

PLANS FOR BOY SLAYER'S TRIAL INTEREST MANY

CHICAGO—The indictment and assignment to trial in the criminal court of Varney Corry, 15, on a charge of murdering Policeman Edward Smith, who ordered him from a high school swimming pool, has created alarm among sociologists and criminologists over what they term "the slowly descending age of criminal offenders."

At the same time they are sponsoring a movement for a study and a restatement of the purpose and function of the juvenile court of Cook county, the oldest juvenile court in existence.

Workers Interested Among social workers who believe the Corry boy should not be tried in the criminal court are Jane Addams of Hull House, Joel Hunter of the United Charities, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, president, and Miss Jessie Hinford, director, of the Juvenile Protective association. Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, chief of the behavior clinic of the criminal court; Prof. Edward H. Sutherland of the department of sociology at the University of Chicago; Prof. Clifford H. Shaw, research sociologist and head of the department of research sociology of the Institute for Juvenile Research.

Attorneys said that because the boy was indicted by the grand jury, the chief justice of the criminal court had no choice but to assign the case for trial to a criminal court judge.

Nolle Prose Necessary In order to have the case transferred to the juvenile court, legal authorities said, it would be necessary first to have it nolle prossed by the state's attorney and then to file a petition in the juvenile court to the effect that the Corry boy is a delinquent.

Miss Addams declared the procedure wrong. "I would not minimize the gravity of his killing," she said, "but the very fact that he did so and carried a gun showed that there was something stupid in it and in points the way to the court in which the case should be handled."

Giant Dirigible's Motors Will Be Under Protection

PHILADELPHIA—Because of the site the newest addition to the United States air fleet, the dirigible Akron, will be protected against herself and the dangers which she will encounter in the clouds.

Special electrical equipment has been installed by the Westinghouse company to prevent static or other electric influences which might be picked up from the clouds or generated by the radio equipment, from injuring the motors.

AGED SON OF ONE OF BARNUM'S FAMOUS SIAMESE TWINS NOW AWAITS THE END KANSAS ALMSHOUSE INMATE LONGS TO SEE CHILDREN BEFORE HIS DEATH

By NEA Service.

MEDICINE LODGE, Kan.—Patrick H. Bunker, 81-year-old son of one of P. T. Barnum's famous original Siamese twins, Ing and Chang, wants to see his children.

Bunker, inmate of the county home at Medicine Lodge, is growing feeble. Somewhere in the United States he hopes his six children may still be living. This man with a life story stranger than any fiction has only one remaining ambition and that is to see them once more.

Bunker's father and his uncle came from Siam to America in 1830. They were joined together by a membranous band extending from the breastbone of one to that of the other. It was Ing and Chang who were responsible for the coining of the phrase "Siamese twins" to mean children physically attached to each other, regardless of what race, Barnum, the famous showman, exhibited them throughout the United States and Europe.

Ing was Bunker's father. "My father and his brother never quarreled," Bunker is careful to explain. "Lots of people have said to me they've heard Dad and Uncle Chang used to fight. It isn't true."

How He Got His Name. The aged man is asked frequently to tell why the son of a native of Siam should have the surname "Bunker" and he called Patrick.

"It was like this," he says. "As soon as my father and uncle arrived in New York they were put on exhibition. It became necessary for them to be naturalized. They went to the government office and gave their names as Ing and Chang, the only names they'd ever had. Someone told them they must have a surname. A man named Fred Bunker was standing near and he suggested they take his name. That was how my father became Ing Bunker and my uncle became Chang Bunker."

The twins were born about 60 miles from Bangkok, Siam, in 1811. When they were 18 an American ship captain saw them bathing in a river. Realizing what a curiosity they would be to the American public he arranged to bring them to New York. Barnum made them the featured attraction of his show and gave them widespread publicity.

Temperaments Differed. "Despite their physical union the twins had different temperaments. Bunker's father, for instance, was fond of playing poker. Chang never could be persuaded to join the game but he was obliged to sit by until late hours at night while Ing enjoyed himself.

On a return trip from Europe in 1874 Ing awoke one morning and found Chang dead by his side. Half an hour later Ing also was dead. Surgeons found that the two men married on the same day in a double ceremony. They each had farms not over half a mile apart. They would stay at our house three days and nights and then go to my uncle's house for three days and nights. Father had 11 children and Uncle Chang had 10."

Chang and Ing were born face to face but after they learned to walk they found it easier to get around side by side so they were almost always in that position.

They could chip wood, according to Bunker. "Father was on the right side and Chang on the left," he says, "so father would grasp the ax handle with his right hand and Uncle Chang would take hold with his left. As he was left-handed anyway that gave them a strong grip. At the table they would help each other cut the food, but each would feed himself."

had a large artery in common and declared the oft-proposed operation to separate them would have proved fatal.

Bunker's descent to the almshouse is a brief story. He and a brother, James Monroe Bunker, went west and bought farms in Sumner county, Kansas. James died there several years ago. Patrick married and he and his wife had three sons and three daughters.

"One day my wife told me she wanted a divorce," Bunker says. "She asked for the custody of the children too. I said, 'Molly, you don't want to do that,' but she insisted on it."

"No man ever made anything lawing with his wife so I decided her the farm and everything on it. After a while she married again and I reckon she set the children against me. Anyhow they don't come to see me. I know where some of them were for a while but now I've lost track."

A few years ago, after doing odd jobs around Medicine Lodge for a living, Bunker walked into the room in which the county commissioners were meeting and surprised them by laying $100 before them and saying, "I don't believe I have long to live. There's my savings. I wish you'd take it and give me a home for my remaining years."

The commissioners refused to take the money but did give the former farmer a home. He has lived there ever since.

Narcotic Dealers Build Up Trade With "First Shot"

EL PASO.—Dealers in drugs build up their trade by giving young boys their first "shot" of narcotics, federal and local narcotic agents have revealed.

Capt. Mike Snider, of the El Paso police force, declared that fully 50 per cent of El Paso's youthful drug addicts get the habit by narcotic peddlers first giving them drinks and then, while under the influence of liquor giving them a shot of narcotics "to experience a great happiness."

The practice was brought to the attention of officers when Richard Holt, visiting here from San Antonio, was found in the street in a stupor.

Census Shows 10 Blacksmith Shops In City of Chicago

CHICAGO.—Horses have become such curiosities on the streets of Chicago that today only one of the city's ten remaining blacksmith shops is doing sufficient business to retain as many as two full time employes.

An investigation by the Chicago Association of Commerce discloses that in the 210 square miles making up the city there are only ten horseshoeing establishments and that all of these combined must a collective working force of only 11 men.

Ranger Building Permits Show An Increase Over First Six Months of 1930; Eastland Building Down

Building permits in Ranger for the first six months of 1931 total $16,000 or 84,000 more than the figure of $12,000 in the same period of 1930, according to reports from Austin. During the same period Eastland had building permits amounting to $16,000 this year compared to $45,000 during the first six months of 1931.

Building in Texas during the first half of 1931, as indicated by permits granted in 35 cities, represented a value of $27,809,000, compared to $29,307,000 during the first six months of the previous year, according to the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.

"This decline of 29 per cent was less than the shrinkage of 31 per cent reported by the F. W. Dodge corporation in value of new construction throughout the United States," the bureau's statement said. "The May to June decline in Texas amounted to 27 per cent, compared to the three-year average decrease of 23 per cent during this period. Permits in May amounted to $5,280,000, compared to $3,550,000 in June. "Permits granted by cities during the first half of 1931, as compared to the corresponding period of 1930, totaled as follows: Abilene, $147,000 this year compared to $306,00 in 1930; Amarillo, $1,598,000 compared to $1,287,000; Austin, $1,321,000 compared to $2,509,000; Beaumont, $795,000 compared to $1,263,000; Brownsville, $174,000 compared to $281,000; Brownwood, $525,000 compared to $680,000.

"Cleburne, $54,000 compared to $217,000; Corpus Christi, $321,000 compared to $822,000; Corsicana, $67,000 compared to $207,000; Dallas, $4,508,000 compared to $3,426,000; Del Rio, $118,000 compared to $312,000; Denison, $22,000 compared to $45,000; Eastland, $16,000 compared to $45,000; El Paso, $692,000 compared to $1,838,000; Fort Worth, put your Telephone on Half-pay during Vacation

You'll save money... and spare yourself inconvenience when you return.

The Rumseys are going vacationing. The milk's been stopped, the ice man has been called off, and the Man Who Delivers the Newspaper has been instructed to bring no more until further notice.

But the telephone will be left at home, drawing full pay in an empty house! Something should be done about this!

Vacation rates for idle residence telephones

One solution (provided you're planning a vacation of 30 days or more) is to place your telephone on vacation half-rates while you are away.

It's a convenient way to save money. And—this to folks who sometimes have their telephones taken out—it spares you inconvenience on your return.

That's because: 1. You pay just half the regular rate. 2. Service is reconnected quickly after you return—usually within 24 hours after you notify us.

3. You keep your present telephone number. (You'd lose it if you had your telephone removed!) 4. Your name remains in the telephone book.

If you wish, while you are away we will refer your calls to another telephone—that of relatives, for instance.

Vacation rates are available for periods of more than 30 days. They apply only to residence telephones—not to business or rural service.

"Something should be done about this!"

To obtain them, mail the coupon below, or telephone the business office.

The Mystery 26? It is sweeping the nation! What is it? When is it? Where is it? Here is the secret.... If your birthday comes on July or August 26th we are going to make you a present of a $25.00 deposit on any new Model A Ford or any used car we have in stock. There is no strings attached to this offer. If your birthday comes on the 26th day of July or August we will gladly give you the birthday present of $25.00 deposit on any car you select and buy outright providing the purchase is made by September 15th, 1931. Regardless of age, sex or what part of Texas you live in this offer is good if your birthday is on either of these dates and providing the purchase you make is a straight sale. If your birthday is on either of these dates come in and register for the $25.00 present. You may register up until September 15th. There's more to a car than an engine—more to an engine than cylinders. There's more to a birthday than a celebration—more to 26 than just two numbers. Leveille-Maher Motor Co. SPEAKING of SPORTS

Coast League Develops Stars

It may be the sunshine, and then again it may be the soft winds that rustle through the palm fronds, but whatever the reason the Pacific Coast league continues to lead all other minor groups in producing major league baseball stars.

Six of 1931's outstanding rookies—Johnny Vergez of the Giants, Buzz Arlett of the Phillies, Ernie Lombardi of the Robins, Vernon Gomez of the Yankees, Wes Schulmerich of the Braves and Marvin Owen of the Tigers—all graduates of the Far Western league.

Probably the most successful of this sextet is Vergez, whose work at third base has more than justified Manager John McGraw's faith in him. At present Vergez is hitting above .300, leads his club in runs driven in and has hit nearly a dozen homers. A fielder he has displayed a dash and confidence worth of a veteran. Many fans criticized McGraw when he moved his regular third baseman, Freddie Lindstrom, to right field in favor of Vergez; that criticism has stopped long ago.

Arlett, Another Veteran Player

Arlett, who was allowed to linger on the coast until well past 30, has come in for more attention than any other 1931 rookie. At the start of the season Arlett was unable to get going, but before the season was three weeks old the elephantine outfielder was pounding the ball to all corners of the lot and fielding in a highly capable manner. Arlett is leading the league with a mark of .348 up until a few weeks ago when he broke a finger on his throwing hand and was forced to the bench.

The big Philadelphia slugger hits from either side of the plate, being one of the few capable switch-hitters in the majors. His work has made the Philadelphia fans forget the trade that sent Lefty O'Doul to the Robins.

Gomez Very Fine Prospect

Gomez was up for a spell in 1930, but this is the young left-hander's first complete major league campaign. He is rated as the best pitching prospect the Yanks have had in many a season. It was Gomez who stepped out on the hill and broke the world-champion Athletics' string of 17 straight victories.

Schulmerich, while he has not been able to maintain the same batting pace in the majors that he set in the minors, is hitting just below .300 and gives promise of developing into one of the real sluggers of the league. He has a good eye and takes a tremendous cut at the ball.

Owen hit around 300 for Seattle last year but has been unable to do that good in the majors. He is hitting some 50 points lower, but his first-class fielding more than has made up for his lack of punch at the plate.

Longhorns And Sipe Springs To Play Ball Today

The Eastland Longhorns will meet the Sipe Springs team this afternoon on the local diamond at 3 o'clock. The Longhorns were scheduled to meet the Breckenridge Dynamos but the game had to be postponed until a later date.

The Sipe Springs team has not been defeated this season and was winner of the DeLeon baseball tournament. The team has two good pitchers and has seven left-handed batters, which should give the Longhorn pitchers plenty of trouble.

Manager Day has not definitely stated who will start for the Longhorns but the probable lineup for the locals will be Watson, 1b; Eason, 2b; Stubbins, 3b; Coleman, 4b; R. Coleman, lf; Lafon, cf; Morris, rf; Brown or Smith, c; Turner of Overby, p.

Aircraft Production Totaled 61 Million

WASHINGTON—Aircraft equipment produced during 1930 for both civil and military use was valued at over $61,000,000, according to the aeronautics branch of the commerce department.

The department's survey showed that $34,545,000 went into the manufacture of "heavier-than-air" craft during the year, while airships and balloons cost only $26,000,000 during the same period.

Aircraft engines and spare parts during 1930 cost almost $25,000,000.

The balance of the $61,000,000 expended on aircraft during 1930 went for motors, propellers, parachutes and other equipment totalling almost $4,000,000.

Mickey Walker's Fighting Face

Here's the countenance that Jack Sharkey will attempt to polish off with eight-ounce gloves on July 22. It's the fighting face of Mickey Walker, veteran heavyweight miller, pictured above as he appears in training at his Orangeburg, N. Y., camp. Walker and Sharkey will meet at Ebbefts Field Brooklyn. The winner may bid for a chance at Max Schmeling's heavyweight crown.

HOCKEY AND SLIDES Henry L. Farrell

Sailors, Bulldogs, Black Eyes, Etc. HERR MAX SCHMELING, it now appears, is a young man who takes very good care of himself. Also, in the light of his recent statement that he would be unable to fight Carnera in September because of a black eye, a very given to the press in Berlin just after Joe Jacobs had made all arrangements for Maxie to mingle with the man-mountain, you might get the idea that Herr Schmeling is pretty much his own manager after all, despite Mr. Jacobs' energies and ingenuity spent in that direction.

Max is a nice boy and gave evidence in his bout with Strickling that he is a pretty good sort of fighter. But he must be built upon a rather delicate pattern if it takes two months for a black eye to become itself again. That must be "a black eye what am a black eye." And while the history of black-busting is sprinkled liberally with black eyes, I find eye taking more than a couple of weeks to fade to normal.

Thumbs Down

MAX says Willie stuck his thumb into that eye. Some observers say that in defending himself against a vicious right, he put his own thumb into the greatest thumb ever. Willie has the greatest thumb ever. Willie stuck into a glove or he must have driven Maxie's thumb into the eye hard enough to put a bump on the back of his neck. At any rate, you can put me on record as voting thumbs down on the black eye story.

The evident aim of Herr Schmeling is to wait a year while steam generates for another heavyweight championship affair. Both Sharkey and Walker, by that time, will be a year older and no farther ahead, no matter who is the victor in their brawl.

Are Golfers Serious?

IF returns from Cincinnati, O., and Galesburg, Ill., are to be taken as a gauge of sentiment in the nation-wide poll on the new golf ball, the conclusion seems to be that golfers prefer talking to voting.

There are at least 15,000 golfers of both sexes in metropolitan Cincinnati, says Tom Swope, sports editor of the Cincinnati Post, but the total vote cast was less than 100. Tom says: "This doesn't indicate that golfers are not interested in the subject. It shows they merely were negligent about it if the same way Americans are negligent in many matters."

What! No Stamps!

WILBUR ROGERS, sports editor of the Galesburg Register-Mail, fears the depression has resulted in an economy of post-age stamps.

"Either that," writes Rogers, "or golfers here are not interested in the change from the old ball to the 1931 ball. One dozen players out of an estimated 1000 in Galesburg, where three courses are kept busy every day and are crowded to capacity on Sundays, returned ballots expressing their opinion. 'Ten amateurs voted no on the new ball. One professional approved the new pellet. One amateur was doubtful. The solicited opinions of two other pros and a retailer of golf equipment also were in favor of the new ball.'"

Six Reasons

"REASONS why golfers opposed the new ball were: putt poorly (7); less distance (4); erratic in flight (5); easily affected by wind (4); fails to hold or pitch shots (1); absolutely inferior (3). 'Among reasons why the new ball was found satisfactory will be the professionals were that it gives better lies on fairway, good on short shots, helps beginner to learn more rapidly and make more careful, accurate golfers.'"

Meanwhile, the noise continues. But the votes come in slowly.

From the Office of the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent

The home demonstration club dress contest was climaxed with a county wide show in Eastland Saturday, July 11. One hundred and twenty-five dresses were exhibited, one hundred modeled. The fourteen clubs were represented by from one to thirty-five members and families. The first place was won by Mrs. L. C. Owens, Grapevine Club, a trip to the Annual Short Course at College Station July 27th to August 1st, Mrs. Owens will enter the State contest representing Eastland county. These dresses were made at cost ranging from 45 cents to $2.16, with an average of 2 1/2 yards of cotton material used, per dress.

Corn The season for canning corn is here and the following recipe will be used. Use tin cans and the No. 2 size for canning corn. Gather the corn the morning to be canned, shuck, silk and cut. The cutting depends on the size you like, the best method is to cut the grams twice and scrape the cob lightly. Add water to suit the individual (some like the corn with more water than others), half as much water as corn is plenty. Heat until the starch thickens or the corn looks clear, fill No. 2 cans within one-half inch of the top, seal and process at once for 60 minutes at 12 pounds pressure. Remove from cooker and put in a tub of cold water and cool quickly. When cold, dry the cans and store.

Watermelon Rind Preserves 2 pounds watermelon rind (prepared), 2 quarts sugar, 4 quarts water, lime-water prepared (2 tablespoons lime or calcium oxide, 2 quarts water); 1 lemon sliced thin juice of one-half lemon, 6 or 8 pieces root ginger.

The thick rind melon is preferred for preserves. Remove peel and any pink meat of the melon. Soak in lime-water over night, using proportions as given above. Next morning drain and allow rind to stand in fresh cold water for 2 hours. Drain, drop in boiling water, cook very rapidly for 10 minutes. Drain again and add gradually to the syrup (made by boiling together the 8 cups of sugar and 4 quarts of water). Add the lemon juice and root ginger which has been cut into one-half inch lengths. Cook until the rind is tender and transparent. About 15 minutes before it has finished cooking, add the slices of lemon. Avoid breaking or tearing the lemon slices. Pack firmly into sterilized glass containers, (pints better). Fill to overflowing. Seal and process for 15 minutes at 10 pounds pressure, or boil 45 minutes in water.

MY PART-PAYMENT COMPLEX

By OLIVE FORD STEPHENS OLDEN, TEXAS

I'm just naturally UNLUCKY! You've heard of these complexes of one sort or another that folks have sometimes? Well, I'm afflicted with a "Part Payment" complex and it's got an inferiority complex beat as bad as seven-year itch beats a chigger bite.

Only that complex of mine just runs on and on. Seven years didn't stop it and I don't seem to be going to end it either. Seventy may be in case I die at 69 or I may stop if there is a law passed making it a criminal offense to buy anything that way.

I usually start to listen to these high powered salesmen just to be polite and after that I am in a daze until I come to with a copy of my contract to purchase most anything from hay fever medicine to the courthouse. The things I have bought like this would look like a curio shop if I had them gathered together. I've bought some used cars that were antiques six years ago, blazers worth six bits but which cost me eleven dollars a pair, razor blade sharpeners, rat traps, near beer recipes, and even instant hair remover which I thought would solve the barber shop hair incident which took the hide off as well as the beard and only seemed to make the beard grow faster. Sometimes it has been fountain pens that drip ink, or complete educations in one sitting but the one that beats them all was the insurance policy I bought about two weeks ago.

It was an ACCIDENT insurance policy. I took it home proudly to my wife before she had hardy started to read it. She was laughing so hard, I got worried about her. I asked her if she saw anything funny in my trying to provide for her future in case I got old, but she mentioned leaving her money for her complexion and permanent waves, etc. She gave me one look and then started reading that policy to me but before she had finished the first paragraph I didn't know whether it was a policy on me or the city hall. It "party foresaid" and "party of the first part" and "ifed" and "anded" until no body could figure it out. Finally though I made out that I was insured in case of car wreck unless the wreck was caused by careless or reckless driving, driving while drunk, breaking the speed limit or some one else's careless or reckless driving. Now anyone knows you don't have car wrecks when you are creeping along the highway at 10 miles an hour and every one else if off the road. No sir, the only way that would ever have to pay off on that paragraph would be for me to make everyone else stay off the highway until I got where I was going and then if I should just be going along all by myself, and my breath didn't even smell like grape juice, and I was looking right straight at the road and the car should suddenly turn turtle and kill me, they MIGHT pay it.

But the PRIZE paragraph was where it insured me in case I was killed while RIDING A BICYCLE in case I was NOT actually engaged in a bicycle race. Now can you beat that? Why if I was to TRY to ride a bicycle, I'd have to have the whole highway not to mention all the side walks and

Tiny Beetle Aids War On Michigan Forest Worms

NEW BERRY, Mich.—A small beetle has come to the rescue of forests in the upper peninsula infested with a small worm which has stripped trees of leaves, according to reports. Aid had been sought from the entomology department at Michigan State College and the response was that the worm could be killed only by airplane dusting. When a trip was made through the forests last week, however, it was reported that the worms were diminishing in numbers and that they were seen to have been eaten by the beetles.

PICKING YOUR RIGHT JOB.....

By WM. PRESTON BEAZELL, Former Day Manager and Editor New York World.

As Told to J. V. Fitzgerald, Of American School of the Air

Especially for the beginner, pay for newspaper work is higher than in almost any other profession. This will not be true all the way through. In many departments of newspaper work, age and experience are actually liabilities rather than assets. There must be bodily and mental freshness. There must be vigor, because often the physical demands are very heavy. After middle life freshness and vigor often become rare.

But for the young man, or the young woman, newspaper work offers romance and adventure and good pay and opportunity for service. It is a life that is always changing.

Sound education is the best training for newspaper work. Perhaps your first attention should be paid to English.

Get into the habit of using few adjectives. Seek a good working knowledge of science. This is a scientific age, and if you do not know at least the fundamentals of science you will be handicapped. You should know politics thoroughly. I mean the principles and the history of government.

Economics will be important to you. This is an industrial age even more than it is a scientific age. You should be able to understand more than superficial conditions alone.

The arts will be factors in your work, and in day out. Literature, music, painting, sculpture, the theater—all these should have your attention now and through your life.

The value of a college education in newspaper work is especially great. A course in a good school of journalism cannot fail to be of service. Good schools are many.

What How Why? PLYMOUTH FLOATING POWER THE WHOLE NATION WANTS TO KNOW MORE ABOUT IT The revolutionary character of the New Plymouth has created a great flood of interest. Even the hardest of skeptics are so amazed at this new four that performs like an eight that they ask eagerly for the facts behind this tremendous accomplishment. What is Floating Power? Floating Power is a term applied to the new and revolutionary principle of mounting the engine in the car frame, developed by Chrysler Motors engineers for the New Plymouth. Just how is the engine mounted? On two live-rubber mountings nearly an inch thick. These mountings are so placed that a line drawn through them passes through the center of gravity of the engine. Thus the engine is suspended in perfect balance. What does Floating Power do? The live-rubber mountings allow the engine to rock upon its natural axis as if in a cushioned cradle. Vibration is thus entirely eliminated from the car. Why does Floating Power succeed when all other methods fail? Because Chrysler Motors engineers have not tried merely to dampen vibration; they have achieved an entirely new principle which dissipates the motor impulses so that they never reach the body and frame. Why and How is Power Increased? Because the elimination of vibration allows higher compression, which gives greater horsepower without increasing cylinder size. Floating Power makes possible 56 brake-horsepower and actual stop-wash speeds of 65 and 70 miles an hour, and pick-up from 0 to 40 miles in 9.2 seconds. What else does Plymouth offer? A score of things! Plymouth's Free Wheeling combines the advantages of the various types now in use. As a result, it permits Free Wheeling in all forward speeds, and it also may be completely locked out. The Easy-Shift transmission which enables you to shift, without clashing, from second into high and back into second, if you wish, at speeds up to 50 miles an hour. The new, double-drop frame for greater safety and roadability. New, eye-compelling beauty. Internal hydraulic brakes. Safety-Steel body. You must see and drive the car to appreciate the phenomenal performance and value made possible by one of the greatest engineering developments the industry has ever seen. $535 AND UP. F. O. B. ### M-System, Though Little Over a Year Old, Has Had Phenominal Success Since Coming To Ranger

By R. KENNETH EVANS
The M-System Grocery in little more than one year has made a success that from the outside looks phenomenal. From the inside it looks simple, for the success it has attained was possible because a few simple rules of good merchandising have been followed. These are so few and so easy that on the face of it, it would seem that any one could open up a grocery store and be a "wow" from the beginning.

In the first place, it is a home-owned store, dealing as much as possible in Texas made products. When one casually walks around the edges of the "M" and reads the label on the goods stacked neatly on the shelves, one is surprised at the resourcefulness of Texas. Off hand, one would think from all the publicity that spaghetti came from Italy, and all the salad dressings from the French. But on the "M" shelves are all the common and garden varieties of Texas labels.

The second reason for the steady growth and success of this store is the "dependable merchandise" at the lowest possible price.

"We operate a new kind of store on an old-fashioned idea," Mr. H. G. Adams, one of the partners said yesterday. "Our idea is to carry quality merchandise at low prices, guarantee fair dealing and truthful advertising and to extend a hand of friendliness when we reach for the cash."

T. D. Bray is associated with Mr. Adams in the ownership of the store. Assisting them are six clerks and sales persons who are busy waiting on what is probably the largest grocery trade in Eastland county. The place looks inviting the minute a person steps inside. The entrance is bordered on the left by a spic and span meat counter, behind which butchers serve out the choicest of fresh and smoked meats. This is the only department in the store where the customer is not permitted to roam about at will and handle what he is interested in.

On the right as one goes into "M-System Store" is a rack of fresh vegetables and fruits. The writer saw the largest strawberries on that rack he ever saw in his life on any strawberry counter or short cake. These berries were large enough that nine of them, placed three each in a row, filled the box until they overlapped. Besides the strawberries were large, yellow carrots, their green tops fresh from a picking early that morning. Potatoes from the far south, onions, peas, beans, celery—everything and anything that grows within buying distance.

And speaking of garden truck, garden seeds are one of the summertime features of this up and coming establishment. The "M" people are for more and better gardens. They advise everyone to plant gardens. They will tell you seeds cost so little that gardens are a necessary adjunct to every home, especially the farm homes. They reason that everyone has to buy a certain amount of groceries, and the "M" store carries enough that people will buy to supplement the garden things they raise, to satisfy everyone.

"And we have a ready market for country raised poultry and eggs," Mr. Adams said. "We buy every fresh egg and chicken that is brought in to us and we sell them right here in Ranger. We do not ship any out of town. The market is here," Mr. Adams said, "because Eastland county raised a good grade of chickens and the eggs are fresh and much better than shipped-in eggs."

The shelves of the "M" store are filled with merchandise that are familiar commodities to every housewife. At this store this merchandise is put up in a manner that is different from many other groceries and this difference seems to please the customers.

For instance, one shelf is lined with beans of various kinds and colors. The pinto bean rests alongside the old standard navy that carried Dewey to victory at Manila. The lima is beside the black bean and these are all done in tough sacks with the contents stamped in ink on the outside. These are not merely placed in marked bins, for it has been found customers will pick up a package and then later put it down where it doesn't belong. It is not a pleasant experience for a housewife to plan on the spotted bean for dinner and then open a sack and find cow peas.

Well known dried fruits are arranged the same way. Dried apples, peaches, apricots and the plebian prune are sacked and marked likewise. This enables children to run down to the "M" store and get a package and be sure it will not break open on the way home.

"When we started a little more than a year ago," one of the proprietors said, "we were advised that we were up against a tough proposition. Some said we never would make it. Other declared the "M" system of placing our shelves was contrary to everything that had ever been done before. We arranged our shelves to give the greatest possible display space, and then we bought a stock to fill this space. It has been what the community wanted."

"We have always followed the policy of fair dealing. If one of our cans is marked "8-oz." that means it contains eight ounces of cocoa or what not. No one has tampered with that box, taking out a certain amount so the price may be marked down. When we make a statement, we back it up. The result has been we have had our share of customers and they are increasing in numbers all the time."

A trip through the store will interest anyone who wants to see a complete line of merchandise, properly displayed. Courteous clerks, six on ordinary days and nine on Saturdays, are there to assist. They are not "salesmen" in the sense of the word that they try to make a visitor buy something. The customer can get right up to the shelves in the "M" and the groceries are not hidden away behind a counter with the inference that they will break if you handle them. The clerks and assistants are there to help assemble purchases and wrap up packages and fill bags.

A phase of the business that keeps the force rushing in the morning hours, is the habit housewives have of calling up and giving orders. No delivery truck runs over the streets at up the "cover head" at the "M" store. Women call in, give their orders and say "I'll be down and pick it up in a few minutes." Oftentimes this "few minutes" is "right now" and the telephone receiver is no sooner in place until the customer who called walks in. The order is always ready, soon as possible, for it is the major policy of the M-System Grocery to give service with a capital "S."

Shunned "Good Advice" Found Oil

DALLAS.—If Dr. A. D. Lloyd, Fort Worth geologist, and C. M. Joiner, Dallas wildcatter in the oil business, had listened to "good advice," the East Texas oil fields, first developed almost nine months ago, probably still would be unknown.

Dr. Lloyd and Joiner laugh and call themselves "doodledbuggers" because they first drilled in East Texas on their own hunch and over the advice of other geologists familiar with the geological structure.

Their first two tests were failures—but the third one was a success.

In the nine months since Lloyd and Joiner struck oil, around 1,500 wells have been drilled, or contracted for.

U. S. Department Places Order for 1500 Ford Trucks

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The United States post office department today placed an order with the Ford Motor company for 1500 motor trucks, of which 500 will be of one and a half ton capacity and 1000 of one and a half ton capacity. The purchase of the motor trucks is the largest made by the government department since the purchase of the Ford trucks in 1927. With this order Ford sales in the post office department during the past few years reached a total of 2300 units.

The purchase marked another step in the department's program to build up its fleet of several thousand trucks and also to reduce some of the surplus trucks which have been piled up over the post office department by the army at the close of the war.

Deliveries are to start immediately and continue as rapidly as the trucks are ready for installation. The trucks will then be distributed to the 60 cities throughout the United States.

The order was placed with the Ford Motor company after an extensive test conducted by the department with the cooperation of the bureau of stands. The tests were under the supervision of W. H. Jacobs, automotive engineer of the bureau of stands, and William C. Jones, chief of the bureau of stands, and Morris C. Jones, chief of the bureau of stands, and Morris C. Jones, chief of the bureau of stands.

Plumley Brothers Open a Service Station in Ranger

Plumley Brothers Service station has opened for business on the corner of Pine and Rust streets, Ranger, after a week spent in cleaning, painting and decorating the building.

The office and ladies' rest room has been thoroughly cleaned and repainted, making it really attractive. The new firm is now doing business, selling Texaco gasoline and oils as well as washing, greasing, tire repairing and operating a storage garage. The storage department has facilities for handling from 30 to 32 cars.

The station is under the management of Frank and Roy Plumley, who have resided in Ranger for the past 12 years and who are well known here.

They have extended an invitation for their friends to visit them at their new place of business.

Broadway America Dues Notices Are Mailed Saturday

Notices were being mailed out from the Ranger Chamber of Commerce offices Saturday to members of the West Texas division of the Broadway of America association, calling attention to the fact that dues are now payable and requesting that they be sent in before the meeting to be held in Pecos on Tuesday, July 21.

Many of the towns in the West Texas division have not yet made up their quota of dues and they are being urged to do so before the meeting opens in order that the division may have a clear record.

NUDE BATHING BANNED.

FLORENCE, Ariz. — Obeying impulses to take dips in irrigation canals of southern Arizona, which run full of cool, sparkling water, forced the sheriff of Pinal county to post notices that persons bathing in such canals, which line highways, would be prosecuted unless garbed in bathing suits.

Heart of Liane By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Cass Barrett, actress in a New York stock company, glad to get her young daughter, Liane, out of the city for the summer. At Willow Stream, L. L. Cass plays in a theater sponsored by rich Mrs. Cleopatra. Liane meets a fascinating man named Van Robard. Her mother asks her not to see him any more. One night she goes with him to search for Muriel Ladd, a debutante who is believed to have eloped with Chuck Desmond, a reporter. The couple turn up later. Elsie Minter, the ingenue, tells Liane there is gossip about Van and Muriel's mother. The girl is crushed.

Cass goes on tour in the fall, leaving Liane with Mrs. Cleopatra. When she is taken seriously ill in Philadelphia, Liane goes to her. She hears Robard and Muriel are engaged. Cass returns to the Cleopatra's for convalescence. Cleopatra asks Liane to marry him. At first she refuses, but later, considering her mother's plight, she agrees.

Mrs. Amberton and her sister, Tressa Lord, come to visit the Cleopatra. Tressa is hateful to Liane. Robard makes love to Liane and she informs him she is to be married. Liane tells his mother of his engagement and she is pleased. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII

An office boy brought in a card to the shifty-eyed man in the swivel chair. The shifty-eyed man read it, ran his grimy finger appraisingly over the pasteboard and said, "Tell her to come in."

He did not rise. His lids drooped with scarcely veiled insolence. "Miss—ah Lord?" He pretended to consult the card again, reacting to the pastebord and said, "Tell her to come in."

"I thought you preferred the—connection to be severed. I paid you well, you said, and it's to your advantage not to tell anyone you know me. I've got a tip now. What will you pay?"

The man spread out talon-like hands in a curiously expressive gesture. He shrugged faintly. "Whaddya got?"

"It's good," said the girl quietly. "Good for the sheet or good for the racket?"

It was her turn to shrug now. "How do I know? Maybe one, maybe both. Either way it's what you call juicy."

The man reached into a pocket of his wrinkled coat and produced a greasy looking packet of cheap cigars.

"Have one?"

The girl's movement of withdrawal was so faint that another might not have seen it. The man did and his lips curled back over his yellowed teeth.

"Too nice for these, heh?"

"I smoke my own, thanks." She tapped one on a black enameled case and lighted it.

"Well, spill it. Things have been quiet lately. I can stand a break."

The girl began to speak. Her voice rose and fell eagerly.

At the end of her recital the man said shrewdly, "What you got against this doll? Sounds personal to me."

"You mind your own business!" Her voice had an unaccustomed shrillness.

He shrugged again. "None of my funeral. It's good. We'll hop to it. What say we jump the young gent right away? He'll pay plenty."

She stood up. "You do it my way, or it's out. I tell you it will work."

"Oke, baby. You haven't muffed anything in the past. Why don't you come in with me regular? We'd make a team."

She laughed.

"Thanks. It only interests me as a side line. And only when I'm hard up. Remember if you ever try any funny business on me that I know more to your disadvantage than you do to mine. I can deny ever having seen you. But your record—!"

His eyes glittered. "Forget it! We've had this out before. I'm a good guy if you treat me right."

"I know. I just wanted to remind you."

She went down the dirty stairs, picking her way meticulously. The man watched until the street door closed after her. He grinned.

"These dames," he muttered. "High hat as the devil and mean as hell! What's it to me?"

"Where have you been?" Fanny demanded petulantly from her station at a corner table in the Ritz. "I've been waiting for hours. You said you'd be here at one."

Tressa smiled good-humoredly. "I stopped at one or two places and you know how hard it is to get any place in this traffic."

Fanny held up two fingers and the captain rushed toward them.

"Do let us see a menu," she demanded pettishly. "I'm starving."

Tressa refused to let her sister's crosses spoil the delicious luncheon she presently ordered. She was vivacious. Her eyes danced and she chatted animatedly. When she espied two or three people she knew she waved to them.

"There's Van and Muriel." Tressa announced ignoring Fanny's cold politeness. Poor Fanny who was always abysmally out of sorts when she was hungry.

"Where?"

"Over there behind that woman in the purple hat. Did you ever see such a headpiece? It's positively pre-war!"

Fanny who had now consumed her soup giggled. She was mollified by the sight of that ridiculous hat. It made her own seem brilliant.

"Oh, but that's Lady Devenant. She can get away with clothes like that."

Tressa shrugged. "She looks like a horse."

"Yes, but doesn't she? She's a quaint old piece. Frightfully rich. She asked Bill and me to stay at her place in Surrey once years ago but Bill had flu and we couldn't go. I was terrifically disappointed."

Tressa wasn't listening. Fanny rambled on. "Look, Tress, I'll stop at her table as we go out. She's taken a marvelous place at Palm Beach for January. The biggest one there—the one with the most gilt on the roof. Perhaps she'll ask us. You'd like that, wouldn't you?"

"No, not a bit. Besides, I don't think I shall be leaving New York so early."

Fanny was so horrified she put down her knife and fork which she took pains to handle in what is known as the continental manner.

"So early? What on earth do you mean? You know how desolate town is after Christmas. Why were you saying only yesterday that you hoped we could break away before that?"

"I know but I've changed my mind." Tressa smiled enigmatically.

Fanny sniffed. "Of all the insane notions! What have you got up your sleeve?"

"Nothing at all. Dr. yes, perhaps I want to stay for the Beaux Arts ball. I haven't been since the year I came out. They say it's a grand party."

Fanny planted her elbows firmly on the table and took a sip of water from a glass of sapphire color.

"Now, Tressa Lord, don't dare look me in the eye and talk such nonsense! I know you're not going to hang around New York for any such silly reason. What is it all about? You might as well tell me."

Tressa frowned in annoyance. "You DO make a fuss about nothing at all."

Fanny brushed this away as irrelevant. "I know you. And Eva's going to be relieved when we take ourselves off. I shan't dare to Father fun. Everybody pulled his leg and he didn't know it. I adore fighters, don't you?"

Tressa, appended to, said, "I don't know any."

"Oh, but you should! It's very chic this season. Van, don't take me to Cannes until next week. Want to see Hints at Madison Square Garden on Friday?"

Van drooped his lids. "I thought you were going to the Garisons' dinner?"

Muriel clasped her hands in mock dismay. "Heavens, Van! Don't ask me to do that! I'd die of boredom at the Garisons'. Get me out of it. I must see Hints in his little green shorts. They say he's the cutest thing!"

Fanny Amberton, having listened to quite enough of this, began to draw on her gloves.

"No, don't get up, Van. I'm just running over to speak to Lady Devenant. Hold the check for me. Tressa, I'll be back in a moment."

Muriel drawled, "I want to put on a new face, Van. See you on the Madison Street side in a jiffy."

He started to make his farewells, but Tressa halted him. "Mind stopping for a minute, Van? Muriel will take ages doing her mouth with lip red."

He turned his dark, curiously inscrutable gaze upon her.

Tressa smiled. "Do sit down! Fanny will be back in a minute but there's something I particularly want to say to you."

If you thought Robinson was at his best in "Little Caesar," you're in for the surprise of your life. As a gambling fool he offers a characterization that will live with the greatest of the screen. He knew too much about cards and too little about blouses.

Little Misses Wheatley and McDowell Are Winners At Bridge Affairs

Miss Branton, hostess of the affair, which has recently been organized and which is holding much enthusiasm and interest for the members is that of the Y. G. R. club composed of a group of dainty little girls, who apparently are a bit young to be taking social affairs in the form of bridge with so much manifested interest.

The Young Girls Bridge meets every two weeks with charming little hostesses presiding. The club was entertained last week with little Miss Muriel Branton, daughter of Mrs. M. L. Branton, hostess at her home, Carter apartments.

The room decorations together with the attractive table appointments featured a color scheme of black and gold. Masses of Shasta daisies combined with green fronds helped to bring out the tones of yellow against the hues of green and black.

High score for the afternoon games was won by Miss Maxine Wheatley and second high by Miss Cecelia Shelline McDowell.

A dainty refreshment plate of sandwiches, salad and ices was served at tables centered with the chosen summer flowers of daisies. The party was enjoyed by the winners, Maxine Wheatley, Cecelia Shelline McDowell, Ann McDowell, Maxine Dutton, June Ann Grigollet, Gloria Stewart and Vivian Champion.

Miscellaneous Showers Honors Mrs. Winfrey

One of the prettiest affairs numbered among the last weeks social happenings was the surprise shower given at the residence of Mrs. Jack Winfrey, by a group of friends who called at her home in mid-afternoon.

Mrs. Onis Littlefield acted as hostess for the delightful affair presenting to Mrs. Winfrey a lovely selection of gifts all in pastel wrappings. The compliment was a miscellaneous shower, with the honoree receiving an attractive variety of articles to aid to the keeping of her home.

Each gift was unwrapped and passed for the guests to enjoy. A dessert and ice course was served to the honoree and Miss Roy Payne, Eugene Jenkins, Felton Brashear, A. J. Lowe, mother of Mrs. Winfrey, J. N. McFatter, McCollough, Cal Crasser, E. Cahn, Howard R. Ghoslin and Onis Littlefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfrey have formerly made their home in the Ghoslin hotel, since their marriage a year ago.

Council Program To Be Led by Mrs. Ray Campbell

Mrs. Ray Campbell will lead the program of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church when members meet on Monday afternoon at the usual hour for the council lesson of study.

Devotional, Mrs. R. M. Davenport; "Changes in the Educational Work in China," Mrs. Earl Goff; vocal solo, Miss Mary Ellen Campbell; "Fourth Stalling Future of Hillcary," Mrs. C. E. May; benediction.

All members are asked to keep this program in mind and be present for the study.

Mrs. Newham, Ranger Teacher Is Complimented With Outstanding Training Honor

Mrs. M. R. Newham has again been offered the normal certificate for training teachers of the Dunning System. There being only 19 normal teachers in the United States of this system.

She has just returned from Dallas, where she has been studying with Mrs. Harriet McDonald for the past two weeks. Taking a review of the Dunning System and advanced work for high school students privately, which also includes Faulsten work, advanced Leschelsky work, and interpretation.

She took a course in interpretation from John Thompson of Kansas City, who is a composer and teacher.

Child Welfare Club Appeals for Needy Articles For Ranger Families

The Child Welfare club, which is remembered in a most unusual way for the many kind deeds done throughout the holiday season, and since that time have continued doing helpful things for the needy families of Ranger, is asking in a most appealing manner for old sheets, pillow cases, towels, nightgowns and window shades. Doubtless, every housewife in this city has one or more of these articles and would gladly donate them for such a wonderful and sincere cause if they knew the conditions of those who are in desperate need for these named necessities.

There are several families, but one in particular which the club has in mind, is that of an elderly lady who is ill and has no shades for the bare windows. A bit of comfort and cheerfulness would at least be added to days which are long, if shades could be arranged for. One good deed a day is always worth while. Anyone having any of the above articles which you would like and enjoy giving are asked to please leave them in the care of Mrs. Saunders Gregg, Pine street. These things would be highly appreciated by the club to be sent by the families no later than Monday afternoon. A strong urge to everyone in Ranger is presented to keep this announcement in mind and check up on articles and clothing which can so nicely be used by these people.

Daughter Is Complimented With Lawn Party

Mrs. D. S. Eubanks entertained with a delightful lawn party on last week, in honor of her little daughter, Patricia Ruth, on her sixth birthday. After numerous games were played favors were presented and delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the following little guests: Edna Jane Morton, Virginia Hamilton, Laura May, June and Jane Ernest, Reuben Smith, Buddy Barton, Beverly and Betty Smith, Reba and Jean Moore, Polly Packwood, Margaret and Donald Norris, Vivian Cooper, Nelson Smith, Jackie Hamilton, and the little honoree. Mrs. Eubanks was assisted in entertaining by her niece, Miss Florine Eubanks of Mexico, Mrs. Gorman Merton and daughter, Eloise, of Olden.

Small Parties and Al Fresco Suppers Are Popular

To paraphrase an old quotation "little parties now and then are relished by most women," such is proving true now in Eastland society. There have been numerous intimate bridge games, al fresco suppers and swimming parties during the last week.

Several small parties were given in honor of Mrs. Herbert Aid of Fort Worth, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry Foster.

While Mrs. Garrett Bohning has been the inspiration for a large number of social affairs, both formal and informal.

been the inspiration for a large number of social affairs, both formal and informal. Mrs. Riley Allison of Albuquerque, N. M., who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Homer Brelsford, has also been complimented with several small parties given in her honor during the past week.

Mrs. E. R. Townsend also has been named the honoree at both formal and informal parties during the past two weeks.

Sail For Europe

Mr. and Mrs. George M. McKinney of Chicago sailed Saturday from Montreal, Canada, for a six weeks European tour. They will visit France, Switzerland, England, Germany and Spain. Mrs. McKinney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Graham of South Seaman street. She will be remembered by her many Eastland friends whom she made last summer while visiting her parents.

Mrs. McKinney will visit her parents immediately after her return to the states this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bohning Will Make Home on Ranch. Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Bohning and small daughter, Betty, and sons, Bill and Bob, will leave Eastland Sunday for Lometa where they will make their home. Mr. Bohning has bought an extensive sheep ranch at Lometa. Their ranch home is large and of colonial architecture, with the latest modern conveniences.

Mr. and Mrs. Bohning and family moved from Ranger to Eastland eight years ago, and since that time Mr. Bohning has owned and operated the Bohning Motor company. They have been prominent in Eastland society and their many friends here and throughout the county regret to lose them as citizens, but wish them success in their new venture.

Dr. and Mrs. Townsend Leave For Remainder of Summer. Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Townsend have closed their home on South Seaman street, also their professional office in the Texas State bank building until fall.

Dr. and Mrs. Townsend will leave Tuesday on professional business for the various towns in the East Texas oil district, including Tyler, Loneview, Gladewater and Shreveport, La.

There have been numerous dinner parties, bridge parties and picnics given in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Townsend before their leaving. Last week Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zwiefel of Fort Worth entertained in their honor, with a house party at their ranch home near Granbury.

Dr. and Mrs. Townsends' friends in Eastland are legion, who wish for them a pleasant and profitable sojourn and a definite return to their home in the early fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Jackson have just returned from a business trip to Brownsville and Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Maddocks and daughter, Miss Marjorie, have as their guests, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rich of Kyle, who will visit in Ranger the remainder of the summer. Mrs. Kyle is remembered here as the former Miss Gladys Maddocks.
