ING THRU NO THOLE

BILL MAYES

Campbell asks the question, "What, exactly, is this Bulldog spirit like?" and is given by Bobby in the following terms:

It is a story in Ranger town of a man and white football player who stepped grimly upon the field's chosen gridiron last year, fought for four full quarters, and won from the 12 to 7 when they were supposed to lose by a more than that.

STORAGE Gas and Oils SIMMONS Ranger and Austin Sts.

again. Neither is the Buckaroo aggregation of last season. But the same spirit that carried the maroons to a victory over the 1929 state champions and the 1930 district champions is still there.

Dangerous Dan McCarty isn't among those present. But the same thing that enabled McCarty to slash through the green wave that day in November can still be found.

Thursday afternoon, a week from today, the Ranger Bulldogs will again face the Breckenridge aggregation. This time, things will be reversed. Instead of being the favorites, the Buckaroos will be the underdogs. Instead of being scheduled to win as they were last year, the Buckies will be on top to lose as Ranger was last year.

Ranger of 1931 is as hard to whip as the Ranger of 1929, the Ranger of 1928, 1927 and 1926. Always, for some reason, the Bulldogs have been hard to get along with. Probably the reason for this is that they observe the rules minutely, especially the one that states that a football game must consist of four quarters, and the game isn't over until the fans go home. That's Ranger.

To get closer to the moment let us look at the Armistice day occurrence of this year. The Cisco Lobos had a 13-point margin in the final quarter. There were few in the stands that saw the Bulldogs a chance to drive across two touchdowns before the gun beat them to the draw. Some of them, hoping to miss the crowd, even went home and told the homefolks that Cisco had won, 13 to 0.

Suddenly from out of the skies came passes—long, dangerous, accurate passes. The Lobos stood aghast as they saw their two-touchdown margin fade by one. The Bulldogs had attained their pinnacle and were driving desperately in a swift race with the timekeeper. The Lobos fought back, but they couldn't stop that maroon and white wave that was sweeping with intensity from behind. The Lobos were being defeated at their own game—the air. The attack was resumed. As calmly as the first had come, came the second. It was true—across the goal line scammed a fighting Buller and the 13-point margin that the Lobos had depended upon was swept aside into a dead-end. The attack didn't end there. Back they came, lunging the mail down deep into Cisco territory, with the Lobos torn asunder by the unexpected turn of events.

It will be the ultimate margin in the history of the game. The Bulldogs traveled—and then the gun won the race.

The Bulldogs would have whipped the Lobos that day. Why? Because the Bulldogs believed they were not whipped. It did not matter that the fourth quarter was nearing an end. It didn't matter much that they must drive across two touchdowns before they could even hope for a tie. The thing is, the Curtismen came back in the fourth quarter to do exactly what the Lobos did not think them capable of doing. The Lobos were not the first to learn that the Bulldogs are never beaten, regardless.

Breckenridge learned the lesson in 1930, and learned it well. Dangerous Dan McCarty and his cohorts did to Breckenridge what the Bulldogs did to Cisco. So that is the type of gridiron machine that invades Breckenridge Thanksgiving day to bring to a close the 1930 football season as far as the two teams are concerned.

Fighters, scrappers, hard drivers, chargers, blockers, passers, punters, runners—that's the Ecker Curtis contingent that whipped Breckenridge last year. That's the bunch and the spirit they carry with them that come here a week from today, fevered to win.

It will be the ultimate opportunity the Buckaroos will have to round out a fairly successful season. When Boone Magness hung up his green uniform he left an awful gap in the Breckenridge secondary. None was available to fill much that they must drive across a number of years, probably never. Faced with the proposition of molding a new secondary, Silent Prince Shotwell realized his assignment.

The Buckies have had two defeats clamped upon them by members of the Big Four—Cisco and Abilene. It has been an off-year. You just can't win all of the time because it's against the rules. Others are building, too.

But Thanksgiving day the Buckies have an opportunity to come back. They have a chance to come back against a team that has always been the athletic enemy of the Buckaroos. They have a chance to display to the customers that they, too, can go into a game with the odds against them and emerge bloody but unbowed.

Thanksgiving day's battle will tell the tale, and what a store that will be.

This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

The district committee in charge of the affairs of high school football should go a step farther in its investigation of the case wherein the eligibility of one Fred Hightower is involved. It should investigate the conflicting statements in regard to the dates he was in school and learn exactly who is wrong. Somebody has made false statements. Let's find out who it is.

It's a cinch that Hightower was not in school at both Cisco and Tyler on the same day. Yet we have statements to the effect that he attended classes in each school. The district committee should establish the facts in the matter beyond all reasonable doubt and then take the matter up with Roy Henderson, Tyler or Cisco, one or the other, should be kicked out of the inter-scholastic league for a year. Oak Cliff High school suffered that penalty once and has been a pretty good bunch of boys since.

Jack Lewis and Fred Blatt found a bargain in pecans up Breckenridge way last Saturday. They bought the pecans but the delay made them late at the football game and in their hurry they forgot to lock the car doors. When they returned to the car their pecans were missing. They have been in a stew all week trying to locate the miscreant. A prominent local man, name withheld, was accused of the crime merely because he was seen with pecans in his pocket. As soon as charges are filed against him this paper will print the full details and maybe make an enemy or two.

Interesting people I've talked to recently include John Simpson, drilling contractor, drilling a well 21 miles northwest of Cisco. Simpson started drilling wells back in Pennsylvania way back yonder in 1882. His home is in Tulsa. Weight about 240. Wears a cap. Is of Scotch-Irish descent. His sense of fairness and his open-mindedness make him a dandy fellow to talk with.

John Mouser is trying to get the Boy Scout drive wound up this week. The drive was just getting under way about six weeks ago when the wheels of commerce stopped here and people who never had anything but an overdraft were depleting their great loss by having their funds involved in a closed bank.

John's committeemen seemingly got cold feet and didn't even turn in their blank pledge cards. Now John and Alex Clarke and a few more of the faithful are working to raise funds to finance the Boy Scout work.

Lots of people know something of the Boy Scout work and think it is one of the best factors for good in the lives of the boys. They want their boys to be scouts, but they think that all is necessary for their part is to furnish the boy and let someone else furnish the money necessary to carry on the work. Of course, nobody has much money . . . but the boy's crown is coming on just the same and the boys need scouting. If you think that's boloney, I'll ask you to read

Keeping Up With Eastland County Students at C.I.A.

Special Correspondent.
DENTON, Texas, Nov. 20.—Kenneth Wier, Ranger, and Maydelle Sikes, Eastland, attended a dance given at the Virginia Carroll lodge, Texas State College for Women (C. I. A.), last Thursday. Mrs. Calmbach was hostess to the Rainbow Girls of the campus.

Maydelle Sikes is a member of a current Economic Group, recently organized by students interested in contemporary problems. Mrs. Clara Calmbach, tutor in the Department of Business Administration is supervisor of the group.

Frances Glazner was one of the guests at a bridge party Saturday night, honoring Charlene Wakefield. The Armistice scheme was carried out in the decorations, favors and refreshments at the party, which was given in celebration of Miss Wakefield's birthday.

Maydelle Sikes attended a birthday dinner given in the Lowry private dining room Thursday. The hostess was Mrs. Myrtle (Mutt) Richardson.

Prayer meeting services are being held in the living rooms of all the dormitories every morning five minutes before breakfast. These services will be held from Nov. 11, Armistice day, until the Thanksgiving holidays, starting Nov. 26.

These prayer services, which are one of the old customs and traditions of Texas State College for Women (C. I. A.), were first held in 1918 when the World war was in progress. According to Miss Estella G. Hefley, dean of women, prayer services were held every morning during those trying days preceding the signing of the armistice. When the armistice was finally declared, morning prayer services were continued until the girls left for Thanksgiving holidays.

NEW ARRIVAL.

Agricultural Extension News

From the Office of the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent

Yard Improvement

The programs for the 1932 year will include the improvement of the yards. The demonstrators will make a plan for the improvement, which may go over a period of four years. The first year will take in the thorough cleaning of the yard and surrounding premises, planting of foundation shrubs and trees and shrubs screening, using native shrubs where possible. Another part of the work will be walks, using native stones, plentiful in this county. Eight of the rock walks were built by club members during 1931. Demonstrators who do not use native shrubs, may start the cuttings at once and have rooted by spring.

How to Grow Cuttings

(From Southern Country Home) Almost any shrub may be grown from cuttings at almost any time during the year, but they grow more readily if planted sometime between November 1 and January 1. It is well to get the planting done before the first freeze. No unusual soil is required. Sand is to be highly recommended for growing cuttings, yet they grow remarkably well without it. A well drained location is important.

When the time comes for planting the soil should be loosened by hoeing or plowing. A slight ridge may or may not be thrown up. The larger clods may be broken with a rake or hoe; however, thorough preparation of the soil is not necessary. The idea in making this statement is not to discourage careful preparation, which is always advisable, but to emphasize the fact that cuttings are very easily grown with little work on the part of the planter. Whether a ridge or level ground is used, it is well to make a trench three or four inches deep. This may be partly filled with sand or rock. The cuttings are placed in the trench either vertically or at an angle. The advantages of planting them at an angle is that they may be trimmed as they are planted. It is necessary to pack the dirt firmly around the base of the cutting. No better way for doing this has been suggested than to press the earth down with the feet.

In selecting cuttings, choose this year's growth. Hard, woody branches do not propagate easily. Cut the cuttings so that there are five or six buds to each length. Since all buds do not grow the same distance apart and since it is the number of buds that make a cutting and not the number of buds, there is no certain length that a cutting must be. It is just as long as five or six buds make it. A very sharp knife or shears should be used to insure a smooth cut instead of a rough, bruised one which will hold moisture and perhaps be the cause of decay. The cuttings should be made diagonally instead of straight across the branches. This is to prevent moisture from standing on the freshly cut ends. When placing the cuttings in the ground, bury three or four buds and leave one bud exposed. There is no certain distance apart that cuttings should be planted. Just remember to leave room for growth and cultivation.

Once the cuttings are set they may be almost forgotten until spring or early summer, when they will need slight cultivation. At this time new roots will be forming and it will not be well to disturb the earth immediately surrounding them. The only time during the winter that they will need attention is after a freeze. Sometimes they are pushed completely out of the ground by freezing weather, and they will need to be tramped, or by some means they must be put back in their place and the dirt once more firmly packed around them.

The cuttings make remarkable growth during the summer months and at the end of the year will be ready to be moved to their permanent location. One-year-old cuttings should be from 18 to 20 inches if they have been properly cultivated.

Native Shrubs

There are many native shrubs and ornamental trees growing in the woods about us. Sumac is often chosen because it makes a pretty growth and because of its scarlet leaves and fruit in the autumn. Sumac is a native shrub of Eastland County and grows in almost all sections. This is right at your home in many cases and you do not get it while the people in town drive miles to get one of the plants to put in the yard. Use what you have and make your home more attractive with no cost and little work.

Fruit Cakes

Thanksgiving and Christmas near at hand remind us of the fruit cake that we always have. Two recipes below may help some with the preparation and making of some for the holidays.

Apple Sauce Cake:

2 cups brown sugar, 1 bottle of cherries (small); 3 cups flour; 1-2 teaspoon salt; 2 teaspoons soda; 1 cup fresh lard; 1 package orange peel; 1 cup pecans; 1 teaspoon cinnamon; 1 teaspoon allspice; 1 package raisins; 1 package lemon peel; 1 package citron; 2 cups up sweetened apple sauce.

Cream lard, add sugar, then flour, raisins, cherries, pecans, citron, orange peel, lemon peel and spices. Stir soda into apple sauce and add other mixture. Put in greased pan with brown paper in bottom and cook in moderate oven for 1 hour and 30 minutes; or 45 minutes in pressure cooker with pet cock open, and 15 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Remove from cooker and dry out in slow oven for 30 minutes. When using cooker for cooking, tie a green-soled brown paper over the top of the pan. Remove the paper before putting the cake in the oven to dry. Watermelon rind preserves may be substituted for the citron and other peel, but be sure the syrup is drained off.

White Fruit Cake:

1 cup butter; 1-2 cup anise or soda; 1 teaspoon lemon flavor; 1/2 cup white; 1-2 lb. cherries (can-died); 1 package each of citron, lemon and orange peel; 1 lb. cran-berries may be added if desired; 1-1/2 cups sugar; 1 teaspoon baking powder; 1 teaspoon almond flavoring; 1 lb. white raisins; 1 pint bleached almonds; 1-2 teaspoon

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

PAUL IN ROME

Text: Acts 28:11-24, 30, 31. The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 22. Paul in Rome. Acts 28:11-24, 30, 31.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of The Congregationalist. Between the last lesson, in which we saw Paul in Jerusalem under arrest and appealing to Caesar, and this lesson, in which he arrives at Rome as a prisoner, there has been much interesting history.

A voyage from Jerusalem to Rome involved much time and danger. It was marked by a serious shipwreck which might have been avoided had the captain of the ship heeded Paul's warning. The shipwrecked travelers were cast upon an island called Melita. The island dwellers, though the record describes them as barbarous, showed the shipwrecked people much kindness. Here the company continued for three months when a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the island, brought them to Puteoli, whence they disembarked and made their way to Rome.

The Christians in Italy apparently had heard of Paul's coming. At Puteoli, a short distance from Rome, he found certain Christian brethren, and apparently he remained there with them for seven days.

Few things are more amazing, considering the barbarity of our prison system today, than the fact of Paul's comparative liberty while still a prisoner. It was natural that Paul, having revealed his trustfulness in the circumstances of the wreck and escape, should have been accorded liberal treatment. Even at Rome, instead of being confined in a cell, Paul was allowed to dwell in his own house, a soldier staying with him as keeper. It was under these circumstances that Paul was able to write the epistles that we call "the epistles of the imprisonment." And though Paul was unable to have his case heard at Rome, where he had gone with such confidence to Caesar, a year at Rome were an important period in Christianity.

One of the first things Paul did on coming to Rome was call together the leading Jews in that city. He explained what had happened in Jerusalem and how he was made prisoner. The Jews at Rome assured him that they had heard nothing of these things. They asked him to speak for himself, assuring him that they had heard Christians everywhere spoken against. Accordingly they came to Paul's lodging, and he expounded his Christian beliefs. The result was that some believed and some disbelieved, and Paul's mission to the Gentiles was encouraged and confirmed.

With the consciousness of this new mission Paul continued two years living as a prisoner with his soldier keeper, but in his own hired house, receiving all that came to visit him and preaching the Kingdom of God and the teachings of Jesus to the Philippians and to the Colossians.

Hog Killing

Hog killing time is one of those things that is just around the corner. With the usual eagerness to dispose of some extra heavy hogs and stop the feed expense big hogs are often killed with the first cold snap only to be lost by spoilage when it warms up again. It is well that the farmer knows that cold storage is available to him at very low rates and should be used in cases of this kind. In Eastland for instance the cold storage plant charges a half cent a pound per month for cold storage of meat, no charge being made for the weight of salt or container. It will be found that approximately the same charges exist at other ice plants in the county. Hogs may be killed in the summer time and cured out in storage just as successfully as on the farm during the winter months. Even the largest cuts from big hogs may be sufficiently cured in thirty days to remove from storage and at a total storage cost of half a cent a pound.

Dry Sugar Cure

For 100 pounds of meat to be cured, use 8 pounds salt; 2 pounds brown sugar, and 2 ounces saltpetre. Rub half this mixture on the meat and pack down in a barrel or stone jar. Save the other half of the mixture. At the end of seven days repeat the meat and rub on the remainder of the curing mixture. Let the bacon cure not to exceed one and one-half days per pound per piece. For example, if your pieces of bacon weigh ten pounds each, they should be cured not to exceed fifteen days.

Let hams and shoulders cure three days per pound per piece. For example, fifteen pound hams should cure forty-five days. Let the shoulder butts cure one day per pound per piece. When meat is cured wash curing mixture off with hot water, let drain and hang up for smoking.

Smoking Meat

Green pecan wood gives the best flavor of any wood available here, although any hard wood such as oak, etc., can be used. Let the fire burn with a very small flame so as to give a live smoke. Smoke for 30 hours then wrap and hang. Meat specialists of the A. & M. College Extension Service have prepared a leaflet giving suggestions for killing and curing pork including the formulas for the various curing mixtures. Copy of this publication may be had from the office of the County Agent.

MONA

Beauty From Coast to Coast

Just to prove that feminine loveliness isn't confined to any one section of the country, here is a group of five girls, chosen for their beauty in states ranging from the Atlantic to the Pacific. No. 1 is Lillian McCarter, 20, assistant secretary of Legion Post No. 1, at Memphis, Tenn., one of the largest posts in the world. She is all dressed up to lead a parade and the boys shouldn't have much trouble following her. No. 2 is Betty Bronson, niece of Senator Hatfield of West Virginia, who was chosen "Miss Brenau" at the beauty contest at Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga. She was declared by judges to be the "true" patrician type of southern beauty. No. 3 is Jane Arrington, 17-year-old queen of the Feast of the Panzacas at Pensacola, Fla., where she was selected as the most beautiful of more than 40 contestants. Mae Green, No. 4, will be the official swimming girl at the pageant of the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day. No. 5 is Lois Carter, Creek Indian girl, named queen of the Indian club at Oklahoma A. and M. College, Stillwater, Okla. She lives in Muskogee, Okla.

Frankie Jean are visiting her parents at Olney this week.

Mrs. R. K. Glanton is visiting relatives at Stephenville this week.

C. B. Holmes left Monday for Burkhardt after a business trip here for the Standlind Co.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at the Baptist church for Vernon Gregory aged 17 years son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gregory, and brother of Frank Gregory whose funeral was held at the same place on Tuesday. Rev. Ben M. Cox of Hillboro conducted both funerals. Vernon was a victim of infantile paralysis and as a result was never able to walk and could hardly talk. Occasionally he suffered from severe attacks that resulted from the disease and at last he was overcome by it. Many beautiful flowers were given as tokens of love from relatives and friends. The sympathy of the entire town is being extended to the parents and other relatives.

Mrs. Betty Vestal was shopping in Ranger Saturday.

Mrs. Donald Howell and Mrs. J. F. Derrick made a business trip to Lawton Thursday.

Old Moss of Lingville was here Wednesday on business for his brother-in-law, John Boucher who lives here.

J. P. Stafford and J. N. Stafford were guests of their half brother, H. P. Forrester and wife Monday. They were accompanied by Theo Jenkins a neighbor all three of them from Mont Alto near Palestine, Texas. During their short visit they made quite a number of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Forrester accompanied them home Tuesday, much to the regret of their many friends. During the past year Mr. and Mrs. Forrester have taught in our high school and have made a splendid reputation as hard working, efficient teachers and their places in our school and in the Baptist church and other organizations will be hard to fill. The good wishes of their many friends go with them to their home in east Texas.

Members of the Methodist church and many others were delighted to hear Monday that Rev. R. A. Walker had been again assigned to the Desdemona-Olden charge by the Bishop at the meeting of the Central Texas conference at Fort Worth. Rev. and Mrs. Walker and their daughter, Miss Aline have a warm place in the hearts of the Desdemona people who are glad to have them back again.

Quite a number of friends drove out to Lowell Sunday afternoon and attended the funeral of Walter Fair, 35 years old, who passed away Saturday at the home of his niece, Mrs. Harrison Sharpe and her husband who live on the farm belonging to Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fair. The deceased was a Confederate veteran and was never married. The past few years he made his home with relatives, sometimes here in town with his brother, J. M. Fair and sometimes with another brother, Tom Fair who lives a few miles from here and then with several nieces. His death was not unexpected as he had been almost helpless the past year. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Jim Bays. Beautiful flowers were placed on the grave by loving friends and relatives.

Mrs. C. W. Malby, her mother, Mrs. Whittson and her brother, Arthur Whittson, and Mrs. Plummer Ashburn, returned Friday night from Lubbock where they visited relatives and attended the Texas Federation of Women's clubs. They report having had a wonderful trip and were delighted with every part of the program as well as the social courtesies extended by the people of Lubbock.

Threatening weather did not interfere with the meeting of the Methodist Missionary Society Monday afternoon. The program was from the Missionary Voice and leaflets on changes in French churches. These taking part on the program were Mrs. Mollie O'Rear and Miss C. M. Bratton, Roy Ashburn, W. C. Bedford, I. N. Williams, B. E. Brodgraves, W. E. Barron and Charles Lee.

SCOUT NEWS BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

What Do Boys Like To Read? During the summer months, literally "swarms of boys" sit by the hour in the library perusing Boy Scout books.

There are many kinds of Boy Scout books. This series is always popular with youth and the National organization has stamped its approval on the following: "Tom Slade," "Roy Blakely," and "Pee Wee Harris," all series and all written by Percy Fitzhugh.

G. Harvey Raephon has written numerous Boy Scout books, stories of boys and airships, boys and submarines, boys in Belgium in the Philippines, and in California. These books are both interesting and informative.

Perhaps the most sought after of all Boy Scout books is the pamphlet, published by the Boy Scouts of America in connection with its Merit Badge scheme. This library on Scout activities and vocational guidance has been prepared by experts and is frequently revised and brought up to date. It is surpassed in helpfulness to boys. Much of this material and information could not be procured at any price elsewhere.

There are eighty-nine booklets.

Another Good Thing About Black-Draught

When you take Theford's Black-Draught, normal bowel activity is restored without sickening effects. This is only one of many agreeable qualities of this medicine.

Mr. George W. Cassidy, of Waco, Texas, whose experience in the use of Black-Draught has extended over forty-five years, says:

"When I take a laxative or purgative, I want something that I can take just a dose or two of, and then quit eating and feel as good as ever. Black-Draught is like that. You don't have to take it every night. I just bought a box yesterday, and after forty-five years I find it does me as much good as when I started taking it."

Sold at the drug stores.

Gems of Peril HAZEL ROSS HAILEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Mary Harkness plots to ensnare The Fly, who she believes 'framed' her brother, Eddie, with the murder of old Mrs. Jupiter, and later sends Eddie down and killed him. She is aided by Bowen of the Star. Mary's fiancé, Dirk Ruyter, believes Eddie guilty, as do police who drop the case.

Eddie Jupiter, long absent, returns from Europe with a woman friend. His father orders him out and makes Mary his heir. Bruce returns, vowing to root Mary, who he thinks is a gold-digger.

Dirk forbids Mary to see Bowen or continue the investigation. He says if she goes to Miami on the Jupiter yacht he will believe Bruce's charges. Mary goes because Bowen tells her The Fly may be at Miami when his horse runs. Dirk shows attentions to his former sweetheart, Cornelius Taber.

Mary is introduced to Count De Loma. De Loma is listed as owner of The Fly's horse. She sees De Loma and Countess Louise, Bruce's friend in secret conversation. She also learns that Mr. Jupiter has a car of the same make as that which the murderer used in his get-away and which later killed Eddie. Mr. Jupiter explains the car was bought for experimental purposes in his business.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIII

What had happened at Hilltop Inn, as Bowen told it, was this: After waiting in vain for Mary to telephone him, he had hired a car and driven out the Dixie Highway to the Inn to see for himself what happened to her. He found the place empty except for the proprietor and went inside the frame shack to telephone the Ambassador and ask if she was there.

While standing at a porch table, he heard a party arrive and seat themselves at a porch table. They were quiet enough at first, ordering soft drinks over which the woman cooed with interest, but presently their voices rose excitedly.

Bowen, who was enduring one of those interminable waits which seem to ensue whenever a hotel clerk is assailed by a request for information, exchanged amused glances with the waiter, and they both frankly listened.

The argument seemed to be over a diamond bracelet which fell out of the woman's handbag when she took out powder and lipstick to refresh her jaded complexion, according to the man behind the counter who enjoyed a full view of the fracas.

"Who gave it to you? Who gave it to you?" the woman's companion demanded repeatedly, grasping her wrist.

"But it is not what you think," the woman protested. "It was given to me to hold as security for a loan of money. When the money is paid back, I give back the bracelet."

The quiet statement induced in the infuriated lover was more ominous than his rage, however.

"You mean my money? To whom? De Loma?"

"Your money?" the Countess retorted with spirit and perhaps with justice, for Bruce's allowance was far from princely these days.

"When do I ever see your money? No, it was the money I won on the horse race. And I loaned it to a woman—not a man. You are mad if you say I—"

"You gave it to De Loma," Bruce repeated calmly.

"It was a woman, I tell you! Stupid, what would a man be doing with a bracelet like that?"

"I am wondering," Bruce replied.

Bowen, who had now possessed himself of a knot-hole view of the proceedings, was convinced by the unyielding hardness of Bruce Jupiter's expression that the incident had opened a new vein of thought to the young man—and one which might prove fruitful.

The Countess, obviously frightened, resorted to tears, recriminations, pouts and sobs. There were wails, "You are a beast. You do not love me!"

"Oh, yes, I love you, my dear Louise. But if I loved you twice as much, I still shouldn't put up with your lies."

"You don't believe me?"

"No, my dear Louise, I do not."

At this point dear Louise quite lost her head, and hurled a volley of gutter French at her erstwhile lover, who sat calmly sucking at the straw of his lemon soda until her outburst was over.

Not too long after this moment, the Countess abandoned her tirade as suddenly as she began it and sank into her chair, trembling and tearful.

"Well, then, I will tell you," she said. "I promised to say nothing to anyone. But, since you are such a pig, I break that promise. When we get back to the hotel, I show her to you."

"Her—who?"

"The one I loan money to—the one whose bracelet it is!"

Bruce was pale as but unconvinced. "All right, who was it?" he snapped.

"Well, then—if I must tell you—Miss Harkness! But please—do not let her know I say this—"

Bruce digested this a moment.

"What happened this moment?"

"What would Mary Harkness be doing with a bracelet like that? That's worth $5000 if it's worth a cent! And why should she borrow money from you when she could pawn it? And why should she need money at all?"

The Countess shrugged. "How do I know where she gets the bracelet? Perhaps some man gives it to her... perhaps your father?"

Bruce snapped "You're crazy!" But his laugh did not carry conviction.

"She does not wish to pawn it because of... the sentiment..."

The Countess continued, "so..."

Bruce snorted incredulously.

"She'd pawn it before she'd let you have it," he decided. "She got a hunch I can dig up some dirt on her if the boys in the police morgue get a good look at her."

Mary was more than dubious; she was frightened.

"She wouldn't do anything for me," she objected. "I'm afraid of that woman, she tells the truth! And from your account, she must be wild!"

"Oh, have a heart! Yell 'fire' or something! Shoo her out here just long enough for me to get a picture. I'll wait. Better hurry, though, before Bruce gets back and makes it up with her, the sap!"

"I don't promise anything," Mary said. "I can try, but that's all."

"O. K."

Mary replaced the receiver on the hook thoughtfully. After a moment she took it down again and asked the clerk if the Countess had come in yet. Told that she had, she asked for room service and ordered sandwiches and iced drinks sent up to her own room. Then, with trepidation turning her knees to jelly, she went down the hall and tapped on the other woman's door. If she lost a moment, she knew her courage would once away entirely.

ONE WOMAN'S SECRET

It was the most engaging personality in the crowd. She dressed well—always looked well. What was her secret of charm and beauty? She took as much care of the inside of her body as of her face and hands. She ate Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines. And Vitamin B to tone them up. Both aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is a good source of iron for the blood. This delicious cereal is already cooked and krambled. Two tablespoons daily for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor. Avoid constipation. It often causes headaches, loss of pep, pimples, premature aging. Eat ALL-BRAN regularly—either as a cereal, or in cooked dishes. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

National Book Week

(By Mrs. J. L. Johnson)
 "Let's read together." A common love of books and reading will hold a family as close together as a love for music.
 Father and son have a subject of conversation or argument when the boy reads a book that was one of the father's childhood favorites. The same holds good for the mother and daughter when the children select their favorites among the new books there's a chance for comparison and partisanship that makes a strong bond of understanding and sympathy.
 Nowadays we hear constantly from youth "no one understands us." There is a pull toward separating family interests. No longer do we have the open fire, popping corn and roasting apples; gone are the long winter evenings of family gatherings. Try the bookcase as a point of contact.
 If the boy or girl can't have an individual bookcase, give each a shelf and help them to care fully and gradually fill it. Beware of becoming too insistent with advice—give a chance for personal selection.
 Books of travel the whole family will enjoy if accompanied by a good atlas.
 Travel can be enjoyed through the mind that is trained to picture what is given in the printed page. Adventure in the far north or tropical jungle can seem real for many hours.
 If you cannot travel—read travel books. If you can travel, more than ever, read travel books. The novel is the companionable book. A whole array of characters await your acquaintance behind its covers, ready to come when you call.
 Christmas will soon be here. Solve your gift problem with books.
 "For books are more than books, they are life. The very heart and core of ages past, the reason why men lived and worked and died. The essence and quintessence of their lives."
K. P. ROLL CALL.
 The Eastland Knights of Pythias Lodge, which meets each Tuesday night, will have a roll call of members next Tuesday night and all members are expected to be present. Refreshments will be served after the meeting, which will be for third degree work.
