are now visiting this country, are slowly leading their subjects out of their ancient customs, is revealed by Andrew A. Freeman, former editor of the king's newspaper, in McCall's for July. Telling how the queen married at 14 and how she has since been active in stopping child marriages, Mr. Freeman writes:

"Almost everything about Her Majesty, Queen Rambai Barni, seems paradoxical. She is a feminist in a land where wives are still sold and women are seen and not heard. As queen of an absolute monarch who has sole power of life and death over millions of Siamese, many of whom still hunt with bow and arrow and till the soil with wooden plows, she is as humble as the lowliest of her people. Surrounding her are all the riches and bizarre splendor of the Orient, but she prefers to work for the welfare of coolie women and their babies. Where many women share one husband, she is an only wife. King Prajadhipok's father had over 600. "Queen Rambai is to dine informally with the king and with as many royal pages as she can seat at the table. "For a thousand years the Siamese have lived under a multi-wife standard. Siam has been, and still is, a man's country. The older generation opposes any change. Polygamy, it is argued, may have its evils, but a statute banning it would not eliminate them. If a man wants and can support more than one wife, let him do as he wishes. The desire for many wives is instinctive, and instinct cannot be ruled by law. "The position of Number One Wife falls to girls whose parents have money or social position. The minor wife is merely bought by the husband from the girl's father. The minimum price is 100 teals ($44.50). Some are more expensive, depending upon the beauty of the girl and her father's astuteness in bargaining. In the household of her husband the minor wife becomes a servant, always at the beck and call of her master and his Number One Wife. Her children do not take the name of the father. There is no law forcing him to support them. "Polygamy is practiced by upper class Siamese. In the larger cities, in the country districts an actual state of monogamy exists because the wife is often the most important member of the family. She is generally the one who sells the crops, being a better bargainer than her husband. Since she virtually controls the economic life of the family, there is little likelihood of the husband's taking another wife unless he reaches a state of affluence. "But even among the wealthy there is an economic consideration that affects polygamy. Women of intelligence and independent opinion refuse to live in a house with other wives, and many men who wish to practice polygamy must maintain separate establishments for each wife. "There are more men among the advocates of advancement and education for women than there are women. But since Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai have been on the throne, many girls have taken public oath that they will not marry a man who practices polygamy. "The queen is doing her share calmly and quietly. She is credited with being responsible for the law forbidding marriages of girls under 14 years. She has signified on more than one occasion her opposition to the sale of girls for minor wives. She is encouraging girls to take business courses, to nursing, medicine, and social welfare work. "She knows that a change cannot come over night through the enactment of laws. That she is opposed to legislation against polygamy was conclusively shown in 1928, when she refused to give any attention to a petition advocating such a statute. "Queen Rambai is the daughter of Prince and Princess Svasti, probably the most enlightened Siamese couple of the past generation. She was born Dec. 20, 1904, and was raised in the cosmopolitan atmosphere of her father's palace. She was tutored in Buddhist philosophy and in French and English. Then she entered the Rajini school in Bangkok, where the headmistress, a princess, encouraged modern ideas. That this school should sown the seeds of revolt against ancient customs for women is peculiarly fitting and, at the same time, pathetic. It was founded in memory of the late Queen Somanasa, whose death was the result of observance of an old law that forbids a commoner to touch the person of a royal princess. While traveling by boat to the ancient capital at Ayudhya, she fell overboard. Since her companions were not of her rank, they dared not move a hand to save her, and she was drowned. "When Rambai was 14 years old, she was married to Prince Prajadhipok, who had returned to Siam after studying at Eton and graduating as a lieutenant from the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, England. The princess had little opportunity to become acquainted with her future husband because all details of the wedding were arranged by her parents, in accordance with custom. But, despite the lack of romance before marriage, it was soon evident that Rambai was a real companion and a sympathetic helpmeet. Before long it was whispered in royal circles that the two were deeply in love."

"Odds" Against Accidents Are Figured Out

Suppose you are a summer tourist, on a clear day, driving carefully, at moderate speed, in a good car, on a good road. Let us say under those favorable circumstances your chances of being killed or injured that day are 1 in 1000. Did you ever stop to think how your actions as a driver affect those "odds"?

James S. Kemper has recently issued some pertinent figures based on the study of over 100,000 automobile accidents made by a special committee over a period of 15 years.

Some of the other increased hazards percentages are: "Driving over 40 miles per hour, 2500 per cent. "Passing another car on a curve, 1000 per cent. "Passing another car going up hill, 1000 per cent. "Failure to signal, 500 per cent."

Woman Singer Heads Business

CHICAGO.—A Chicago woman who became discouraged with her operatic studies and turned to the world of business, heads on the largest clay products firms in the country, and is a recognized authority on sewer construction and building tile.

Mrs. Astrid Rosing Sawyer, born in Copenhagen, Denmark, has another claim to distinction in that her husband as acting engineer of the company she started 18 years ago, obeys her orders.

After her migration to America Mrs. Sawyer became a clerk to pay for her singing lessons. Disillusioned from an opera career by her mother, the young woman decided upon a commercial career. Employed by a clay products firm, she studied the business until she acquired sufficient knowledge to head her own firm.

That was in 1913. Now her company ships to all parts of the United States, and into Canada and Mexico. Her advice had been solicited in the construction of sewers for municipalities in the Chicago region. She has been called in consultation on projects in all parts of the country.

She recalls a contract for an order of 2,000,000 hollow brick, and another for 1,500 carloads of stone and gravel as two of her biggest orders.

Mrs. Sawyer retained her interest in music and combined it with her business acumen to become manager for the productions of her former music teacher.

Avandoned Rum Runner's Engine In Racing Car

DALTONA BEACH, Fla., June 9.—A rum runner's wrecked speed boat furnished the engine for one of the world's fastest racing cars. This was the announcement made here today by F. E. Kennedy, Philadelphia sportsman, who is visiting with friends in this city.

The car is the mount of Sig Haugdahl, champion barnstormer and erstwhile protégé of J. Alex Sloan, king of dirt track automobile racing in the United States and Canada.

Back in 1925 the coast guard "jandarnes" took out after a speeding boat that was suspected of rum running. The craft was beached and the crew escaped. The Volstead sailors went back to sea, leaving the beached craft to be pounded by the waves.

Two local men, "Pop" Daley and "Doc" Tuttle, elected themselves members of the salvage committee and took possession of the wrecked speed boat.

The salvagers conferred with Sir Haugdahl and it was decided to build a racing automobile which would carry under its hood the Hall-Scott engine from the wrecked rum boat.

When Sig Haugdahl's car was completed, the speed merchant went out and shattered a long list of records. Many of them still stand.

The engine in the car driven by Haugdahl has 615 cubic inches piston displacement, therefore it is not eligible for competition in the Indianapolis Speedway 500-mile race. It carries a double magneto and has done 151 miles an hour in competition. Although the racing car that carries Col. Hall's motor has not competed in events sanctioned by the contest board of the A. A. A., it has won dirt track races in all parts of the country and it never has been beaten in competition on Daytona Beach.
