SECOND SHERIFF TRIAL STARTED AT AUSTIN

Only a few days remain until the annual Red Cross roll call will be staged in Ranger and workers are already being informed as to the routine they will follow in procuring the memberships.

The announcement of the rules and regulations of the Oil Belt Poultry show say that it is to be held in the old Boyd Motor company building on the corner of Main and Main streets, which shows that others make mistakes as well as newspapermen.

At the last meeting of the citizens' school tax committee plans were made for having 100 placards calling attention of the people to the necessity of paying school taxes.

Stanley, chairman of the Dallas trade extension bureau of the chamber of commerce, said: "If merchants would stop telling everybody how bad times were, 30 per cent of the pinching in business in the south would be overcome immediately."

SLEEPERS ESCORTED FROM CITY

Chief of Police Jim Ingram obtained permission from the Ranger city commission Wednesday to haul all "sleepers" out of town each morning.

Wednesday night 12 men spent the night in the jail and this morning 11 of them were hauled to the city limits and released.

It is thought that in this way the number of sleepers and robberies might be reduced in Ranger. The word will soon spread among the "knights of the road" through their "grapevine telegraph."

The average number of sleepers has increased recently from about 300 a month to approximately 500 a month, due chiefly to the fact that the northern and eastern states are now getting too cold for comfort and the majority are traveling south and west to warmer climates for the winter months.

Chief Ingram said today that after releasing the men each morning he could find them scattered all over town, making the back doors in search of free meals and looking for anything loose to pick up and carry away with them.

A DEAD ISSUE RESURRECTION.

During the campaign in the 14th congressional district, candidates for congress and their managers wasted a lot of time telling of their love of Mexicans and Mexico.

There is a humorous side to every campaign. During the first 10 months of 1931, 120,000 Mexicans returned to their native country from the United States. Thousands are expected to return to Mexico in December and a big increase in the number returning to Mexico is looked for during the first half of 1932.

They weren't driven out of the United States. They were forced to go or starve on account of conditions in the ranch and farming districts and in the beet fields of the lower Gulf coast and the entire Rio Grande river sections from Gulf coast to Pacific coast. Now why a dead issue in Texas politics? Box, M. C., is politically dead. His issue died when he died. Throw a flower on the grave of the unknown soldier.

IMPORTANT RULING BY U. S. SUPREME COURT.

The supreme court of the United States has placed another powerful weapon in the hands of federal prohibition agents. In a unanimous opinion the tribunal ruled that the furnishings and fittings of a speakeasy are subject to confiscation. Many speakeasies are not only glittering but gaudy palaces with interior decorations that are costly to say the least. Now when a raid is made the plunder goes with the barkeepers. That is, they are confiscated and taken to jail or storehouse.

Nine Nations Have Chance in Olympic 800 Meters Race

By VIRGIL PINKLEY
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 LONDON.—Few flat races in the tenth Olympiad promise to be as open as the 800 meters. Any one of nine nations may win, and unknown athletics win ranking as the world's best at a half-mile.

The race looms as one of the really big uncertainty events. Great Britain, followed by the United States, Germany, Finland, France, Canada, Sweden, Norway, and Italy, deserve rating in the order given as likely producers of the winning athlete. This placing may be greatly altered, due to the importance of the rule Tom Hampson plays for Britain.

Had the coming Olympic games been held in 1930 instead of 1932, Tom Hampson would, without hesitation, be named as the prospective winner. Britain's leading half-miler has, however, gone back almost two full seconds since the British Empire games of 1930. The United States entry is led by Russell Chapman, 1:52.4; Edwin Genung, 1:52.3; Ben Eastman, 1:53; Letts, 1:53.5; David Cobb, 1:52; and Otto Rosner, who placed second in the 1931 National A. A. U. championships behind Genung in a race won at 1:52.3.

Germany's four leading candidates and their best times since the 1928 games at 800 meters are: Dr. Otto Peltzer, 1:52.2; Herman Engelhardt, 1:53.1; Danz, 1:53.3; and E. Muller, 1:54.2.

Harry E. Larva, winger of the 1500 meters for Finland at Amsterdam, has been running a number of grand 800 meter races. In 1928, Sera Martin placed sixth. He holds the world's record for 800 meters. Since the Amsterdam games he has been defeated frequently by his fellow countryman, Jean Keller.

A Slight Drawback!

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

Warren H. Pierce, editor of the Clinton (Indiana) Daily Clintonian, says:

"The depression is ours. Whether or not the public in general believes it, wether or not we suffer a recession or two on the upward path it is nevertheless possible to assert confidently that the future will justify the remark.

"From this day forward will become evident the wisdom of those businesses which refused to be scared away from advertising by the bugboo of depression. It will become evident that advertising is a two-way force. On the downgrade of business conditions it acts as a powerful brake. Those firms that severely curtailed their advertising schedules rocketed to the depths of depression, far far below wiser more clear-sighted competitors whose steady advertising volume kept them close to the top of the hill.

"And those firms which stopped advertising have a long way to climb back. Not only did they sink lower than the firms that advertised, but even if they now renew their advertising in full volume it will take them a long time to reach the selling

"I want to get the Japanese boys home before New Year's, but that depends on whether the Chinese abandon their menacing activities," he said.

Mayor Jimmy Walker was given a 15-gun salute on arriving in San Francisco. But that couldn't have been much of a treat after passing through Chicago.

"It must be borne in mind that the value of advertising is cumulative in its effect. A series of ten ads is worth one hundred times as much as a single ad. And therein lies the great lesson for advertisers — to keep pounding everlastingly at it.

"In the time of depression lies the greatest of opportunities for the wise and foresighted company. Then is the time that it may gain such an overwhelming lead over its competitors that it can never be overtaken.

"For those firms that have cut their advertising, there is but one hope. And that is to start right now to ride the rising tide in the hopes of distancing those lead-wise of all firms which insist on distancing those least wise of all waiting until prosperity is back before renewing their advertising."

SPEAKING OF SPORTS
 By DIXON STEWART, Staff Press Correspondent.
Dempsey May Stage Successful Comeback
 Don't be too sure that Jack Dempsey's valiant attempt at a comeback is doomed for failure! The old Manassa Mauler no longer is the deadly puncher of a decade ago. Perhaps he isn't half as manly as when he battered Willard to a pulp at Cleveland in 1919—but he wouldn't have to whip the present crop of lightweight fighters like a can of worms through a shingle roof. The Dempsey who defeated Willard, Fulton, Firpo, Carpentier and a group of unknown to younger fight fans—could through the modern crop of lightweight fighters like a can of worms through a shingle roof. And, if after years of soft living and inactivity, Dempsey can even give a semblance of his old fighting ability, he has a chance to become the first heavyweight champion in history to regain the title. Jack Dempsey was within a hair of regaining the title when he met Gene Tunney for the second time at Chicago in 1927—in fact many such astute judges of fight affairs as Commissioner William Muldoon of the New York commission—maintain that Dempsey did, in reality, retain the title when he knocked Gene down for the famous 14th round, even though Referee Dave Barry ruled otherwise.
Empty Greatest in Fighting
 Regardless of the ultimate outcome, Dempsey's present comeback attempt is one of the most remarkable chapters in ring history. Out of the ring for four years, Dempsey started his "comeback" with a western exhibition tour in which he met all comers. True, most of his victims were helpless hand-picked, but even that type of fighter ordinarily would be considered generous for a boxer 37 years old who had been idle for four years. Jack knocked them over as easily as they came, and then, convinced that he could regain his old form, went into the mines for months of "mucking" to strengthen his legs.
 Now Dempsey is engaged in a road exhibition tour, against some formidable opposition. His opponents have included Bearcat, George Neron, Babe Hunt, and others of their ilk—fighters who have appeared against top-notch opponents and who are used as good second raters, even though he has been suffering from an attack of flu, Dempsey managed to defeat every opponent and appears to be improving as he progresses. His showing against Hunt, who boasts victories over Ernie Schaaf, Jimmy Braddock, Johnny Risko and Jack Doolan, as well as a pair of draws with young Stribling, was the best of the tour and convinced many fight followers that Jack is ready for

Swift Targets Are Easy for the Army

WASHINGTON.—So precise are the new army methods of artillery fire control that officers expect soon to hit targets moving at 45 miles per hour, which are invisible to the gunners.
 Major General H. G. Bishop, in his annual report to Secretary of War Harney, said:
 "A method of attacking such speed targets when invisible from the gun positions has been devised and will shortly be promulgated to the service."
 Bishop's report summarized the advances of the last year in using radio communication to direct the fire of batteries, in developing efficient mounts of anti-aircraft guns and in standardizing army vehicles so that an adequate supply may be had quickly, in the event of war, from commercial manufacturers.
 "If the situation requires it," he said, "I want to be able to fill all motor requirements in the field artillery from vehicles which may be found on the streets of any American city and whose spare parts and accessories are found in a multitude of shops."

Stratospheres Cold is Constant Experts Declare

WASHINGTON.—The atmosphere, contrary to belief hitherto, does not become colder and colder as one travels away from the earth, the United States weather bureau has concluded.
 Experiments with balloons have revealed a demarcation seven miles up, beyond which the temperature is constant and the atmosphere is calm. Up to that point, according to W. J. Humphries, chief of the division of meteorological physics, the temperature decreases steadily as distance from the earth increases.
 Hitherto it has been held that the temperature continued to fall indefinitely, but Humphries' experiments tend to prove that at 69 degrees below zero Fahrenheit the temperature ceases to fall and remains constant for an undetermined distance.
 In the lower layer, known as the troposphere, occur ordinary storms and other atmospheric disturbances. In the stratosphere, above seven miles, it is calm and the temperature does not change. To aviators planning to fly in the stratosphere, this discovery, if fully substantiated, is of incalculable value. Recently, planes have been built in Europe for this purpose, on the theory that in the thin atmosphere around 10 miles up tremendous speeds could be attained, facilitating long-distance flying. If, as Humphries has decided, the temperature is constant at that height and there are no wind currents, flying would be much safer than in the lower altitudes.

SOON Maxie Schmeling will begin a new tour of the country displaying his manly prowess in bowling over stumblers with much the same technique as that of Dempsey.
 It's not exactly a new idea. Fifty years ago at this very time John L. Sullivan, last of the bare-knuckle champions, was doing it. Sullivan toured the country offering $100 to any man who could stand against him for four rounds.

Westerner Has Rare Exhibits

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Relics, second to the brand new, hold the general interest of most Americans.
 H. Forgotson, 74-year-old pioneer westerner, and resident here, has spent a greater portion of his life collecting coins, and relics, which now are reputed to be worth a small fortune, and his only wish is for youth again, so that he might continue his collections.
 A Mark Anthony and Cleopatra coin, which rests in a safety box in the bank, a Martha Washington silver dollar issued in 1788, California gold coins of 1857 vintage, and an old script for 25 pounds American money, issued in South Carolina in March, 1776, by the second United States congress are samples of his collection.
 The pioneer delights in displaying a solid silver medallion, one of four made for Indian chiefs after the Indian wars. The medallions were fashioned during the presidency of General Grant, and the one now owned by Forgotson was presented to Chief Tasimo of the Comanches. It was found many years after the death of the chief, and Forgotson purchased it in 1900.
 A $65,000 depot has been constructed at Littlefield, Texas. Its opening was celebrated with a banquet honor to the rail officials.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

By THE POLITICAL ANALYST.
 Even a friendless Indian, sitting in a cell of Death Row at Huntsville, can count upon the lanky southwestern plainman who is adjutant general of Texas for aggressive effort to protect him as to justice.
 Adjutant General W. W. Sterling three months ago assigned a ranger to work on the case of Chief Red Wing, awaiting the stark death chair at Huntsville. . . Mr. Sterling did not pretend to believe that Red Wing was innocent of killing little Evangelina Cavazos while her mother danced in the tent show. But he did insist that the Cherokee half-breed was going to get the benefit of every bit of investigation that his case deserved, despite a jury verdict, based on a confession he gave officers after hours of grilling.

 And so, as a result of General Sterling's sense of justice and fairness, his ideal of upholding the integrity of the law, the Indian has been given an 11-day respite, during which persons will be questioned and the issue of Red Wing's guilt sifted to the last grain of fact.
 "Interstate" business has been in the habit of running rather negligently over Texas laws.
 Assistant Attorney General Elbert Hooper has reined up one type of interstate operation sharply at the barrier of state lines.
 He has told the truck line operators that they will not disregard Texas laws for the protection of Texas citizens and Texas highways, merely on the pretext that they run over into Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma or New Mexico.
 If it stands up in the courts, this will be one of the most effective departures in interpretation and enforcement of Texas laws in decades. . . If based on reason, it will stand up.
 A Texas truck line, common carrier or contract carrier, must hold a Texas permit, must comply with Texas rates, must carry bond and insurance. . . Those operating over and across the line insisted they were above the Texas law.
 On Mr. Hooper's ruling, such interstate lines will be operating without the sanction of law, if they fail to comply with the same requirements, pay the same fees and provide the same safeguards as Texas concerns.
 Cities are without power to license the ambulance driver to recklessly speed across traffic signals and endanger the lives of scores of people. . . This is the ruling of the second court of civil appeals at Fort Worth.
 "Ambulance drivers are responsible in case of collision at high speed, unless it can be shown that the accident was not due to lack of caution on their part." This is the dictum of the court.
 An cities can't change it by ordinance. In rare cases, speed of getting an injured person to a hospital is a matter of life and death. We have seen ambulances roar up to a hospital and discharge injured persons, only to find that a nurse will languidly begin telephoning about for a doctor.

San Francisco Praises A Hearse As A Quiet Home

By United Press. SAN FRANCISCO.—There's no place like home even if "home" is a hearse.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Cromulsion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take.

The Newfangles (Mom 'n' Pop)

By Cowan

Gems of Peril

by HAZEL ROSS HAILEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Mary Harkness plots to ensnare The Fly, who "framed" her brother, Eddie, with the murder of Mrs. Jupiter and ran him down to keep him from telling. She is aided by Mr. Jupiter and Bowen of the Star.

Head-On Crash Saves Lives!

Quick thinking and action of a veteran engineer saved the lives of his passengers when these two locomotives crashed at Pittsburgh, Pa. The engineer brought his train to a sudden stop when he saw the 200,000-ton freight engine, left, skid past a block signal and bear down on him.

Mary sails for Miami on the Jupiter yacht to follow The Fly. Bruce Jupiter and a questionable friend, Countess Louise, go along. They vow to root Mary, who they consider a gold-digger trying to steal Bruce's inheritance.

Louise introduces the party to Count De Loma, who Mary learns is Thy Fly. Using the Jupiter necklace as bait, Mary dances with him. He gets the necklace from her by a ruse, then kisses her. Dirk knocks him down.

Injured and unconscious, Dirk is taken on board the yacht the "Gypsy." The Fly goes along and tries again to steal the necklace. Bowen gives Mary proof that the countess is an adventuress. The "Gypsy" sails with all on board. The Fly realizes he has walked into a trap. The "Gypsy" goes aground on a reef.

CHAPTER XLV

J. J. Jupiter was the first man on deck. Although it was past his usual early retiring hour, he was still dressed. He was there when Captain Hendricks came hurrying down from the bridge, and together the two men retired to the port rail. Bates and Mary followed.

"What's the matter, captain?" Bates inquired somewhat nervously. He had a landsman's inordinate fear of accident on sea, and even Mary felt a childish impulse to rush to the captain's aid.

"We're fast on a reef," Captain Hendricks was explaining to Mr. Jupiter. "She's apparently not hurt—the engineers say she's making no water below—but she seems to be well stuck."

"Can you get off by yourself?" Mr. Jupiter asked. "We'll have a try at it tomorrow morning. I'm afraid we'll have to have a tug out of Key West to give us a pull."

"Do what you think best," Mr. Jupiter answered. "I shouldn't have come in tonight, the captain continued, "but the moon made it almost like day, and I've been around here so much I thought I could make it even in a fog. This channel isn't used except for small fishing craft, and it's sticking right up on top of a reef with only about five feet of water over it! Fortunately we were coming in slow, just barely turning over."

"Where are we?" Bates asked. "Just a half mile from the pier at Fort Jefferson where I intended to make fast. In another five minutes we'd have been there. That's Dry Tortugas there a couple of miles off the starboard beam."

"They turned to look, and the ray of the big searchlight, and its sweeping across their faces and off into the moonlit night.

"I'm going fishing in the morning then," Mr. Jupiter said cheerfully. "How about it, Bates?"

"Fine. "We'd better be getting a little sleep. Ought to be out by six anyway. They bite better early in the morning. Everybody had to bed now. There's nothing we can do to help, and we'd only be in the way."

The day that followed was one of unutterable tedium for those left behind while the fishing party cruised happily about. Mary sat in a deck chair, a book in her lap, watching the unexcited labors of the distant fishermen through a telescope loaned her by the captain. It was not very entertaining but it was better than nothing.

The burning sun drove Bruce and Louise downstairs, where they played interminable games of solitaire. De Loma prowled the deck, and his nerves were all a-jangle, and he roved from one end of the ship to the other, leaning on the rail and studying the prospect in every direction. They were all very much discouraged.

He avoided the landward side, Mary observed, but whether this was due to her presence there, or to the view—which consisted of glassy sea out of which old Fort Jefferson prison reared its ugly head—she did not know.

Presently, to give him the range of the boat, and also because his restlessness had begun to get on her nerves, she resolved to go below and take a nap. She met a steward with a tray. She met a steward with a tray. She met a steward with a tray.

Mary pulled a book from the rack on one side of the saloon and sent that along, too. She promised herself that she would drop in and see Dirk after he had lunch.

Once she heard an altercation out on deck, De Loma was berating a steward because he had locked up the liquor cabinet, at Mr. Jupiter's order, as it turned out. Mary dismissed it from her mind, until a violent knocking at her door forced her to take notice of it.

Hoover To Hear Pleas of Indians

By United Press. SEMINOLE, Okla.—A delegation of Seminole Indians, headed by Chill Fish, who refused an appointment by President Hoover as chief of the tribe for a day, have claims of the Seminole nation to Oklahoma congressmen.

The committee has asked the Oklahoma delegation to secure passage of a bill in congress when it convenes next month, naming an impartial referee who will be empowered to investigate claims of the Seminole tribe.

This referee will decide if the Indians have a case that will warrant presentation to the United States court of claims.

The Seminoles contend the government owes the tribe $500,000 with 5 per cent interest since 1898 by virtue of a land treaty.

The Seminoles also were prepared to ask the government to reopen the Meksuskey academy near here, which was closed a year ago. The boarding school, the Seminoles contend, should either be opened on tribal funds, or from special appropriation from the Indian bureau.

Ranger Merchants To Hold Open House Monday Evening

With Gay Arrangements Made To Complete Success of Affair.
 An arrangement which is being given much time this week through the agreement and full co-operation of all the Ranger merchants, will be completed in the form of an open house of all stores, announced by Mrs. Alice D. Trice, secretary of the Ranger Retail Merchants association, this morning, with Monday evening, Dec. 7, named as the evening for the colorful affair.

Possibly the red and green lights strung across Main street, together with the general Yuletide spirit which always reigns had something to do with the thought which truly promises to be carried out in true fashion.

Each store, ready-to-wear shop, department store, pharmacy, grocery, and every other location on the "drag" will present a gay appearance of Dec. 25. Many stores have already finished their decorations in a very artistic manner through the festive designs and various emblems. Viewing Main street under the soft glow of the many lights diffusing shimmering rays, one gets an unusually pretty picture of window displays, electric signs, which are aided by the bright lights dotting the entrance of the Arcadia theatre.

To carry this open house out in the perfect way, one Santa will be present with the usual amount of bags and sacks filled with nuts, candy, chewing gum and other complimentary confections.

A program of novel nature will also be an added feature to the hour. Every Ranger family is especially invited to attend this event and bring the children to enjoy the fun of the evening and visit the various toylands, all of which will be in readiness for the celebrated occasion.

The merchants are devoting much time and care to make this a marked success and the attendance of the public is necessary in making this accomplishment.

Country Club Dance Monday Evening

Invitations have been received and out-of-town guests especially invited and every detail has been carefully completed for the dance to be given at the Ranger Country club Monday evening, Dec. 7, with the Ray Costlow and his orchestra playing for this season's affair.

Never before has the entertainment committee planned a function with so much care to succeed in making this early December dance one to be long remembered by the members, guests and friends.

The fireplace arranged at one end of the clubroom affords a homely atmosphere and cozy setting for the remainder of the club decorations.

Members of the club will have as guests on this particular evening a number of visitors from out of the city, many of whom will be former Rangers.

Ruth Class Devotes Day To Work at Home of Mrs. Davis

The Ruth class of the Central Baptist Church met at the home of Mrs. Clyde H. Davis this week with the full day devoted to Christmas work and forming detailed plans for the month.

A luncheon was served at noon with a period of the afternoon devoted to class matters, at which time Mrs. Ben Whitehouse, Mrs. George Rogers, and the hostess offered very beneficial suggestions for the consideration of the group.

Baskets and boxes together with the selections of toys will be presented to needy families. The year has proven as whole as one of the most profitable the class has ever known with splendid reports summarized.

Keeping Up With Eastland County Students at C.I.A.

Special Correspondent.
 DENTON, Dec. 3.—Joyce Johnson, Eastland, is a charter member of the Library Club, which was recently organized at Texas State College for Women (C. I. A.) by the library science students. The activities of this group during the year are to be recreational as well as educational. Miss Mary Buffum, professor and director of the department of library science, and Miss Mary D. Taylor and Miss Pearl G. Carlson, assistant professors and instructors in the department were hostesses to the first monthly entertainment of the new club Saturday afternoon at a picnic at Lake Dallas.

The Choral Club of Texas State College for Women (C. I. A.) will sing in concert with the Dallas Symphony orchestra Sunday afternoon, Dec. 6. Misses Frances Glazner and Kenneth Weir of Ranger are members of the choral club.

"Don't do that—it gets on my nerves!" We have all heard this expression for nearly everyone has his own "pet antipathy," which is just a dignified term for the same thing. And C. I. A. girls are no exception to this tendency to be exasperated by certain things.

Spinach leads in food antipathies of the girls who were questioned, although carrots were also mentioned by several. Slamming doors, squeaking medicine cabinets and chewing gum were also very popular—or rather unpopular in this list. One girl confessed she cut a class once, even though she knew it would count double, because she was to sit next to a gum-chewing (and most likely a gum-popping) girl.

When the seniors were questioned as to their dislikes, Madeleine Sikes, Eastland, said she disliked dyed hair.

Meeting place for the winter has not yet been decided on.
