ROBBERIES ARE BUSY IN RANGER

Ranger filling stations burglarized early Monday and a small amount of loot from each place, reports police department indicated.

Police Jim Ingram indicated the three reported robberies discovered that little loot was taken from the stations. One suspect was placed in jail and was held in the jail pending further investigation.

The suspect was not thought to have participated in the robbery though he is said to have been with the two who broke into the filling station to the robberies.

Gulf filling station on Hunt was broken into and a .38-caliber pistol and three books of coupons were taken, with a few cents that had been left in the cash register.

Magnolia station on the corner of Hunt and Oak streets was broken into and some small change taken from the cash register. Merchandise was reported missing.

Powell Service station on Brown road was also entered and a carton of cigarettes and a few cents were taken from the cash register.

Three burglaries were committed by men who were coming in the same way. In each case the door was broken in, the registers rifled and left open with the exception of the registers and pistol, nothing else was taken.

In neighboring cities have been on the lookout for suspects and their descriptions and virtual slavery during the 12 years he sailed the seas.

Suspects in Killing of Racketeer

Paul Carbo (below), former convict, and Vivian Lee (above), 20-year-old night club dancer, were held by New York police as fugitives from justice in connection with the murder of Michael Duffy, Philadelphia racketeer, in Atlantic City, N. J. Carbo and the girl were arrested in a New York hotel room.

LONG SCORES TEXAS PLAN FOR REDUCTION

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7.—Affirming cotton legislation merely restricting acreage "will not raise the price of cotton one-tenth of one cent," Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana today appealed to the legislature and people of Texas to approve a ban on cotton planting in 1932. Copies of his appeal were sent to all leading newspapers in Texas.

"Unless the legislature passes a law immediately forbidding the planting of cotton, they will do the cotton situation no good at all. A law that prohibits 50 per cent or 65 per cent will be as good as no law because it will not only be unconstitutional but it is impossible of enforcement."

"Nobody can swear just what land was planted in cotton the preceding year," the governor said. "It is so easy to fudge a few acres. By intensive cultivation, it is possible to raise as much on half the land as was raised on the whole acreage the preceding year."

Elimination of Worthless Cotton In Survey Urged

SHERMAN, Tex., Sept. 7.—A resolution asking the federal government to omit unmarketable cotton stored in Texas warehouses from its crop estimates will be introduced in the farmer's session of the Texas legislature, Senator Jake J. Loy said today.

Loy's resolution will provide for the appointment of three senators and two representatives to investigate cotton stores and concentration points to ascertain the total amount of stored cotton at the close of the 1930 season.

"ABE LINCOLN OF THE SEA," AT 77, STILL BATTLES FOR WORKERS

Andy Furuseth, Who Freed the Sailors From Bondage, Blames Worthless Stocks for Large Part of Our Present Depression.

BY PHILIP J. SINNOTT, Nea Service Writer
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—At 77, Andrew Furuseth, variously called "the grand old man of labor unionism," and "The Abe Lincoln of the sea," is still actively fighting the battles of those who toil.

Equally at home among millionaires and day laborers, this white-haired veteran of half a century of fiery disputes between workers and their employers continues to tramp the far corners of the world aiding his fellow men.

Furuseth is the president of the International Seamen's Union, but more important is the fact that he is advisor to the American Federation of Labor in nearly every important matter involving questions of human rights which frequently arise in labor disputes and fights for labor legislation.

Andy Furuseth is perhaps the most picturesque of present day labor leaders.

Tall, lean, straight and rugged, with sharp blue eyes, he carries in his veins the blood of the hardy Norsemen of old. He was born in Norway in 1854 and sailed before the mast when yet in his teens.

His former education was meager, yet he has been called a human encyclopedia, for he can talk of any subject from medieval guild system to modern economics. He is logical, terse, quaint and fervid.

Unmarried, Furuseth lives alone in his home at San Francisco, but spends much of his time in Washington, where he has an office in the American Federation of Labor building.

Just recently, he journeyed up the west coast to Portland, Ore., meeting humble seamen as he himself once was, and talking over current problems.

He ascribes a large part of the depression to worthless stocks. "Since 1924," he declared, "more than $24,000,000,000 of worthless securities have been saddled onto the American public. People naturally want to get rich quickly, and as a result, the slick salesman of watered stock has an easy time of it, and we—why, we have a depression period."

There is not much about the seaman's life that Furuseth does not know. He learned a lot and became embittered through his own experiences with rotten food, dirty forecables, brutal masters, and virtual slavery during the 12 years he sailed the seas.

He traveled to most of the ports of the civilized world on Norwegian, Dutch, German, British and American boats. He worked with all sorts of men under all sorts of conditions. He decided that the seaman's lot must be bettered and that it was his task.

Finally, he quit the sea and came ashore at San Francisco in the '80's. Seated on a few drifted ship timbers he formed the first Seamen's Union of the Pacific and set out on a campaign for reform.

In 1902 he was leader in the organization of the International Seamen's Union of America. In 1904, he went to Washington and laid a program before Congress. For 21 years he fought courageously for human rights and in 1915 the act known as the La Follette seamen's law, was passed.

Thus the American sailor was assured being treated as a human being.

He had succeeded in 1908 in preventing all American ships in American harbors from imprisoning sailors who left their ships in port, and the La Follette law added the same provision regarding foreign ships in American harbors.

He attended international meetings of transport workers and, almost single-handed, battled wealthy ship owners in many foreign countries in an effort to gain new rights for the sailors.

Furuseth became a dominant figure at American Federation of Labor meetings and was consulted about great strikes among iron and steel workers and other union men.

Old and independent, he is respected by every union man in America. His friends in foreign countries are legion. His knowledge of law and history, gained from long hours of study, have so well stocked his mind that he is seldom contradicted.

Furuseth's aims are still those of rugged righteousness; to provide and maintain adequate wages, working and living conditions through unionism, to keep his men in line, to make them save their money, keep sober and learn that to win others' respect they must first respect themselves.

ITALIAN TOWN HONORS SAINT

VITERBO, Sept. 7.—A quaint and impressive religious procession, with a folk-like background of the kind common in Italy, took place here in honor of the town's patron, St. Rose.

Something like the "lilies" of Nola in South Italy, or the "candelies" of Gubbio in Umbria, Viterbo has its "machine," an imposing structure decorated with over a thousand candles and bearing an image of the saint.

The "machine" was, according to the old custom, carried in solemn procession through the streets of Viterbo to St. Rose church.

The "machine," which is something like an enormous reliquary, was so high that its top reached to the upper windows of the houses as it was carried through the streets by 50 men. It has been carried in procession every year since 1662, when the procession was originated to invoke the saint's aid in warding off an epidemic.

LESSON-SERMON GIVEN

The lesson-sermon subject was "MAN" in all Churches of Christ. Sept. 6.

"Lo, this only I found, that God hath made man upright," was the golden text, taken from Ecclesiastes 7:29.

The service included the following passages from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness; and let them have dominion." "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them"—Genesis 1:26, 27.

These citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mark Baker Eddy, were also read (pp. 475, 515, 284).

"The Scriptures inform us that man is made in the image and likeness of God. Man is the family name for all ideas,—the sons and daughters of God. Science reveals the glorious possibilities of immortal man, forever unlimited by the mortal senses."

Ranger, Dallas Divide Double Header Sunday

Too much Rogers in the first game and too much Victor in the second might describe the double-header between Ranger and Dallas Lone Star teams Sunday afternoon which resulted in a 5 to 0 victory for Ranger in the first game and a 11 to 0 victory for Dallas in the second.

In the first encounter Rogers, pitching for the Ranger team, allowed but five hits, one of which was a double by Victor, who was playing third base in the first game.

In the second game, with Victor pitching for the Dallas club, the Rangers got but two hits, both singles, and the locals failed to score. Lined up against the Dallas sluggers were four pitchers, but none of them could stem the tide of base hits and Dallas easily won the game. Those who twirled in the nightcap were Tenders, Cook, Fox and Faircloth.

A crowd estimated at around 2,000 witnessed the double bill.

These two teams will meet again in Ranger on Sept. 20 to play off the tie that now exists. In one of these games Victor and Rogers may meet in what promises to be a real, old-time pitcher's battle.

Victor was formerly with the Dallas Stars and Rogers pitched in the old West Texas league several years ago.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY

NEA Service Writer

Quince Chips

Six pounds quinces, 10 cups crystallized sugar, 1-4 pound crystallized ginger, 3 lemons.

Waste the quince, remove core. Cover with water and cook until fruit is tender and water is evaporated. Wash lemons and remove seeds. Cut ginger in paper-thin slices. Add lemon, sugar and ginger to juices and cook until mixture is thick. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

This is a very rich preserve particularly good with cold meats. There are also many delicious desserts usually associated with apples that are equally good made with quinces. Baked quince dumplings, quince jelly, quince tarts, quince whip and baked quinces are a few seasonal desserts. Quince sauce is made just like apple sauce and serves as the foundation for many desserts. Remember that sugar added to the fruit is cooked always makes a more delicately flavored sauce than if the sugar is cooked with the fruit. This rule holds with quinces, apples or any stewed fruit.

Quince Honey

Core and core quinces. Grate or put through food chopper. Measure. To three cups of grated quince add 1 cup of water and cook until fruit is tender. Slowly sift in four cups of granulated sugar and cook 15 to 20 minutes longer. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin when cupboard shelves.

Quince honey is decidedly old-fashioned. You will find many uses for it. Combined with cream cheese in sandwiches or served plain with hot rolls or toast are two popular ways to use it but a few spoonfuls added to jellied fruit salads and desserts give an unusual and intriguing flavor.

Constance Bennett Thrills Audience

Constance Bennett, called the screen's most highly-paid actress, was enthusiastically received at the Columbia Theatre last night, in her latest and greatest starring vehicle, "Bought," a Warner Bros. production.

She plays the part of Stephany Dale, a modern girl brought up in poverty and compelled to bear the slings and arrows of gossip who twirls her about her doubtful birth. Stephany determines early to get into high society, for money and position, so she believes, safely shield their possessors from unhappiness.

Miss Bennett exquisitely depicts the emotional role and she is ably supported by Ben Lyon, who plays the part of the poor scribbler who is deserted for a time, and in the end seems to her a rather good substitute. The ancient benefactor who is always in the offing to give help is played with splendid vividness by Richard Bennett, father of the star.

"Bought" is an adaptation of "Jackaws Strut," the novel by Harriet Henry Archie Mayo deserves high commendation for his direction. "Bought" is the play you have been looking for. Don't miss it.
