Ward Week this spring is much better than last year and we want you to know that Saturday, April 16, was the best of the Ranger store has opened in 16 months.
In checking over our sales we believe that the people are determined to take advantage of the prevailing low prices on quality merchandise and recognize the opportunity of supplying their needs at the present low prices.
Another item of interest which we observed during Ward Week was the silver dollars that came from the public which usually leads to believe that confidence is gradually becoming the fear of us all and that better times are ahead.
Again thanking you for your cooperation and assistance,
Yours very truly,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

This column is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

While the subject is fresh on my mind I want to thank Mrs. Scott for helping out on the story of the Little Theatre show. We wrote it together. Anybody who spends to be dissatisfied with the story may jump on both of us and lay it on her and she can lay it on me.

Both of us think it's a good story. If we left anybody's name out of it we'll have to lay it onto the printer.

The big rain we had last night was to be a principal subject of conversation around town today. We thought we were going to have a cyclone and some expected a storm. As for myself I was wide awake and couldn't get wide enough awake to close the window. It ought to be a good thing if the hail didn't help the plants. You all probably know as well as I do that the hail is not a good thing for the plants. The hail didn't help the plants. You all probably know as well as I do that the hail is not a good thing for the plants.

Interest is increasing in drilling for oil on the old school lands in Eastland. Many think it would be in paying quantity. It would certainly be a boon to Eastland if a well could be struck in there. The schools would be greatly benefited, even if it had to buy its own oil to use fuel.

Montgomery Ward Advertising Is Getting Results

The following letter from the real manager of Montgomery Ward is an indication that the right kind of advertising will bring in the dollars that have been hoarded for some time:

LAGUARDIA IS SPEAKER AT BONUS PROBE

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, appearing before the house ways and means committee today in opposition to the bonus bill, declared the measure "would not get 30 favorable votes if a secret vote were to be taken in the house."

"I know it would not get more than that," he said, "and my information comes from cloakroom conversations."

Representative Royal Johnson, republican, South Dakota, also a war veteran, followed LaGuardia in opposition to the bill. He predicted passage of the measure would result in a "panic" because such an issuance of paper currency would "depreciate the value of money and gold would leave the country."

Russia Invites Cattle Expert

Invited by Dictator Stalin to develop the Soviet cattle industry, Robert P. Lamont, Jr., son of the U. S. Secretary of Commerce, was met by an NEA correspondent as he reached Moscow and posed in Red Square before St. Basil's Cathedral for this picture. Lamont is owner of a 10,000-acre cattle ranch in Colorado, is considering a $50,000 a year contract to put Russia, largely a fish and vegetable eating country, on a beef diet.

Large Crowd Sees Little Theatre Presentation At Eastland Monday

A crowd which filled the Eastland High school auditorium to capacity braved the threatening weather last night to see the members of the Eastland Little Theatre present "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The crowd, composed of lovers of the dramatic art from Eastland, Ranger, Breckenridge, Cisco and other nearby cities proved by their frequent and enthusiastic applause that the presentation was a success and upheld the Little Theatre's reputation of staging their performances in a professional manner.

The plot of the play was constructed around the idea of concealing a production, rather than the usual plot of a director who had already been demonstrated in the previous production, "Meet the Wife." As it is upon the director that the greatest responsibility rests, the success or failure of a production rests, Eastland may well consider herself fortunate in having so able a director as Loftin Wither. He was assisted in this production by E. E. Froyshlag.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" is an English farce comedy in which husbands and wives are involved in ludicrous tangles. Harry Porter as Mr. Temple, aided and abetted by his friend, Frank Fuller, played by Loftin Wither attempted all evening to explain or rather to keep from explaining to his irate wife, Lillian Ann Furse, why he stayed out all night.

Ford V-8 Will Be Displayed In Ranger Wednesday

The new Ford V-8 and 4-cylinder cars will be shown locally for the first time Wednesday at Ranger, at Leveille-Maher Motor company. Announcement to this effect was made today by Mr. Leveille, local Ford dealer.

"In view of the fact that more than 8,000 Ford dealers must be supplied, we are particularly gratified to be able to state that the new Fords are to be available to us at this time," Mr. Leveille said. "Word just received from the Ford Motor company's Dallas branch advises that the cars we are to have for display are already enroute to us."

"We have of late been fairly swamped with inquiries. Aside from a large number of visitors at our showrooms, we have been in receipt of many telephone calls, including inquiries from out-of-town points. To date we have been obliged to depend upon pictures and literature to satisfy all inquiries. But on next Wednesday the new cars will be here to speak for themselves."

Mr. Leveille said that word from Leveille-Maher is to the effect that all production schedules are being increased to accommodate the orders for cars that are pouring in from all parts of the country.

Special plans are being made for welcoming and demonstrating the cars here. Invitations have been extended to city officials and others prominent in local professional and business life to attend a preview of the cars. The preview will be followed by a public reception.

Keyboard Exercise Keeps a Pianist Physically Fit

NEW YORK.—Those who want to keep their figures trim and their health good, might try some of the more difficult musical compositions on their piano. For according to Percy Grainger, Australian pianist and composer, an artist spends from four to eight hours daily at the keyboard in physical exercise, the equal of any hard manual labor. And in so doing he exercises actively his hands, arms, legs and other parts of his body, particularly his stomach.

Not only, says Grainger, who at 50 has the physique of a young man, does piano exercise keep one fit, but one must keep fit to be able to keep up to the work required.

"As it so happens, I like rough work, such as you encounter in the open spaces of Australia and China. Naturally, I cannot carry out the program of physical work I would like under existing conditions, but I always carry my own traps and run wherever possible. There is no real reason why the average person should stop exercising when he becomes older."

"I am also very particular about my diet. I never did drink tea, coffee, liquor, or smoke cigars or cigarettes, and since I eat meat from my diet, I never seem to tire any more. I like fruits, especially oranges and plenty of vegetables. Baked potatoes, spinach and grid-iron cakes are favorites. For refreshment I drink hot water."

"Musicians are supposed to have nerves, mood and temperament. I have never been affected in this way. Pick out the work you love to do, work at it vigorously, be interested in many things, and you will be well and happy too."

AIDS IN CLEANUPS

LONGVIEW.—W. A. Langrish, legal theater manager is aiding a cleanup campaign here by giving each child a ticket to the theater who will appear there with ten tin cans.

A Chicago judge says women are better drivers than men. He didn't make it clear, however, as to whether he meant front-seat or back-seat.

NEW DISCOVERIES CONFIRM VIRTUES OF BRAN IN DIET

Supplies "Bulk" and Vitamin B for Constipation; Also Iron for Blood

For ten years, now, millions have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, pleasant way to overcome common constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so often result from this condition.

Recent laboratory tests show that ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. In addition, ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron, by weight, as beef liver.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like the "bulk" in lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture and forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Think how much better it is to enjoy this delicious cereal than to take endless pills and drugs, which often lead to harmful habits.

Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases with every meal—are usually sufficient. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in cooking. Appetizing recipes on the red-and-gold package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Olympic Athletes Display Great Form

Although it's a bit early for any predictions, the four Olympics weight-lifting candidates above are shaping up well. The young men are getting themselves in trim at Santa Monica, Calif., by tossing pretty girls around. Why the girls? Well, wouldn't you prefer them to heavy weights and dumbbells? Here's hoping they make the team.

Ohio University Class Studying Underworld Slang

COLUMBUS, O.—The king's English and the crook's English are being studied simultaneously in the English Department of Ohio State University.

The slang of the underworld has been studied closely by David W. Maurer, Ohio State instructor. From interviews and correspondence with prisoners, he has obtained material for a glossary of more than 500 words used by thieves, racketeers and other underworld characters.

According to Maurer, this underworld tongue was formulated in order that conversation among hoodlums and prisoners might be more guarded. Police officials have been acquainted with most of the terms used by the lawless, but few colleges have attempted to delve into this strange twist of the English language.

An example of the work done by the Ohio State instructor is his compilation of the words used to designate sums of money. An "ace" is a $1 bill; a "fin" a $5 bill; a "sawbuck" a $10 bill; a "double saw" a $20 bill; a "C" a $100 bill; a "G" or "grand" a $1,000 bill.

Money in general is known as "gelt." Gold money is called "ridge." Bonds are "stiffs." Firearms are known as "artillery," or more specifically as "raccoon, assar, heater, rod, gat," or "Tommy."

A "bug" is a burglar alarm. To "blot out" is to kill and "to blow" is to escape.

A safe is known as a "box" or "crib."

A policeman is recognized under many titles. He may be an "elbow, law, works, shamus, fuzz," or "gum." The prosecuting attorney frequently is the "cutler." A federal officer is called "whiskers." The money paid for protection is "grease."

Evidence Found That Old Indians Were Gamblers

PITTSBURGH.—There was a great deal of gambling done here long before the advent of the numbers racket, slot machines and similar forms of up-to-date ways to lose money, according to Carl R. Long, of Carriek, a suburb.

Long has been collecting arrowheads, stones, and other things left behind by the Indian tribes which once made the meeting place of the Monongahela, Allegheny and Ohio rivers their headquarters.

The sites of Indian encampments in the district yield mute evidence of the popularity of gambling before the white men came along. Long says, Stone rolling was the most popular, he says. In that one the "house man" selected a nice round stone about two and a half inches in diameter. He rolled the stone along the ground. At a marked spot, a big shot Indian with bow and arrows tried to drive the stone from its course with his weapons. Other braves bet on or against him.

Sometimes, Long says, the bet was as important as several strings of wampum or a blanket, and sometimes only a squaw.

These Indians—Long says they were Carolinians and the big-eared gamblers of the Eastern tribes—also played the old shell game which still is tried in parts of New York City and in some rural districts.

Silence Hastened Exit of Callers

BOSTON, Mass.—The former Coolidge anecdote, indicating one of the reasons the former president was dubbed "Silent Cal," is attributed to President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth college.

Mr. Coolidge was governor of Massachusetts when one day Samuel W. McCall, his predecessor, called on him.

"Say, Cal," said McCall, "I don't see how you run this job the way you do. You come down later in the morning than I used to and you go home about 4. When I was here I never used to get through until 8 or 9 on account of the endless stream of people who came in to see me. I couldn't seem to get rid of them. You apparently have as many callers but you get rid of them quicker. How do you account for that?"

"Well, you see," drawled Governor Coolidge, "they ate up a lot of your time because when they talked to you, you talked back."

Roomers in a Whiting, Ind., Lodging House were Questioned Following Discovery of the Body of Susanna Alberta Knight, 12, Shown Above.

She had been criminally assaulted and then strangled with an electric light cord in her bed. She was the daughter of the late Rev. Oscar Knight, Baptist clergyman. The discovery was made when a fellow roomer went to call her for Sunday school.

The man who built a two-car garage in 1928 was foresighted after all. He keeps the car on one side and lives in the other.

Unconscious Hate Blamed by Expert For Many Divorces

DALLAS.—The mother who tells her daughter that all men are brutes often is unconsciously avenging herself on her husband, in the opinion of Dr. Karl Menninger, psychiatrist and author of Topeka, Kans.

Much of the incompatibility of married persons is due to unconscious fears, hates and conflicting emotions. For years these emotions linger unconsciously and later crop up to warp matrimonial compatibility, Dr. Menninger said.

The unconscious motive of revenge may play a part in some remembrance that ends in the divorce courts, he declared.

"A wife may unconsciously feel a vengeful spirit toward all men, due to a deeply rooted feeling that her mother was not treated well by her father," he pointed out. "In this case the wife may not realize the hate she feels, but her husband will be only too conscious of it."

The unconscious "vengeful" feeling was attributed as the motive that inspired Don Juan's various "affairs" and their terminations in tragedy to the women in the case.

Psycho-analysis is the only form of psychotherapy that strikes directly at these factors of which the person himself is not aware, Dr. Menninger said.

The patient brings out these hates fears and conflicting loves and vents them on the psychoanalyst an impersonal object, in a laboratory, as it were. Viewed thus, he or she comes to see how foolish they are, and eventually is able to dismiss them from mind."

Special emphasis will be placed upon adult education for the unemployed, at the meeting of the American Association for Adult Education.

CARDUI

CARDUI has been in use for more than fifty years, and many women report that when they have built up their strength by the use of this purely vegetable tonic, many of their ailments have wholly disappeared. Cardui does not take the place of specialist or surgical treatment; nothing does. But for tonic treatment, to assist the reconstructive work of nature, Cardui is suggested; and the good experience of thousands, running back through three generations of women, should give you confidence in its real, demonstrated value. Take Cardui when in need of a tonic medicine of this kind.

2 Different Methods of Shopping

WHICH DO YOU USE?

There are two methods of shopping. But which method you use makes a great deal of difference, since you always want satisfaction from the things you buy.

Some people shop in such a trustful fashion. They merely ask for a can of peaches, a tube of tooth-paste or a box of aspirin. Because they never specify what brands they want, they are always at the mercy of the clerk. No wonder people who buy this way are often so dissatisfied!

Other shoppers, who know by experience or the reputations of certain products which brands are dependable, ask for these brands specifically by name. And they insist on getting the products they ask for, even though some clerk may urge them to try something "just as good."

Isn't it better to buy this way? Isn't it wiser to ask for what you want, what you know is always good—refusing other products of which you know nothing?

Stores which try to sell you unknown products in place of those you ask for, usually do so for a selfish purpose. The dealer often reaps an extra profit, or the clerk a commission, by switching you to the unknown merchandise!

Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practise. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for, with full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend.

But if you are offered something "just as good" as the thing you ask for, refuse it! Demand packaged products which you know by experience, by brand, or by the reputations of their makers. You will often see such products advertised in this newspaper.

Ask for what you want! Insist on getting it! Millions of women have found this simple rule the surest guide to shopping satisfaction.

Spain Is Eager For Repeal Of 18th Amendment

By United Press.
 MADRID, April 19.—A growing interest in the possibility of repealing the 18th Amendment is developing here, especially since Spain needs new outlets for its wines to equalize the decrease in exports to France due to the French import regulations.

As far as its wines are concerned, Spain is primarily famous for its Malaga and its sherry, but from a commercial standpoint, its ordinary red wine is the most important.

Now that the country faces the problem of a new market for its wine it looks hopefully across the Atlantic. Spain is interested in outright repeal and not in modification. A law permitting light wines and beers in the United States would not do Spanish trade any good, for its ordinary wines range around 10 to 12 per cent in alcoholic content, and of its famous wines—Sherry runs from 18 to 25 per cent and Malaga from 13 to 15 per cent.

Another element which interests the government is to encourage the drinking of more wine at home. Foreigners who have attended a Spanish wedding, or been at the Seville Fair, are convinced that nowhere in the world is the per capita drinking so great as in Spain, but as a matter of fact, the average throughout the whole nation is relatively low. Spaniards consume more beer than wine, the total beer consumption being around 60,000,000 litres per year, while wine consumption is around 25,000,000 litres per year.

The importance of the wine trade may be gathered from the fact that in a normal year it represents nearly 10 per cent of the total exports.

Should the day ever come when the American market is opened up Spain believes it can compete favorably in every line of wine with the exception of champagne, vermouth, sparkling red wines, and port.

casting officials who preside over the destinies of the various stations should be called upon to decide what types of entertainment suits an audience conservatively estimated at 50 million people. He feels that an unknown man or woman singer does not become great overnight just because an announcer says so; nor does he believe that merely because the audience has no comeback should the broadcasters be permitted to flood the air with so-called entertainment of which at least 75 per cent, is of a quality never before tolerated by large-size audiences in the history of the civilized world.

"I know," says the crusader, "that the answer to my campaign will at first be: 'What do you want for your money?' or words to that effect. And I will admit that my own reaction was originally along the same lines, namely that the listener-in has no right to complain, inasmuch as he pays nothing for the service he receives. But that view is fundamentally wrong; the listener-in does contribute something of vast importance, namely his good will. It is his good will which is exploited by the broadcasters when they go out to seek commercial sponsors for their programs.

"But come what may, the voice of the immense majority will have to prevail. We who listen are going to have our say and the only way we can get there is by organization. Plans are now under way for a gigantic combine of radio listeners-in and if there is any way of carrying them out, I am going to do it."

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

HOOKS AND SLIDES

Pieces of Ivory
 CHICK HAFEY was a nice piece of ivory. For six years he was prominently displayed at the St. Louis Cardinals' main store. But he was too high-priced. The depression came, and readjustment. So Hafey was whisked off the shelf and traded away. Two cheaper pieces of ivory were installed in his place. Brutally that was the deal that brought Benny Frey and Harvey Hendrick—plus some very handy cash—to the Cardinals, and sent last year's leading hitter in the National League to a tail-end team at Cincinnati.

Business as Usual
 IT was just another business transaction and it was a typical Cardinal deal, seemingly devoid of sentiment, but actually a lasting lesson to every piece of ivory in the Cardinal chain.

Hafey's salary demands were deemed unreasonable by Head Salesman Branch Rickey. Hafey was insistent. The other St. Louis athletes can see what happens to an unreasonable and obdurate ball player. Hold out and you are traded to a tail-end team, and lose your world series share.

Hafey led the National League. Grimes only won the 1931 world series. Hornsby only won a pennant and a world series in 1926. Grover Cleveland Alexander only helped Hornsby in the crises of that world championship battle. For their efforts they were rewarded with a nice fat herring apiece.

Bargain Miracles
 THE miracle that was Bursleigh Grimes in the world series of 1931 was peddled for Hack Wilson, and Hack Wilson was bartered for $40,000.10, the dime representing a ball player named Parham, obtained from Brooklyn.

The miracle that was Grover Cleveland Alexander, stepping into the box to accomplish the impossible in a world series, was wrapped up neatly and sent to the Phils, another tail-end team, in exchange for twenty cents worth of ivory tagged Homer Peel and Bob McGraw.

Center Fielder Taylor Douthit, losing his batting eye, was shipped to the Reds. In exchange for Walter Roettger last year.

Rogers Hornsby, one of the greatest ball players who ever lived, was traded to the Giants for Frankie Frisch, because Frisch was younger, a better fielder and would play more games than the high-priced Rajah.

How Many Cylinders?
 A BALL player, after all, isn't unlike an automobile. By the way, did you know that Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, also sells automobiles?

A ball player is good for only a specified period. Like Hornsby, it may be an exceptional model, and run for a good many years. But in the end, of course, the automobile has to be junked.

The ball player has to be junked, too, unless he can be sold or traded for a better model.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 SUSAN CAREY, 19, pretty and an orphan, lives with her AUNT JESSIE in Chicago and takes a secretarial course in a downtown business school. There she meets BOB DUNBAR, heir to a fortune. She secures a position as secretary to ERNEST HEATH, architect. JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, tries to start a flirtation with Susan. BEN LAMPMAN, a young musician, takes her to a studio party but she does not enjoy it. Dunbar takes her to lunch and tells her he is going to Europe. Susan's aunt departs on a visit and HOPE MILTON stays with Susan. Lonely, the girl goes for a drive with Waring and RAY FLANNERY, employed in the real estate office. Waring blames her and she resolves never to go with him again. Ben Lampman asks Susan to marry him and will not accept her refusal as final. Waring apologizes for his childish behavior. In a newspaper gossip column Susan reads that Bob Dunbar is to be married.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 CHAPTER XVIII
 "I'm afraid you'll have to work overtimes tonight, Miss Carey." That was Mr. Heath's cool, matter-of-fact, well bred voice. "Can you telephone your family? It won't be long, only until about nine, but I must get this Weatherhill business finished."

"I'll call my aunt," Susan said. "Good girl," he approved.

Meeting Ray in the wash room a little later, Susan mentioned that she would be working late. Ray's round, interested eyes unwinkingly surveyed her.

"Ooh, you've made it up with Jack then?"

"Susan flushed at the implication. "I'm working for Mr. Heath," she said with dignity. Ray applied a touch of mascara and stood back to judge the effect.

"That skinfint!" she disposed of Ernest Heath summarily.

"He's not!" said Susan indignantly. "He's very nice."

"Yeh, I know," Ray scoffed. "He has a castle out on the north shore and a lotta polo ponies and all that stuff and he thinks people who work for him are made of iron or something. Betcha he didn't ask you if you had a date, even, surprised Ray awfully."

"He's the kind that thinks a girl goes straight home and says her prayers every night. That is, if she doesn't happen to belong to his set or whatever they call it. Whew! The way some of these rich babies carry on is nobody's business. From what I hear, his own wife can step some herself."

Susan's curiosity was piqued, although the conversation offended her. "What do you know about Mrs. Heath?" she asked in a tone calculated to nettles Ray.

Ray laughed. "Oh, I get around," she said mysteriously. "I hear things."

The entrance of a spectacled and superior secretary, from down the hall ended this colloquy and Susan returned to the office.

In the inner room Mr. Heath worked over his blueprints. He was so impersonal a figure that Susan was scarcely conscious of his presence. The back of her neck began to ache and she realized suddenly that she was ravenously hungry. She looked at the clock. It was a quarter past seven. "Surely he doesn't expect me to work all evening without dinner," she thought indignantly. "Why, the man's inhuman!" She rested her head on one hand for an instant and it was at that very moment her employer looked up.

Shaken out of his absorption, Heath noticed the pathos of the weary young figure.

"Good Lord, I completely forgot about food!" he muttered to himself. "Miss Carey, look here!"

Susan sat up and shook the mistle out of her eyes.

"I'm sorry, I was just resting. I got so fearfully tired," she murmured confusedly.

The pan came and stood beside her desk, his lean, dark face expressing his concern. "I completely forgot you'd had no dinner," he said. "What shall we do about it? You must be worn out, poor child."

His tone was half-humorous, half-caressing. Susan seemed to him at the moment indeed the merest child.

"Let's see," he was thinking aloud. "There's a place across the street that I've very well for lunch, a sort of grill room. Suppose I ring them up and have something sent over? It will only take a few minutes. How would you like a club sandwich and milk-tea-tinger ale, anything?" His tone was decidedly jovial.

"I'm so terribly hungry," Susan confessed with a little laugh, "that anything at all would be just heavenly."

"That's that, then," announced Mr. Heath firmly, reaching for a telephone.

He talked well and seemed to exert himself to put the young secretary at her ease.

NO one would have guessed from his composed and dignified manner what thoughts were stirring beneath.

This girl—how oddly and tantalizingly she reminded him of someone. Who was it? Ah, he had it now! That girl in the pictures—the time Ruth had dragged him along when they had been in New York. Ruth had decided quite suddenly one evening that it would be amusing to do a talkie. Ruth in silver cloth with a chinilla wrap gliding into the Plaza theater. Himself, very solemn, with his tail hat crushed under his arm. Ruth felt perfectly at home. No wonder she thought the Plaza amusing! That was her sort of thing, decidedly.

Then the screen. Titles, all in a flash. The author's name, the director's, the cameraman's. The story, an absurd, hurly-burly piece with mock-love, mock-despair, mock-everything. Out of it had emerged surely and clearly the face of the girl on the screen. The preposterously large eyes, the drift of dark hair, folded back from a pure forehead. There had been something arresting about her face. Ernest Heath had remembered it afterward when the picture itself with all its absurdities had faded from his mind.

All at once he knew of whom this secretary of his reminded him—Joan Crawford. That was it. She had something of the glamorous appeal of that other girl.

Susan wondered why he was looking at her so intently. She hoped with a passionate fervor that she was not going to blush.

"Is there a speck on my nose?" she inquired innocently.

Heath apologized. "I was thinking of something else," he told her. The moment passed. They finished their food rather quickly and Susan returned to her work. She said good-night to him demurely. No, she had not minded working at all. It was quite all right. A cab? She smiled faintly. No, Aunt Jessie would probably not approve of a cab. The cars went just a block from her door. It was not quite nine. She would be all right.

That was all. But she was never from that moment forward merely an automaton in Ernest Heath's eyes. She had become alive. She was a person, a force to be reckoned with. Heath, alone at his desk, realized this.

One hundred letters addressed to you personally

Think of the advertisements in this paper as so many letters addressed to you, personally. That's what they are intended to be, and, actually, that's what they are. This newspaper is, in effect, a mail-bag which brings you news of events and news of the best merchandise at the fairest prices.

You don't throw away your letters unread. You don't read three or four letters carefully and skim through the rest. Treat the "merchandise letters" in this newspaper the same way. Read them all. Read them carefully. One single item will often repay you for the time it has taken to read them all.

Many good housekeepers have formed the habit of reading their newspaper with a pencil and paper, ready to jot down the articles they wish to look at when they start out on their shopping tour. Try this method. It saves time, and saves money, and provides you with the pick of the day's merchandise.

Every advertisement has a message all its own.

Cotton Frocks Are Stylish and Cheap Dixie Ladies Told

AUSTIN.—The ladies of Dixie, many thousands of them, could materially aid in the reduction of the existing cotton surplus by wearing cotton dresses, summer sandals made of cotton, replacing their stock of shoes with new ones 10 1/2 inches long instead of the 9 1/2 inch length, and in numerous other ways present within the household the feminine members of the department of Agriculture said today in an appeal to the women of the South for their support in the more uses for cotton movement.

Merchants are showing more cotton products this season than ever before. In purchasing their summer frocks, women of Dixie-land are urged to accept only those made of cotton.

Written by Mrs. Jack Stuart, secretary to the commissioner, the appeal urged women to realize the beauty of cotton summer frocks and charm the men of Dixie in cotton clothes. The appeal:

"To the Ladies of Dixie:
 "Are you a Dixie Lady? There are thousands of Dixie ladies who can do much in solving the vexing problem of cotton overproduction. Within the grasp of Dixie ladies lies the power to make a forward step in ending the surplus of cotton, so why not do it?"

"We are all 'wrapped up' in cotton as an industry, and now we have the chance of a lifetime to use some of this abundant cotton in the most effective wrapping possible. Commissioner J. E. McDonald has expressed the greatest appreciation and pride in Texas cotton-clad belles. There seems to have been some question as to whether cotton makes the girls look better or the girls make cotton look better. With 5 cent cotton, there should be no doubt in any fellow's mind but that the ladies win again."

"Stroll downtown and look in the store windows; you will be charmed with the cotton frocks displayed. Wish you could have been in College Station April 1 for the Cotton Day Style Show at A. and M. College. The girls made the cotton look good that day. There are many ways in which cotton may be used in a lady's wardrobe, on the path of us plan several cotton frocks to blend in with this beautiful spring weather. Let's make this spring and summer a Texas cotton season."

"After dressing ourselves in cotton, dress up the porch furniture with bright cotton covers, pillows and the like, and if possible put up some bright cotton awnings. But a new cotton mattress—one that's made in Texas. There are hundreds of ways to use more cotton—let's get busy!"

"We can use all we want to. I understand there is just plenty to go around. However, we have been requested to leave enough for wrapping the cotton crop next fall. Mr. McDonald feels almost certain Congress will pass the next weight cotton law, which will make cotton a practical and neat wrapping for the bales, and the passage of such law would mean a great victory for the cotton growing industry."

 THE following recipes for rhubarb dishes may be helpful to you when you are planning your spring-time meals. Rhubarb pie and rhubarb sauce are good but they become monotonous if repeated too often, so try something different for the sake of variety.

Rhubarb With Dimpplings—Rhubarb with dimplings is a rather unusual dish and very good. One pound rhubarb, 1 egg flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, 2 to 4 tablespoons milk.

How to Select Your Evergreens

Almost all of the evergreens are valued for their distinct shape and symmetry. In selecting and grouping evergreens it is well to consider their shape if a pleasant result is to be secured. Evergreens can be divided according to shape into six general groups. A classification such as this makes it much easier to select the right evergreen for the right place. It must be remembered that the members in each group are alike only in shape or outline. Each has its own characteristics and may be a dwarf grower or tall grower according to its class.

Group 1. This broadly pyramidal group of the Christmas tree embraces quite a few of the common evergreens including some of the first hemlocks, spruces and pines. As a rule they make large trees at maturity and make the perfect specimens when growing without interference. This class is good for lawn groups, shelter planting, avenues or specimens.

Group 2. The evergreens in this group are usually medium height growers suitable for backgrounds and foundation plantings. They are useful to give height at corners and accent at each side of a doorway gateway or garden entrance. Various varieties of Arborvitae, Junipers, Taxus and Retinosporas are included in this group.

Group 3. These are the upright, columnar varieties which introduce an exclamatory note in the landscape, wherever an accent plant is needed or where formal effects are striven for, these plants may be fittingly used. The Junipers and Arborvitae both offer such narrow types.

Group 4. In the family of evergreens there are many fine dwarf varieties which grow more or less globular. These are very useful for specimen planting or for foundation planting, either alone or in combination with taller growing varieties planted in back. The Maglio Pine and Globe Arborvitae belong to this group.

Group 5. The evergreens in this group constitute an intermediate stage between creeping Juniper and upright growers. All are dwarf and consequently make desirable plants for foundation planting. Two of the most commonly known of this group are Fittler's Juniper and Savin Juniper.

Group 6. The creeping variety of Juniper which constitute this group are at home on slopes where they can spread out at will or wherever a low carpet of evergreen foliage is desirable.

Royal Service Program Given At Home of Mrs. Whitehouse.

The W. M. U. Royal Service program of the Central Baptist church was given at the home of Mrs. Hen Whitehouse, Mesquite street, Monday afternoon, with Mrs. J. E. Ogg leader in charge. Members taking part in the well rendered program were Mrs. H. H. Stephens, reading the devotional, and presenting the subject topic for the hour, "Heroines of the Cross." Mrs. Boyd said the opening prayer. "The Heroine of Fraile Barque" was interestingly discussed by Mrs. Pauline Fry. "The Heroine of Many Difficulties, and the Heroine of Many Revolutions," Mrs. W. W. Mitchell. "The Heroine of Quiet Ways and Sunny Italy," Mrs. C. C. Cash. "Heroine Among Foreigners," Mrs. J. E. Ogg. "Heroine of the Red Race and of the Smoky Mountains," Mrs. George Rogers. "The Heroine of the Big Canal," Mrs. L. L. Bruce.

A prayer for foreign and home missions was beautifully given by Mrs. Stephens. The perfectly carried out program was attended by 23 members.

Mrs. Whitehouse again proving a gracious hostess was assisted in serving a refreshment course of home-made ice cream and cake by several of the class group.

Plans have been made to meet in circles next Monday afternoon, for the program to be taken from the mission study book.

CHILD GENIUS ABANDONS DOLLS FOR IBSEN, SCHOPENHAUER

Ava Louise DuBard, 11, shown above, is the brightest genius discovered by the psychology department of Southwestern University, Memphis, Tenn., in a study of 1000 children covering a period of five years. Her intelligence quotient—or IQ rating, as the psychologist expresses it—is 181, which makes her mental age 19. An IQ rating of 140 or above classes a person as a genius. Fifty-one geniuses were discovered in the 1000. Ava Louise will enter junior high school next September. She makes A grades in all her subjects except art. No effort has been made to push her in her school work, as her parents want her to develop a well-balanced life. She enjoys playing with children her physical age as well as with those her mental age. She reads a lot, mostly classic authors, likes movies—and has a boy friend.

 ROAD TO SLIMNESS IS NEITHER ROSY NOR ROKY

Hard-hearted as it may sound, the woman who wants to keep slender is either going to have to deprive her family of the good things they want and are entitled to, or she is going to have to sit by and watch them eat the goodies she cooks. This latter plan certainly takes will-power but a slimmer figure is the reward, and it is not so hard once one makes up her mind. And there are still plenty of good things one may eat while the program is on.

For instance, a juicy steak, eaten with salad, vegetables and dry toast two or three times a week, will contrast rather than expand the feminine waist-line, according to one of the world's foremost authorities on beauty, Mme. Helena Rubinstein, and goodness knows every woman wants a slim waistline these days.

Here are four rules for a healthful yet slenderizing diet which Mme. Rubinstein offers:

1. Relax and rest digestive organs by going on a one-food diet of orange juice or baked potatoes or grapes for three or four days every three to seven weeks.
2. Eat three meals a day if you are accustomed to that many, but abstain from over-generous or second helpings.
3. Drink plenty of water—at least 10 glasses a day, but never with meals.
4. Reduce starches, sugars, and fats in your diet and introduce increased quantities of fruits and vegetables.

By United Press.
 EAGLE PASS, Texas.—Ed Ritchie doesn't spend much time arguing or figuring what congress and the farm board should do about his spinach farm and today he is called the "spinach king" of the world.

Ritchie's 800-acre farm, devoted almost entirely to spinach, this season produced 400 cars of the vegetable and prices enabled him to reap a nice profit. His acreage was doubled this year.
