END OF DEPRESSION?

President Hoover's titanic effort to set up circulation again in the stagnating channels of trade and major finance, deserves to rank along with his intergovernmental debt moratorium proposal as another "noble experiment." With his proposal for a National Credit corporation gaining a virtually unanimous support among the banks of the nation, the president appears approaching success in his purpose to restore free credit movement for the liquifying of great masses of frozen assets by throwing the influence of governmental leadership and sanction into the uncertainties of the situation. He is now turning to measures for strengthening railroad finance and stabilizing the small banks of the country. Congressional support of the president's plans seems assured by the agreement of contending party leaders who were called into conference by the executive when the proposals were broached.

In principal the main points of the president's program are:

American bankers have been asked to form a national institution with capital of at least $500,000,000 to rediscount assets not now eligible for rediscount by federal reserve banks. President Hoover holds that this would aid banks whose assets are frozen.

He has asked and will continue to ask the governors of federal reserve banks to persuade bankers to make advances on the assets of closed banks or to take over some of the assets. He has asked federal reserve officials to effect organization of banking committees in each district to cooperate with New York bankers.

He will propose to congress that the federal reserve credit rule be changed to permit liberalization of their advances.

He will recommend the subscription of further capital by the government to federal land banks in aid of farmers.

Lastly, if necessary, he will recommend the creation of a finance corporation similar in character and purpose to the war finance corporation with funds sufficient for any legitimate cause.

He promises that this will lead to an expansion of the volume of money in circulation, that it will lead to the expansion or extension of credits, that it will place hope in the hearts of the millions who are cramped and will go a long way toward ushering in the restoration of public and private confidence. Former Congressman Oscar Calloway of Texas in 1914 fought the enactment of the federal reserve bank measure to the last ditch. He declared that if placed in the hands of the seven members of the federal reserve banking board the control of credits, the control of the volume of money in circulation, the absolute control of the national banks of the country and that in the long run it would lead to disastrous results and invite panicky conditions in days of distress. Now the sage of Comanche county thinks that he is sitting on the top of the world as a prophet.

BANKERS CONDEMN SHORT SELLERS.

Public censure of selfish short sellers was urged at the American Bankers association convention at Atlantic City. Public censure of short sellers would be very much like a slap on the wrist as a penalty for the act condemned by the bankers. Timid depositors who create runs on banks are as great a menace as the short sellers. San Antonio has had three bank failures in recent years. These failures were caused by timid depositors. They withdrew their money from the bank and from circulation regardless of the saying of a noted Alamo judge that $1 in the bank is more powerful than $10 in the sock. President Hoover hit the nail on the head in his conference address when he said that in many districts in the United States "foolish alarm has been accompanied by wholly unjustified withdrawal of currency from the banks." Foolish alarm on the part of depositors caused the withdrawal of $12,000,000 from three banks in San Antonio in 18 months and tied up more than $8,000,000.

Certification of Pecan Root Stock Planned By State

Special Correspondent

AUSTIN.—Proposing to establish for the first time in the history of the pecan industry, a source of completely labeled and accurately represented pecan nursery stock under state supervision, the state department of agriculture has set up a voluntary register for nurserymen dealing in pecans.

Evolved by J. M. Del Curto, chief state nursery inspector, and J. H. Burkett, in charge of the edible nuts division, the register already has received high commendation from leaders in the pecan industry. Oscar S. Gray of Arlington, secretary of the Texas Pecan Growers association, applied for the first certificate "in this forward step for the development of the pecan industry."

The plan is for a voluntary register of all pecan nurserymen who desire to participate. Tags will be furnished them, at actual cost, showing the variety, root stock, age of root stock, age of top, selection may not be detected for where grown, by whom and a personal guarantee from the nurseryman that the information given on the tags is correct.

The department reserves the right to refuse to issue tags whenever information given is false or inaccurate. Inspectors from the division of edible nuts, without additional expense to nurserymen, will maintain an inspection service of the certified nurseries. The only cost to the nurseryman will be cost of printing the tags.

Effect of this departure, Del Curto said, should be to establish for the pecan industry what already has been done for growers of cotton and field crops.

Under the state's plan of certification, provided for by law, breeders of cotton, sorghum and of cotton, sorghum and small grains may apply for certification of their seed after certain requirements regarding varietal purity and uniformity have been met. Certification is attested by the familiar red tag, and this tag is the protection of the buyer.

Pecan growers, have had no source of information regarding their nursery stock other than the knowledge possessed by the retail nurseryman. Often this has been incomplete. Since an erroneous

WASHINGTON — Hundreds of failed banks, develop ambitions to become federal post offices.

Fifty or more have been leased. It is estimated at the Post Office Department, but most of them are unsuitable or too expensive.

The heavy run of bank failures in the past few years has been followed by a corresponding flood of offers to rent the properties to the government. Members of Congress are often besought to put over such deals. Usually, however, the bank offered has a big vault in the center of the floor space which can't be removed feasibly or it isn't fit for handling mail in bulk. Bank buildings are generally so well constructed and located that the rental is high—and the Post Office Department is looking for low bidders.

Few things cause such a buzz on Capitol Hill as an attack on the old familiar practice of nepotism—which means placing relatives on the government payroll because they are relatives. Members of Congress are sensitive on this point, with considerable reason. Their secretaries and clerks, paid from a government allowance, are forever beefing about it—usually in confidential whispers. Many of them are doing the work for which a member's wife, brother, son, cousin or nephew is being paid, or fear that they may some time share the fate of those they have seen fired to make way for such a relative. Those who aren't any relation to the boss seethe with indignation at each new example of such favoritism. Lately they have been turning copies of the current Atlantic Monthly, which carries an extensive survey of nepotism here, naming scores of names and proving that the system is widespread.

Del Curto explained that widely varying climatic and soil conditions of Texas make it essential that the pecan nursery stock be adapted to the section in which it is to be planted.

"We hope by this voluntary, inexpensive register to not only protect the purchaser of stock, but to take a definite forward step toward standardizing the pecan industry, one of the greatest assets of Texas agriculture," Del Curto said.

It is hoped, he stated, to work out a similar system of voluntary certification for citrus nursery stock, and if the two voluntary registers meet with public approval, legislative approval of them may be sought.

When counting or handling sheets of paper, moistening the finger tips with glycerin will aid in quickly separating the sheets.

The government is getting out a leaflet describing six very special ways to make nice, comfortable rompers for kids—ample room for stooping and crawling, instructions about fabrics that don't collect dirt, designed to simplify the business of dressing. Page the Bureau of Home Economics.

The Prohibition Bureau is emphatically opposed to the practice adopted by certain gangs in a favorite speakeasy of the recent American Legion convention at Detroit who discovered a prohibition agent in their midst, stripped off his clothes and deposited him in the street completely unclothed. There used to be much agitation for putting agents, border patrolmen and other enforcers in distinctive uniform when they were shooting at motorists who thought they were handits, but the demand has passed now that prohibition killings are down to a minimum and officials say that trick was uncalled for.

PARIS.—Little tufts of hair may now be added onto any part of a bald, or getting bald head. The coiffures have learned to blend the color and texture of hair so perfectly that it is impossible to tell where a section is real, or artificial. There is also a new method of making it stick in place, which takes its origin from the mirrors and so forth that may be stuck on a wall, or a piece of furniture, or glass and the section of a rubber tip on the handle holds it in place. The material used for the new hair "patches" is of similar composition.

This is a fashion note that gentlemen may avail themselves of as well as women—or rather do avail themselves of every day here. A very nice cluster of curls is easily attached to the rest of the hair to cover a feminine ear left rudely to the wind when a one-

Hoosier Owns One Of First Typewriters

HUNTINGTON, Ind.—William Peeler, living here, has what he believes to be the first typewriter built in the United States. With the original machine Peeler believes he has the first typewriter letter sent through the U. S. mails.

The letter was written by his father, Abner Peeler, June 19, 1868. It was addressed to his wife at their home in Webster City, Ia. At the time, Peeler was traveling by stagecoach to Washington, D. C., to obtain a patent on the machine.

The model Peeler took to Washington he found to be too large to come under the patent law. He returned to his home and spent two years making improvements.

On his second trip to the capital he learned that the idea had been duplicated and sold for $4,000. Peeler, however, was paid $1,500 for improvements.

MARSHFIELD, Ore.—Back in 1914 Mrs. William Kibler had a telephone installed in her house. For 17 years she retained the same number. Recently the telephone company gave her a new number.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

SOME cuts of meat are less expensive per pound than others for several reasons. Tenderness, lack of waste and ease of preparation all are determining factors in the price of meat. But if more fuel must be used in cooking the "cheap cut," if there is less edible meat in the whole and if more pounds must be purchased for a meal, the merit of the cheap cut is doubtful.

However, if housewives will plan to cook those cuts that require long cooking while the oven is going for baking, the cost of fuel is decreased.

The waste is made up in the delicious flavor of the dish. Long, slow cooking develops a rich, appetizing flavor. Casserole dishes combine vegetables with meat in such a way that all the juices are preserved.

By using all the meat the housekeeper makes it possible for the butcher to sell the choice cuts at a more reasonable rate. If we demand porterhouse exclusively the butcher finds himself with flank steak and chuck roasts on his hands to such an extent that he must charge a seemingly exorbitant price for the meat he does sell to make up for what he cannot market.

Some morning when the oven is set for baking, put in this rolled flank of beef. Then at dinner time, when the oven is for an hour and a half, take the extra vegetable or pudding while the meat is finishing. The steak will cook in the heat of the cooling oven and also in its own heat in the morning so an hour at dinner time is enough to thoroughly cook the dish.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: toast, tomato juice, cereal, cream, buckwheat pan cakes, syrup, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Celery and rice in egg sauce, lettuce sandwiches, molded pears, milk, tea.
DINNER: Rolled flank steak, scalloped potatoes, creamed new turnips, apple ring salad, green tomato pie, milk, coffee.

Rolling Flank Steak
The steak should be scored by the butcher or at home before preparing for the oven.
Make a paste of 1-2 teaspoon mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, and 3 tablespoons vinegar. Spread meat with paste cover with stuffing, roll and tie the Dredge with flour and bake as suggested for two hours in a slow oven.
Stuffing: Two cups stale corn-bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon minced onion.
1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon salt, hot water.
Mix salt, pepper and onion with bread crumbs. Add melted butter and mix lightly with a fork. Add hot water, carefully mixing with fork. The dressing should be moist enough to hold together, but not sticky or pasty.
Do not roll the steak too tightly. Blind securely with cord. When ready to serve, cut the cord and remove from roll.
Another good way to cook a flank steak is in a casserole with vegetables. Spread steak with paste as in preceding rule and cut the steak to fit the casserole. Arrange in layers with carrots, potatoes, turnips and onions. Season with salt and pepper, add 1 cup boiling water, cover and bake an hour and a half in the morning and an hour at dinner time. Serve from casserole.
Flank steak is also spread with the paste, "smothered" with a thick layer of thinly sliced onions and baked in a covered frying pan in a slow oven for two hours. One-half cup boiling water is added when steak is put in the oven.

Move to Restore Robert Lee Home Is Undertaken

A movement to restore "Stratford," the ancestral home of Robert E. Lee in Westmoreland county, Virginia, is being undertaken by 29 states, one of which is Texas. Mrs. J. Lee Davis of Waco has been chosen director for Texas and Mrs. W. E. Darden of Waco has been appointed state publicity chairman for the same moment.

As the birthplace of General Robert E. Lee, the very name of "Stratford" deeply stirs all people of southern birth or tradition. As perhaps the most unique and interesting colonial house now standing in America, as the home of the first American-born governor of Virginia, and of two signers of the Declaration of Independence, "Stratford's" historic importance to the whole nation is at once apparent.

This is the first movement in America to honor General Lee, this preservation of the rare old mansion house in which he and his ancestors were born. The southern women who inaugurated the plan, headed by Mrs. Charles D. Lanier, daughter-in-law of the poet, Sidney Lanier, seek to make "Stratford-on-the-Potomac" a national shrine to honor Lee just as Mt. Vernon honors Washington.

The week of Oct. 25 to 31 will be used in Texas for a state-wide campaign of a dollar per person for the Lee Memorial fund. Twenty-five leading Texas women will be simultaneously engaged in the larger cities directing local campaigns for this purpose.

The national treasurer, Miss Helen Knox, now of New York, is a Texas woman, formerly of Giddings, Texas, and Dr. Stockton Axson of Rice institute at Houston is of the national advisory board, along with Franklin D. Roosevelt, Viscountess Astor and many others of equal prominence in Dallas, through the efforts of Mrs. Lewis Danbey, local chairman, has sent in a preliminary contribution of $1,700, and the Texas Society of Colonial Dames, of which Mrs. W. E. Darden of Waco is state president, has contributed $100 already.

Since General Lee was in Texas for a period of five years, beginning in 1856 with his service in the war with Mexico, it is natural that Texans should become immediately identified with any enterprise to honor the great southern commander. Twenty-nine states are joining in this great plan to complete the purchase of beautiful old "Stratford" in Westmoreland county, Virginia, 100 miles from Washington. The estate comprises 1,100 acres, fronting two miles on the Potomac river and cost $240,000. Of this amount only $65,000 remains to be paid. It is expected that Texas will certainly do her part to honor Robert E. Lee.

Gideon, professor of architecture, University of Texas, Austin; Rhodes S. Baker, Dallas, Texas; Mrs. W. H. P. McFadden, state regent, D. A. R. of Texas, Beaumont; Mrs. T. S. Maxey, state regent for Mrs. Vernon, Austin; Mrs. Lane Taylor, president Conservation society, San Antonio; Senator Tom Connally, Marlin; Miss Mary J. Palm, honorary president Texas Society of Colonial Dames, Austin; Mrs. W. E. Darden, president, Texas Society of Colonial Dames, Waco; Judge Charles Boynton, federal judge, El Paso; Mrs. Pervy V. Pennybacker, past president General Federation of Women's Clubs, Austin; Dr. H. Y. Benedict, president, University of Texas, Austin; Judge R. L. Batts, president board of regents, University of Texas, Austin.
