CHILE GOVERNMENT IN REBELLION

A Youngstown, O., society girl returning to this country says necking isn't collegiate in Russia. That lets everybody in on it.

TROOPS REFUSE TO SHOOT WHEN ORDER IS GIVEN

Censorship Was Maintained and Public Warnings Issued.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 4.—Reports of agreement "in principle" with mutinous sailors controlling the entire navy, were heard today while the province remained under a state of siege, censorship was maintained and warnings against communist control of the government were issued. Terms of the agreements were not made public. The government declared a state of martial law in the province of Santiago and was prepared to extend it to other parts of the country. Crowds were prohibited from gathering in the streets after 9 p. m.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Sept. 4.—The entire Chilean navy was in revolt last night and Communist leaders were seizing and controlling the coast existing in Santiago, Valparaiso and other centers to urge the establishment of a Chilean soviet republic. The last of the naval forces which had remained loyal joined the Coquimbo mutiny. All able vessels steamed out of the Talcahuano navy yard and a cruiser and several destroyers left here for Coquimbo. The number of which was not ascertainable, sailed away from Talcahuano the commanders of the shore batteries there ordered them to fire upon the departing ships; but the artillerymen refused to comply with the order.

As the mutiny unfolded, Communist agitators, many of whom were said not to be Chileans were urging seizure of the government and the nationalization of business institutions and corporations, the division of lands among the workers and the expulsion of foreigners. As a counter move to the agitation, the government's announcement announced all public salaries, including those of the army, navy and air corps for September, would not be reduced. The government also announced it would begin shortly a public works program which would give employment to 25,000 persons and pay approximately $825,000 a month in wages. Air Corps Awaits Orders. The government's announcement did not reveal whence would come the funds for the public works program. The action, however, was construed to be an effort to dissuade unemployed Chileans from joining the mutiny. A crack bombing squadron of the air corps awaited orders here to proceed to Coquimbo if necessary to bring the revolting navy to terms. The mutineers were hooped with bombs, ammunition and extra supplies of gasoline.

WACO, Sept. 4.—The lifeless body of O. L. Jones, a local automobile dealer, was found at Spring Lake Country club at noon today. The club is approximately a mile from where his blood-stained coat was found in a car which he drove from Dallas last night. Jones had been shot and his body dragged into a ditch near the interurban tracks. A .38-caliber pistol and three shells were found near the body. No money was on Jones' body.

Gov. 'ALFALFA BILL' FILES AGAINST GAS CO.

WAURIKA, Okla., Sept. 4.—Governor W. H. Murray today has loaned another broadside in his war for cheaper living costs in Oklahoma with the filing in district court of a suit against the Lone Star Natural Gas corporation and three subsidiaries. The governor, recently victorious in forcing lower rates from the Oklahoma Natural Gas corporation, through threatened court action, demanded in the petition filed by his attorneys, a receivership of the Lone Star company, revocation of charters of the company and payment of $365,000 in back taxes and penalties as well as court costs. He also asked a restraining order against interference with activities of the requested receiver. The suit named seven causes of action against the company, which was charged with violation of state laws.

Neighbors reported they heard the couple fussing. When police were called a razor blade was found on a dresser and the husband was gone.

TEXAS GOV. UNABLE TO ISSUE CALL

No call has been issued for a special session of the Texas legislature at press time today. AUSTIN, Sept. 4.—J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, said last night he had assurances from 18 members of the state senate that they favored a special session of the legislature to enact a law that would curb cotton production. Earlier in the day Governor Sterling told McDonald he would call such a session when 17 senators had promised to support such a bill. Governor Sterling refused comment when told of the promised support of 18 senators. Governor Sterling and Commissioner McDonald checked 15 senators at their conference, who had already pledged themselves to support a cotton control measure. McDonald secured promises from three additional senators. The commissioner said that the governor had asked that all senators replying direct their answers to the executive offices and that Governor Sterling wanted the members on record in "black and white." The replies had not been received at the governor's office today.

Mr. Jackway was leaving the meeting place where a crowd of 500 heard him preach. He fled to his automobile, but the egg tossers apparently four men and a woman, stepped into the until the eggs apparently were exhausted.

Vets Foreign Wars Ask Bonus Payment

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 4.—Turning down compromise proposals, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Wednesday voted resolutions be drafted calling for immediate payment of the remainder of federal adjusted compensation and the refunding of interest on part payments already advanced. The delegates voted down a proposal submitted by the resolution committee that the interest rates on advances be reduced from the present 4 1/2 per cent to "simple interest" or about 3 per cent. On the opening day of business sessions, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, and Ernest Lee Jachnecke, assistant secretary of the navy, urged a letup by former service men in their demands for additional federal appropriations in addresses to the delegates. The federal government already has distributed nearly $1,000,000,000 in advance payments on compensation. To pay the remainder would mean an additional appropriation of approximately $1,500,000,000. The delegates today approved another resolution urging that all federal married women employees who have no dependents and whose husbands are and capable of earning a living be dismissed from the civil service.

K. C. Edmonds Called By Olden Baptist Church

COUPLE HELD AT DALLAS IN EXTORTION ATTEMPT

DALLAS, Sept. 4.—Dallas detectives arrested a man and a woman last night in connection with an alleged attempt to extort $30,000 from I. N. Cerf, Corsicana banker. Cerf paid $15,000 to kidnapers last December for the release of his son, Robert Cerf. The man and woman, who said they were married, were arrested after a long chase during which a "dummy" package was sent through the hands of unsuspecting business men, cafe owners and messenger service operators. Cerf was instructed in a neatly typewritten note to leave $30,000 in unmarked bank notes at a Dallas department store. He and members of his family were threatened with death unless he followed instructions. A "dummy" package containing blank paper of bank note size was sent to the designated place. A messenger boy obtained the package, but found no one to receive it when he went to the purported point of delivery. Arrival of a rent car driver at a cafe in quest of the package where detectives were waiting led to the arrest of the man and woman. The woman said she lived in Corsicana several months. Both claimed they acted as tools for two men who threatened their lives. This was the second attempt to extort money from Cerf since he paid $15,000 for the safe return of his son. Shortly after his son was released he received a series of notes demanding that he pay $8,000.

OKLA. GOV. TO ISSUE OIL BONDS

Special Correspondent. OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 4.—Governor Murray threatened late yesterday that if it became necessary in his fight for higher priced oil, he would initiate a bill in Oklahoma that would give him the right to issue bonds, build state owned oil refineries and pay for them from a tax on incomes of oil operators. The Governor said he would build the refineries only "as a last resort." His threat came after he was informed Texas oil fields would be opened Saturday under prorotation. Murray has kept Oklahoma wells closed tightly under martial law in an effort to obtain $1.00 oil. "That won't do," the Governor shouted as he received news about the Texas opening. "It's a bad thing to allow each of those wells to flow 225 barrels. They are losing a fight after they won it."

Holloway will attend the meeting as Ranger's representative. Some reduction will be made in the admission prices. OLDEN SCHOOLS WILL OPEN ON SEPTEMBER 7

BY O. FORD. The Olden schools will officially open Monday, Sept. 7, at 9 a. m., with exercises at the Olden Baptist Church. With the exception of the speaker for this occasion, the program will be given by students. Parents are invited to attend. Supt. W. H. Collins states that the enrollment this year will be approximately 225 with several transfers to this school. Much interest is manifest in the addition of some new courses to the regular high school courses. Typing, shorthand and bookkeeping are being added to the regular high school work and because of its practical value bids fair to be one of the most popular classes. Miss Dorothy McCoy is the head of this department. New typewriters were purchased by the Olden school district and have already arrived and are ready for use. Commercial law and commercial arithmetic, two other very practical studies, are included in the regular high school courses and should prove popular. Public school music has been added to the curriculum for the entire school from the primer throughout all grades, including the regular high school courses. Miss Olga McCoy has charge of this department which includes theory, voice and glee club work. Athletics will again play an important part this year. Football under Coach Pickens and girls basketball under Coach Collins, and with most of our star players back this year and the addition of several promising new ones, Olden hopes to be well represented on the gridiron and basket ball courts this season. Olden citizens feel grateful to our taxpayers, and our diligently progressive school board, the combined efforts of whom maintain a high standard at our schools regardless of times or business depressions. With the assurance of nine months of instruction under an excellent faculty, Olden pupils are looking forward to another good year, and expecting it to prove one of the biggest and best years this school has known.

NO WORK, NO EAT.

"No work, no eat," is the slogan of employment agencies of the larger cities of the state where drives for cotton pickers to harvest the bumper 1931 crop of cotton are being made. At Houston the federal employment bureau is preparing to round up 10,000 pickers for farmers in that territory. Bureaus in Fort Worth, Dallas and other cities are likewise endeavoring to turn unemployed to the cotton fields.

For the next two months the ranks of the unemployed in Texas and other cotton growing states should show a great decline. The man without a job and his family, who is near the cotton patch has no reasonable excuse for remaining idle. By some irony of circumstance the picker this year stands to profit more from a bale of the staple than the farmer who has devoted his investment and his season's labor to its production. A price of 50 cents per hundred pounds seems to be the general remuneration for picking. That equals about $7.50 a bale for gathering a crop that brings between five and six cents a pound.

A good picker can make from $1.50 to $2.00 a day and if he has a family whom he can take to the fields with him his earnings are correspondingly increased. That is more money than he can earn at common day labor, and he has no excuse for throwing himself on charity or taking the alternative of starving while the opportunity to drag a sack down the rows exists.

AN OBJECT LESSON FOR ALL.

Here is something for the tax assessors to think about: According to the Chicago Tribune, only a fourth of the owners of personal property in Cook County, Illinois, are assessed for taxes and fewer than a fifth of those assessed pay anything. Those who pay are only 4.99 per cent of the owners.

In Chicago only one out of fifty owners of personal property pay. In the country town, one pays out of each five owners. Thus, of the owners of personal property, ten times as many pay in the country towns as within Chicago.

Rural members of the Illinois Revenue committee have urged a vigorous enforcement of the personal property laws, while some Chicago members have urged that a strict enforcement of the personal property laws, while some Chicago members have urged that a strict enforcement would drive personal property out of Chicago.

If ten times as many pay personal property taxes in country towns as in Chicago, a good way for the state to collect on Chicago personal property now escaping, would be to drive it out of the city into the country where it could be checked up.

This tax situation undoubtedly applies in other states. Before new methods of taxation and increased tax burdens are heaped upon already over-burdened taxpayers and industries, a determined effort should be made to round up the property now failing to pay taxes but which is liable to payment under our existing tax laws.

WHERE TEXAS GAS WEALTH GOES.

Texas may have started on the right track to get something out of its natural resources as they are used up, but it hasn't gone very far with natural gas.

As a result of Texas letting its natural gas go out of the state at practically no return to the original owner, and infinitesimal return to the state, the following news dispatch originates in Chicago:

"Natural gas piped from the Texas fields will bring a 3 1/2 per cent reduction in domestic and 22 per cent reduction in heating rates in Chicago, the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company announced."

Texas natural gas, a fuel supply for cook stoves, for heating and operation of industries that would serve Texas for two centuries if conserved, is being produced in excess of half a billion feet a day. Much of it is wasted outright. That which is sold brings the owner from one to two cents per thousand feet, while Texas consumers are paying up to one dollar for it at the cookstove.

That means the state's two per cent tax is giving the state forty-millionths of one cent for cubic foot for this resource.

And there's no real assurance that the owner will get two cents or the state that microscopic amount. Records of the oil and gas division show that some of the pipeline operators taking the fuel out of Texas, to give Chicago industries a 22 per cent reduction actually, have refused the free gift of 50,000,000 cubic feet a day, delivered at its pipeline.

When you read news like that above, about Texas resources, you may be sure that Texas citizens, through lack of an adequate severance tax policy, are paying for the benefits the other states are getting, as well as the profits the firms taking the Texas commodities are making.

SCIENCE AND HONOR.

According to Maxwell Halsey, traffic engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, science, by producing the modern high speed automobile and smooth highways, has contributed to the accident situation. Therefore, Mr. Halsey reasons, it is up to science to tender first aid in remedying the situation. Among his suggestions to reduce the casualty list, which this year may total 35,000 deaths and 1,000,000 injuries, are:

1. Improvement in street and highway design. The highway of the future must make it difficult for the motorist to have an accident.

2. State and local traffic ordinances must be coordinated so that there will be full cooperation and fixed responsibility.

3. Correct utilization of signs, markings, beacons, signals, etc., can do much to increase safety.

4. Motor laws must be enforced to the maximum possible degree.

5. The public must change its present attitude of indifference toward automobile accidents. If it looked upon the reckless driver as an outlaw, our streets and highways would immediately become safer.

These are sound suggestions that states and municipalities would do well to follow. It is their duty to do the material things necessary to reduce accidents, exactly as it is the duty of the individual driver to operate his car in a careful and prudent manner. Safer highways, better enforcement of modern laws and a new public attitude toward reckless drivers—an "honor code" among drivers—these are strong weapons with which to fight the automobile accident menace.

Something For Tax Payers to Ponder

Here is something for the tax assessors to think about: According to the Chicago Tribune, only a fourth of the owners of personal property in Cook county, Illinois, are assessed for taxes and fewer than a fifth of those assessed pay anything. Those who pay are only 4.99 per cent of the owners.

In Chicago only one out of 50 owners of personal property pay. In the country town, one pays out of each five owners. Thus, of the owners of personal property, ten times as many pay in the country towns as within Chicago.

These are some of the deductions obtained from a study made of the 1929 taxes by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. Rural members of the Illinois revenue committee have urged a vigorous enforcement of the personal property laws, while some Chicago members have urged that a strict enforcement would drive personal property out of Chicago.

If ten times as many pay personal property taxes in country towns as in Chicago, a good way for the state to collect on Chicago personal property now escaping, would be to drive it out of the city into the country where it would be checked up.

This tax situation undoubtedly applies in other states. Before new methods of taxation and increased tax burdens are heaped upon already over-burdened taxpayers and industries, a determined effort should be made to round up the property now failing to pay taxes but which is liable to payment under our existing tax laws.

Her Husband Worked Just Like the Judge

By United Press.
 SAPULPA, Ok. — A globular, poverty stricken negro woman lumbered into County Judge Carl J. Hughes' office seeking financial aid.

She explained that she had no money, worked on a farm and could not make a living.

"What does your husband do?" the judge asked.

"My husband don't do nothin'," she said. "He don't work 'tall. He don't do any more than you do."

 —QUALITY FIRST—

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON B. WAITE
 Shawnee, Okla.

That the secret of the success of a business depends on the quality of the merchandise and the amount of advertising done.

Quality builds a business when assisted by good advertising. The selling of some merchandise must be done by suggestion. Suggest new merchandise through the advertising columns of the newspapers.

A business concern that advertises consistently and persistently never travels on a flat.

Newspaper advertising gives the public confidence in a business.

Confidence helps to insure success. There is nothing that attracts as much attention to a business as newspaper advertising.

When strangers look for the best place to buy they read the ads. For they know that the best business concerns advertise.

Merchandise of superior excellence and quality is always advertised.

Cotton Mills of Texas Have Many Unfilled Orders

AUSTIN—Perhaps the most encouraging feature of the cotton mill situation in Texas is the large number of unfilled orders with which the mills began the month of August, according to the bureau of business research of the University of Texas.

"At 6,321,000 yards, unfilled orders at the end of July were 19 per cent greater than those at the end of June and 43 per cent greater than at the end of July last year," the bureau's report said. "At the present rate of production, unfilled orders are almost two months' run."

"With July production 1.3 per cent less than in June and 20 per cent less than in July last year, shipments showing substantial increases over both last month and July, 1930, and a good supply of unfilled orders, the statistical position of the industry made considerable improvement during July."

"While it is true that four of the Texas mills are closed down and that another six of them operated for only about half of the month, the other 11 mills operated on an average of approximately 22 days, with shifts of 10 hours a day."

Sunday School Lesson, Sept. 6

Text: Acts 13:42-52.
The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 6, dealing with the Gospels, Acts 13:42-52.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist
The success of the early missionary activities in the island of Cyprus led quickly to larger plans for a first missionary journey in Asia Minor.

Paul, apart from going out constantly in the quest of new fields, had had an interest in reaching the Gospel in the region of his birthplace. Thus it was that when Paphos in Cyprus, Paul and Barnabas crossed to the mainland, landing at Perga in Pamphylia. Here for some reason Mark, Barnabas' nephew, left them returning to Jerusalem. The cause of his leaving them is not known. Apparently there was some disagreement. Later Paul and Barnabas went different ways because of contention about whether or not they should take Mark with them.

Apparently they did not stay at Perga but came to Antioch in Pisidia—a city that is to be distinguished from Antioch in Syria where the disciples were first called "Christians." Here at Antioch Paul went into the synagogue on Sabbath Day, and Paul spoke to the Jews summarizing the great developments in religious life of Jewish people and placing in setting the mission and work of Jesus. Either some Gentiles were present in the synagogue or they heard of Paul's address, for he requested that on the following Sabbath that he should preach to them also.

The preaching of the Gospel in this way had the effect that it seemed to have wherever Paul had preached it—some were responsive, some were not, others were aroused with a jury of prejudice. Paul's preaching was full of hope and promise to some, but full of blasphemy to others. Apparently, also, usually the case where old ideas come in conflict, there were mixed motives in those who were stirred to opposition and contention. They were moved by prejudice in favor of their former beliefs and partly by the Paul's preaching attaining a mixed effect.

The outstanding point here is the effect of this situation upon Paul and Barnabas themselves. They saw the attitude of the Jews opposing him and the responsiveness of the Gentiles and determined that his mission was to be among the Gentiles. Thus the Christian missionary enterprise became world-wide and universal in its appeal and its effect. It was a great thing when the experience in Christ extended beyond the territorial bounds, and the Christian missionary enterprise pushed beyond the islands through Asia Minor into Europe. It was a much greater thing when the spirit of this new movement burst the bonds of all narrow, sectarian and racial prejudice, and the Christian missionary enterprise prise began with largeness of vision, with breadth in its setting, and with a largeness of spiritual outlook to match its world-wide vision. The world has grown vastly in size since the days when Paul and Barnabas came into Asia Minor and Paul turned to the Gentiles. In some respects the missionary enterprise and the missionary spirit have not quite kept pace with the growth of the world and with increasing opportunity. The Christian church of today, to be worthy of its Master, must meet these new situations in the spirit of Paul and Barnabas, with the patience of the pioneer exploring new fields and with the depth of the prophet seeking the largest conception of truth.

Keeping Fit

The local boys are working hard for this game, as several places on the team are still in doubt, and as to who shall fill them depends largely on the showing made by contestants next Friday.

HOKI AND SLIDES

By Henry L. Farrell

Sleeves Make the Man
GRAY and white, year after year—gray for road games and white in the home orchard—is the way they have been tailoring big league baseball uniforms ever since I can remember. But by their sleeves ye shall know them.

The sleeves of a major leaguer's working clothes are the places to look for his individuality. Don't trust his cap; they all look alike. And don't pick out his socks or pants; they all wear 'em practically the same. But the sleeves—ah!

Red Sleeves
RED jersey sleeves used to be the vogue. Bob Shawkey, who managed the Yanks last year, set the style when he was pitching regularly in the American League. Bob seldom came on the field without his red jersey showing below the outer sleeve of his baseball shirt.

Lloyd Brown wears them now. The blond Senator pitcher dazzles you with that brilliant red sleeve flashing before your eyes as he lets loose a southpaw slant.

Long Sleeves
YOU know about Dazza's sleeve. The story of Vance's long and flapping sleeve is so old it's legend. He uses it to bewilder the enemy. A tip up the side makes it flap and flutter when old Dazza whips through his powerful right arm. Maybe you think that hadn't ought to bother a batter. Something does, though, as evidenced by his yearly knockout record.

Take Al Simmons' sleeve. The Mackinac mauler wears 'em long and loose. The majority of players order their sleeves chopped off at or near the elbow. But not Al. His hang long, the cuffs down around his wrists. Why? Search me.

No Sleeves
SOME big leaguers play bare-armed—bare from the elbow

Tight Sleeves
PERHAPS you have heard the story of the ball game the Pirates lost in the laundry several years ago. They were playing the Giants. Suddenly the Pirates started throwing the ball wildly. Errors lost the game.

Their new black jerseys, laundered but once on the previous day, shrank when they became damp with perspiration, binding their arms so that they had no freedom of movement in throwing.

Men and Women Pass Tests As Life Savers

WASHINGTON—Several hundred men and women qualified to render first aid to the drowning after 65 weeks life-saving instruction conducted by Red Cross experts, H. F. Enlow, national director of first aid and life-saving, announced here.

Others passed tests for lifers and swimmers. While a number of itinerant instructors have conducted the course and more will be circulated next year, several Red Cross chapters employ year-round teachers, and others promote a water safety program during summer.

A DECEPTION

That The Public Is Openly Warned Against

When You Go to Buy GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN for Pain . . . Watch Out That This Deception is Not Attempted Against You

THIS warning is printed to put the public on guard against a deception which may be practiced against those who seek genuine Bayer Aspirin for pain, headaches or colds.

We take this means of warning you, so you may be able to protect yourself and family against results of such deception.

BEWARE!
Other preparations, we are informed, have been offered at times to those who ask for Bayer Aspirin; and even represented in some cases as being "the same as Bayer Aspirin."

Watch Out! Remember that years ago doctors warned the public against "headache remedies," some of which are heart depressants and unsafe for many people to take.

Then remember how Genuine Bayer Aspirin came. And was acclaimed the world over by leading men of science as SAFE relief for pain, and was prescribed without hesitation by eminent physicians. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

What, folly, then, in the light of these things, to dose yourself with drugs of which you know nothing. Don't gamble—KNOW.

The genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets are made by a special process, under careful supervision of scientists, in the Bayer Laboratories, with over 25 years of highly specialized experience.

So when you want SAFE relief for pain, cold or headache, ask for BAYER ASPIRIN. You have a perfect right to ask for what you want. And an equal right to get what you ask for.

Look for the name BAYER on the package. And the word Genuine in red. Insist on Genuine Bayer Aspirin and refuse to accept a substitute.

MAKING HEALTH INTERESTING TO CHILDREN

It is often very difficult to make children eat foods that are absolutely necessary for them. Every child, for instance, should drink a quart of milk a day. Because milk is one of the most wonderful foods for children.

Many wise mothers have found that Kellogg's ready-to-eat cereals are the easiest as well as the most healthful way of encouraging a child to take plenty of milk. The number of combinations of Kellogg's Cereals with other foods is almost endless and, even over a long period of time, they can be made different and thus tempting to the child's taste.

And then there are so many Kellogg's Cereals too. A favorite for each appetite . . . a preferred dish for every individual. Some like Corn Flakes. Most kiddies are crazy about PEP Bran Flakes. Rice Krispies with their "snap! crackle! pop!" never fail to delight them.

Adding honey or fruit makes a brand-new dish. Serving cereals in combinations is a new taste delight.

In order to help you with the problem of encouraging your child to eat foods that are really good for him, Kellogg has prepared a series of booklets especially for the children. Here in the midst of play, for example, they learn that hot, heavy foods are not so good for them at night as crisp, easily digested cereals—and many other facts that will simplify your feeding the children.

Now is probably the best time for deadening timber. The chemicals making up the formula are 1 pound each of white arsenic, sal soda and common lye together with one and a half gallons of water. Mix the lye and soda in the water and stir in the arsenic. Cut the bark around the tree similar to girdling but only cut through the bark with a downward stroke each time making a continuous trench around the tree. Apply poison mixture at rate of one tablespoonful to each six inches around the tree. Brush and small timbers may be cut off and the stump mopped thoroughly with the poison for a complete kill. There are no sprouts coming out and the tree will rot quicker than if just cut down. Field sprouts may be readily killed in this manner. This mixture costs about 20 cents per gallon. One gallon should deaden timber all around a ten acre field. The method of applying it is light. The mixture is poison.

Broken Lover To Try Again

EL PASO.—Bernice Rush, the only American woman tried for murder in Mexico, is in El Paso, bitter against men but with a fierce determination to stage a comeback.

Three years ago she was a rich modiste who dressed the wives of presidents and diplomats in Mexico City. She had a smart shop at No. 10 Francisco Madero.

Now she is penniless, reduced to begging, her shoes half gone. She hopes to find some western city and get back into the work she loves—selling clothes.

She provided Mexico with one of its greatest slaying sensations when she killed her lover, Genaro Benavente, Dec. 24, 1928, in Mexico City. Miss Rush shot him as the two were going to court together where she was seeking to recover some of the money he had borrowed from her. The court action had been filed only after he had stripped her of her last cent, she claims.

At a spectacular jury trial, she was acquitted Dec. 12, 1929, after having been in jail 11 months and 19 days.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—What about "Egg"?

What about Egg Charley?

"What about eggs?" was one of the things Senator Charles Curtis used to shout when he was campaigning successfully for the vice presidency. Thanks to the tariff and especially to his own efforts, he told the farmers again and again, their hen-fruit was protected against the frozen and dried eggs that had once been imported from China.

Senator Curtis went roaring into his egg story with such gusto and frequency that correspondents who accompanied him came to nickname him "Egg Charley." He returned to Washington with the appellation and it has remained with him through the dignified days of his vice presidency.

But now Curtis is among those who observe with what doubtless resembles dismay that it is the Democrats, with their low cunning, who are yelling.

"Yeah, what about eggs?"

It is Congressman Clarence Cannon of Ellensburg, Mo., who asks the question with special insistence. Congressman Cannon is talking about the Hawley-Smoot tariff in general and in particular the Canadian tariff on maple syrup which was one of the reprisal increases made by Canada.

During the first four months of 1930, Cannon recalls, this country exported into Canada 2,728,500 dozen eggs. In that period Canada was imposing a tariff of only three cents a dozen on shell eggs. But then Canada increased the duty on American eggs to 10 cents a dozen and in the first four months of this year we shipped only 17,968 dozen eggs to Canada, most of which, Cannon says, were for hatching purposes. He adds that as a result the farmers of Missouri, who had been

Former Law Prof. To Teach In Univ.

AUSTIN—Joseph A. Wickes, former professor of law in the University of Texas, has been engaged as professor of criminal law and evidence in the Fort Worth division of Jefferson university, according to recent announcement made by Andrew J. Priest, president of the school of law faculty of the University of Texas, 1928-29, 1929-30, and during the summer session of 1928-29, in the capacity of professor of law. He received the bachelor of arts degree at Princeton in 1917.

WELL, what about Egg Charley? Nobody is answering that one with any assurance. The point at issue is whether Curtis will again be his party's vice presidential candidate when Mr. Hoover runs for re-election. The various theories disagree as to whether Hoover is or is not quite anxious to have Curtis on the ticket. And as to whether Curtis, seeking maximum safety as a veteran jobholder, believes that his best bet is to run again with Hoover or just go after his old seat in the Senate. If Curtis, after weighing the situation carefully, has come to any decision, no one knows what it is. Lately these have been some stories, possibly traceable to sources near one or another of other Republican vice presidential aspirants, which stress the fact that Curtis is now 71 years old and would be 77 by the end of his second vice presidential term.

EGG CHARLIES are something of the again. Egg charlies are alcoholic drinks. They were named after Curtis. It is true, but for no good reason whatsoever because Curtis is notoriously dry. Egg charlies mean one thing in one speakeasy and something else in another, but most egg charlies are mixtures of peach brandy and gin-ger ale, served highball fashion. The one thing all egg charlies have in common is that there's not a speck of egg in any of them. And if you must have a full answer to the question what about egg charlies, it must be admitted that they are not yet extinct.

Klein Bidding For League's Top Honor
 When ballots are cast to decide the National league's most valuable player of the 1931 season, it will be a distinct surprise of Chuck Klein, Phillies' outfielder, fails to receive the honor.
 While the "dead ball" has halted many of the outstanding sluggers of recent years, the youthful Klein has been going along at a fast pace and compiling an enviable record.
 True, Klein's hitting average is off some 40 points from his mark of a year ago, but this decrease is nowhere near as large as that shown by other National league hitters and the Phillies' star is in a fair way to top his circuit in batting.
 Playing with a weak second division club, Klein has failed to secure the publicity accorded many less capable players. However, he has led the National league almost since the start of the season in home runs, in runs scored, in runs batted in, and in total hits.
 No individual player—not even Ruth, Gehrig, or Simmons—has been a more important factor in the offense of any team and Klein's value is recognized by rival players and managers. Rumor has it that Klein will be placed on the trading block to enable the Phillies to recoup financial losses. If this be true the Phillies will be sacrificing a large share of the club's offensive power and the bidding is likely to shove the price up to a new National league record.
Played Big League
 Ball Less Than Four Years.
 Klein has played less than four years of major league baseball—breaking in with the Phillies late in 1928—and it still is too early to compare him to the "all-time stars," although if he continues his present pace he appears likely to be the Ty Cobb of the next 10 or 12 years.
 In his first two and a half years with the Phillies, Klein ran up a batting average of .369—out beyond Cobb, Ruth, Wagner, Hornsby and Joe Jackson. Last year he set a modern league record by scoring 158 runs. He broke his league's record for making long hits with 107. He holds the all-time record for total bases in two consecutive seasons and in addition established a new record for outfield assists.
 In his first 118 games this season Klein scored 102 runs, and made 163 hits for a batting average of .344. His hits included 29 doubles, eight triples and 29 home runs and he was credited with driving home 101 runs.
 With nearly a quarter of the season to go there appears to be little opportunity for the Phillies' star to break any of his previous records but there is more than a possibility that he will lead his league in every individual offensive department—hitting, home runs, runs scored, runs driven in, and total hits.

Schools Will Open in Next Few Weeks

By DIXON STUART, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Soon, very soon, thousands of schools over the state will be opening again, and in the meantime county superintendents and school boards are busily engaged in getting everything in ship shape. Defects in the school water supplies are being corrected, sanitary toilets provided, home-made drinking fountains installed to replace the old bucket and dipper, and the school grounds generally sanitized.
 R. E. McGlamery, county superintendent of Eastland county, called on Dr. F. T. Isbell, county health officer, this week and together they have mapped out a plan of improvements that can be followed at all country schools. The program involves more labor than money and should make an instant appeal to district trustees with plenty of labor available at the present time. They are fortunate also in having Harvey Miller, district sanitarian, representing the state and federal health departments in this district to assist in carrying out a complete sanitation program.
 The following is a rough outline of the work that has been mapped out for the county schools:

 Replace all broken window panes; clean out the stove and give it a good coat of paint; install drinking fountains where possible; see that the water supply is protected from surface drainage and a pump installed where feasible; install a pit type toilet, or better, to replace the old surface privy too often tolerated at country schools.
 School boards will also be urged to consider the matter of compulsory vaccination against smallpox. With the aid of the county nurse and county health officer, clinics may be held and immunization treatments administered to prevent smallpox, diphtheria, and school fever. If parents cannot afford to buy the vaccines, the school board or some public spirited citizen may be willing to provide for that. The county health officer and local physicians are usually willing to administer the treatments free, or at a small charge when group vaccinations are arranged.
 Leaders in parent-teacher organizations also have some preliminary duties. They may wish to provide equipment at least one hot dish for each child at the noon meal throughout the school year. They might also adopt as their slogan: "At least a pint of milk a

 School boards are also urged to provide play equipment for daily weighing, first aid, etc. The playground equipment should be put in good shape and when school opens as to conform with principles of safety and sanitation.

Colorado Town Will Keep Its Poor Warm
By United Press.
TRINIDAD, Colo.—Trinidad's poor will not be cold this winter.

At the suggestion of W. J. Littleton, chief of police, the city has started a wood yard.

Prisoners furnish the labor. Wood is gotten from whoever will give it, or wherever it may be obtained.

The prisoners saw and split it into proper lengths, thereby paying their debt to society and at the same time accomplishing useful tasks, and the poor who are unable to buy fuel can get it free of charge from the woodyard.

INDIGESTION
Take a Pinch of Black-Draught After Meals

If bothered with indigestion after meals, try taking a pinch of Black-Draught just after you leave the table.

Many people do this to avoid indigestion. Mrs. H. A. Goff writes from Sherman, Texas, to say: "I suffered with indigestion—a full feeling—I would almost lose my breath. My food disagreed with me. I began taking a pinch of Black-Draught after each meal, and I found that was the best way. I soon was relieved of so much gas, and the smothering spells did not come on so bad. I soon began to feel much better. Since then, my health is much improved."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pretty Norma Kent, 20-year-old secretary in a law office, marries Mark Travers, son of F. M. Travers, millionaire real estate dealer, after the father has sworn to cut Mark off without a penny if the marriage takes place. Norma has known Mark only a few weeks, did not know during the courtship that he was a millionaire's son.

The story opens in Marlboro, middle western metropolis. Christine Saunders, with whom Norma shared an apartment, and Bradley Hart, Christine's employer, are witnesses at the wedding. Before this Norma has repeatedly refused to marry Bob Farrell, young lawyer of whom she is fond as a friend.

Mark sells his expensive real-estate to get money for the honeymoon trip. He and Norma depart for Blue Springs, fashionable resort. As the train speeds south Mark tells her there is something he has forgotten to mention.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XV

Mark dug one hand down into his waistcoat pocket before he spoke again. He drew out a box. A very tiny box of dazzling whiteness. He snapped the lid back and a gleaming circlet of diamonds appeared. They were set in a band of platinum.

"Almost forgot about this," he said. "Let's see if it fits."

He slipped the jeweled band over the third finger of Norma's left hand. The ring twinkled up at her like star-dust. The tiny diamonds became a disc of fire. They flashed white heat into the dusky train compartment. Or were they tear drops frozen and strung like beads?

"How—how beautiful!"

Words were such useless things. They failed Norma completely. Something hot and choking gathered in her throat. She could not speak. Almost she could not breathe. Never had she dreamed anyone could be so frighteningly, ecstatically happy.

And so because she could not find the words to answer the girl raised her two hands, one to either of Mark's cheeks, hid his face closely for a long instant, and then pressed her lips to his.

Oh, these two were so young, so very much in love!

"But the ring doesn't fit! See—it's just right!" she was insisting a little later.

Mark disagreed. He held up the encircled finger to prove the band slipped about too loosely. There was the possibility of losing the ring. He had not realized what slender, delicate fingers his bride had.

"We can have it made smaller at Blue Springs," he suggested.

Fear that she might lose the wedding ring made Norma agree at once. Words came easily now. Over and over she told Mark how beautiful the diamonds were. She meant this, yet it was not the beauty of the stones and their setting which awed her. It was the significance of the ring. This band on her finger was the symbol of marriage. It told the world she was Mark Travers' wife.

"Good Lord—it IS late! You'll be starved!" Mark made a lunge at the electric button which summoned the porter. Within 15 minutes they were being served dinner.

"Happy, kid?"

"Oh—of course!"

At Blue Springs there began a world of only Norma and Mark with dimly visionary strangers occasionally drifting in and out of the background—waiters who served the meals, chauffeurs who drove the motor cars in which they rode, golf caddies, an orchestra, other dancers who might have been miles away for all their presence on the dance floor meant to these two.

Blue Springs was completely perfect and it was completely theirs.

It was nearly noon when they arrived. True to Mark's prediction the sun was shining. Great, slow clouds, moving so slowly that they seemed stationary, darkened the azure sky by their whiteness. It had been crisp October in Marlboro. Blue Springs was cool enough for light wraps, warm coats that seemed almost wonderful still taking their daily dips.

The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Travers had not been unheralded. Clicking cameras were the first indication of the welcoming committee. Newspaper photographers, having secured informal photographs, asked the newly married couple to pose. White Norma hesitated Mark gave cheerful assent. There was a girl reporter on hand to ask details of the romance. Mark's replies to her questions were sketchy, satisfactory because about them the young woman was able to weave a glowing, modern Cinderella story about the beautiful stenographer who married a millionaire's son.

"And do your parents approve the marriage?" the reporter asked.

"Oh, yes! Certainly!"

The other side of this story reaches telegraphic press service shortly after F. M. Travers, in Marlboro, saw reproductions of the Blue Springs photographs in his morning newspaper. Pungent and brief were F. M. Travers' remarks.

Neither Mark nor Norma read these comments. They posed for the photographers again the second day because the young man had proved friendly and it seemed a simple favor to grant. And since Norma's blond beauty happened to be the sort which photographs ideally, and young love is a subject universally appealing, the pictures appeared in newspapers from coast to coast.

There was no suit in the fashionable Blue Springs Inn more elegant than the one Mark had engaged.

Norma, living in a world of luxurious comforts for the first time, soon came to take such matters for granted. Mark, who was at home in such surroundings, who was constantly introducing her to new luxuries, waved aside questions about money. It was natural for Norma to adopt the same attitude. She left every decision to Mark.

In response to a telegram to his mother Mark's luggage arrived. The couple went to a smart shop and bought sports clothes for Norma. They bought an ivory lace dance dress which Mark said made her look like a dainty porcelain figurine on a Dresden lamp. There were pink roses artfully caught in the lace.

The first night Norma wore this gown she had to refuse dances to three youths Mark had introduced. She couldn't think of dancing with anyone except her husband!

Mark was tactful. It was due to this tactfulness and Norma's blindness to everyone else about them that she did not feel out of place in her new surroundings. It did not occur to her that she was almost the only feminine guest at the Blue Springs Inn who did not play golf or tennis. She gave no thought to the fact that a dozen young women, clad in smart habits and boots and accompanied by escorts, rode regularly on the bridal trails.

She did dance beautifully and the ball room at the Inn, opening on a sky-roofed terrace, was to remain in Norma's memory as a fairyland.

Not once did it occur to her that all this which was so new and wonderful was to Mark an old, old story. Mark had visited Blue Springs many times before. Days of idleness, tramping and motoring, were no novelty to him. Norma should have thought of these things.

She sent off a hurried postcard to Chris. There was no time to waste at letter-writing. Mark did not even bother with postcards.

Four perfect golden days were followed by dark clouds and a drenching torrent. Norma and Mark breakfasted late in their rooms. They dawdled about, put off dressing until nearly lunch time. When they finally arrived down stairs a log fire was blazing in the lounge. Bridge games were in progress.

A matron with gray hair whom Norma had chatted with the day before bustled up to the couple as they stood in the doorway.

"Oh, do join our table, you two!" she trilled. "Mr. Clark's disappeared and Madge and I must have a third and fourth."

"Shall we—?" Mark asked hesitating. "I suppose it's contract."

"But I don't play contract, Mark."

"Really? My dear child, how quaint!"

Mark grinned. "Afraid you'll have to count us out!" he said. "Goodthing, I guess. I never have luck on a stormy day."

"You can play, Mark—I don't mind. I can amuse myself," said Norma.

He shook her arm playfully. "Nonsense. Did I say I wanted to play bridge? Well, I don't. Some of these days, though, you'll have to have some lessons. Everybody plays contract! Half the women I know eat, drink and breathe it. Young one as had as the old—"

They wandered through the lobby into a reading room. Norma could see that Mark was restless. She had been so contented that this disturbed her.

A new magazine—one Mark liked particularly—saved the day. He sighted it on a newstand, returned a moment later with the gaudy-covered periodical.

"Look, Norma—look at Bradwell's latest!"

Bradwell's latest was a drawing in highly satirical vein. Having shared the prize, Mark sank back into a huge club chair and forgot everything else. The girl found a book she had glanced through the day before and settled down to read also.

It was past mid-afternoon before the young man roused himself. He discovered the rain had ceased.

"Like to take a run out and see what the day is like?" he demanded.

Norma threw aside her book. From some mysterious source slippers were produced. They were yellow, voluminous, exactly alike except that Norma's was a trifle smaller. She pulled her old brown-bare over her head.

Mark laughed at her. You look like a brown-eyed Susan!" he declared. "You know—those big yellow wild flowers with brown centers?"

"And you look like a sun flower!" she rallied.

They went out on the portico, and down the steps. The breeze was cool and sharp, invigorating. The trees were dripping from the rain and pools of water stood in low places on the walk. A strong gust of wind sent a shower from the leaves across their path.

Mark look great, striding steps and Norma danced to keep up with him. They were heading directly into the wind.

"Great, isn't it?" he asked, grinning.

"Oh, yes, I love it!"

Color shone in the girl's face. Her blood was racing now. The fresh odor of the outdoors after its drenching was like a bracing draft.

"This storm's not over," Mark warned, inspecting the gray, cloud-hung sky. "We're liable to get soaked!"

"Who cares?"

"Well, if you feel that way about it, young woman, let's go—"

He caught her arm and they raved like children. Fell-mel laughing, they ran until the girl was helpless from lack of breath and from laughter. Then they went on more soberly. Though the wind was cold they were warmed by exercise. They reached a part of Blue Springs neither had ever seen before. Small homes far from the fashionable resort section. Rain had brightened even the dull, cleaned it and made it almost respectable.

"Time to turn back, Norma?"

"I suppose so."

They retraced their steps but before they reached the Inn lightning flashed and a sharp crack of thunder sent them running again. It was raining, not heavily, when Mark and Norma made their final dash up the steps of the hotel.

"Oh, that was fun, Mark!" Norma leaned weakly against a heavy porch chair.

It was at that moment a tall man in brown approached the pair.

"Travers!" he exclaimed. "I didn't know that you were here. When'd you arrive?"

Mark was returning the energetic hand-shake. "Glad to see you, Stone," he said. "Oh, we've been here almost a week. Norma—" he turned toward the girl, "here's someone I want you to know. Hollis Stone—old friend. Stone, this is Mrs. Travers, my wife."

Norma offered her hand. How she managed it she never knew. She raised two blue eyes beneath fluttering lids. Her face had gone paper-white.

"How do you do," she said in a voice that was certainly not her own. She tried to meet the newcomer's eyes again.

In that glance she knew he had recognized her.
