BANKERS AGREE ON COTTON HOLDING

While Almee and Davie are re-visiting everything else in erudite Boston, there's grave danger of re-visiting a new flock of absent-minded professor gags.

PLAN FUND TO KEEP COTTON FROM MARKETS

Bankers of Other States To Discuss Similar Plans of Relief.

DALLAS, Oct. 20.—Texas bankers today agreed to aid in financing a plan proposed at a conference of southern bankers in New Orleans recently whereby several million bales of cotton will be held off the market to improve the price.

About 300 members of the Texas Bankers association attending the special meeting pledged to furnish loans whereby several million bales could be withheld from the market.

DALLAS, Oct. 20.—Methods of curbing the economic ills of the cotton industry and the financial situation as far as frozen assets are concerned are expected to be worked out today at top conferences of bankers.

The Texas Bankers Association is to meet to consider ways of how Texas bankers can finance cotton that will be held off the market as part of a plan to withhold several million bales from the market in the United States.

While the Texas bankers in session bankers of other cotton states also will be meeting.

The Dallas Clearing House association is to meet to make arrangements for subscribing Dallas' share of the capital of the National Credit corporation, designed by President Hoover to thaw frozen assets over the country.

Fort Worth, Oct. 20.—In a downtown gun battle witnessed by soon crowds, Leonard Lee, 26-year-old negro, was killed, and Ed Seay, 26, white, was wounded today.

The shooting was at the Club parking station. A bullet in Seay's right chest. His brother, Floyd, told police the negro pulled a gun when they drove into the station and shot first. The negro and Seay had a fight Sunday, it was learned.

Negro Killed in Fort Worth Street Gun Fight Today

Chicago Fire Cow Cleared of Blame

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Justice finally has been done for Mrs. O'Leary's cow, John P. Keefe declares, and if so a middle western American folk tale has been shattered.

The children of the middle westeners for three-score years have grown up believing as implicitly as the Washington cherry tree story, that on Oct. 9, 1871, a certain Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over her mistress' lantern and precipitated the great Chicago fire.

Mrs. O'Leary's cow became a symbol. The drama in the tabloids of a cow as the agent of a force which reduced Chicago to the ruins upon which a glorious new city was built was too obvious to be missed.

Now comes John P. Keefe with a story about a group of boys, a hay loft and a clay pipe.

"Back in 1888," said Keefe, who was 15 at the time of the fire, I met a man who said he and three other boys started the fire. I can't remember his name now. The story was told even in those days that even if Mrs. O'Leary's cow had kicked over the lantern, that didn't start the fire.

"This fellow said he and the other boys were hiding in Mrs. O'Leary's hay loft and saw her walk the cow. When they left they got out their clay pipe to steal a smoke. Sparks from the pipe started the Great Chicago Fire."

NATIONALIZATION OF COAL MINES DEMANDED.

Norman Thomas of New York is a big voice of the socialists of America. For years he was a minister of the gospel, very gifted and very eloquent. He is an orator of high rank, a writer of distinction, a star in politics and for years has been one of the aces of welfare workers. He demands an extra session of congress. He urges his fellow Americans to demand an appropriation by congress of $5,000,000,000 to conduct the necessary war against poverty, which sum is to be paid out of income and inheritance taxes, specially on the higher brackets. He demands the abolition of private ownership of the coal industry. He would nationalize the industry. He would have congress do it. He would not confiscate the mines. He would pay the owners for the property. Payments should be made by bonds, issued by the federal government, amortized in 30 years income from which should be subject to federal taxation.

There are republican and democratic leaders who call themselves conservatives who insist that silver should be remonetized and the mines of this country and Mexico reopened to furnish the supply of silver dollars. English socialists attempted to nationalize the coal industry of England. Now their party has gone to pieces and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has been deserted by his followers. He may lose the prime ministership as a result of the general election to be held on the British Isles on Oct. 28.

There is something happening every day the world over and should China and Japan engage in a bloody war for the possession of Manchuria the financiers as well as the statesmen of the world may have another bloody as well as hopeless problem to solve. Japan will never abandon Manchuria. "To have and to hold" is the slogan of the Japanese. Absolute possession of Manchuria is the objective point and the sword will settle it in the last analysis. It hasn't been written in the book that China is able to vanquish Japan, but in coming years the Yankee of the Orient may be driven to his island by the modern Mongolian and his gun fighters. This is a great age in which we live. Sensational incidents and events are being recorded daily the world over.

FOSTERING THE LOVE OF GOOD MUSIC.

An announcement by M. H. Aylesworth, President of the National Broadcasting Company, gives the details of a plan designed by that organization to foster both the love of good music and its creation.

The company is offering five awards, totaling $10,000, and ranging in value from $500 to $5,000, for compositions conceived and fully scored for the symphony orchestra. The only other conditions are that the composer must be an American citizen, or an alien resident who has taken out his first papers, and that his work will not exceed twelve minutes' playing time. All works will be considered with absolute impartiality and the final awards will be judged by a committee composed of representative musicians from all parts of the country. The contests will be under the direction of Deems Taylor, one of the United States' most distinguished composers.

That this plan, only the bare outline of which has been given here, would produce splendid results, goes without saying. It will make possible the discovery of talent which otherwise might have been hidden through lack of opportunity. And it should do much to interest the general public, which is largely composed of devotees of the radio, in good American music and American composers.

A REPUBLICAN SENATOR ON THE WAR PATH.

Senator Hiram Bingham, republican of Connecticut, is on the war path. He is one of the scholars of the senate, a famous flyer and is for preparedness at all times. He is for revolutionary changes in the 18th amendment as well as the Volstead act. In a recent address he declared the United States had too much government and that the federal government should desist from taking on new burdens. Senator Bingham is an ultra champion of states rights. This is the warning he handed to his fellow countrymen, "one by one our liberties are being taken away from us. One by one opportunities for individual development are being destroyed. One by one the responsibilities which develop sturdiness in the citizen are being taken away and he is being coddled like a child." Senator Bingham, a Connecticut Yankee, talks like an old school democrat. He is in the wrong political pew.

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam doesn't want any stenographers who can't correct mistakes the boss makes in dictation.

With 40,000 young women applying for some 2500 federal jobs as stenographers and typists he can afford to be choosy and he is. The Civil Service Commission has devised what it calls "horse sense tests" which are supposed to determine a girl's ability to use her head.

Proficiency at dictation, transcription and spelling are essential, of course, for stenographers. Dictation in the examinations is at 120 words a minute for senior stenographers and 96 for junior stenographers. But, as Herbert E. Morgan, the commission's director of recruiting, says:

"Everybody who dictates stuff and gets interested in his subject and off on a long, involved sentence may forget the tense, person or number. A good stenographer will correct that, but lots of them give the letter back without change. A lawyer who dictates something about a partition suit doesn't want his secretary to ask him if that's something like a divided skirt."

THE typists we want are those who, when copying, will have sense enough to correct obvious errors or palpable misprints. Sometimes you feel like throwing a cuspidor at them when they explain that "That's the way it was in the copy."

The commission established the "horse sense" test experimentally last year, when an unprecedented number of applicants took a stenographic test. Only a third of the girls passed the exam. About half the typist entrants usually pass. This year the "horse sense" test has been improved.

It does seem as if the dumb, gum-chewing type of stenographer has been the butt of at least a fair share of jokes, but the commission says solemnly:

"Stenographers differ more in judgment, knowledge of spelling and ability to use English than most people believe."

A general idea of the government's intelligence test may be gleaned from such simple questions as these, the commission advises:

"Read the next paragraph and answer the question that follows it."

"Just as the procedure of a collection department must be clear-cut and definite, the steps being taken with the sureness of a skilled chess player, so the various paragraphs of a collection letter must show clear organization, giving evidence of a mind that, from the beginning, has had a specific end in view."

"According to the statement, which of the following should be true of a collection letter? It should: 1. Show a spirit of sportsmanship. 2. Always be divided into several paragraphs. 3. Express confidence in the debtor. 4. Be brief, but courteous. 5. Be carefully planned."

OR try this one—

"Which of the following is the chief value of a good mimeographing machine in an office? 1. It affords a quick way of getting out form letters. 2. It gives the 'personal touch' to each letter. 3. It is not as large as the multigraph. 4. It gives the office a business-like appearance. 5. Mimeographed matter is more effective than typed or printed matter."

Or again—

"The saying 'If you know positively what you are about, your work is half done,' means most nearly: 1. Work which is not planned is seldom half done. 2. An optimistic attitude is half of success. 3. Complete understanding of a task is a big part of its accomplishment. 4. By the time your work is half done, you should know what you are about. 5. The attitude of the worker is more important than his skill."

Your answers to those three sample tests would be five, one and three or you would be suspected of being dumb.

Besides the "horse sense" questions the stenographer examination includes tests on dictation and transcription, vocabulary, spelling and grammar.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
 Shawnee, Okla.

It is strange that America, the land of prohibition, should find it necessary to pursue an intensive campaign for the purpose of detecting motorists who have looked upon the hooch when it was red.

Yet it is the truth and a vague idea of the thoroughness with which the police are tackling the matter can be gauged from the fact that a doctor has invented an apparatus which detects an alcoholic breath even if it is disguised in cloves, coffee, peppermint, or any other of the time-honored aids calculated to defy discovery.

The apparatus is portable and immediately he suspects a driver of having had one over the eight, the cop merely asks the suspect to blow up a toy balloon. The balloon is then slipped on a pipe attached to a container filled with a pink liquid. If the suspect's breath is pure and undefiled, nothing happens. If there is the slightest trace of alcohol, the pink solution turns white. Should the suspect refuse to undergo the test, the cop has merely to hold a small suction tube to the victim's nose and the result is the same.

The West Texas State Teachers' college, Canyon, recently obtained the celebrated Chicago Madrigal Club music library of 40,000 pieces.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

AUSTIN.—More than 60 per cent of all surgical work in hospitals is human patchwork after automobile accidents, Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston pointed out here.

And 40 per cent of all that surgical work is never paid for, being done by those who can't or won't or don't pay. These are figures Senator Holbrook said were furnished by the surgeons themselves.

To him Senator Holbrook said it strongly stressed two things:

1. The enormous toll and wastage in automobile accidents.
2. Imperative necessity of a regulation to license all car drivers and put every licensed driver under indemnity bond against the injury and damage he does to others.

The greatest public demand for any legislative action at the regular session last January was the universal licensing of car drivers, to stop the needless killing of 30,000 people in Texas a year and destruction of millions of property.

It failed to get attention of the legislature that was busy passing 500 local squirrel bills, bills to safeguard fox hunting and to protect fee-grabbers.

Suppose the national guardsmen on duty in East Texas were to go on a rampage. Suppose they marched on the town of Kilgore, on a shot down every person in the town, then hurried on to Glade-water and shot to death every man, woman and child there.

That would cause a public outbreak of wrath, and would shock the nation.

Yet the legislature of Texas sat by complacently and let the same destruction of human life go on this year, the same bloodshed and slaughter. They allowed probably 30,000 more people to be maimed for life and hundreds badly injured.

It wasn't the legislature's fault wholly. When the people want protection at the hands of the legislature they have to make their voices heard above the constant din of the lobbyists for special interests and the lobbyists for indus-

Vegetable And Fruit Shipments Show Increase

Special Correspondent.
AUSTIN—Carload shipments of Texas fruits and vegetables held up better during September than was expected with the result that total shipments amounted to 164 cars, an increase of almost 200 per cent over loadings for the corresponding month in 1932 and a drop of 74 per cent from August as against a normal seasonal decline of 88 per cent. These figures were obtained from the bureau of business research of the University of Texas.

"September marked the appearance of the first grapefruit for the 1931-1932 season," the bureau's report showed. "That many new orchards are coming into bearing is indicated by the fact that grapefruit shipments for September of 39 cars are the highest on record for that month."

"Watermelon and cantaloupe shipments dwindled down to 29 and 31 carloads, although loadings of both of these products are well above those for the corresponding month last year. Honey dew melons totaling 18 cars and 19 carloads of mixed melons were shipped during September; no shipments of these melons were made either in August or in September last year."

"Prices of fruits and vegetables, as indicated by the index of the United States bureau of agricultural economics based on the average for 1914 as equal to 100, took another drop during September, the index falling 14 per cent from 97 in August to 82 in September. At this level, prices of fruits and vegetables are 44 per cent lower than in September last year."

"Total loadings for the third quarter at 4,296 cars lacked about 14 per cent of equalling those for the same period last year. Although shipments of sweet potatoes, tomatoes, grapes, and mixed vegetables were somewhat smaller than in the third quarter of 1932, the drop in watermelon loadings of 1,156 cars accounts for the decline in the total, since this decrease amounts to 484 cars more than the decline in the total. Unsatisfactory prices in the fruit and vegetable market centers accounts to a large extent for the decline in watermelon shipments, since a record watermelon crop was produced in Texas."

Coastal Canal Project Again Before Public

BALLAS—A review of intracoastal canal projects, which will give waterways to Texas' largest exporting area as well as to its raw material producing territory, will be made by the Trinity Canal association here Oct. 25.

A week later the Intracoastal association holds its annual meeting at Corpus Christi. During the last two years the task of creating streams into canals has made rapid progress after a quarter of a century of agitation. Work is now under way between the Sabine lake and Morgan City on the Atchafalaya river, where the canal division. One branch continues east to New Orleans, the other north to a connection with the Mississippi at Plaquemine.

In Texas, dredging machines are working westward between Sabine lake to a point in Chambers county. Contract for completion of the canal to Galveston will probably be let next month. Removal of 20,000,000 cubic yards of earth will be required for completion of this final segment of the waterways.

Members of the Trinity Canal association predict that within another year barges will be plying between the Mississippi and the Sabine ports of Beaumont, Orange and Port Arthur. In two years, canals may be carrying traffic from Galveston, Houston and Texas City to the Mississippi. At this point the intracoastal canal connects with the Trinity river project.

Engineers believe the entire Mississippi-coastal system will be in operation within five years, giving the southwest a tremendous advantage in trade with the American interior via the entire Mississippi basin.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

Lost 'Bowie Mine' Is Being Sought

SAN SABA, Texas.—The search for the long lost "Bowie mine," famous in legend and story, is on again.

A contract has been signed between B. F. Harkey, of Wallace Creek, and Messrs. Parr and Moody, of Ballinger, by which the latter agree to develop the mining discoveries on the Harkey ranch. The work of surveying the territory is under way and after the work of survey is completed, the parties will return to begin actual operations.

George Watkins, a number of years ago, discovered what he believed to be the long lost "Bowie mine" on the Harkey ranch. Preliminary excavations revealed some interesting discoveries—including an old metal pot, a strange dagger, or "Bowie knife," and many marks and symbols. The work of excavating lagged, however, through lack of funds.

The parties now leasing are reported to have plenty of money

Gems of Peril

"Mr. Jupiter, there's something I must tell you," Mary said.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Old Mrs. Jupiter, wife of the millionaire automobile manufacturer, gives an engagement dinner and dance for her secretary, Mary Harkness, who is to marry Dirk Ruyther, blue-blooded young lawyer.

Mary receives a telephone call from her scapegrace brother, Eddie, saying he is in trouble and must see her. The house is strictly guarded against "gate-crashers" because Mrs. Jupiter is wearing the famous Jupiter rubies.

Mary arranges for Eddie to be admitted secretly. When she goes upstairs to meet him she finds Mrs. Jupiter robbed and murdered in her room. Seeking Dirk, she finds him with Cornelius Labor, his childhood sweetheart. Dirk advises her to keep silent about Eddie until he can locate the boy. Bowen, reporter for the Star, shows unusual interest in the case.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VI
"What do you know about telephone calls?" Kane asked.
"I don't know a thing, Inspector. I just asked," the Star reporter replied. The reporter, whose name was Bowen, turned away toward the stairs. "Well, I'll just run up and see how Bill's making out. I'd rather like to get a look at that necklake myself. No objection?"
"Go ahead."

They had all gone and Mary found herself alone with Mr. Jupiter in the great fireplace. A dim haze of cigar smoke filled the air. It was very quiet. The tick of a grandfather clock sounded in her ears like the voice of conscience, pushing her forward.

She got up and went over and sat down beside Mr. Jupiter in front of the fire.

"Mr. Jupiter, there's something I must tell you..."

Her hands were cold and her throat so dry she could hardly get the words out but she was resolved to go on. She could not bear the sight of that bowed figure without doing something to help.

He looked up vaguely, as if becoming aware of her for the first time. Seeing the suffering in that lined face, Mary's heart failed her. She remembered with a stab of fright Dr. Jordan's warning of a few hours ago. "He must not be allowed to brood if we can help it. If he does, his mind will go."

Mr. Jupiter's devotion to his wife, the doctor had reminded Mary, was unique even among happily married couples. He told her why; at least, he told what he had heard—that Mrs. Jupiter had turned down the richest man in their small upstate village to marry Jim Jupiter, a penniless mechanic, and live in poverty. That was why he had lived just to give her everything. Now she was gone, his reason for living was taken from him. Brooding on the tragedy might shake his sanity, and no wonder, since it was the very jewels he had delighted to deck her in that had brought about her death.

"Come and see me soon," Dr. Jordan had said to Mary, earnestly. "I want to talk to you about what we must do to save him." Odd that she should be the one he talked to about this. But she did not have time to wonder what he meant.

"Mr. Jupiter, I've something to tell you..." she repeated.

"Eh? Oh, yes." He smiled and roused himself. "I know—you're going to leave us. Well, we expected that. But we didn't think it would be so soon. You and Dirk going to get married right off?"

"No, no," Mary assured him emphatically, much to her own surprise. "Not for a long time yet. He looked utterly bereft; what else could she have said?"

He was staring into the fire again. His face was working, like that of a child who is trying hard not to cry. Sick with pity, Mary looked away.

"It's not the same without her, is it, child?" he said sadly.

Dr. Jordan's words flashed into her mind. Taking a deep breath, she plunged ahead.

"Mr. Jupiter, last night my— I had a telephone call from my brother. I haven't seen him for quite a long time. He called me up during the party, and—"

His face was turned politely toward her, but she knew he was not listening.

"That so? How's he getting on?" He was making an effort to be interested. But to her own ears she sounded like a fearful fool, chattering of her own affairs at such a time.

"I'm afraid he's in trouble, Mr. Jupiter. I don't know what, but I'm afraid it's pretty bad." ("An amateur—a bungler!") She must not think about that!

"Well," the flat old voice replied lifelessly, "nothing that a few dollars won't fix. I guess. He'll come out all right. Few things in the world that a few dollars won't fix."

"Oh, it isn't that! But I asked him here—and he hasn't come. I don't know where he is. I've been—pretty worried—" How to tell him! Here she was going 'round and 'round the subject, and not saying what she meant to say at all.

"Don't do it!" he barked at her. "Don't do it! It's not a woman's place to worry about a man. Man's place to worry about a woman. Let him do that!"

"I will. But he's so young. He isn't 21 yet." She hadn't thought of it before but now it came to her that whatever Eddie had been up to, his punishment would be tempered for him—he was still a minor in the eyes of the law.

"I'm sorry to see you go, now more than ever," Mr. Jupiter resumed. Eddie did not interest him much; he was of a different stripe from his sister, and he had never cared much about the boy. "I'll tell you, if it wasn't for this Dirk of

New Discovery Makes Possible Home-Control of Colds. REDUCES "COLD-TAX"

A quarter century ago Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern and better method of treating colds—externally. Now, Vicks Chemists develop a new preparation—Vicks Nose and Throat Drops—based on a new idea in preventing colds. A perfect ally to VapoRub, it makes possible the new Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds in the home—and further reduction of the family "Cold-Tax."

1.—Before a Cold Starts. On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—(crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes—wet and cold)—that slow down the normal functioning of the nose, Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds"—use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—when you feel that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and melting colds will be avoided.

2.—When a Cold Starts. Use the convenient Vicks during the day—and during the night—as often as needed for relief. At bed-time Vicks VapoRub will soothe and chest and cover your flannel. Leave bed-covers around the neck so the vapors can be inhaled long. This Vicks Plan of full 24-hour treatment is a cough, you will be new Vicks product—Vicks Drops—actually melting ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.

PICTURES SHOW HIGH SPOTS IN LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

THOMAS ALVA EDISON—Here is one of the latest photographs of the man generally conceded to be the greatest inventor of modern times, with more inventions to his credit than any man in history. His list includes the electric light, the phonograph, and hundreds of others.

HIS BIRTHPLACE—This little brick house in Milan, Ohio, is where Thomas Alva Edison was born, Feb. 11, 1847. The house is unchanged except for addition of a porch, which was built when the inventor bought the house in 1884.

THE INQUIRING MIND—Upper left shows a painting of Edison as a young man, engrossed in one of his most important experiments. He is keeping vigil over an electric lamp to test its endurance. Upper right: The inventor who was responsible for the first motion picture projection machine taps the key that starts projection on the new-dimension movie screen in a distant city. Below with Charles P. Steinmetz, the late wizard of electricity. The two were close friends. Steinmetz here is demonstrating to Edison the destructive results of his artificial lightning.

man is back in this country, and I'll mighty soon tell him so when I see him! If he'd been here, where he ought to be, at his mother's side, this never would have happened."
Whether his grievance was justified or not, it was exceedingly bitter. Mary hoped for Bruce's sake he was managing to endure spring in Paris this year.
"We've taken a lot of comfort in you, Mary," Mr. Jupiter continued more gently. "You may as well have some of what we've got, along with Bruce. The Ruythers have got nothing. Never will have anything. Steve's too close. He wouldn't plant a nickel that wouldn't raise a dollar."
Mary sat stunned. They loved her enough for that—to have made her their own daughter, given her a share in the immense Jupiter fortune! But would he feel the same about it, when he knew?
"That would have been wonderful," she managed to say, "but—let's not think about it now."
The nurse Dr. Jordan had sent came in, starchy efficient, and interrupted them. "Time for Mr. Jupiter to get some rest," she told him firmly. Those were Dr. Jordan's orders. Bed, and his luncheon brought up to him.
"Fugh!" The nurse recoiled before his rejection of her. "Where's Spence? Who told Jordan to send a woman back here? You go back and tell him I said to mind his own business. I guess I've still got sense enough to know when to go to bed."
When the indignant lady had finally been persuaded that her presence was not wanted, and Mr. Jupiter had been delivered into the hands of his ancient servant, Mary bethought herself of Bessie. It might not hurt to drop a cautious word.
Spence could not say where she was. She was a light-headed baggage and he would just like the job of discharging her if she didn't tend to business better than this.
"Oh, I wouldn't do that just yet!" Mary said hurriedly. "She's probably around somewhere."
"She'll be wherever the men are," was Spence's acid reply.
This proved true enough. For as Mary mounted the stairs to go to her own room she was surprised to hear voices on the landing, one of them the maid's.
"Don't you know any movie directors, honest?" she was saying. "Gee, I thought newspapermen knew everybody there is!"
The voice of Bowen, the Star's reporter, replied wearily. "No, I don't, and if I did, what of it? Listen, sister, I've got an edition to catch. If you've got anything to tell me, let's have it and forget the Hollywood stuff. Come on, what's it all about?"
"Will you put my picture in the paper?"
"Sure, sure. Out with it." The reporter moved down a step. Time was short and he did not believe the girl had anything of importance to reveal.
"We—il," she lowered her voice to a whisper just as Mary hurried up the steps.
"Oh, Bessie," Mary interrupted coolly, "Spence is looking everywhere for you. Your friend will excuse you, I'm sure."
The startled maid jumped and fled past her down the stairs in precipitate haste, leaving Mary face to face with the embarrassed newspaperman.
"Have you finished your work?" she asked coldly. "Because if you have, you'd better go."

Only One Medal Of Honor Man In Enlisted Ranks

By United Press.
MARFA, Texas.—Only one wartime winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor continues in the enlisted ranks of the army. He is Sgt. Lloyd M. Seibert of headquarters troop, First Cavalry, stationed here. Sergeant Seibert received the award for leading a charge on a machine gun nest in France.
Sergeant Seibert also holds the Silver Star Citation, the French Medaille Militaire, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm, the Italian Croce de Guerra, and the Montenegrin Medaille pour la Bravoure Militaire.
Of the 90 Congressional medals awarded for bravery during the world war, 28 were posthumous. Approximately 60 holders of the medal are still living, however. Several are army officers, but the majority are no longer in the service.

MENUS FOR THE ENTIRE FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer
THE success of any holiday or dinner depends largely upon the roast and the accompaniment chosen for each variety of meat is most important. Each roast has its own particular sauce or gravy that is best suited to serve with it. While tradition has combined certain foods such as turkey and cranberry sauce, there are other combinations quite as agreeable and pleasing.
The following list suggests suitable combinations for the roasts which are usually chosen for festive winter meals.
The various cuts of best require special accompaniments. A sliced or standing rib roast is served with horseradish sauce and brown gravy if the meat is well done. Loose rare, the natural meat slices take the place of the gravy and the roast is served "au jus" (orkshire pudding along is the proper accompaniment to this type of roast.
Fillet of beef is served with mushroom sauce and a tart spicy sauce or conserve. Even if the fillet is roasted in the pie, a brown gravy should not be served.
Roast lamb is served with mint jelly or sauce, currant jelly or rabapple jelly. Brown gravy is usually made in the pan in which the meat was roasted.
Pork is served with apple or cranberry sauce. A gravy is seldom used.
Veal is good with a tart jelly or cranberry sauce is excellent.
Dressed oranges or cranberry sauce are often used, too. Brown gravy or hot orange sauce can be chosen as preferred. Orange sauce is not served when sliced oranges accompany.
LUNCHEON.—Creamed Spanish onions, croquettes, head lettuce, nut rolls, milk, tea.
DINNER.—Meat pie, scalloped potatoes, beets in orange sauce, assorted relishes, apple sauce, ginger bread, milk, coffee.
Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST.—Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, baked omelet with tomatoes, crisp toast, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON.—Creamed Spanish onions, croquettes, head lettuce, nut rolls, milk, tea.
DINNER.—Meat pie, scalloped potatoes, beets in orange sauce, assorted relishes, apple sauce, ginger bread, milk, coffee.
Dinner oranges or cranberry sauce are often used, too. Brown gravy or hot orange sauce can be chosen as preferred. Orange sauce is not served when sliced oranges accompany.
Guinea fowl is served with currant or cranberry jelly or any jelly or conserve with a sharp flavor. Baked bananas are good, too.

LAGER TO TELL ABOUT HER STOMACH

"I want to tell others about my experience with Diapensin," says Mrs. B. Eastman, 1200 California St., Denver, Colo. "I tried a lot of products, but none of them did any good. Then a friend persuaded me to try a few tablets of this wonderful medicine. I even eat cabbage without distress afterwards. It used to real suffering. I am not nearly so nervous as I used to be; feel much better and better in every way. Diapensin has real merit for the enthusiastic states like this. And when not one, hundreds, even thousands, are the same story of success, it seems no reason to doubt the day-and-night reliability of Diapensin to help stomachs. These harmless, candy-like tablets relieve the heartburn, nausea, gas, headaches, dizziness, and symptoms of indigestion."

Mrs. Franklin to Go On Trial At Abilene, Oct. 21

By United Press.
ABILENE, Oct. 20.—Trial of Mrs. A. R. Franklin, Abilene, charged with murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Leslie Wilcoxson, has been set for Oct. 21. The shooting took place Sept. 22 when Mrs. Franklin found her husband in Mrs. Wilcoxson's apartment. The slain woman was a former beauty parlor operator.
Mrs. Franklin is the mother of two children, the elder being 19 years old. She and Franklin had been married 20 years.
After the shooting, she telephoned to the sheriff's office and informed officers: "I have just shot a woman and want to give up." When deputies reached her home a few minutes later, she said: "I am the woman you are looking for."
Mrs. Wilcoxson, who came here a few months ago from Big Spring, was struck by four bullets. One of the bullets shattered her left arm, another entered the left shoulder and ranged downward, and two struck her in the chest.

Amarillo Fights Moving Meeting

By United Press.
AMARILLO.—A vigorous fight is being waged by the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce against the removal of the 1932 convention of the Texas State Medical society from Amarillo to Waco.
A hearing before the board of directors of the medical association is demanded to learn why the directors had taken the action. An emergency had been declared by the directors because of conflicting dates, it was reported.
A message was sent to Dr. Holman Taylor, of Dallas, secretary of the state society, pointing out that Amarillo had spent almost $1,000 in inviting the convention to Amarillo and in preparations for the three-day session scheduled for next June. Part of this expense was for freight on commercial exhibits sent here from Beaumont, and for storage which the local chamber is paying monthly.
Manager O. V. Vernon said the Chamber of Commerce would attach the exhibits if the directors did not rescind its action or refund the money already spent by the city. He stamped the act of the state body as a "political move."

Reno Disgusts Famed Scotty

By United Press.
RENO, Nev.—Death Valley Scotty, that mystery man of fortune and sand, is sticking his tongue out at Reno. He doesn't like it at all, at all.
Why?
Because someone hit his car and his auto was bent out of shape. Scotty says Reno, the biggest little city in the world.
"Reno is overdone. Gamblers are playing solitaire and women are taking in washing. The town is over-advertised. I tell you you can't build a city on gambling and a courthouse."
Death Valley's man of fortune, who has previously found Reno "an interesting little city" was plain mad. The old scout had gone down to San Francisco and had taken delivery on a powerful new car. When he was driving here another tourist ran into him. Scotty said that man was a gambler and told him that business was so poor he couldn't pay the $20 repair bill. Scotty paid it.
While he admitted he had no hard feelings for Reno, Death Valley Scotty seemed to emphasize the fact that it was cluttered up with divorcees whom police give the "run of the town" and who know no traffic rules.

Life On Prison Farm Preferred

By United Press.
MISHAWAKA, Ind.—Life on a prison farm sometimes is preferable to the comforts of home, Samuel Beck believes. As a result, he is spending this year on the penal farm.
Beck was brought into court on a charge of assault and battery against his wife. Judge Albert Doyle, inclined to be lenient, asked Beck if he thought he could return home and behave.
"I'll take the jail anytime to living at home," Beck replied.
Judge Doyle gave him a year's sentence.
