ABOUT THIS AND THAT.....

When the court heard her testimony, many in the crowd were surprised to find that she was not a young girl, but a woman of about 35 years of age. She had a serious expression on her face, and her eyes were fixed on the judge. She had a high forehead, and her hair was pulled back. She was wearing a dark dress, and she looked very much like a woman who had been through a great deal of life. She was not a young girl, but a woman of about 35 years of age. ## MISS EARHART LANDS 'WINDMILL' IN RANGER

Mrs. George Putnam, better known as Amelia Earhart, famous aviatrix and only woman who has flown the Atlantic, landed her autogiro at Haugland airport in Ranger Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 and after refueling left again at 3:50.

She landed her "windmill" near the middle of the field and after a short wait taxied up to the hangar where her plane was refueled. While waiting for the gasoline to be placed in the machine she readily and modestly told of the merits of her machine and seemed willing to answer any questions asked. Like Lindbergh, her modesty has done as much to make her one of the country's most popular famous fliers as well as her accomplishments.

She said that she believed the autogiro was the coming plane, though she admitted that it was now in the experimental stages. She said that the only objection she had to it was that it was so open and that there was no protection from the sun.

When her blower and peeling nose was mentioned she laughed and said, "Yes, isn't it a sight? I don't suppose my friends would recognize me now. You see there is no protection from the sun so I have been following the clouds wherever possible. I am not out for any speed records, so I take it by easy stages and when I see a bunch of clouds I fly over and get under their shade."

She explained that the rotors, which is commonly called the "windmill" on her plane, was not running under power when she was in the air. After taking off, she said, she disengaged the clutch and let it run idle, the force of the wind and the speed of the ship keeping it in motion.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 17.—World notables, foreign diplomats, governors of several states, state executives and members of the Illinois State Legislature, were to join with President Herbert Hoover here today in paying tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln. The occasion was the rededication of the Emancipator's tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Little Change Outwardly

In general outward appearance there is little change in the monument since it was dedicated by President U. S. Grant in 1874, except that it has been given an air of newness and a terrace has been erected at the entrance to the tomb, where a bronze head of Lincoln, by Gutzon Borglum, has been placed on a granite pedestal.

Here architectural skill under the direction of State Architect Herick Hammond, former president of the American Institute of Architects, has combined to fabricate a rotunda connecting galleries and the sarcophagus chamber.

One of the main features of the galleries is nine Lincoln statues of various stages of his career. All are the handiwork of internationally famous sculptors.

At each of the four corners of the central unit there is one of these statues, about three feet high, resting on a pedestal in a niche. Diagonally across from each of these is a statuette in a similar niche.

BE BRAVE! HAVE FAITH! GO FORWARD!

"My message to you is 'be courageous.' I have lived a long time. I have seen history repeat itself again and again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has come out stronger and more prosperous. Be as brave as your fathers were before you! Have faith! Go forward!"

How refreshing in these times of gloom and doubt and uncertainty is that message from the "grand old man" of science, Thomas Edison, whose genius has multiplied man-power manifold and done more to lift humanity from drudgery into comfort and happiness than any other man in America. His words of steadfast confidence were spoken recently over radio to seven thousand business men of the younger generation gathered at the convention of the National Electric Light association.

Thomas Edison has lived more than four-score years. He began his career when America was still on the threshold, so to speak, of its industrial and commercial development. The methods he found in use, the mechanics of the industrial and economic world into which he projected his genius were one-horse shays compared to the fast-moving machinery, the marvelous efficiency of the system which he has helped so immeasurably to erect. What did Thomas Edison face in those pioneering years? What disappointments, what unsurmountable difficulties confronted himself and those who labored in his age and at his elbow. Were there not years of darkness and doubt, of gloom, when the limit of endurance appeared to have been reached? Were there not days when the economic system, adequate prior to, seemed to have failed to meet changing conditions? Jobless days, hungry days, days when problems never before met threw themselves like ogres in the path of man's advancing feet?

Thomas Edison looks back upon eighty years of pioneering now with a smile of confidence for the future. How well he can say: "Be brave! Have faith! Go forward!" There is no other solution.

"WHAT ARE THEY DOING NOW?"

Is the republic bankrupt in leadership? Pres. Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin is positive that it is. Dr. Frank addressed a Kansas City audience, speaking of business conditions, he said: "This depression has developed a serious need for the broad vision of leadership. That is what we are in need of today."

He was asked, "What about our political leadership? Will it lead us out?" He smiled and then made answer, "What are they doing now?"

"Well Chmn. Wickersham of the Hoover law enforcement committee would save the country by giving the president absolute power in the appointment of federal judges and federal district attorneys. He would prohibit all advice or interference on the part of American senators. Would this plan, if carried out to the letter, furnish jobs for the jobless, a high purchasing power for tenant farmers, make a sweeping reduction in the army of the unemployed and provide foreign markets for the surpluses of American farm staples?"

A CROOK WHO ROBBED A WELFARE TILL.

It is not necessary to page Alexander F. Lewis of Detroit. He has been paged by the police and public prosecutors of the Henry Ford city. Detroit has a million dollars a month dole system. Mayor Murphy and his lieutenants have been feeding the hungry and it takes a million dollars a month to pay the bread and meat bill. Lewis was paid $130 a month as a clerk in the public welfare department. He is under arrest. He is said to have confessed that he stole between $50,000 and $60,000 from the welfare fund. Mayor Murphy said arrest of other civic employes may be expected as the sum of $207,000 has disappeared.

Alexander F. passed as a "wealthy man about town by night" and investigators discovered he had purchased two expensive automobiles, a yacht, hired a chauffeur and had started construction of a home and a summer cottage. He was a robber of the charity fund according to his own confession. A man who would rob a charity fund would steal from a blind man.

DROUTH LOANS FREE OF GARNISHMENT.

Attorney General W. D. Mitchell of the department of justice has upheld the contention of the agricultural department that loans made to farmers under drouth relief legislation are subject to a prior lien by the government, and cannot be garnished by creditors of farmers in payment of old debts. It is significant that the first support of an action of this kind reached the department of justice from Texarkana, Ark., where the judge of the state court held the claim of the federal government was valid. It is said that in some instances drouth loan money had been attached by creditors as soon as it was placed to the credit of the farmer. Uncle Sam intervened and the alleged creditor was given a knock-out blow by the ruling of the judge of the state court as well as the ruling of the department of justice.

MORE ADVICE FOR AMERICAN FARMERS.

Charles B. Denman is the Missouri member of the federal farm board. He advises "adjusting production to market demands." He tendered the advice in an address at the American Institute of Co-Operation held in Manhattan, Kan. All the agricultural problems were discussed by speakers. Col. Denman declared most emphatically that the prosperity of the American livestock industry demanded adjusting production to market demands. A wheat expert said the problem as applied to wheat called for an acreage reduction to build up price levels. C. O. Moser of New Orleans, president of the American Cotton Co-operative association, said the solution of it involved support of the agricultural marketing act, "with amendments, perhaps, but a fair trial as opposed to repeal." Moser attributed to the farm leaders in a qualified degree the responsibility for a lack of public understanding of plans, "for rescuing agriculture from the mire in which it is submerged." All this advice calls for wheat acreage reduction, cotton acreage reduction and adjusting of production of live stock to market demand. In other words, they are filling new bottles with old wine.

Chicago's 1933 Exposition Opens First Exhibit

Fort Dearborn and modern Chicago. Hedrich-Wesing Studio.

Two years before the formal opening of a Century of Progress—Chicago's 1933 World's Fair—the first exposition building has been thrown open to the public.

It is Fort Dearborn, an exact replica of Chicago's birthplace—the log stockade built in 1803 by Captain John Whistler and burned to the ground by savage Redjins on August 15, 1812, after the evacuating garrison had been massacred.

Silhouetted against the skyscrapers of modern Chicago, Fort Dearborn offers a romantic contrast to life today.

From the top of a tall pole in the center of the parade ground flies a flag bearing fifteen stars and fifteen stripes.

At diagonal corners of the fort, log blockhouses frown down upon the narrow enclosure between inner and outer stockades and menace the prospective foe with brass French cannon which saw service in the War of 1812.

Ancient flint-lock muskets, dueling pistols and powder horns hang on the rough, hand-adzed walls and above the heavy, masonry fireplace.

It is a fascinating reproduction of frontier life at the beginning of the marvelous century whose culmination the world will celebrate in Chicago in 1933.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

While in Odessa, Texas, one of the leading little cities in southwest Texas along the Broadway of America, I was invited by Grady Bell, chamber of commerce secretary, Ralph Shuffler, newspaper editor, and Tom Harris, insurance man, to take a little trip out across the country to see some of the more interesting sights of their western country. Odessa, you may know, is located on the southwestern corner of the Llano Estacado, the great upland plain of Texas and New Mexico, which is still a part of the traditional "Old West."

We started out northwest from town early in the morning, traveling over paved highways, country lanes, and finally winding trails through a cowpasture, to see what my hosts called the caves at Blue Mountain. To be truthful, the place is neither a mountain nor blue, when approached from this direction, but is a sort of peninsula jutting out from the upland plain into the lowlands, or breaks in a curve of this arm, under a flat cap rock dotted with grinding holes of the Indians is one of the first wayside inns of America.

A spring one time flowed from the rocks at the base of the cliff, and two caves are located just above. The roofs and walls of the caves are clackened from the soot of countless campfires and the walls of the cliffs are covered with numerous interesting crude pictures and hieroglyphs painted by the wandering Indians. This is the only running water between the Pecos and Colorado rivers, was the stopping place for the tribes when they came upon the plains to hunt buffalo, deer and antelope. Some twenty miles south of this point we stopped beside a large crater, made, my hosts said, by a meteor which fell some hundreds of years ago. The interesting thing was that the crater was filled with water.

Idle Orchestras A Big Problem Around Havana

By United Press.

HAVANA, Cuba.—The stock of Cuban orchestras in the United States may be soaring to new high marks this summer—but in Cuba the supply still exceeds the demand. So much so, in fact, that the federal District of Havana is trying to devise some way of keeping the orchestras busier than they are playing on street corners for the pennies they can collect.

How One Woman LOST 47 LBS.

IN 3 MONTHS AND FEELS YEARS YOUNGER!

Mrs. S. A. Solomon of New Bern, N. C., lost 47 lbs. in three months with Kruschen Salts. She feels much stronger, years younger and pains in sides, back and abdomen that bothered her for years are all gone. She says she not only feels better but looks better as all her friends tell her.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast. Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

real thing. Threats of the theatre owners, however, to close at eight have blocked the measure thus far. There are hundreds of unemployed orchestras in Havana alone, a majority of which move from cafe to cafe playing for what generous patrons may give them. The popular gathering places for American tourists are justly happy hunting grounds for the itinerant musicians. A dollar tip will have the orchestra grinding out the "Peanut Vendor" and a score of other selections for an hour.

ARK DECREE
ERSHADOWED
ALL DRY CASES

By United Press
WASHINGTON.—The activities of the supreme court in deciding the growing out of the enactment of prohibition were overshadowed during its recent session by its own decision in the famous Clark case.

Settles Attitude
The many legal minds had expressed the belief that the issue squarely raised by the ruling on the 18th Amendment and the act, was forced to act as a precedent for the future. The court's decision in a forced and explicit decision. It applied to settle for all time any doubt as to the attitude of the court toward the validity of dry laws.

substance the court ruled there never was and never will be any successful attack on the 18th Amendment because of method by which it was made. It found, with a considerable degree of emphasis on its own, that there was no ambiguity in the Fifth article of the Federal Constitution which gave Congress the power to elect constitutional amendments.

Enforcement Weapon
The court gave a substantial enforcement weapon to the government in its proceedings against the forgers, warehouse and denaturant of the Waterloo, N. Y., Milling Corp. The property was seized as a penalty for the diversion of specially denatured alcohol beverage purposes under an annual revenue statute.

Brewery Tax Cases
A series of brewery tax cases court ruled that the brewers were entitled to deduct allowances the obsolescence of their property to prohibition for their returns for those years.

adverse ruling to the government was also given in the Go-Importing company case in New York, one of its major liquor cases, which threatened to strip into its web not only Count de Polignac, a French man and champagne sales agent, but scores of New York society people, financial leaders and social luminaries.

Small Railroad Hauls Visitors To Zoo in Detroit

By United Press.
DETROIT.—For the convenience of elderly persons and small children, a two and one-half mile miniature railroad has been built around Detroit's Zoological park, one of the country's largest.

The railroad from visitors from the long walk hitherto necessary to see all the exhibits. At present, there are two trains, each consisting of an engine and seven coaches. Each train has a passenger capacity of 147 persons.

The railroad was recently presented to the Zoological park commission by the Detroit News. In his presentation speech, William E. Scripps, president of the News, said:

"Realizing that the location of the exhibits, nearly three-quarters of a mile from the main entrance, made it impossible for thousands of elderly persons, especially those with children, to avail themselves of the pleasure of visiting the park, and that it was a long walk at best, even for the vigorous, the Detroit News believed that some form of transportation should be made available."

The deed of the gift railroad calls for a five-cent fare from one end of the park to the other. The revenue will be used for maintenance and operating expenses.

WASHINGTON.—The National Geographic society learned recently that the Trans-Asia expedition led by Georges Marie-Haardt, and operating with the society's co-operation, has entered Asia and is encamped outside the old walls of Herat.

Through radio messages received from the expedition's mobile station by amateur operator Elpha Darre here, the society was informed that the party had crossed the borders of Afghanistan. In seven large tractor cars, the expedition is making its way across Asia over a route made famous by Marco Polo.

"We had a blistering ride to the dream city of Herat, guarded by four huge minarets with tile decorations worn to the appearance of silvery inlay of old copper," one message said.

Another said the natives were "respectful and responsive to friendliness."

Herat is about 2,200 years old. Alexander the Great is credited with building the walls there during his conquest of the East. In the thirteenth century the city had about the same population as Washington has now. Genghis Khan razed it with a horde of Mongols and left only half a hundred of its citizens alive.

Random Reflections

On Sports Matters.
The boys around the major league dugouts declare that St. Louis Cardinals will trade Jim Bottomley and Chick Hafey next winter. Supposedly Jim and Chick are drawing higher salaries than the Cards like to pay and Owner Sam Breadon thinks the club will profit by "new faces" from the farm.

Some of the boys who follow the American league closely are of the opinion that Lyn Lary, Yankee shortstop, is the most improved player in the circuit. That might be a bit strong but it is true that the Californian in handling balls he was unable to reach last year and his hitting has improved greatly.

Personal nomination for the unluckiest player in the American league—Dusty Cooke of the Yankees. Last year he was hailed as the best prospect in the league and failed miserably. This spring he got off to a great start and gave promise of living up to his advance notice of 1930. Then he injured his shoulder in a game at Washington and has been in that hospital ever since. Meanwhile Ben Chapman, Cooke's former teammate in the minors, has been moved from second base to the outfield and looks like a fixture there the rest of the season.

Gabby Street wants to get in another world series for many reasons, but chiefly because he feels he can make a better personal showing than in the 1930 series when his St. Louis Cards lost to the Philadelphia Athletics. "I won't be under such a strain in my next series," Gabby explains. "You see I was a new manager in the world series at the end of my first year as a big league manager. I was on trial and couldn't afford to take chances. If I attempted strategy and it went wrong there'd be hell to pay. . . . Naturally I had to be overly cautious and take no chances."

Billy Evans, former American League umpire and now general manager of the Cleveland baseball club, rates Bob Grove and George Earnshaw as the greatest two men pitching staff in baseball history. "You know," said Evans, "I used to think that some of these days Grove and Earnshaw would get dead-armed by pitching so much. But I have changed my mind. They are the equal of five good pitchers and will cop the pennant again for Connie Mack."

Evans also has changed his mind about the greatest "all time" baseball catcher. "I used to think Ray Schalk was the greatest catcher who ever lived," he said. "Now I know it's Cochrane. Mickey can do anything Ray used to do, it faster and his more than 100 points higher."

Burling Grimes agrees with Evans that Grove and Earnshaw won't become dead-armed from overwork. Burling believes that more pitchers "rust out" from activity than wear out from overwork. "I think the reason I still retain whatever skill I may have is because I've worked steadily," said Grimes.

Montana Declares War On Pelicans

By United Press.
HINDSDALE, Mont.—The pelican is to be banished from Montana. His voracious attacks upon fish have led to an order from the state fish and game department encouraging hunters to kill them off.

Measuring some seven feet of wingspread, on an average the birds not only eat fish for food and store others for short time in their beaks, but kill fish for the pure love of killing.

Oklahoma Woman's Will a Puzzler for Her Attorneys

By United Press.
OKLAHOMA CITY.—The will of Florence E. Weaver, one of the most peculiar ever filed here, had attorneys baffled a year after it was filed for probate.

The will specifies that most of the $750,000 estate should go to the city of Cincinnati, Ohio, and be left in trust for 500 years. If this is not satisfactory, the will states, the money is to be placed in Oklahoma City under the same ruling.

One clause of the will indicates the money should be placed in the bank for 200 years. Attorneys disagree on the time, the manner in which the will is drawn and whether it is valid.

A suit filed by one of the heirs contesting the validity of the will is pending in district court. The heirs all live in Ohio.

The will has been admitted to probate, but has not been called into court. George Hales, executor, said it probably would come up for settlement in three months.

John B. Ellis, Cincinnati municipal attorney, was here recently checking the case.

"I'm sure I don't know whether the will is valid or not and I don't know of any other attorney that does," Hales said.

"All we can do is wait until the

Massachusetts Wars On Auto Deaths

BOSTON, Mass.—Massachusetts has embarked upon an ambitious four-months campaign designed to reduce its mounting automobile death toll.

Spurred by the knowledge that 206 lives were lost on the state's highways last year, some 7,000 state and city policemen are cooperating with registry of motor vehicles inspectors in an effort to educate, both by educational and punitive means, the eight major causes of serious accidents.

The governor's committee on street and highway safety, in charge of the drive, lists these major causes as follows: Speed too great for existing conditions; passing another car when the view ahead is obstructed; failure to keep to the right side of the road; failure to slow down at intersection; failure to slow down when approaching pedestrians; failure to observe the eight-foot law with respect to sanding street cars;

They are forming a human pyramid on separate boards while skimming alone at 40 miles per hour. It's easy—if you don't fall.

Schaaf Comes Up
WHISPERS to the effect that Jim Maloney took the dive for Ernie Schaaf have been heard in some of the spots where alleged wise folk gather. Until the quick Maloney knockout, Schaaf never was suspected of having that sort of knockout nudge. But you must remember that Risko knocked out Maloney, too, and Johnny never was suspected of having that kind of fist either. At any rate Maloney is now all dressed up with no place to go, and Schaaf is pretty hot.

Moving Over
AN example of the way the old-line golfers are moving over to make room for youth is reflected in the Chicago district. On the honor roll for the district only two of the old-timers find a place among the first 10 names. The veterans are Bob Gardner and Chick Evans, and the babies are Charlie Becka, Ira Couch, George Dawson, Johnny Lehmann, Gus Novotny, Rudy Knepper, Jack Westland and Dick Martin. Of these only Knepper is past 30. Becka is not yet 21.

Shires, Shires!
A ST. LOUIS newspaperman was discussing with Owner Phil Ball the shortcomings of the Browns the other day. Ball also owns a controlling interest in the Milwaukee club.

"You need a first baseman," he told Ball, "and Milwaukee has one. I mean Art Shires. Why not send Burns to Milwaukee for Shires?"

And the amazing answer of Mr. Ball was:

"The Milwaukee doesn't want Burns."

"Well, well, you don't say!"

DO YOU KNOW THAT—
RED GRANGE might have been a Frank Wykoff or a Lee Sentman if it hadn't been for Zupke.

According to Jim McMillen, running mate of Red back in 1922-24 and now tackling the pachyderma on the Curley circuit, "Grange won an intramural track meet for the Zeta Psi boys, and all by himself."

He scored more points than any one team. . . . He won six firsts, scoring 30 points, capturing the 70 and 100-yard dashes, the high and low hurdles and the high and broad jump. . . . Red was a great high jumper. . . . Big Earl Britton used to throw his passes high to Grange and the Redhead would go after them where nobody else could touch them. . . . We beat Iowa 9 to 6 one year on just such tactics."

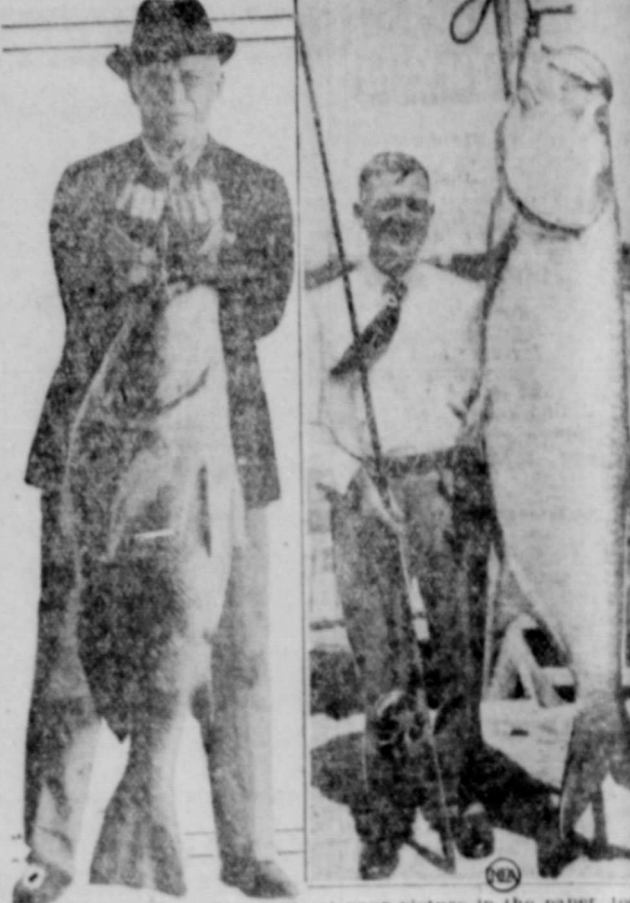

the Braves, after a bad year in 1930, has been one of the puzzles of the big league campaign. Bill McKeechie explains it in this manner:

"Brandt is using his curve. In a recent series with the Giants he used almost nothing but curves."

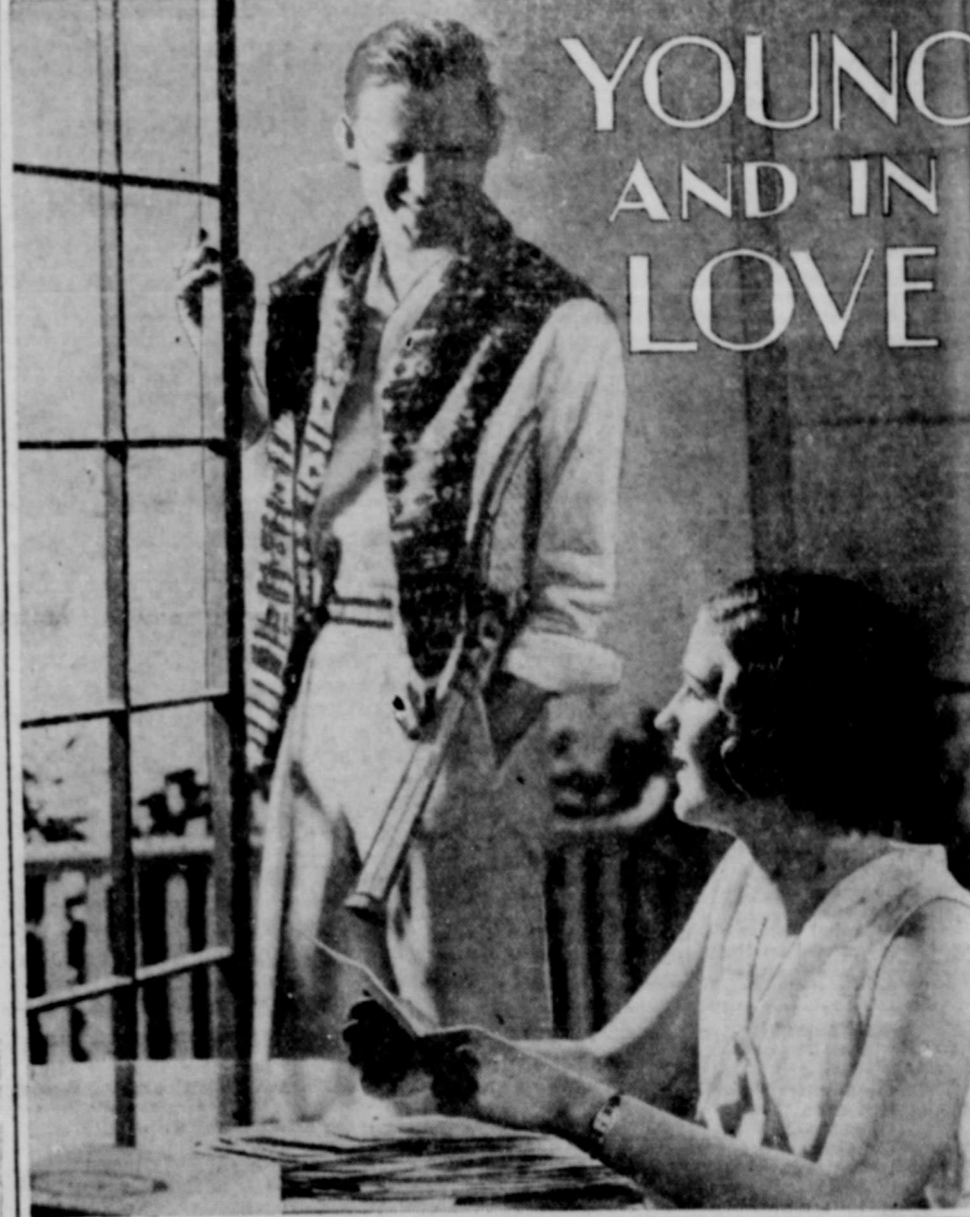

The Braves, by the way, have quite a few roundhouse fingers. Tom Zachary is down in the looks as a "nothing pitcher," but it's a fact he has a pretty good curve. Socks Seibold is a slant specialist. Sherdel throws a tantalizing slow curve.

The National League is referred to by baseball men as "a curve ball league." With a collection of curvers such as McKeechie has gathered, some team in the first division is due to be shoved back

YOUNG AND IN LOVE

Clive thought her the sweetest, most attractive girl in the world. Liane was flattered by his attentions, knew the others were jealous when they appeared together. But she was only his mother's social secretary and Clive was sole heir to enormous wealth. Should she accept his proposal of marriage? Should she tell him about that earlier romance?

The love story of Liane Barrett and Clive Cleespaugh is one of the most absorbing in modern fiction. It is told in the new serial, "Heart of Liane," written by Mabel McElliott. Stage life, fashionable New York society and daring underworld intrigue are all accurately pictured. "Heart of Liane" is a story you will not forget. Watch for the first chapter!

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

The MELODY GIRL by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

BEGIN HERE TODAY Beryl Bowden hopes that a radio career will help her forget her hopeless love for Tommy Wilson who is engaged to her half-sister, Irene. Young Prentiss Gaylord pays attention to Beryl until Irene learns he is rich and tries to win him. She succeeds and after a hasty wedding they depart for Gaylord's western home. In despair Tommy drinks heavily, loses his job, and joins evil companions. Beryl develops throat trouble and catches more cold while seeking Tommy to beg him to leave the bootlegging gang. Her throat becomes worse and the doctor announces her singing days are over. When Tommy realizes she has made this sacrifice to save him he reforms, gets another job, and starts night courses to finish college. Then Irene comes home saying she has quarreled with Prentiss and is going to get a divorce. Beryl realizes that Irene is trying to win back Tommy's love. Mrs. Everett objects to Irene's receiving daily letters from Derry Meade. Irene goes back to Dakdale to dispose of Derry and try to effect a reconciliation with Prentiss. She leaves the train at a suburban station and telephones Derry to meet her. While waiting Irene talks to a store clerk. He speaks guardedly when she mentions Prentiss and Irene wonders if he has recognized her. Then Derry comes and they drove to a secluded spot to talk. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIII Irene was not to learn that evening what it was that Derry Meade had to tell her that was so important. One reason for this was that Irene did not give him the opportunity. Another reason was that Asa Crewe telephoned Prentiss as soon as Irene and Derry disappeared and told Prentiss that his wife had been in the store. Asa did not know of the conditions Prentiss had imposed upon Irene and Derry but he did know that Irene was not supposed to be in Oakdale and that her presence there meant trickery to his friend. Asa wasn't inclined to say who had been with Irene but Gaylord could guess easily enough and Asa saw no occasion to lie about it. "Which way did they go?" Prentiss asked. "Forward town?" Irene meant toward Oakdale. The river park lay in that direction from Old Town and Asa answered yes. Then Gaylord began his search. In the meantime Irene and Derry had reached the destination, the semi-sheltered parking space in the park, and a heated conversation had begun. Irene tried to lead gradually to the subject of breaking their engagement but Derry's love-sick mind leaped ahead of her. He accused her of tiring of him before she had actually spoken. "I see," he said bitterly, "you've been thinking it over and you don't want to marry a poor man." The words were accompanied by a puzzling smile. Irene hated having anyone assume a mysterious air and her annoyance with him grew. "As far as that goes," she said haughtily, "Gaylord is something more than a rich man."

American Salmon In Chilean Waters

By United Press. WASHINGTON.—Salmon of American ancestry soon may be leaping about between the South Pacific ocean and the headwaters of Chilean rivers. The foodstuffs division of the commerce department has received a report from Ralph H. Ackerman, commercial attache at Santiago, that the Chilean fisheries bureau soon will plant more than a million eggs of North Pacific salmon in the rivers of Chile. A representative of Chile came to this country and obtained the eggs. The consignment, one of the largest ever collected for foreign use, consists of 200,000 eggs of Chinook salmon; 225,000 eggs of silver salmon; 114,000 of sock-eye or red salmon; 200,000 of trout and 250,000 of whitefish. do it, that was all. You didn't need to ask me." Irene hedged again. "Can't we come to an understanding?" she urged. "I'm getting cold." "Of course we can," Derry agreed. "I'm satisfied. I just wanted to know that you cared a little for me. It will make it easier to believe that you wouldn't have thrown me over if I'd been able to offer you the things Gaylord can give you. I shouldn't blame you, I guess. It was asking an awful lot to expect you to be content with the after living in the Gaylord mansion. No, I shouldn't blame you." Irene misunderstood. "I'm glad you see it that way at last, Derry. It would be awfully hard for you to try to support me in the manner I'm accustomed to. I have been thinking it over, as you said, and I realized it might spoil all your future to have an extravagant wife to take care of. You're so popular. You ought to marry someone with plenty of money." Derry interrupted by seizing her savagely in his arms. "Just tell me that you'd rather have me than anyone else in the world if I could support you," he said. "Then I'll take you anywhere you say, and I'll never bother you again." "Why, of course, I would," Irene said softly. "And I mean it, too, Derry!" He let her go, abruptly then, and Irene was shocked to see that he was laughing. "What he said was even more surprising. 'That'll do,' he said. 'I guess I can laugh it all off now. And I'm glad I found out what a little parasite you are before I told you anything about it.'"

A Modern Miracle

PICTURES of important news events follow so closely these days on the heels of the actual news itself that readers often wonder what makes possible this modern miracle of speed.

For miracle it is. Journalism took one of its mightiest strides when science made it possible to transmit pictures thousands of miles and print them in newspapers, all within a few hours of their actual photography.

This paper is a client of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, largest newspaper and feature organization in the world. As such it receives the benefit of the most modern methods of news-picture transmission. NEA pioneered in the field of fast picture gathering and distribution and it was foremost in utilizing the telephone lines and radio for swift picture transmission.

Important newspaper pictures are speeded to this newspaper by NEA in the fastest manner possible. By radiophoto, telephoto, chartered plane, airmail, special train. That is why it is possible for us to print the pictures so closely on the heels of the news.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY, NEA Service Writer. If you are looking for a particularly delicious salad or fruit-put, keep in mind the possibilities of the avocado—known also as alligator-pear and midshipman's butter. This fruit is the exception to the general rule that fruits lack fat, it is extremely rich in fat, and the avocado on a "reducing" diet should not be taken thoughtlessly. This high fat content makes it a good source of vitamins A, according to studies and experiments conducted at the University of Southern California. It also is a rich source of vitamin B. These food substances, in addition to its rich, nutty flavor, make it a worth-while addition to the menu.

COURT RULED UNITED STATES WAS CHRISTIAN

WASHINGTON—Any doubt of the Christianity of the United States as a nation, or of the religiousness of its inhabitants has been dispelled by the United States supreme court. The fact that the nation had been judicially pronounced Christian on Feb. 29, 1892, was recently recalled by Justice Sutherland in the Bland-Macintosh case. In deciding that Professor Douglas Clyde Macintosh, of Yale University, and Marie Averill Bland, New York City nurse, both Canadians, could not become citizens because of conscientious objections to war, Sutherland said, "We are a Christian people" and backed his assertion by referring to the case of Holy Trinity Church vs. the United States. The case cited was decided by Justice Brewer in 1892 and involved an interpretation of the alien laws of that time.

PARIS STYLES

PARIS—Famous pictures tell many wordless fashion stories—especially where jewelry is concerned and pearls for instance. Beatrice of Este used to wear pearls in the shape of a close-fitting hair ornament, while Eleonora of Toledo is portrayed by Bronzino with a single pearl rope around her neck, a diadem-shaped pearl ornament in her hair, and wearing a Renaissance gown with pearls strung in a necklace. Those are what we might call "yesterday's" fashions in pearls. "Today's" fashion in the same beautiful ornament tells another story. When smart women used to wear stiff fish-boned collars, "dog's collars" necklaces were the fad of the moment. Today, women of all ages bare their necks and anywhere one to ten strands may appear wrapped about the whiteness of a throat in great loops. Jenny Dolly, of the famous Dolly Sisters, is a great lover of pearls and has had many portraits of herself done by famous artists showing yards of them—real ones too—looped about her throat from a tiny circlet, graduating in the depths of the loops until they touch her hands resting in her lap.

"The operator who won't give a chicken or a dog a chance doesn't deserve a license," Eynon said. "Animals wandering alone on the highways may not have any legal rights in the eyes of the law but some moral consideration is due them."
