Langston of Dixon, Ky. Her mother had wrapped Ruth in a blanket and placed her on the rear seat of the sedan when the family left Ranger this morning to drive to Dallas. When the family stopped here for food, the mother tried to awaken the child and found her dead. The father had been touring West Texas, Arizona and New Mexico in search of work.

ARMY AIR CORPS HAS DECREASE IN ACCIDENTS

WASHINGTON.—A vast decrease in the number of fatal accidents in the army air corps, both absolutely and in proportion to "flying hours," was reported today to Secretary of War Harley C. Hines by Major James E. Fechet, chief of the air corps. Only 21 men were killed in the air service during the fiscal year 1930-1931 as compared with 37 in the previous year and 45 in 1929.

An even more pronounced safety trend was reflected in the "fatal accident per flying hour" report. A decade ago pilots flew 77,351 hours with a loss of 45 lives, or one death for each 1,718 hours in the air. In the fiscal year 1930-1931 "flying hours" totaled 396,193. There were 21 fatal accidents. One for each 18,900 air hours.

Chances increase. Thus, a pilot may now expect to fly 11 times as long without a fatal accident as he could have in the early post-war years. Non-fatal accidents are decreasing, too. Although the total number of accidents in the last fiscal year—456—was more than in 1921—361—there were less in proportion to the time aloft. In 1921 there was an accident for each 214 hours of flying time and last year only one to each 870 hours.

Fechet reported that the commissioned strength of the air corps was increased by 33 officers last year, bringing the total to 1,236. New Air Corps Film. The air corps has developed a new aerial film which makes it possible to take photographs at sunrise and sunset, a feat hitherto impossible. It also has adopted a new camera capable of picturing 125.4 square miles at an exposure of from a height of 15,000 feet.

Contrary to popular belief, Fechet said, the lighter-than-air division of the air corps has found the use of helium in balloons to be more economical than hydrogen. A decade ago a scheme for the solidification of helium has been presented to the bureau of mines for further investigation.

The patrolmen, Edward Magnuson and George Saur, were guarding the cafe, scene of recent clashes between strikers and police, when they saw the mob, led by a woman, suddenly advance toward the cafe. Magnuson tried to head them off but he was knocked down and the crowd trampled over him. Saur seized the woman and the mob beat him with their fists. Saur then put her in a taxi. As the mob surged about the machine the policeman drew his pistol, fired several shots and the mob scattered.

BACHRACH PLANS TAX INCREASES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Plans for a $750,000,000 tax increase bill were announced today by Representative, Republican, N. J., member of the house ways and means committee which originates such legislation. Bacharach said the prospect of a $1,500,000,000 deficit June 30 makes necessary the revision of his original plan announced two months ago. Bacharach was the first administration Republican to announce necessity of a tax increase. Bacharach would increase present income tax rate starting at net income of $20,000 instead of $100,000 as originally proposed by him. He also proposed to change the rate so that incomes over $1,000,000 will pay a higher rate than $100,000 incomes. Both now pay the same rate, 20 per cent.

Italy Favoring Disarmament Says Dino Grandi

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy told the American press today that his country considered disarmament the most important question before the world. ### Eastland City Commission Has Busy Session

The Fort Worth National bank was selected as the depository for monies to be used in retirement of bonds and for the sinking fund. The First National Bank of Clark was selected as depository for current income. This included daily cash received from all sources and is allocated to its proper funds periodically. Money to be used for retirement of waterworks bonds will be sent to the same bank in Kansas City where the funds have been formerly kept. At a previous meeting the commission had authorized Acting City Manager Marlow to communicate with the Dallas office of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company with reference to a possible reduction in telephone rates in Eastland. A reply from that company was read at Monday's commission meeting which was to the effect that the incomes here is not sufficient to justify a reduction in the rate at the present. After reading the letter, one of the commissioners commented, "that is a very polite way of telling us to go to hell."

"Can the Mavericks Hold The Lobos?" Vital Eastland Query

The main question under discussion in the places where folks gather is "Can the Mavericks hold the Lobos?" We shall all see about that Friday afternoon, of course, but for the present the Mavericks are putting in their afternoon working out at fundamentals... charging and blocking. The cripples are all back in shape and the hospital list shows a clean slate. Daniels, Smith and Allison, all three of whom have been under the weather since the Ahlberg game, were out Monday afternoon with all the pep and snap and high spirits they had this year. Bargsley's bad knee seems to be as good as now. Fulcher hasn't had anything wrong with him this year except that tired feeling and it seems that a good feed of barbecued goat and a long rest over the week-end put the old smile back on his more or less homely face. Captain Lee Taylor has sworn by his beard (and it's a cute little one too) that the Hightower-Ray passing combination will have to seek some territory other than his zone before it can reel off touchdowns Friday. Estes Burgamy doesn't have much to say but it is evident that he has a secret ambition to belittle the famous Mr. Little for these two are nearly the same size. The Wingmen, Taylor and Vaughn, have agreed with T. A. Jones that they'll block out their men on punts and let him have a chance to return them plenty of yards before even seeing a possible tackler. Jones as a safety man hasn't brought any too much joy to the hearts of Gibson and Brothens they yearn not to be other hand he has almost invariably had an opponent by his side by the time a punt reached him. The ends have pledged him a chance to do his stuff Friday. Ed Mackall looks like he's "ready" to do the heavy end of the line plunging. The Brown brothers are too hard to tell "tother from which, but they'll be out there to fight off the Lobo back anyway. Jack Heath and Delbert Myers are each nursing a slight hunch that they will have a change in their names in the annals of Maverick history. Cisco by his own volition, Breckenridge and tie with Ranger is quite naturally favored to win. But the Mavericks are porting for the yards in the latter's possession and was being studied with the idea of assisting Eastland in its fight for lower gas rates.

RADIO CORP. NOW DEFILES GOVERNMENT

By S. HOWARD EVANS. NEW YORK.—After having defiled heaven and earth to escape government prosecution under the trust laws, the Radio Corporation of America suddenly ended its retreat that began last spring, and about, dug in and pointed muzzles of its formidable legal series at the department of justice, thereby putting Attorney General W. J. Mitchell in a most uncomfortable hole. If he yields he demands of the Radio corporation and drops the prosecution out having forced the Radio corporation at least to go through motion of reforming, he will be exposed to the raking cross-criticism from the numerous organizations, individuals and lishers that have watched the case keenly and attentively. Senators Dill and Coughens pelled Mitchell to file the suit; the democrats will certainly flood campaign material in the hands of the nation. On the other hand the Radio corporation, indined by President Hoover's fits to restore confidence in the stry's banking and financial cure, will loudly, stridently with all the force of its effort publicity department, as the attorney general of delay. The return of prospective if he lists in pressing the prosecution he radio combine. Radio corporation's reversal of tude came just before the publication of the Hoover fits. It came during a conference between representatives of corporation on the one hand Judge Warren Olney Jr., sr., prosecutor in charge of the case, and Oswald P. Schutte of Radio Protective association on other hand. The conference called to perfect the final arrangements for the opening of the line's patent pool, comprising the radio patents of the various defendants, Radio Corporation of America, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and others, to decide the details of other arrangements considered necessary by the Olney. But at the last moment Radio corporation, appearing to have the state mind created by the Hoover onslaught balked. Its representatives declared that it was impossible to make the stock readjustment considered necessary by the government. Olney of the department of justice interpreted this action as an attempt to force the government to accept less than irreducible minimum of its demands. Terminating the negotiations, he announced that the government could not and would not go to the ultimatum and that would recommend to the attorney general that the prosecution of the dissolution suit be read immediately. Before Judge Olney could make his recommendation, however, a D. Young, father of Radio corporation and frequent member for the democratic presidential nomination, got hold of the reney general's good right ear and he official and the return from their summer vacation in Washington. Mr. Young asked the attorney general to do nothing that would delay the return of confidence and prosperity, mentioning prosecution of the Radio corporation. Three weeks later he was waiting in Washington and was being with interest to see how attorney general will get out of hole.

HUNTING ACCIDENTS.

Another hunting season is here with its ever-present threat of accident and fatality. Unlike previous seasons the present season opens at noon, that being an innovation introduced by the federal game preservation bureau as a means of halting the great slaughter of ducks that usually occurs the first morning, and giving the game a chance to discover that their lives are in danger and to observe precautions. Ducks are said to be capable of that. The prolonged drouth which the country has experienced has served to diminish the number of ducks and the government is concerned to prevent their extinction.

But ducks are not the only game of which the open season takes a toll. Unfortunately, due to excitement, carelessness and accident, human life and limb is annually sacrificed to the sport. With fields crowded with hunters, a countryside once open but now uniformly well populated, a loaded gun is an insistent menace, particularly if that gun is in the hands of an inexperienced hunter. Few of those who take advantage of the open season have so much as handled the weapon they now employ during the many months of the closed season. Many more, with the thought of bagging game in their minds, give no serious thought to the direction of their shots. They seem to take it for granted that the rest of the world has simply moved out of the way to permit them to lay down a barrage of buckshot and all will be well. The excitement of the hunt overweighs the normal caution they would exercise and they forget that people in the peaceful countryside through which the boom, boom, boom of their recreation resounds, do not spend their time dodging from ditch to ditch or cover to cover, but assured in the doctrine that the burden of caution rests upon the hunter, pursue their normal vocations and go their normal ways with little thought of casualty. But the greatest toll is taken among hunters themselves. Triggers unintentionally pressed in the excitement of a moment, a clutching twig, a stumble, or any of those minor mishaps that we experience daily without noticing, become, with a loaded gun in hand, tragedies.

There are some rules that should be unvaryingly observed in hunting, rules that even the rank amateur appreciates. The most important is to keep one's head and another is not to transport a loaded gun. The less time that a gun is loaded the less chance there is of accident. Shotguns should be broken in going to and from the hunting resort and under no circumstances should they be loaded within the city limits. A common cause of accident is the carrying of a loaded gun through a barbed wire fence. There never was in all the history of the sport of hunting a single instance when it was necessary to crawl through a fence with a gun loaded.

MARS SMILING ON GREAT BRITAIN.

This is a cable story from Manchester, a great industrial center of the tight little isle:

"The conflict between Japan and China has eased the plight of Lancashire textile workers. It has been the largest factor in providing 40,000 mill workers with jobs and in putting 500,000 others on full time instead of part time. The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods virtually has stopped importation of cotton into China from Japan. Upswing in the textile districts has led the way for the rest of Great Britain. Unemployment has decreased steadily since early last month, largely because of the revival of cotton. Cotton sales jumped 100 per cent. Twenty mills, some of which have been closed for four years are running again. August had a 40 per cent mill capacity. Now the mills are operating 74 per cent or better."

All this should interest Texans. Texas produced the second largest cotton crop in history this year. Texans have cotton to sell. A Washington dispatch reads as follows: "Whirling spindles in England and China give promise of reducing America's big cotton surplus." On the Manchurian front the Chinese Goliath and the Japanese David are said to be ready to engage in mortal combat. There was a time when cotton was king. Then the king lost his throne. Will Mars rethron the king who has been in the dust for some time?

GARNER THROWS DOWN THE GAUNTLET.

Minority Leader John N. Garner has thrown down the gauntlet. If he wins the speakership and the democrats reorganize the house then the democratic party is willing to assume all responsibility for the legislation enacted. In other words the democrats will not accept a cut and dried republican-Hoover legislative program like automatons and let it go by regardless. All the recommendations which appeal to the leaders as best for the nation and the world will be accepted. Those that do not appeal will be sidetracked. This is a reminder that this is a democracy, that it is guided by a constitution, and that to date a Mussolini has not planted himself into the executive chair. There should be patriotic work all along the line but the party or organization bearing the responsibility should be willing to assume it. If the democrats should cut their own political throat, or cut all of the tendons of the donkey then it will be their funeral. Of course, democrats know all about funerals. They have been pallbearers many times and the corpse has been one of their own choosing.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY ROONEY DUCHER
NEA Staff Writer
WASHINGTON—The long history of the debts-reparations problem has been described both as tragic and as comic. The world's great statesmen and financiers of the last decade have all had their fingers in it, and now they are going to figure it out all over again. Once there seemed to be an Allied theory that a hundred billion dollar indemnity might be collected from Germany. But since been a reparations commission, the Dawes Plan, the Young Plan, the debt funding commissions and the Hoover moratorium have all asked their backs at the huge sums involved in payment of reparations and debts. And now it is a common theory that the whole account will have to be wiped off the slate. If that is true I would appear that so many great statesmen and financiers were never before so unanimously wrong on a single issue. SEVERAL facts which might be classified as absurdities have become increasingly clear since Premier Laval visited President Hoover and the two men worked out some sort of an understanding about a combination debts-reparations cut. Take for example the phrase, "capacity to pay." It has been used in fixing reparations schedules and it was the keynote of our own debt funding negotiations which in effect canceled 30 per cent of the British debt, 60 per cent of the French debt and 80 per cent of the Italian debt. The theory appeared to be that "capacity to pay" would remain static. Instead, it is estimated that while French "capacity to pay" has greatly increased, Britain's has dropped to the point where, if it were fair to charge 50 per cent of her actual debt...

GRIPINGS

By GUS
This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology. In the much mooted matter of one Mr. Hightower, it seems to me that an investigation of the matter should go somewhat deeper than merely ascertaining if Hightower was in school in Cisco the proper number of days before playing a game with Breckenridge. As far as Hightower himself is concerned, I wouldn't raise much of a kick on his personal account because he is a sweet football player and adds color to the game and gives the so-called sport writers something to write about. A few questions present themselves in the matter, the answers to which might prove enlightening. For instance: how did Breckenridge find out that Hightower had ever been in the Tyler school this year? Isn't it entirely reasonable that Tyler had a touch of the sour grape malady? Do you suppose that Corsicana has anything to do with passing the information around? Such a man as Hightower would naturally be missed from the Corsicana squad if he failed to show up when the school bell was rung. It is entirely possible that we have a clear case of mistaken identity. There are more than one Hightower, although for the moment I seem to be unable to recall the other one. The whole matter indicates quite plainly that more than one city has been interested in the matter of getting a man by the name of Hightower to play on its high school football club. It might not have been the same Hightower. But, at any rate, it seems that one of them found the climate satisfactory in the Big Dam city and settled down there to cast his lot and get his education. The whole matter should be thoroughly investigated by the officials of the interscholastic league. And if it is found that the Tyler Hightower, the Cisco Hightower and the Corsicana Hightower is by any chance one and the same person, then a comparative survey of the climates of those three towns should be made and a thorough physical examination be given Hightower. If it is found that the climate of either Tyler or Corsicana would be equally as advantageous to his health, then Tyler and Cisco and Corsicana should all three be kicked out of the league on general suspicion. Us pore folks in smaller Class A schools can't afford to go to town much expense to inform football players of our climates. If all the pappas and mamas of big, strong and fast boys knew how this Eastland climate and high school football would help make their boys into good strong men they'd look here in numbers. But we are a small school. The coffers of our athletic association are not full of doubloons and shekels, but rather swag nests and cobwebs. Therefore we have to play what we got and make the best of it.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

With BILL MAYES

When trying to talk Mayor Thurman out of the idea that he is fighting him and the city on the nail and at the same time trying to convince the gas company that we are reporting on the gas as they happen—or at least as they appear to us—and not trying to wreck their business, we have a self-imposed task as often of telling Harry Campbell of Breckenridge what about this game called football.

When we know every little about a game it is rather hard to believe that he is something in the same class. At least when the Buckaroos through different eyes from other sports writers, for instance he says: "It is hard to believe that the game of Saturday was a 20-point football team that the Breckenridge Green Shirts as of today."

But no one but Bobby was that hard to believe either before or after the game. Predictions in the game averaged about a 20 to 0 for the Abilene-Breckenridge game, and while the fans were betting like 99 per cent for the Buckaroos they had little hopes of the team win.

He did not see the game but we some pretty fair ideas about things were going from time to time during the game by listening to the reports and then we read to a couple of sports writers who did see the game and they said that the Elephants made a performance of the Buckaroos. Other words they said that the Buckaroos failed to show a thing but large and assorted openings through the line when they were on the defense.

When you're out-of-sorts, head-ached, dizzy, bilious, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or times you just don't worry. It's probably indigestion. # The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop)

By Cowan

Robert was seeing the Buckaroos through rose-colored glasses, we might add that our wife said the Green Shirts looked terrible—which makes it an indisputable fact as far as we are concerned. Now, Robert, don't claim we get our football dope from the wife. We are just reminding that when she makes a claim we don't argue about it any longer. Maybe you feel safe to do so from that distance.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

But Robert says: "It is true that Dewey Mayhew's aggregation operated smoothly. It is equally true that at times gapping holes were torn in the Breckenridge forward. And it follows that the backfield was shades better than the Breckenridge secondary." Outside of those little points it seems that the Eagles didn't have a thing better than the Breckenridge crew could produce. A smoother working team, a better line and a better backfield. Whatever there is left of a team, we suppose, showed Breckenridge the better of the two.

Boxing and wrestling fans are reported to have seen a good bout at the Elks club athletic show Monday night. We don't know. As it was the day before payday for us and we got no slips that would admit us, we had to save our four bits to buy beans for lunch today and couldn't rake up the price to make a personal investigation of the matter.

And since we were neglected in this respect we feel no hesitancy in saying that all we know about the fights is what we have been told about it and it may not be so accurate. However, it is reported that rassin' and boxin' was indulged in by some of the rough and ready boys and that more or less of a good time was had by some of them.

Eastland's Mavericks are pointing toward the Lobo game this year with the hopes that they may establish an all-time record this year and defeat the Big Dam team. After the showing made against the Breckenridge Buckaroos last week on Maverick field, it seems probable that the score will be small and that the Mavericks have a better chance of copping the

How to train BABY'S BOWELS

Babies, bottle-fed or breast-fed, with any tendency to be constipated, will thrive if they receive, for half a teaspoonful of this old family doctor's prescription for the bowels. That is one sure way to train tiny bowels, to healthy regularity. To avoid the fretfulness, vomiting, crying, failure to gain, and other ills of constipated babies. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is good for any baby. For this, you have the word of a famous doctor. Forty-seven years of practice taught him just what babies need to keep their little bowels active, regular, keep little bodies plump and healthy. For Dr. Caldwell specialized in the treatment of women and little ones. He attended over 3500 births without loss of one mother or baby.

CHAPTER XXX

"Nice chap," Bates remarked dryly, as De Loma departed. The blond gaze rested on Louise, who pretended not to have heard. "Must we stay longer?" she appealed to Bruce, pouting. She put the gleaming carmine tips of two fingers on each temple. "My head—I must lie down." Bruce paid the check. As Mary expected, the Countess made no further mention of her race track winnings. They might be the inspiration of the feast but they would never pay for it. She had been sure of that all along. In the elevator, Bruce made some low-voiced plea which Mary did not catch, but it was refused with further protestations of illness. Bruce urged, the Countess's will arose: "But it is impossible! I am miserable. You do not know tomorrow I will look at all the shoreline you wish to show me. Tonight, no."

Bruce retired into glum silence. The iron of jealousy apparently had entered into his soul and to smother it he must make his marriage demonstrate her devotion immediately by giving in to his whim. Mary bade them all good night at the door of her room. Mr. Jupiter responded with a grunt—he was half asleep already, as was Bruce. The Laurel Tearoom was a small, stuffy affair with a row of half-backed benches forming booths along one side. In the first of these, peering out worriedly, she saw him—and fell into the seat opposite with a gasp of surprise. The door had opened and he had been from others in the room. She felt as if she had reached sanctuary.

Bruce looked at his wrist watch and raised eloquent eyes to the ceiling. "If we were married to you," he said, "I'd cut your heart out. Where've you been for the last three hours? Look it." He pointed to the disorderly array of teacups, each with its whel of yellow lemon and sodden teabags, that surrounded him in a semi-circle and at the glass and tray, filled and overflowing with twisted butts of defunct cigars.

"I don't even like tea," he complained bitterly, "but it's all you can get in this place. And I had to make an attempt to drink with glasses and tray, and at the end of here. Where in the eternal interest of accuracy have you been?" "With De Loma," Mary managed to gasp, her breath still short from running. "That sobered him," De Loma said. "For God's sake! Where did you pick him up?" Mary told him as coherently as she could, and at the finish sprung her even more startling news—that she had an engagement to meet him at the fete the following night.

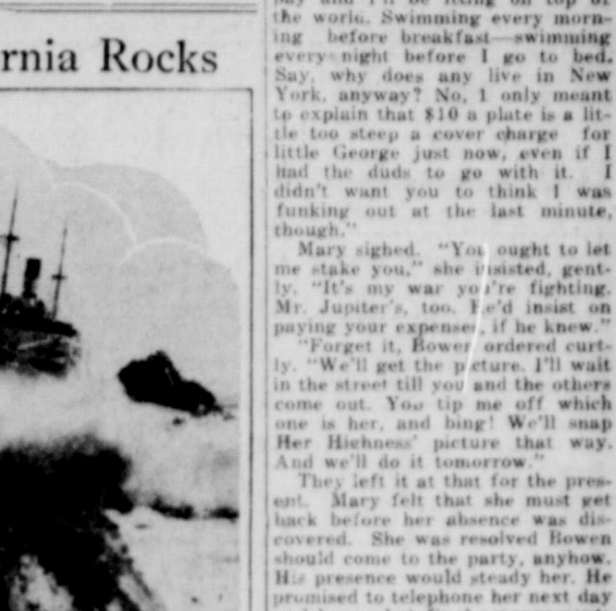

"Listen, girl," Bowen said slowly and solemnly when she had finished. "We've got to go into a huddle over this, and not miff anything. We've had the breaks so far. If Lady Luck will just be with us a little longer, she'll do the others know as De Loma is." "No, I'm afraid to tell Bruce, I don't know him well enough to know whether he could be trusted to help us play the game or not. He might snatch a gun and go looking for De Loma if that's what he wants. Mr. Jupiter must know, but I haven't had a chance to tell him yet. I rushed right off to meet you."

"You and the tortoise," commented Bowen. "Well, let's think if it kills us. Have you got the necklace here?" Mary hesitated only a second before replying, "Yes." She had lost the complete trust she had once given to everyone. Dirk had planned the germ of distrust thoroughly; hereafter, she would be frayed with reservations, even with Bowen.

"What kind of blow-out is that tomorrow night?" Bowen asked, with wrinkled brow. "What is a fete, anyhow? Fancy dress?" "I haven't the least idea what the Ambassador is up to," she would be. Mary returned. "I imagine it's going to be one of those ghastly affairs where society dowagers go about wearing paper hats and sucking lollipops. Why?" "I was thinking about your costume. Will you have a chance to wear the necklace?" "Do you think I'd better—so soon?" "Soon?" "Well, I've only just met him tonight. Wouldn't he think I was too grateful?" "You'll have your party with you, won't you? What's trustful about that?" "That's true. Well—" "What's the matter? Scared?" "Not exactly." She gulped. "He's—horrible, though. He gives me shivers when he looks at me. . . his eyes . . . like black coils . . . A shudder passed over her. "But if I must, I must. That's what I came here for." "The sooner the better," Bowen advised. "The Ambassador won't put him up rent free much longer. They're wise to his kind. He was probably counting on that pony of his to recoup his finances. What a winning that would have been! He's probably spent all he got from the diamond rings and the bracelet he took from Mrs. Jupiter, if he has let go of them at all. He may be keeping them still, afraid to turn them over to a fence for been putting me up since I cut loose from the payroll and came down here. He has one of those cameras you hide in your pocket, and shoot when nobody knows it. If we could smuggle it in tomorrow night . . . " "Bring it yourself!" Mary cried delightedly. Bowen bent on her a look of utterable reproach. "Am I one of the idle rich?" He threw out his hands. "I hitchhiked to this village, my dear lady, and I did not have a swallow-tail tied up in the handkerchief that served me as a trunk. Just a hobo, that's me. A darling of the gods like you can't realize what it is to be broke, I know."

Mary put out her hand in quick sympathy. "I can't realize you've done all this for me," she said. Like a flash she opened the bag she carried and took out a roll of bills which she thrust toward him. "Suddenly the smooth flow of a familiar voice made her lift her head with a start. Cautiously she lowered the paper and looked over its edge. Not ten feet away, with their backs toward her, the Countess and De Loma sat close together on a mulberry velvet lounge, deep in low-voiced conversation. (To Be Continued)

Plan Introduced by Makers of Vicks VapoRub to Reduce the Family "Colds-Tax" is Made Possible by a New Preparation. Local Druggists Offer a Test of the New Product and Plan to VapoRub Users an Unlimited Guarantee of Satisfactory Results.

Mothers are constantly faced with the problem of colds and their costs. It is the mothers, therefore, who especially appreciate the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home—just perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. The Vicks Plan is made possible by a new preparation, Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, based on a new idea in "preventing" colds. It is a companion product to VapoRub, the modern external method of "treating" colds. The two preparations aid and supplement each other together, as directed below, they give you the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds."

1.—Before a Cold Starts Use Vicks Nose Drops—a few drops up each nostril—whenever you or your children have been exposed to anything which your own experience tells you is apt to bring on a cold—contact with others having fresh colds, crowds, stuffy ill-ventilated rooms, public places—a night on the Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes in temperature, wet or cold-inhaling smoke, dust, gases—or when you are tired from over-work. In short, don't wait for that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the

"Certainly I smoke LUCKIES

...smoked them for years"

"Certainly I smoke Luckies. I've smoked them for years. And that new Cellophane wrapper with the tab for quick opening is a knock-out. I just give it a yank and reach for a Lucky."

One day a movie called "Brown of Harvard" flashed on a screen. That moment a star was born—Mr. William Haines, but Bill to us. And for five years he's been leading smart-young-feller of filmland. See him in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford."

That LUCKY tab! Moisture-Proof Cellophane. Sealed tight—Ever right. The Unique Humidor Package. Zip—And it's open! See the new notched tab on the top of the package. Hold down one half with your thumb. Tear off the other half. Simple. Quick. Zip! That's all. Unique! Wrapped in dust-proof, moisture-proof, germ-proof Cellophane. Clean, protected, neat, FRESH!—what could be more modern than LUCKIES' improved Humidor package—so easy to open! Ladies—the LUCKY TAB is—your finger nail protection.
