

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Okla.

Frank E. Tripp, general manager of the Gannett newspapers, says: That the local newspaper is and always will be the dependable and constant contact between the world and the community. The great metropolitan daily, the radio, the magazines have their places — and important places they are, but there is only one thorough contact if one wishes to reach any locality with either news or advertising, and that contact is the community newspaper.

The local newspaper speaks with authority for and to its neighbors; it commands the confidence of those who buy it; it is welcomed into the home. Its message carries the weight of words from an invited guest. It does its job honestly and with the knowledge that it is talking to people who know where and with whom the responsibility for its statements rest. It is not a great big theatrical thing with its actors behind scenes and its point of responsibility obscured by unknown persons and fictitious by-lines.

Every city and community worth while has one of these newspapers. It may be in a city of a half million, for neighborliness is not altogether gone from even the larger cities, or it may be in a progressive little community of a few hundred souls. Whenever it is it is the most important institution in the community. It is the point of contact, the forum, the defender, the friend of the community in which it is published. That community which does not cherish and comfortably support its local newspapers so they may be unshaken and independent to fight the battles of its readers comes pretty near being as short-sighted as the town which would go back to tallow candles.

Science and invention have accomplished much, but so far they have created no substitute which almost approaches the importance of an honest, friendly and progressive local newspaper.

Body in Hero's Grave Not That Of Famed Flier

By United Press.
PARIS.—Fifteen years after he fell to his death inside the German lines after a stubborn air battle above Verdun, the family of Victor Chapman, first flier of the famed Lafayette Escadrille to die in combat, is convinced that the body buried under his name in the American Air cemetery at Suresnes is not his.

After hostilities ended, friends hunted out the grave of Chapman and found a cross, well inside the old German lines, which bore on one side the name of Victor Chapman and on the other the name of a German soldier.

The tomb was excavated and two bodies were found, the remains of a German soldier and one with French equipment. The remains of the French soldier were carried back to Paris and buried in the Suresnes cemetery, but recently the body was exhumed to permit a comparison of teeth and other identifications.

Differences in Teeth
Chapman's former French mechanic, other Americans in the Foreign Legion and members of the family have found great differences in the teeth and shape of the body, which now leads them to believe that for 12 years they have been worshipping another in the grave of Chapman and that he will lie forever in an unmarked grave.

Chapman, a great-grandson of a signer of the Declaration of Independence, John Jay, and a son of John Jay Chapman, essayist and poet, of Barrytown, New York, was last seen in action when he accompanied Raoul Lufbery and Norman Prince over the German lines near Verdun. French airmen saw Chapman's plane dive straight down and break into pieces well inside the enemy lines. The American had been fighting five Germans. That occurred July 23, 1916.

May Have Fainted
Chapman had been warned against flying that day, for his head was still bandaged from a bad scalp wound and his arm still bothered him from a bullet received in combat a month before. It was never decided whether he fainted from weakness or was shot in the air.

Chapman had volunteered, enlisted in the Foreign Legion in September, 1914, and was one of the four founders of the Lafayette Escadrille. Before the war he had attended Harvard and then came to Paris to study architecture at the Beau Arts. War broke out while he was touring England with his parents.

Chapman's father has reached no decision about carving out the inscription on the tomb at Suresnes, but is understood to have accepted the decision of Chapman's war comrades, now in Paris, who have concluded that the body is not that of the airman.

OUT OUR WAY

PICKING YOUR RIGHT JOB.....

This is the first of a series of articles by leaders in different professions and businesses, in which they tell young people about the opportunities and problems in the fields in which they have gained distinction. The interviews, prepared for the American School of the Air, are designed to help young people find their proper jobs in life. James W. Gerard, war-time Ambassador to Germany and former associate justice of the supreme court of New York, is one of the country's leading jurists. He discusses the law as a career.

By JAMES W. GERARD
As Told to J. V. Fitzgerald
The legal profession is not overcrowded nowadays, but there are a lot of people practicing law who, based on their mentality percentage, ought to be longshoremen. The phrase "There is always room at the top," is especially true of the legal profession, and all the large offices in New York have difficulty in finding competent young men of good appearance and education.

Speaking of education, a young man proposing to study law ought to be a university graduate. There are a number of men who have succeeded at the Bar who have not been college graduates, but you must remember that, in the first place, a college education gives a certain polish, a certain grounding, which not only makes for confidence but which brings the habit of study, and in the second place, the college is a miniature world, where the undergraduate is educated not only in the curriculum but in worldly wisdom and where the mistakes he may make do not count as heavily against him as if made in the great outside world.

And then a partner has been defined as one who brings in business, and the contacts and friendships made at college often prove invaluable in the bitter competition of the outside world. If you intend to be a lawyer, do not hurry your education, legal or otherwise, and above all do not neglect the physical side. A lawyer who goes to court, who engages in a case which takes weeks to try, with preparation each night for the next day's battle, must have a super-strong constitution. The physical reaking soon falls by the wayside.

If you are living in a lively town with stirring business and growing population, and if you contemplate matrimony, you must be able to practice in a country district you may practice alone, but, if possible, have an office with, or some connection with, an older practitioner whose advice at critical periods will be invaluable. If, however, you seek your fortune in a big city, then endeavor to gain admission to one of the large offices. If you start to practice alone in the city you may succeed, but it will be heart-breaking work.

And I say confidently that any young man who gets into a large city office, who is not devoid of talent, who always does a little more than is expected of him, will eventually become a partner.

Scores of artists wept, it is reported, when a collection of paintings burned in Munich. Had this happened a few months later it might have inspired another painting, "September Mourn."

Diamond Has His Days in Court

All roads lead to the courtroom for Jack "Legs" Diamond, notorious New York gangster who here is pictured beneath a prophetic sign in the U. S. Commissioner's office at Kingston, N. Y. Diamond posted bail totaling $72,750 for the various indictments under which he had been held there. But then he had to go to New York City to answer a federal charge of violating the prohibition law.

How One Woman LOST 47 LBS.

IN 3 MONTHS AND FEELS YEARS YOUNGER!

Mrs. S. A. Solomon of New Bern, N. C., lost 47 lbs. in three months with Kruschen Salts. She reduced from 217 to 170 lbs. She feels much stronger, years younger and pains in sides, back and abdomen that bothered her for years are all gone. She says she not only feels better but looks better as all her friends tell her.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but 85 cents at druggists the world over. Take one half teaspoon in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

Attention to diet will help—cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat. Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back.

New Portland Air Field Will Honor Pioneer Ace

By United Press.
PORTLAND, Ore.—The memory of Silas Christofferson, famed early-day aviator and airplane designer of the Pacific coast, will be honored when "Christofferson Field" is opened here.

The pilot's most spectacular stunt in Portland was on June 11, 1912, when he flew a home-made airplane of silk and bamboo off the roof of a downtown hotel.

Later that year the flier went to San Francisco where he amassed a fortune of $36,000 in a few months carrying passengers.

Opening a school, Christofferson had as a pupil Raold Amundsen, Arctic explorer.

In 1914 he made the first airplane flight over the Tehachapi range from San Francisco to Los Angeles. The flight set a new world's record for one day's flying—302 miles.

Christofferson was killed on Oct. 31, 1916, while testing a teak-wood plane.

WHY STERLING USED THE VETO KNIFE.

It is a matter of record that Governor Ross S. Sterling repeatedly warned Texas lawmakers during the regular session that the appropriations made by the legislative body would be trimmed to fit the revenue in sight. He said it, time and again, and he said it with a polite bark on his words. Well, the expected happened. He cut the appropriation bills to fit the revenue in sight. He kept his word. He did not dodge the issue. He shouldered the responsibility.
His reasons for a vigorous use of the pruning knife, should be placed in the record. He said:

"It has required exceeding fortitude on the part of the executive to veto the many items that have been stricken out of the educational appropriation bills. I am for the education of Texas youth, yet, considering the state's financial condition and the nationwide depression I could not conscientiously approve all of these appropriation bills as passed by the legislature, creating a deficit in the state treasury of from four to six millions of dollars.

"However, it must be borne in mind that the dollar now has a purchasing power of 25 to 40 cents more than it had two years ago.

"In cutting out all summer schools for the latter year of the biennium I had in mind that the legislature will be in session in January of 1933, in time to make such provisions for the summer schools for that year as may be deemed advisable."

So that's that. Lawmakers failed to tap new sources of revenue. Governor Sterling kept his word. He trimmed the appropriations to keep within the revenue in sight.

Governor Sterling is a business man. He mounted the ladder from its lowest rung to the top. As for education and the higher educational institutions he had a message to send to the people in defense of the scientific use of the veto power.
It is worth while. Read it:

"It goes without saying that the higher educational institutions are in need of more buildings and facilities; but I am of the opinion it would be very poor business to put this state in debt to the extent of one million dollars for new buildings at this time. The only new buildings approved in any of the bills were those for eleemosynary institutions and I approved these items because of the crying need of additional accommodations to take care of our unfortunate wards, many of whom are in jails for lack of room in the state institutions. No economic crisis could justify the neglect that has been practiced heretofore in caring for these helpless charges. The people are looking to me as a business governor and one of the first principles of business is to keep the expenditures within the revenues. Accordingly, I have tried to trim the garment down to fit the cloth that we have."

Yes, the first principle of business is to keep our expenditures within the revenues and the principle applies to governmental institutions as well as private corporations or individuals.

TRUCK BILL NO. 336 A LAW.

Governor Ross Sterling signed house bill 336 the third and last of the 42nd legislature's motor transportation measures to be approved. First was number 628 designated a safety measure; second, number 335, designated a regulatory measure and the third and last comes under the heading of highway protection. As for 336 the Waco News-Tribune said it all in the following paragraph: "When Governor Ross Sterling attached his signature to No. 336 he thereby launched Texas into the governmental effort of regulating the truck industry to a point where that industry would share an equal burden of regulation with that other transportation giant—The Railroad." And then follows the comment on the series of truck laws by the Waco newspaper: "What will be the results of the new truck regulatory statutes? Many can prophesy and few can assure. Plans have been made, it is understood, to test the constitutionality of all the bills. This threat comes from truck operators. Briefly put, the new series is an attempt to cope with just one category of a rapidly changing world, and seemingly Texas, with gubernatorial permission, now has prepared to go as far as any other state in the Union in this effort. Texas was the pioneer in drastic railroad regulation, followed in this regulation by other states and the drastic regulation now applied to the commercial motor vehicle in Texas will be recognized as a guide by states elsewhere."

Forty years ago James Stephen Hogg as governor forced through the legislature his regulatory rail laws. He forced through the legislature the bill creating the state railroad commission. It is ancient history now. Robert M. LaFollette, the elder, came from Wisconsin to Texas to copy the so-called Hogg laws. They became the laws of Wisconsin and many American commonwealths. Theodore Roosevelt drew his inspiration from the Hogg laws. In history merely repeating itself? Governor Ross S. Sterling, a native Texan, signed the truck regulatory laws. Hogg was the first native Texan to be elected governor of the commonwealth and the railroad commission created by the genius and leadership of Hogg was given complete jurisdiction in the enforcement of the truck laws passed on to the commission when Sterling affixed his signature to the drastic measures.

and feedstuffs are promised everywhere under Texas skies.

COLOSSAL BANK MERGERS.

Chicago financiers merged three of the largest banks in the Windy City into one colossal financial institution representing capital and deposits of more than a billion dollars. This is the merger as well as the machine age. Chicago, monopolistically speaking, is in a bad way. Its treasury is empty and its credit is a bit shaky. "Big Bill" Thompson governed the city 12 years. He was ambitious to govern it 16 years but the people put him away in April. Defeat was kind to "Big Bill." Now, a democrat is carrying the staggering load.

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION

WASHINGTON — The Wickersham commission passes out of existence at the end of June, but nearly 26 other "Hoover commissions" will continue to function more or less actively.

Costly Commission

The Wickersham commission is the only "Hoover commission" that has cost the country any particular money. More than $2,000,000 is said to have been privately donated for the expenses of such groups and it has been the creation of the more or less private advisory or fact-finding commissions, dealing with broad social and economic problems, that has focused so much publicity and aroused so much comment about Hoover's commission methods.

Deportation Report

Another report likely to draw attention is that on deportation laws. One of the commission's experts wrote critically of the Department of Labor's methods in handling deportable aliens and Secretary of Labor Doak, given an opportunity to read the expert's findings, became so indignant that he wrote the commission a 57-page letter about it.

OWA COLONY PROSPERS ON RUSSIAN PLAN

By United Press

AMANA, Ia.—A communistic colony similar in many ways to that of the Soviet Russia prospered here in the heart of Iowa for generations. The colony is made up of seven families harboring upward of 1,200 people and has existed with communism as the standard of living since the colony first was established by German immigrants.

Spurn Modern Methods. Contrary to the Russian desire for the latest in scientific achievements, the colonists here are reluctant to adopt modern inventions. It was only recently that axes were replaced by tractors and until a short time ago hobbles were under a strict taboo.

College Educations. Over each of the seven units and of trustees presides and an organization of the elder men in the community, known as the council, settles matters concerning the entire group.

Only one obligation attaches itself to the education, i. e., the young person must return to the colony after graduation.

LONE GIRL FLYER AND ROUTE SHE IS TO TAKE IN FOLLOWING LINDY'S TRAIL ACROSS ATLANTIC

Hoping to be the first girl flyer to span the Atlantic alone and planning to follow the "Lindbergh route" along the Great Circle, Ruth Nichols, famous aviatrix, is poised at New York, ready to take off along the course shown on the above map as soon as the weather seems favorable.

Miss Nichols plans to fly by easy stages to Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and take off from there for the hope across the ocean and possibly land in Ireland or England before proceeding to Paris. Lindbergh made his non-stop flight over the same route in 33 1/2 hours.

U. S. Picks Dam City Merchants

RENNO, Nev.—Boulder City, the new government townsite at the Hoover dam, in southern Nevada, is not being established as a basis of "the survival of the fittest," but Uncle Sam says who can go into business there and picks those that the department of the interior think can best serve the workers.

has passed, they will remove all restrictions and allow the laws of economics to operate.

According to Louis C. Cramton, former congressman and the city's "czar," the situation is greatly aggravated by the present economic condition of the country, where every one is looking for a more fertile field and are likely to let their hopes get the better of their judgment.

"Had we thrown down the bars," he said, "there is no question but that 1,000 business houses would have opened up without any sort of investigation beyond the rosy stories in the newspapers depicting opportunity that is not here."

People who ride across the Colorado river at La Grange and up the steep hill along a paved highway rarely realize they pass within 100 yards of the graves of the unfortunate men of the Mier expedition who drew the black beans and were shot down by the Mexicans. Scarcely do they realize they are at the monument of some of the most tragic events in Texas independence. Mingled with the bones of the 17 Mier victims are the bones of most of the 53 men recruited in Bastrop that went to the rescue of another Texas band and were cut down by the Mexicans. All are buried in a common grave atop the hill; but no guidepost reminds the person on the highway of the historic shrine.

Now the highway commission and landmark commission have arranged to put a stone marker at the side of the road and build a turn-out road to the burial place.

County Judge White of Goliad county has at last discovered the actual burial place of Col. Fannin and his men whose treacherous murder at Goliad gave Sam Houston's men their battle cry at San Jacinto. The history books said they were buried "in front of the Mission of La Bahia." County Judge White has discovered the burial plot, half a mile or more away from the mission. He has protected the place with heaps of stones, until such time as the state erects a suitable monument over the bodies of the soldier and his courageous followers of 1835. Lou Kemp of the historical and landmark commission, and Clarence R. Wharton, descendant of a San Jacinto hero, and author of several books on Texas history, have visited the spot at last found to be the actual resting place of Fannin and his men.

The state likely will be asked to build a fitting monument there, for dedication and unveiling as a feature of the Texas Centennial.

Governor Sterling's action in approving new income tax laws at Austin, Wichita Falls and elsewhere, a new feebleminded school building and other eleemosynary structures to care for unfortunate, even though he had temporarily to hold up the educational building program, will have the thorough approval of all Texas.

Business Men to Attend Parley

By United Press

DALLAS.—Business men from the principal cities of Texas will attend the Southwest Foreign Trade Conference to be held in Oklahoma City, June 24 and 25. The Southwest Foreign Trade Conference is a unit of the National Foreign Trade Conference and embraces the States of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas.

Nathan Adams, Dallas banker, Clark W. Thompson of Galveston, Roy Miller of Corpus Christi and Joseph F. Leopold of Dallas are among the speakers for the convocation.

DYNAMITE CAPE MAIMS JACKSON, Mich.—A new berry, a cross between the raspberry, the blackberry and dewberry is being popularized by the state department of agriculture. It is called the "Youngberry" and is said to be a better product for commercial growth than any of its forebears.

Pecan Expert Plans Unusual Experiment With Nut Varieties

AUSTIN.—A unique experiment to select a variety of pecan best suited to varying Texas soil and climate conditions has been launched by J. H. Burkett, chief of pecan work in the state department of agriculture.

Results of the experiment, for which there is no precedent, may not be discernible for four or five years, and then only as indicative of ultimate conclusions, Burkett said.

Burkett plans to select several promising untested native varieties of pecans, and graft a dozen or more varieties on a single tree along with one or two nuts of known quality as a basis of comparison. In a few years, the experimental trees each should be producing several different varieties of nuts, and the variety showing the best average results over a period of years in all the varied locations would be considered well fitted for standardized production.

Co-operation of pecan growers has been asked and growers at Eastland, Stephenville, El Paso and Gustin have offered experimental trees.

Burkett has two aims: To develop a better nut, and to find a variety which may be produced uniformly and thus tend to standardize the state's pecan output.

Countless different factors must be considered in checking the experiment, Burkett pointed out, principal among which are widely varying soil and climates found in Texas. Because pecan experimentation is still, relatively, in its infancy, it is necessary to make each step in the dark, Burkett said, adding that with the rapid development of the industry the need for exact knowledge was becoming imperative.

"Mistakes we made before, in a small way, could be remedied and the time and money lost reconsidered well spent," he said. "But now with pecan growers setting out thousands of acres, mistakes will prove costly and may be detrimental to the further development of the industry. Problems have been presented which must be solved if the industry is to make proper progress."

Miss St. Louis

NEA St. Louis Bureau Gene Rafal, above, 19 and blond, was selected by St. Louis stylists to represent the city at the international beauty pageant at Galveston, Tex., June 12, 13 and 14. The indicator whirled around to 121 pounds when "Miss St. Louis" steps on the scales.

Banjo Gives Mule Additional Pep

YORK, S. C.—There's a steep and stoney hill here over which the average farmer has a hard time driving a work team with two mules as motive power, but to Jerry Fipps and his one mule it's just a matter of music.

"My mule likes banjo music," he explained, "so when we approach that hill I start strumming. My mule perks up, cocks his ears, somehow gets new life, and over we go with more pep than two ordinary mules."

(Farmers note—Jerry says the same trick works wonders at cow-milking time.)

Wife Charges Husband Made Non-Stop Flight

SAN FRANCISCO—Mrs. Yvette Perry believed that her aviator husband carried the flight idea entirely too far, she told Judge Edmund P. Morgan today.

"He fly away—poof—like that," she said, "and he navair come back."

The divorce was granted. They were married soon after Mrs. Perry's arrival from France in 1921.

MILLION BOTTLES OF BREW

DETROIT.—The State of Michigan expects its residents to drink at least 1,200,000 bottles of "home" or "alley" beer next year. That estimate is based on an analysis of the anticipated $2,000,000 revenue the state expects to collect through its recently enacted malt tax.

"I know my Baby's Food is Free from Harmful Bacteria"

Most mothers know that fresh, pure milk is one of the essentials in preventing the illness of babies during summer months. They are aware that on many occasions, illness at this time of the year can be traced directly to their food. The first precaution they take is to buy milk that is fresh and pure; and the second precaution is to see that the milk is kept wholesome after it is in the home.

Proper refrigeration is the only means of keeping baby's milk free from harmful bacteria, and the modern mother knows that her electric refrigerator with its automatically controlled temperature—always below 50 degrees—will keep baby's milk and other foods for the family at safe temperatures.

Drop by our office and see the new models of electric refrigerators, a size for every family. Refrigerators may be purchased for a small cash payment and convenient monthly payments.

Directors of Eastland C. C. To Meet Friday

A meeting of the board of directors of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce has been called for 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, June 19, for the purpose of electing a new president who will take the place of Mr. H. L. Vann of the J. C. Penney store, who this week was transferred to Cisco to manage the store there.

Mr. Vann has proved to be a very capable Chamber of Commerce head and it is with regret that Eastland loses such a valuable leader. At the time of going to press with this issue no hint has been made as to who will be nominated, but whoever it is will be given the whole-hearted co-operation of the press and public.

Eastland Boy Graduates From Medical School

Announcements are being received in Eastland from James Poe Lovett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lovett, 700 West Patterson street, Eastland, who graduates this year from Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lovett and family left several days ago for Chicago to attend the graduation exercises of their son.

Poe, as he is familiarly known, graduated from high school at the age of 15 and received his B.A. degree from the Baylor university at 19 and now at the early age of 23 graduates with high honors in his work. He was vice president of the senior class with the degree of M.D.

Selected for excellence in his studies and diligence in his work, Poe was allowed a position as interne in one of the leading Chicago hospitals which he has held for the last two years. After a short rest

Gives Clew to Heiress' Death

Rudolph Haybrook, above, a scenic artist, threw a new angle into the investigation of the mysterious death of Starr Faithfull, heiress whose body was found in the surf at Long Beach, L. ## The quality you want . . . the price you approve*

If the things you want most in a motor car have cost more than you care to pay—and if the cars you felt you could easily buy have not quite satisfied you—here is a timely message . . .

A lot of people just like you have found in Pontiac both the quality they want and a price they approve.

Suppose you are driving a Pontiac for the first time. What do you find?

Going along at medium speed, you notice how smooth and quiet the engine is. You wonder how it will be at high speed, and a test shows it is just as smooth. For Pontiac's 60 h. p. engine is big enough to do all you ask without laboring.

Over a back road, Pontiac's "rubber insulation" at 43 points in the chassis surely does take up road shocks and gives Pontiac fine-car riding ease. So do the four hydraulic shock absorbers, and the other niceties of design.

You examine the Pontiac interior, and at once you see that the upholstery is genuine mohair or whipcord. You find that seat springs are deep, cushions soft, and the driver's seat easy to adjust the way you like it.

How about protection against heat, cold, and rain?—you ask. And you learn that the fine Fisher-built Pontiac body is weather-tight and leak-proof. Everything has been done for your complete comfort.

There remains only Pontiac's effect on other people. Glances you notice along the street, and the comments of your friends soon settle that! You know you are right in your judgment.

But don't stop at this imaginary test. Take a new Pontiac out on the road and ask it to do everything you want a car to do. Let it prove that it has the quality you want—then ask the price. It's a figure you will warmly approve.

Village Grist Mills Yield To Modern Plants

By United Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Modern methods have entered the milling ranks and smote heavily the individual grinders of the community's grain and the old mill wheel antiquated in tradition and literature.

Some of the delegates to the convention of the Association of Operative Millers of the United States, Canada and Mexico, however, saw an economic trend favorable to the smaller mills.

But many—or most—of the individual operators, have bowed to the modern mills with vast equipment, laboratory experts and sales and advertising managers, it was indicated.

The mill in the small city, which draws its raw materials from the surrounding territory and finds a large market in the home community, has a saving in freight and overhead, giving it a break against competition from big plants in great flour centers. It was pointed out.

Despite the fact that the populace still is getting its daily bread, the business conditions have caused a noticeable falling off in consumption of milling products, the delegates declared. One visitor explained this fact by saying housewives now economize on the food budget, whereas they formerly threw stale loaves and "heels" in the garbage can.

Another offered the suggestion that America was following the advice of a French queen, who, on hearing her subjects plead for bread, advised them to eat cake. That's what Americans are doing to a greater extent than ever before, he declared.

Frank C. Wittler, of the Hungarian Flour Mills, Denver, has some 30 mills in the west. He has adopted the policy of multiplying his selling activities by 30, and the results, he said, were satisfactory.

put your Telephone on Half-pay during Vacation

You'll save money . . . and spare yourself inconvenience when you return.

The Rumseys are going vacationing. The milk's been stopped, the ice man has been called off, and the Man Who Delivers the Newspaper has been instructed to bring no more until further notice.

But the telephone will be left at home, drawing full pay in an empty house! Something should be done about this!

Vacation rates for idle residence telephones

One solution (provided you're planning a vacation of 30 days or more) is to place your telephone on vacation half-rates while you are away.

It's a convenient way to save money. And—this to folks who sometimes have their telephones taken out—it spares you inconvenience on your return.

That's because:

1. You pay just half the regular rate.
2. Service is reconnected quickly after you return—usually within 24 hours after you notify us.
3. You keep your present telephone number. (You'd lose it if you had your telephone removed!)
4. Your name remains in the telephone book.

If you wish, while you are away we will refer your calls to another telephone—that of relatives, for instance.

Vacation rates are available for periods of more than 30 days. They apply only to residence telephones—not to business or rural service.

"Something should be done about this!"

To obtain them, mail the coupon below, or telephone the business office.

back Tommy's love. Because she thinks Derry is poor, she decides to break with him and makes a trip to Okdale. Derry meets her but she is recognized by a friend of Prentiss who telephones to him. Irene tells Derry she can never marry him, and he denounces her as heartless just as Prentiss arrives.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV. "Gaylord!" The name, as Irene uttered it, rang out with a terror that had ever heard her voice.

As Gaylord's car neared them Irene not only feared him physically but saw all chance of a reconciliation with him fading forever.

Derry sat quite still beside her and if she thought about him at all it was to assume that he was frozen with fear.

On the contrary the young man sat still because he was not afraid and because he did not know what to do.

Gaylord drew up alongside them and jammed the car's brakes with a force that sent him skidding into the banked snow at the side of the road. Before the car had come to a stop he had flung open the door at his side and sprang out.

officer's line of duty besides capturing neckers—a few holdups and hijacking parties. When he came upon trouble now he did not jump to frivolous conclusions.

Two men fighting in a park, one of them a traffic violator, and a girl parked in a car could mean anything.

He went at the men in earnest. While his back was turned Irene got the motor of Derry's car warmed up sufficiently to make a getaway. She tried it but the officer whirled, yelling to her to stop.

Irene did not heed him and he was determined enough to act with purpose. The officer yelled again, but Irene kept on going.

They started running toward the car as it slid over the slippery road in peril of tipping over and they reached it just as Irene lost consciousness.

The men who had fought over her, both battered and gory, lifted her tenderly from the motor car and got her into Gaylord's roadster.

It made Derry sick to look at her and so it was Gaylord who answered the officer's questions.

Nevertheless it was Derry who held Irene in his arms while Gaylord drove them to Okdale and to the hospital. He held her but he did not look at her.

Some of her clothing, which the officer dug from her suitcase, pilfered Irene's face and Derry saw to it that her face was covered as closely as it could be without smothering her.

Hospital attendants took her from him when they arrived there and put her on a stretcher, carrying her away.

"Do you think she will die?" he asked Gaylord. "You might wait and find out," Gaylord told him, "but I think you'd better fade out of the picture—Meade."

Derry nodded. So only Gaylord and Tommy were left in Irene's life.

Elks to Travel Broadway America to National Meeting

Several large delegations of Elks, motoring to the national convention in Seattle, are expected to visit Ranger next month as a result of contacts established by the Broadway of America association. Elk lodges in the north, east and south have been contacted by the Broadway of America and the many advantages of this route explained to them. They will travel the Broadway, through Ranger, to San Diego where they connect with a paved highway to Seattle.

"There will be no partiality in Broadway affairs," says F. O. Mackey, recently elected president of the association. "No longer will any town or community be favored above another. We are out to make the Broadway the most popular transcontinental highway in the country and our sole aim is to bring more and more tourists over the Broadway and keep them on it as long as possible. We are advertising the Broadway as a whole, not any particular city or community along the route."

The Broadway is now 98 per cent improved from Broadway, New York city, to Broadway, San Diego. It has many advantages and attractions not found on other highways. The absence of dangerous mountain passes appeals particularly to the eastern tourist. He sees the mountains but avoids bad mountain grades and curves. The Broadway is cool in summer and safe in winter, truly an "all-year-highway."

Pheasants Being Hatched By State

HARRISBURG, Pa.—The Pennsylvania State Game Farms have produced 12,900 baby pheasants during the 1931 hatching season and expect as many more before it is ended.

In addition 9,000 eggs have been shipped to game refuge keepers and 5,900 to sportsmen and hunters' organization for their own development.

The game farms are divided into two sections, one a laying field and the other a rearing field for the breeding season. One man spends his entire time collecting eggs deposited by the pheasant hens in the laying fields. The eggs are hatched in incubators.

Most of the pheasants being reared are the ring-neck variety, but the breeders are also developing fancy varieties, such as Silver Pheasant, Reeve's Pheasant, Mexican Chacalaca, and Golden Pheasant, for display and exhibition.

Experiments also are being conducted in breeding bob-white quail.

Lindy's Flight Holds Interest Of All Nations

By United Press.

WASHINGTON.—Where Lindbergh goes the world's imagination follows—an axiom of American journalism—has received new confirmation incidental to announcement of the aviator's plan for a flight to Japan and China.

Over four years have elapsed since Lindbergh "hopped off" from Roosevelt Field for a successful non-stop flight to Paris. The tremendous interest that attended his transatlantic flight has persisted during successive years, owing to a well-timed series of aerial accomplishments. These have been any possibility that the first transatlantic exploit was merely the result of luck.

In four years since he started the world he has been the object of attempted exploitation in every field, despite which he still is best identified for his contributions to aviation.

After his return to the United States in 1927 he soon embarked on a nation-wide tour, under auspices of the Guggenheim Foundation, which aimed to build up popular interest in aviation—in a word, to help make the public

"air-minded." This eventful and safe tour was estimated of great importance as an encouragement to commercial aviation.

His next great effort, semi-diplomatic in character, was a "good will trip" to Mexico and countries in the Caribbean region. Although the immediate purpose was friendly contact, the trip in fact proved the forerunner of a far-reaching expansion of American air-lines in the entire region.

The Caribbean tour started with a non-stop flight from Washington to Mexico City on Dec. 13-14, 1927, and ended with a 1,500-mile non-stop from Havana to St. Louis on Feb. 13, 1928. The total flight was about 9,000 miles, and it was accomplished in the same "Spirit of St. Louis" with which Lindbergh had flown the Atlantic.

Lindbergh's next important contribution to the progress of aviation was as consultant engineer in the projection of trans-continental joint air-and-mail service, which was inaugurated successfully.

In 1929 Lindbergh piloted the inauguration of an air-line down the Antilles to Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, on the north coast of South America.

In the next year Lindbergh had a new thrill in store for the country, a feat which he shared with his wife, Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, soon to participate in his fortunes on the Far Eastern flight. The couple left Los Angeles in the morning, stopped at Wichita, Kas., in the afternoon for refueling, and the same night hurtled into Roosevelt Field, N. Y., for a new trans-continental record. The flight of about 2,700 miles was made in 14 hours 45 minutes 29 seconds, at an average of 189 miles per hour, beating the previous record of Capt. Frank M. Hawks by 2 hours 52 minutes and 44 seconds.

The Lindberghs' transcontinental flight was made at high altitudes, from 10,000 to 15,000 feet, and for the announced purpose, "to test the theory that airplane speed and efficiency are to be sought above storm areas, in rare atmospheres."

This achievement kept the Lindberghs at the peak of national esteem, from a technical as well as a popular standpoint. It proved to aviation authorities that Lindbergh was not inclined to "stand still" in his profession, but disposed to press onward for new successes which would be of practical value to aviation.

Aviation experts now are convinced U. S. Lindbergh's Far Eastern flight aims at specific technical results of which the public has not yet been fully apprised. The flight, therefore, will command the attention of technicians as well as of the masses in many countries who find in "Lindy's exploits," a serial story of near-fading interest.

Bible Miracle Evidence Found

By United Press.

LONDON.—Material evidence of two of the most spectacular miracles of the Bible has been gathered by British archeologists, according to messages from Palestine.

Professor John Garstang, leader of the Jericho expedition financed by Sir Charles Marston, has reported that the collapse of the walls of Jericho before the Jewish hosts under Joshua was apparently due to an earthquake. He based his theory upon the discovery that the walls of the city had fallen outward in places in a manner which suggested seismic disturbances.

The same natural phenomenon accounts for the drying up of the Jordan for the Jews to cross, he believes. The expedition, he says, has gathered evidence that the clay banks of the river caved in near El Damieh at about the period described in the Bible.

Sir Charles Marston, who has financed three expeditions to confirm the authenticity of Bible records, believes this naturalistic explanation of the miracles really corroborates the biblical description.
