HOOPERS KNOTHOLE BILL MAYES

Observations of first one and second, picked up in conversation around the city.

The United States should remove all Americans from Shanghai at government expense and let the Chinese and Japanese have at it.

There is truth in the old saying that two can live as cheaply as one woman.

"A war is not a war when it is between the Chinese and Japanese."

The United States could whip Japan in three months.

The United States could not whip Japan in less than three months and then at a loss of at least a million men.

SAYS MILLIONS IN SAVINGS TO PEOPLE NEEDED

Special Message Points Out Expense Of Bureaus Not Needed.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—President Hoover today asked congress for authority to effect a complete reorganization of the executive branch of the government.

In a special message the president said the rapid growth of bureaus and commissions was costing the people millions a year and that scores of the units overlapped. He said the "separate units" once created, sought to keep going after the jobs were completed.

He admitted the amount to be saved was "difficult to estimate" but insisted it would total millions yearly. He said the government should be able to do more effective work with less money.

Consolidation and grouping of the various executive and administrative activities under single-headed departments.

While proposing elimination of many minor offices the president suggested creation of several new major posts which he said would fill the need for "definite and concentrated responsibility to the public."

'Who Goes There?' AUTO LEADS TO HIS ARREST ON THREE CHARGES

Military Officers Agree To His Trial In State District Court.

By United Press.

SEGUIN, Texas, Feb. 17.—Second Lieut. Herbert C. Litzenger, 28, of Oklahoma City, Randolph Field officer and a graduate of Creighton university, was charged here today with holding up the First State bank at Schertz, 20 miles west of here Monday.

The officer was arrested following identification of a car for which he had been issued license plates as the car was used in the holdup. The car was found in San Antonio. Sheriff Albert Hauser arrested the officer with the cooperation of military authorities. The latter agreed to yield him for trial by state courts. Litzenger is married and has two children. He is rated an air pilot.

He is being held by military authorities at San Antonio but will be brought to jail here today.

Two charges of robbery with firearms and one of assault to murder were filed against the officer. Six hundred eighty-four dollars and fifty cents was taken in the robbery and officers said today $500 of the stolen money has been recovered.

The arresting officers said Bank Cashier Phemeyer and his wife, who were held up, had identified Litzenger as the man who robbed them. They also said the air officer had made a verbal statement to military police admitting the holdup.

AWAIT TRIAL IN HAWAII SLAYING

AUTHORITIES OF TWO NATIONS WILL MEET ON WEDNESDAY TO DISCUSS WITHDRAWING TROOPS

Will Be Most Important Peace Discussion Since January 28th, When Present Hostilities Started In Orient.

By United Press.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 17.—A concerted move for peace was made by Japanese and Chinese authorities today just as Shanghai reached the darkest hour in nearly three weeks of bombardment, terror and battle.

The most important peace discussion since Jan. 28 when the fighting that has resulted in thousands of casualties started, has been arranged for tomorrow morning between the representative of the Japanese and the commander of the 19th Chinese army defending Shanghai.

The conference will discuss possibility of the Chinese withdrawing from the Chapei sector and the Japanese returning to within the international settlement limits. It will be the first direct contact between commanders of the opposing forces since the outbreak of hostilities.

The move came when foreign authorities were growing increasingly apprehensive over the danger to the foreign settlement, which has been the target of numerous shells. The most serious incident occurred today when shells landed on a wharf in the Hongkew area of the settlement, killing two British seamen.

The seamen, H. G. Prior and H. A. Francis, were taken aboard the Steamer Carthage, where they died.

AGED SISTERS TRY SUICIDE; ONE IS DEAD

SCHULENBURG, Texas, Feb. 17.—Two aged sisters, dependent over financial difficulties and ill health, today ended a suicide pact which ended in the death of one.

Annie Seydler, 69 years old, was found hanging by a rope from the top of an inside door, and Mary, 62, was found under a bed in another room.

The elder sister, still alive, had a tightly twisted rope around her neck.

Justice of the Peace J. P. Vogt, who returned a suicide verdict in the death of Annie Seydler, said Mary had hanged herself in a similar manner but the rope broke.

She is expected to recover.

Justice Vogt said he found a note signed "Mary," which read: "When I am dead I want doctors to cut my head open. Maybe it will help them discover what is the matter and help some poor soul to be saved."

The sisters had never married and lived alone in the house, Justice Vogt said.

U. S. TO HOLD JAPAN RESPONSIBLE FOR ANY AMERICAN LIVES LOST

TOKIO, Feb. 17.—T. U. S. government will hold Japan responsible for any American lives endangered by Japanese operations in Shanghai's international settlement, Ambassador DeBuchi notified the foreign office today from Washington.

Responsibility will be fixed on Japan regardless of whether the lives are endangered by Japanese or Chinese gunfire drawn on the settlement in retaliation or Japanese concentrations in the area, he said.

DeBuchi reported he had made "fruitful attempts" to dissuade Secretary Stimson from sending the new representation. He pointed out that American and British troops had been landed in the settlement. Stimson was adamant and very excited he said.

RANGER CIVIC LEAGUE FORMED AT MEETING

An organization to be known as the Ranger Civic league was planned at the meeting of the tree-planting committees from the various clubs and organizations of Ranger.

The membership of the Ranger Civic league is to be selected, one member from each of the various clubs of the town, and will be a permanent organization to meet regularly and sponsor civic movements of various kinds. Officers of the organization are to be elected by the members at the first meeting.

The main objectives of the league, as outlined at the meeting, will be sponsoring a tree and shrubbery planting campaign and a yard beautification contest, a clean-up and paint-up campaign and other movements that may come before the league from time to time.

Ben Whitehouse, general chairman of the tree-planting committee, appointed a committee composed of J. E. Meroney and Mrs. C. E. Maddocks was appointed to select speakers to appear at the various public schools to make talks on the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington and tree-planting. Suitable ceremonies are to be conducted at the Ranger high school and at each of the ward schools of the city on Monday, Feb. 22, which is George Washington's birthday and arbor day in Texas.

It was decided by the committee that 100 Chinese elms be purchased and distributed over the town at actual cost in order to promote tree-planting and that local nurserymen would handle additional orders for shade trees and shrubbery.

The tree-planting committee is to meet each Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce to make further plans toward city beautification.

George Washington Program Is Heard By Ranger Rotary

The Ranger Rotary club at the regular weekly meeting today had an interesting program in keeping with the celebration of the 200th anniversary of George Washington's birthday.

H. S. Von Roeder and Walter Harwell were in charge of the program and introduced Miss Marie Galloway, a student of Ranger junior college, who gave an interesting talk on Washington and the bicentennial. She pointed out that not only the United States but foreign countries were going to celebrate in honor of Washington and that Sweden, Norway, Poland and Hungary had already made preparations for commemorating the event.

She said that radio stations were co-operating in holding suitable programs as were the churches, schools and the American Tree association.

David Nichol Jr., of Ranger high school, was introduced as giving a paper on the life of Washington, paying a tribute to him as one of the greatest of the great. His talk was well received and brought out several interesting points.

The committee composed of H. C. Anderson, William N. McDonald and C. B. Pruet was appointed to work out details and plans for the inter-city meeting to be held in Ranger on Feb. 24, at which croquet, tennis, basketball and Ranger are to take part.

Visitors to the meeting were Claude Allen of Fort Worth and Walter Clark and Bill Campbell of Eastland.

PRO AND ANTI 89ERS HOLDING MEETINGS

A meeting of the committee to sponsor building of the Ranger-Weatherford cutoff of state highway No. 1, known as highway No. 89, has been called by Milburn McCarty of Eastland, chairman of the committee.

The meeting is to be held in the Eastland county courthouse on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 24, at 2 o'clock.

A similar meeting of the opponents of the proposed highway are meeting this afternoon at Stamford.

TAX EXPERTS TO VISIT EASTLAND INCOME TAX MAN TO VISIT RANGER

This paper is in receipt of a letter from F. E. Vickery, deputy collector of internal revenue with offices at Abilene saying that a representative of the income tax division will be in Eastland on March 3 to assist in preparing income tax returns for the year 1931.

In order to avoid penalty and interest, income tax returns should be filed not later than March 15.

The deputy collector will establish headquarters in the Texas State Bank building in Eastland.

GARNER IS UNCONCERNED OVER SUPPORT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Friends of Speaker Garner of Texas have put him formally into the democratic presidential race.

His first comment was, "I don't give a damn."

This amiable democrat was put forward in a statement by the two Texas senators, Sheppard and Connally. They said the Texas delegation would present his name to the democratic national convention.

DeBuchi reported he had made "fruitful attempts" to dissuade Secretary Stimson from sending the new representation. He pointed out that American and British troops had been landed in the settlement. Stimson was adamant and very excited he said.

ELKS ATHLETIC SHOW POSTPONED DAY FOR BANQUET

Plans for the American Legion-George Washington banquet to be held in Ranger on Monday night, Feb. 22, are progressing rapidly.

The regular semi-monthly athletic show of the Ranger Elks has been postponed to Tuesday night in order that everyone may have an opportunity to attend and the regular meeting night of the national guild company has been postponed from Tuesday to Wednesday night in order that it might not conflict with either attraction.

The only conflicting date on that night is a dance that is being planned by the Ranger Country club.

All members of the ticket selling committee have been urged to be present at the regular weekly meeting of the Carl Barnes post Thursday night in order that reports on the number of tickets sold may be made and the necessary arrangements for the proper number of plates made.

ABILENE MAN IS WOUNDED BY A DEPUTY SHERIFF

By United Press.

GONZALES, Texas, Feb. 17.—About midnight last night Deputy Sheriff Joe Jowers was going home. As he approached the bank he found a man trying to break into it. The man ran and the deputy sheriff shot. The man was wounded in the leg. He gave his name as Bill Loving and said his home was at Abilene, where his parents live. His wound was not thought serious.

The court reversed a lottery conviction against W. H. Dyer in Palo Pinto county. He was convicted on a charge of installing a mint-vending machine in a store at Mingo. The court held there was no testimony to show this machine was operated in violation of lottery laws.

CRIS OF 'WAR' HEARD IN ENGLISH HOUSE OF COMMONS

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Cries of "war" were raised in the house of commons today when Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, was explaining the government's attitude against withdrawing foreign ambassadors from Tokyo and applying an economic boycott to Japan.

The government will continue to act in close collaboration with the powers represented at Geneva and with the United States," Simon told the house.

"Have we power to do anything more than we have done?" asked a laborite.

Simon ignored the question but the cries of "war" were heard from the ministerial benches.

ANOTHER CHURCHMAN OBJECTS

Another eminent clergyman denounces the practice of using hymns during the Christmas season as a background for advertising ballyhoo. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C., said in a sermon to his congregation:

"I wish to take this occasion to voice a public protest on behalf of all Christian people in Washington and elsewhere against the growing tendency to commercialize our Christian hymns and Christian beliefs over the radio at the Christmas season.

"If this abominable traffic over the cradle of our Savior is not checked vigorously at the start we shall be confronted with a public nuisance. It is perfectly outrageous that people should be permitted to immolate our sacred songs of Christian faith and hope upon the altar of commercial greed, and go unrebuked.

"I, therefore, publicly denounce all commercial enterprises or individuals that pursue this sacrilegious method of advertising and file my complaint against them with the Radio Commission. I forward copies of this protest to the public press for what it may be worth, in the hope that it will find a most earnest, immediate and vocal response in the hearts of millions of Christian believers."

PROPOSED COTTON PRODUCTS LABORATORY

The proposed cotton products laboratory to be established in Texas by the federal government is sponsored by the three regional chambers of commerce of the Lone Star commonwealth. Representative Marvin Jones of Amarillo has introduced a bill creating the laboratory and it is now pending in the house. Progressive Texans, Inc., submitted some facts and arguments showing the urgent need for a cotton research laboratory establishment and urging the State of Texas as the logical location. Under the heading of "The Present Distress of Cotton" the argument presented for the establishment of the laboratory declares world economic conditions have combined to make difficult the solution of agricultural problems, especially the problems of the producers of cotton which have since 1870 played an important role in international trade, exceeding in export value any other American product and maintaining more than any other commodity, a favorable balance of trade for the nation.

This is an excerpt: "During the World War period the United States liquidated its debts to the balance of the world and today we find the European nations unable to buy our cotton and as a consequence we now have on hand millions of bales of cotton unused. With the price of cotton below the present price of production the situation has caused drastic cuts in cotton acreage."

As a relief remedy, the very pointed address drafted by Progressive Texans, Inc., makes interesting reading: "It is admitted the South would be indefinitely better off to maintain other enterprises on the farm and not to be altogether dependent on a cash crop." The South must plant feed crops needed to be converted into livestock or livestock products for home use or for sale as a recommendation. A warning is given that large scale violent shifts of land use are not desirable or profitable. At the same time it is admitted that it is not economically sound or socially desirable to continue to produce any crop at a loss; "therefore, in the interests of a balanced national life and agriculture it is vital to the nation that we have a wise utilization of the great cotton crop of the South. To this end a cotton products laboratory is needed to provide for research on cotton uses and cottonseed products and other agricultural products."

It is advised that the greatest need of both agriculture and industry today is a liaison agency which will discover new uses for agricultural products and develop improvements on present methods of utilization, as such an organization understanding the needs of both agriculture and industry would serve both enterprises to the mutual profit of both. We are told a start in this direction has already been made: a corn products laboratory has been established in Iowa; a wheat products laboratory in Nebraska; and a similar enterprise serving forestry, known as the Forest Products Laboratory, has been established in Wisconsin. Why not a cotton products laboratory in the greatest cotton producing commonwealth of the union?

HIRAM JOHNSON ON THE ROAD AGAIN

Senator Hiram Johnson of California is a republican and yet a thorn in the side of the republican administration. He has demanded legislation to prohibit sales in this country of securities of any foreign government in default on its obligations to America. Indeed, he has introduced a bill covering all the ground. This is the Hiram argument: "Many individuals and officials abroad are merrily suggesting that the debts due the United States from foreign governments will never be paid. Perhaps the proposed enactment may have a different effect."

ECONOMY THAT TAKES HUMAN LIVES.

According to a recent report, 6,000 persons are burned to death in American homes every year. Eighteen hundred of these are children under 10 years of age.

Failure to keep a home in proper repair, thus making it an easy prey to the fire demon, is the most dangerous kind of "economy." When electrical work is needed, it should be done by a licensed electrician, not by an amateur.

A common unwise practice is to attempt home dry-cleaning. Not only is this a doubtful economy, as it is difficult for untrained hands to obtain satisfactory results, but the danger involved is extreme since the cleaning fluids usually are highly inflammable, requiring but a tiny spark to ignite the fumes which they give off. Many people lose their lives every year as a result.

Home owners should likewise bear in mind that heating plants and chimneys require continual attention. It is false economy as well as dangerous to neglect them at any time.

Putting hot ashes in combustible containers, permitting rubbish to accumulate or leaving paint or oil-soaked rags in homes invite loss and tragedy from fire.

Real economy is a good thing—but it must go hand in hand with common sense and nowhere does this apply more forcefully than in dealing with fire hazards.

A Few Violent Objections

GILLIS GRAFSTROM, who either by accident or deliberate design happens to be a figure skating champion from Sweden, reported he had dropped a camera on his knee, injuring it so severely that he could not really do justice to himself in the Olympic events at Lake Placid.

Wherever the unhappy Austrian, hoping to see Grafstrom outfigured by their own champion, Karl Schaefer, gave vent to raucous outburst. It was their epoch-making charge that Gillis (what a name!) actually feared to skate against Karl, who has been improving himself rapidly during the last year with the idea of making Gillis look like a brick shanty on roller skates. Further, they declared it was not a camera that Gillis dropped on his fragile knee but a toothpick.

Quinn Gets a Raise

THE news comes from Flatbush that Jack Quinn not only is being retained as a Brooklyn pitcher this year but is being given a raise as well. It appears to be a matter for the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Youth to straighten out.

Quinn was pitching for Conestoga, in the Pennsylvania State League the year Travis Jackson was born—1903. This actually will be his 30th consecutive season in baseball. He was playing league ball when Rogers Hornsby was seven years old. He had pitched a full season before Fravis Jackson, Woody English, Tony Lazerri, Fred Lindstrom, Eddie Moran, Buddy Moore, Carl Reynolds, Johnny Rothrock and a number of other well established major leaguers had been born. When Quinn joined the league, Mickey Cochrane was three weeks old. Babe Ruth was going on nine years old.

Law Fonseca was a three-year-old kid being warned not to go out into the San Francisco streets where he surely would be run down by some devil-may-care monster careening along madly in the family surrey.

Quinn was a minor leaguer when Max Carey, his present manager, was a 13-year-old school kid in Terre Haute. And Jack was dismissed by the Yankees as being through a year after Carey made his big league bow with the Pirates. Nine years after Quinn was shunted to the minors, he came back to the same team that had sent him away, and after that he pitched for the Yankees three years during which time he won 40 games and lost 31.

Relic of Federals

JACK is possibly the only big leaguer remaining of that brave band of rebels that jumped to the Federal League nearly 20 years ago. Edd Roush was another, and Edd recently announced his permanent retirement from the game. Quinn's age? Don't ask! This correspondent tried to find out within 10 years the birthday of the kid from Conestoga. That was two years ago in the Athletics' spring camp at Fort Myers. Jack insisted on July 5, 1885. But that would make him only 47. That would make him only nine years older than Babe Ruth, and only about five years older than Max Carey, his venerable manager.

This writer wishes to protest violently. Youngsters like Rogers Hornsby ought to be given a fair trial before being declared unfit for further cavortings on the greenward

Alfalfa Bill Is At Homecoming At His Old Home

COLLINSVILLE (Grayson County), Texas, Feb. 17.—The "local boy who made good" comes home tomorrow amid the cheers of his boyhood associates.

William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, who rose from a North Texas farm boy to governor of Oklahoma, and now is ready to start a campaign for the democratic presidential candidacy, will return to the city of his birth, Collinsville.

One of the greatest celebrations in the history of North Texas awaited his return. Tomorrow morning a motored car to extend from Durant, Okla., to Collinsville will form a gigantic parade to greet the "commoner," famous for his "cottonfield" philosophy, his red gaiters and five-cent cigars.

Although the governor had been invited to make a formal declaration for the democratic presidential nomination, he declared he was "coming home to reminisce."

Formal announcement of his candidacy will be made two days later, during the Oklahoma state democratic convention, his leaders announced. That, however, will not detract from the celebration here.

A tremendous crowd, variously estimated from 40,000 to 100,000 was expected for the celebration. Extra traffic officers were to patrol all highways to facilitate entrance of the vast motor pilgrimage into Collinsville.

dress by Murray, giving his viewpoint on national issues, was scheduled.

All this was for a poor Texas youth who fought his own way to earn an education, to become an authority on constitutional law and government and to become one of the most picturesque figures in the United States.

Murray was born on a farm near Collinsville. He describes his birth as "born in a Texas snowstorm and cradled in the lap of adversity." This quotation he frequently uses as an introduction to his addresses.

When he was 12 years old Murray ran away from home. He earned his living by working on Texas farms. His early education consisted of that acquired in rural schools and in private study. Then he worked his way through college at Weatherford, finishing a four-year course in 20 months. For a while he taught in rural schools and adjoining counties, studying law at night. In summers he worked in the cotton fields, partly for recreation, chiefly for the money.

"I could never pick cotton," Murray said. "I would work until my back nearly broke and my hands were blistered, and I couldn't get above the 100 pounds a day mark. Right then I decided that was no life for me."

Murray began his political life in Texas but soon migrated to Oklahoma where he became one of the outstanding figures of Oklahoma history.

HYMN HUMMING GETS JOB

MILWAUKEE—Edwyn E. Pfister, Whitefish Bay policeman, hummed hymns as he walked his beat and did it so well that he obtained a position as baritone soloist at a church. He resigned his policeman's job to devote his time to a musical career.

Champion Milker Doubles His Herd

CARUTHERS, Calif.—It probably will seem unfair to the young women intending to enter this year's national milkmaids' contest, but it's a fact. Mary Fontana's father intends to double his herd of milk cows.

And Mary will do her share of the milking of them.

Mary is the young woman who won the 1931 championship at St. Louis. She has won numerous local and sectional championships.

Her father is A. Fontana, dairy rancher near here.

For 13 years he has operated his dairy, keeping the best cows he could buy. Mary has done a large part of the milking.

Today Fontana has a herd of 24 producing milk cows. He says he intends soon to increase it to 50.

Fontana keeps a total of about 100 head of cattle on his 60-acre ranch, including old and young stock and dry cows. He also runs 20 head of sheep and Mrs. Fontana maintains a flock of 75 laying hens.

Mary Fontana, champion milkmaid, starts her day at 5 a. m., milks cows until time to go to school here, and in the evening returns and again helps milk the cows. She is assisted by her mother and two sisters, Delfina and Rosie.

Life of Reno Gigolos Is Not One of Loafing

By United Press

RENO, Nev.—This business of being just a gigolo, and earning a living by your social graces, or disgraces, is losing caste among the arts; it's downright labor in the opinion of some of the local boys.

There may have been a time when sipping tea, knowing all the indications at a hand of bridge, and a pair of nimble feet would insure a member of the union perfume money and a little something on the side for hair-cuts.

Things really are quite different now.

It's late to bed and early to rise for Reno gigolos. If they have any sort of trade at all, there will be at least two riding dates a day. Nevada horses are in demand considerably more than those of city parks. Divorcees are exacting. In the summer time lettes have a chance to pace; it's off your home swimming pool, over to the courts, out to the links, to the dance floor month by month.

Competition is keen. They have the courage open to clear their livelihood from cowboys, who talk of "easy as a rocking chair," and know how to make it easy as a rocking chair, and consciously upset the plans of gigolos by "gal."

Bulldogs Finish Cage Season With A 24 to 22 Win

The Ranger Bulldogs finished up their 1932 basketball season on the court at Ranger high school Tuesday night by defeating the Eliasville team by a score of 24 to 22.

Although finishing far down in the percentage column, the Bulldogs scored wins over five opponents during the season.

In the girls' game following the first contest, the Ranger team lost to Thurber by a score of 24 to 17. The Eliasville girls were scheduled to meet the Ranger girls but were unable to play and Thurber substituted.

(Continued from page 1) of your own pocket, ultimately) if he can't get a job. City after city has tried this plan and found it good. It is, on the whole, a cheaper method of furnishing relief than the direct-charity method; it preserves the self-respect of the man who is being helped; and—last but not least—it enables the householder to get a lot of needed work done. Have you four hours' work a week for some man who needs it? You probably have, without realizing it. There are autos to be washed, basements to be cleaned, screens to be repaired and painted ready for spring, kitchens and breakfast room walls to be painted, yards to be cleaned up—a host of little jobs that you'd be glad to have done.

A dollar a week isn't much. You'll hardly know it has gone. But when you and nine of your neighbors unite on such a plan, you will be putting hope and self-respect back into another human life. You might be helping to solve one of the nation's biggest problems.

Cigars, Cigaretts Cause Forest Fires

LANSING, Mich.—Despite the widespread campaign against carelessness of smokers in timber sections, figures of the state conservation department show 46 per cent of Michigan's 4,133 forest fires in 1931 were started by cigarettes or cigars, tossed aside while still burning. This, however, was a reduction of 3 per cent from 1930.

Fires of incendiary nature jumped from 9 per cent in 1930 to 18 per cent in 1931, due, it was believed, to economic conditions.

the bridge but I couldn't hear," she told him a little stiffly. "So I did," he agreed exasperatingly. "What was it?" "Something I hadn't any right to say to you." "Oh, for heaven's sake!" she cried in irritation. "You have a right to say anything you want to say to me." "Do you really mean that?" "Certainly, I mean it!" The car slowed; his speech slowed. "I was only thinking," he said lightly, "that I like your dress today a good deal better than the one you wore the first night I met you." That dress again! "Most people thought the other one was lovely," Ellen put in faintly. How she wished she had not forced this issue! "That's not quite what I was getting at."

Just then he turned a sharp corner and Ellen, caught off guard, was literally flung into his arms. She gasped, extricated herself and moved back to her own corner with an uncertain laugh. She hoped the man would laugh too; hoped his attention would have been diverted from the dress. It had not been. "You know what I was getting at, don't you?" he inquired idly. "How should I?" She was determined not to help him. "Very well then, I'll tell you," he began briskly and in a manner most matter of fact. "It's none of my business and I'm rushing in where angels fear to tread and all that but it seems funny to me that—well—" he continued stubbornly after a break, "—that was an expensive dress, wasn't it?" "This is an expensive car, isn't it?" "Oh, I see! Meaning that at just this point a young man watches his step?" "Meaning precisely that!"

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

Clancy as you were coming up? She generally opens her door to investigate all callers.

"That the party with the red face and the mob cap I flew past on the second floor?" he inquired as he reached the landing and paused panting. "Sure. She was so interested I thought she meant to join me on the last lap." "You're lucky she didn't," Ellen advised him with a little giggle. "You'd have had to carry her, I'm sure." "That was a break." They stood for a moment laughing at the door of the living room where, after a sunlit shone mercilessly on the hedge-edge furniture and leveled its rays as well on the shabby, worn carpet and faded wall paper. Ellen had thoroughly swept the apartment and folded up the Sunday papers but she had changed nothing. She felt an obscure determination that Larry Harrowgate should see them as they were in the home of a millionaire, she breathed with relief. He was no snob.

Molly and Mike had disappeared but Myra was there. She refused their urgent invitation to join them on the score of some darning she must do. So Ellen and Larry departed alone.

"Your sister's swell," Larry observed.

"Yes, isn't she?" Ellen agreed eagerly.

"She could see that we wanted to be alone," he went on. "I bet my hat she had no darning to do."

Ellen was conscious of not wanting to forget a word of all this. She knew she would want to remember often what he had said. It would have been a little better if he had not laughed so. Still there it was—he had said they wanted to be alone.

They giggled when Mrs. Clancy opened the door and peeped out at them. Ellen did not speak. That would have been too embarrassing for the kindly neighbor who was pretending she was invisible. Then they reached the street where a collection of grimy urchins, their Sunday clothes already hopelessly soiled, scrambled over a shining blue roadster.

"What a marvelous car," Ellen breathed.

"What you can see of it isn't so bad. At the moment it looks something like a human ant hill," he remarked, adding carelessly "Doesn't belong to me. I wish it did. But I've the use of it till seven."

Larry dug into his pockets for change and came out with a handful of nickels and dimes. For all the world like a pitcher preparing to hurl a fast one, he swung his arms, whispering to Ellen to watch. Coins sprang from his hand and clattered to the street in all directions, some of them rolling half a block away. At once the roadster was abandoned by the shouting, shrieking youngsters who pounced after the elusive coins. Several fist fights had begun by the time Ellen and Larry, laughing helplessly, stepped into the empty car and drove off.

"You'll never be rich if you throw away money like that," the girl said after a while.

"Ho! Ho! So you're another one of those people who's going to tell me things for my own good," he commented with a sideways and delighted glance at her.

"Certainly not!" she assured him with indifference.

Nevertheless her color rose and even as she entered her swift denial she was wondering who those others were. Certainly this charming, irresponsible young man needed to be told things for his own good. Was he referring to Elizabeth Howes, his fiancée? Briefly Ellen experienced a twist of pure gain. Then she determined sensibly that no such speculation should spoil the afternoon. For a few hours at least Larry belonged exclusively to her. She must get what fun she could from those hours.

"You did tell me that you were poor," she ventured.

"That's right. A poor man with a rich man's habits. Don't you feel sorry for me?"

"Can't say that I do exactly."

I FEEL KINDA SHAKY IN THE KNEES, BUT I WON'T LET DOC KNOW IT... AFTER I SEE MRS. REDFIELD, I WON'T CARE HOW MY KNEES WOBBLE!

WHILE, IN THE MEANTIME, FRECKLES, THE HONORARY MEMBER OF THE DOODLES, TRIES TO PICK UP THE TRAIL OF FRECKLES.....

He laughed and called her hard-hearted. Soon they were wrangling gaily, pleased with each other and with themselves, pleased to be together, riding in a smooth, luxurious car on such a glorious day.

"That's a nice frock," Larry said as they swept out of Pine street and toward Manhattan.

"I wore it last night," Ellen responded innocently. "This is the same one with the jacket added."

"You're a smart little girl, aren't you, Ellen?"

"Girls have to be smart about clothes," Ellen confessed, hiding her exultation with the compliment.

"With or without the jacket that dress is just your ticket," Larry summarized it.

The car slid over Brooklyn bridge. Ellen, glancing up, surprised an odd expression on Larry's face. He spoke but the roar of Sunday traffic drowned his voice. Helplessly the girl shook her head.

Lower Manhattan was quieter. Empty office buildings crowded down into empty canyons that on week-days were filled with scurrying stenographers and clerks and brokers and customers' men, nothing open, not a restaurant, not a drug-store, not a news stand. A few pedestrians idled along lower Broadway, a few cars idled along the deserted street, but everywhere was the peace of Sunday. Ellen waited for Larry to speak. He had wanted to say something; he had said something on the bridge. His persistent silence disturbed the girl, made her nervous and absurdly anxious.

"Well," she said at length.

"Well," he repeated after her.

"You said something to me on the bridge but I couldn't hear," she told him a little stiffly.

"So I did," he agreed exasperatingly.

"What was it?"

"Something I hadn't any right to say to you."

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" she cried in irritation. "You have a right to say anything you want to say to me."

"Do you really mean that?"

"Certainly, I mean it!"

The car slowed; his speech slowed. "I was only thinking," he said lightly, "that I like your dress today a good deal better than the one you wore the first night I met you."

That dress again! "Most people thought the other one was lovely," Ellen put in faintly. How she wished she had not forced this issue!

"That's not quite what I was getting at."

Just then he turned a sharp corner and Ellen, caught off guard, was literally flung into his arms. She gasped, extricated herself and moved back to her own corner with an uncertain laugh. She hoped the man would laugh too; hoped his attention would have been diverted from the dress. It had not been.

"You know what I was getting at, don't you?" he inquired idly.

"How should I?"

She was determined not to help him.

"Very well then, I'll tell you," he began briskly and in a manner most matter of fact.

"It's none of my business and I'm rushing in where angels fear to tread and all that but it seems funny to me that—well—" he continued stubbornly after a break,

"—that was an expensive dress, wasn't it?"

"This is an expensive car, isn't it?"

"Oh, I see! Meaning that at just this point a young man watches his step?"

"Meaning precisely that!"

Ellen was annoyed, as much with herself as with him. She wanted to be furiously angry. Larry had no right to question her when she could not question him. Her affairs were as much her own as were his affairs. But she could not be really angry; she dared not risk severing the slender thread that bound them together. Still her ride meant something. She would not explain.

"M'm sorry. I've no right to be so curious," he apologized unexpectantly and almost as if he were reading her secret thoughts. "I hoped Larry would insist he had the right to know everything about her."

WASHINGTON—HIS LIFE STORY IN PICTURES, COMMEMORATING THE 200TH ANNIVERSARY OF HIS BIRTH!

Surrender of Cornwallis' forces at Yorktown brought the war to a virtual close.

By NEA Service.

Capture of Lord Cornwallis' army at Yorktown, Va., which brought the war to a virtual close, was chiefly due to Washington's far-sightedness.

After unsuccessfully pursuing Lafayette and destroying property in Virginia, Cornwallis entered Yorktown and fortified the city, unwittingly building his own prison to escape from which he was forced to surrender.

Washington decided to strike swiftly with every soldier he could obtain, including Lafayette's army and the French fleet. He obtained nearly $1,500,000 from Robert Morris to finance the tremendous maneuver.

The British thought Washington was preparing to attack New York. He unexpectedly broke camp and led his whole force from the Hudson to the head of Chesapeake Bay and from there to Yorktown by ships.

When Cornwallis looked out from Yorktown's fortifications, he saw the French

Washington had his closest staff officers posted by Dec. 4, 1783, and formally resigned 19 days later.

He returned to Mount Vernon, where business affairs kept him busy for the next four years.

fleet on one side and the American army of 9000 and the French army of 5000 grouped together on the other.

Cornwallis held out for a week, but on October 21, 1781, his 7000 British regulars were forced to surrender, practically ending the war.

Washington was kept busy for the next two years winding up his military affairs. He urged Congress to demand greater liberty for the colonies and also to settle claims of the soldiers and officers. He bade farewell to his closest staff members in New York on Dec. 4, 1783, and on Dec. 23 resigned his commission in the state senate chamber of Maryland in Annapolis.

Within a few hours, Washington was home again at Mount Vernon, where his affairs as a gentleman-farmer occupied his time for the ensuing four years.

Founders Day of P. T. A. Observed At Young Ward.

Founders Day was again observed Tuesday afternoon when Young Ward School Parent-Teacher association met for the rendition of an appropriate and entertaining program. Opening talk relative to the topic for the hour was given in a very impressive manner by Mrs. H. D. Reese.

Mrs. Burney, mother founder of the wonderful organization, was paid respect through a beautifully trimmed and lighted birthday cake. Candles on the cake represented state, national and local presidents.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Campbell aided in a delightfully entertaining way when she sang "Mother's Hymn."

Reading selections were given by the following little girls: Mary Jane Bishop, Baby Snyder, and Dorothy Jean Peacock.

The well arranged program was presented to a large number of parents and teachers under the leadership of Mrs. E. H. Snyder, active member of the Parent-Teacher association.

Turkey May Seek Place In League

By United Press.

GENEVA.—Following Mexico's admission to the League of Nations, the latter is counting on Turkey as its next step towards universality.

While Turkey as yet has taken no official steps towards league membership the latter has been given to understand that the question has been under consideration at Ankara for some time.

The principal difficulty has been Turkey's desire for assurances that she would have a seat on the council.

This is an exceedingly delicate point with the league, as the election of the non-permanent members of the council goes purely with the assembly and there is no way to control the latter's free choice.

At the same time the assembly is opposed to creating any more permanent members, as with five permanent members as at present, and nine non-permanent members, the smaller states declare they still fail to have their turn on the council often enough.

Prince of Wales Best Linguist In The Royal Family

LONDON.—The Prince of Wales is the best linguist of the royal family. He is at home in many languages, and his latest accomplishment is in Spanish.

Eighteen months ago the Prince knew scarcely any Spanish, but after acquiring a thorough groundwork by regular daily studies, he took every opportunity of practicing while on his South-American tour, with the result that he can not only deliver a formal public speech in correct Spanish, but can carry on intimate personal conversations with ease and fluency.

In addition to Spanish, the Prince's other foreign languages are French, Italian, German and Danish. Frequently at York House,

When receiving an official visitor from abroad, or some embassy representative, the Prince will surprise him by speaking in his own tongue. He has a place in history as a royal linguist, for he was the first British Prince of Wales to address his people in their own language, and whenever he visits the principality he always says at least a few words in Welsh.

Prince George, the youngest of the King's sons, speaks French so well that he served as an interpreter in the navy. He also is a fairly good Spanish scholar. Both the King and Queen speak perfect French. Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, the two youngest members of the royal family, are both striving hard to become linguists.

Princess Elizabeth has daily French lessons from her mother

Ex-Stammerers Speak At Meet

"Tractor" a n d "plastilinka" (five Year Plan) are among the most difficult words for stammerers to pronounce.

King Firm On Marriage Ban

PARIS.—King Alfonso, exiled monarch of Spain, and several women almost have come to blows in the family quarrel over the King's continued refusal to authorize the marriages of his daughter, Princess Beatrice and Christina, to their cousins, Princes Alvaro and Alfonso de Bourbon-Orleans.

Several months ago it was believed that the influence of the King's elderly aunt, infante Eulalia, was sufficient to gain his consent to at least one of the marriages. Plans were made quietly for the Spring marriage of Infanta Beatrice with Prince Alvaro.

Now the King has made it known that his attitude is unchanged and that for reasons which he refuses to state, he does not want the marriage to occur. His friends insist the King's opposition is based on medical reports which specialists have given him after treating the two Princesses for hemophilia—the dread disease of Bourbon males.

Under the direction of British specialists, the Princesses have been receiving inoculations.

It is now whispered among Spanish exiles that Beatrice, who will be 23 June 22, will defy her father and marry in spite of his ban.

In doing that she will risk being cut off without the 1,000,000 peseta dowry that was planned for each of the Princesses, but since hers is a love match and not a royal marriage, she is said to be considering the step.

While You Wait Divorces On Tap In Mexico

By United Press.

EL PASO.—The "while you wait" service now has been applied virtually to the divorce field.

Bettering Nevada and Arkansas with their 90-day residence divorces, the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, has a divorce law which permits one to get a divorce in one day.

And you need not necessarily come to Chihuahua to obtain the divorce, although it is advertised that Juarez, across the border in Mexico, is an attractive place with its bars and casino to celebrate marital freedom.

New Divorce Law

The new divorce law, provides in some cases for one day "mail order" divorces at $50 for each decree. Both parties involved in the divorce proceedings must have agreed that they consent to the separation before a one-day divorce is granted.

If the application does not show mutual consent, a 20-day delay is required until the second party can be legally notified. Residence is not necessary and consent decrees can be obtained by proxy through an attorney.

Well Advertised

Lawyers here and in Juarez have advertised the inducements of the get a divorce quick law. Radio addresses from three Juarez stations have broadcast to Americans how to rid yourself of an obnoxious partner.

One lawyer has sent circulars to all movie actors and actresses in the Hollywood colony telling them the new divorce law is a boon to marital unhappiness. Every attorney who eligible to practice in the Juarez courts has a Hollywood directory as part of his law library.

While the attorneys hail the new law, priests have scored it as "a bad thing for humanity and a destroyer of love."

Three young ladies put their heads together.

THEY WERE TALKING ABOUT SMOKING... whether girls should or should not smoke; but it came out that three of them had been smoking for a long time.

They were asking each other what made a good cigarette. And after discussing one by one and another, they agreed that a cigarette should be milder.

They thought also that it should taste right—that is, not over-sweet, but on the other hand, not bitter—just sweet enough.

And everybody, they said, wants anything that is placed in the mouth just as pure as can be.

Then they began to think what cigarette they would buy, filled this bill; and agreed that CHESTERFIELD was milder—tasted better—and was pure.

A day's work up his chimney was a very interesting experience, though the chimney was not very tall and there was no smoke. He had a very good time and was very happy.

All of the money that was raised for the fire fund was used for the purchase of new furniture for the fire station.

The fire station is a very nice building and is a very good example of modern fire station architecture.
