PEEPING THROUGH THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

F. O. Mackey, president of the Broadway of America, accompanied by several other officials of the association, left El Paso yesterday en route to New York, where a motorcade will be started from Broadway, New York, to Broadway, San Diego, Calif. The motorcade will reach San Diego in time for the annual Broadway of America association convention. The motorcade will leave New York Tuesday morning, May 3, at 11:45 o'clock Sunday morning, May 8. A stop will be made in Ranger for lunch.

Plans have been made for a big barbecue to be held at some place to be selected, probably the Willows or the Country club. Barbecued kid with the customary apples, onions, bread, coffee, ice water and barbecue gravy will be served to the members of the motorcade. Citizens of the town are being invited to attend the barbecue, which will cost 50 cents. Luncheon stops will be made at Baltimore, Md., Roanoke, Va., Rockwood, Tenn., Brownsville, Tex., Texarkana, Ranger, Van Horn, Texas, Lordsburg, N. M., Tucson, Ariz., and Wellton, Ariz. R. F. Holloway is planning something different for those who will be on the motorcade as many of them will be from the east, where a hot and something of a rarity and which is unknown.

John Thurman said that he would furnish meat, barbecued, 125 cents, free of charge. It is estimated that there would be 15 in the motorcade by the time it reached Ranger and that approximately 50 Rangers would want to spend 50 cents for a Sunday dinner of barbecue and the trimmings.

Incidentally the trip from New York to San Diego, all on one highway, will require 3000 miles per a week to be made by the motorcade.

At the meeting of the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce last night, J. B. Ames, who is in charge of the second day in Ranger, told of some instances that happened in Ranger in these trade days.

He said that a man who lives north of Cisco in the Leary community came into Ranger one Sunday. Ames hadn't seen him in many years and asked him where he was living. When he told where he was living Ames asked him how he happened to be so far away from home and he revealed that he had heard of the town on Mondays and came over on the trading day.

Several weeks later Ames saw him driving out of Ranger with a large load of groceries. He asked that the man was doing over here at that time and was told that over the second Monday he had been shopping in Ranger because he found better things to buy and better prices on what he needed than in the other towns nearer home, so he had been doing all his buying in Ranger. He would come over every week at a time and take 30 miles to his home.

Another instance of which Ames told was a man coming from Angleville with a team of mules to buy a buyer from Brownwood for $50 and the man brought $80 worth of supplies from Ranger merchants and took them home with him.

SAYS WRITERS WERE PAID TO "RIG" ISSUES

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Alleged payment of newspaper financial writers to promote public sale of stocks was described to the senate banking and currency committee today by Representative F. H. Laguardia, republican, New York.

He flourished batches of cancelled checks before the committee and named specific stocks. He said he could produce a witness who would testify concerning alleged expenditure of $284,000 to obtain favorable publicity for stocks being "rigged for heavy public buying."

As appearing as a surprise witness in the stock market inquiry, Laguardia, assisted by two men, carried into the committee room a large trunk containing scrapbooks of newspaper articles, cancelled checks and other data. He described alleged paid publicity operations in Savoy, Ariz., Indian Motorcycle, Pure Oil, Maxwell Motors and other stocks. He named financial writers, now or formerly connected with the Wall Street Journal, New York Times, New York Herald-Tribune, New York Evening Post and other papers as having received money from one promoter of stocks.

CHICAGO TAX FIGHTERS ORDERED TO COME ACROSS.

A strike of taxpayers in Chicago was ended by a ruling of the state supreme court. Collection of back taxes and the restoration of Chicago's financial credit were made possible by a court decision which held valid the assessment rolls of 1928 and 1929 as well as of 1930 by reversing a decision of Judge Edmund A. Jarecki.

A great wave of optimism swept over Chicago when the court decision was made known. Now real estate associations that had fought the tax rolls threatened to carry the case to the United States supreme court.

BYRD OF VIRGINIA HAS A PLAN

Former Gov. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia is one of the outstanding young leaders of the democratic party of the nation. He is a dry but a regular and for the rule of the majority.

"The prohibition law and all other laws must be enforced but we must recognize that no law is stronger than the public sentiment to sustain it. The democratic platform should declare for the enforcement of all laws, but an immediate task of the democratic party is to work out the most fair and feasible method to carry the prohibition question to the people.

This Virginia leader declared himself opposed at all times to the Smith-Raskob plan of state control. He declared against the proposal to make wet states wet and the dry states dry.

Gov. George D. White of Ohio, democrat and dry, led off in his address to the W. C. T. U. of Ohio. He chided the good women for their opposition to a nation-wide referendum and bluntly told them that they had made the political blunder of their history.

MRS. HAL SEVIER TALKS WITH HER MONEY

Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier is the national committeewoman of her party for Texas. She did not attend the Thomas Jefferson function in the city of Washington. Money talked louder than words.

Thomas B. Love is authority for the statement that there are 400,000 conscientious objectors in Texas and that they will walk out of the democratic wigwam should a democrat moist in the slightest degree capture the presidential nomination.

GARNER FILES FOR HIS OLD POST

Speaker John Nance Garner has filed for re-election in each of the 23 counties in the 15th congressional district in Texas. Speaker Garner is serving his 15th consecutive term. He has not lost his sense of humor.

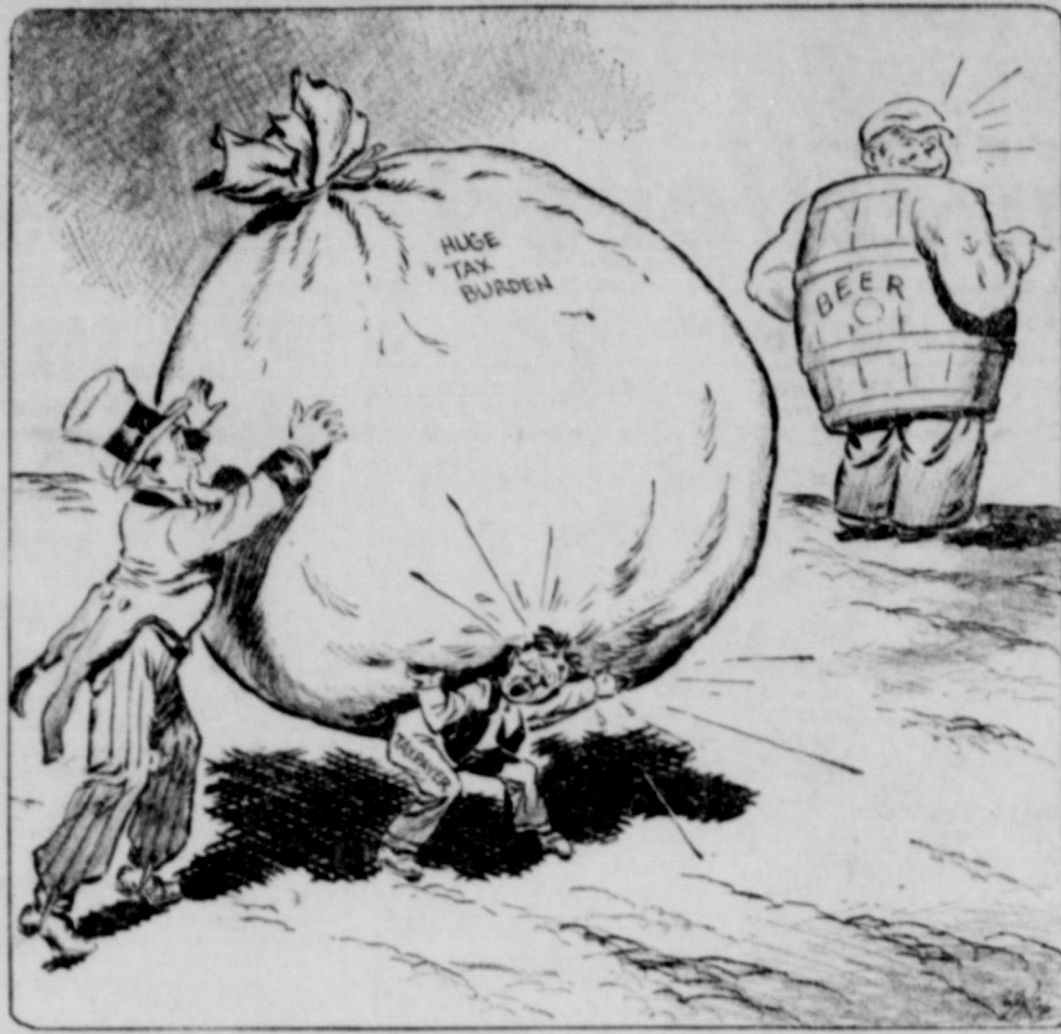

Alfred E. Smith has spoken. He has gone all the road. He is out to prevent the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt and he is going all the way to do it unless his words are empty things and his criticisms are those of the lip and not of the heart and the mind and the soul.

A BIG CUT FOR THE VETERANS

And it has come to pass that the house economy committee eliminated provisions affecting World War veterans that had been estimated to save $28,000,000 a year. Others of President Hoover's proposals to cut the veterans' administration of $30,000,000 were approved.

Every citizen should prove his loyalty to his home city by services rendered.

Young Chemist, Prize Winner, Reveals Plans

By United Press.
EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Oscar K. Rice, 20-year-old Harvard chemistry instructor, has been awarded the $1,000 Langmuir prize for 1932 as the most promising young chemist in North America.

By DR. OSCAR K. RICE
(Written for the United Press)
Research has been prosecuted in three fields: (One) Colloid and surface chemistry; (two) chemical kinetics; (three) application of quantum mechanics to problems which, while not necessarily to be classified as problems in chemical kinetics, are nevertheless of interest in that connection.

To give a better idea of the nature of the work carried on under the last two headings, the following more detailed statement may be made. Certain organic vapors, for example, a number of ethereal compounds, are of interest in that they are of the type which Einstein treats as not involved, decompose when heated that is, the molecules of the gas tend simultaneously to break up. It is well known that such a molecule needs to acquire energy far in excess of the energy of the average molecule of the gas and it long has been supposed, an ad hoc seems practically certain, that this energy is obtained through collisions with the other molecules in the gas, that is, those which have not yet or have already decomposed.

There are two questions which arise: (One) In just what manner is the energy transferred from molecule to molecule? (Two) How does the energy thus acquired bring about the decomposition of the molecule?

The writer has made contributions toward the answering of the second question, and is working on the answer to the first. The second question is treated by a statistical method, and it has been shown that experiments, which show how the rapidity of the decomposition changes with the pressure of the gas, are fairly well explained by the assumption that the molecules decompose when the energy accumulate in some weak spot of the molecule.

The Answer
The answer to the first question (and, indeed, any answer to the second which may really be called complete) requires the use of quantum mechanics. In quantum mechanics the fundamental laws of ordinary mechanics have been so generalized that they may be applied to systems as small as single atoms and molecules.

The work thus far mentioned has been entirely of a mathematical character. In some respects the theory has gone beyond the experimental results, and attempts to extend the experiments are being made by Messrs. D. V. Sickman and A. O. Allen, under the direction of the writer.

Earliest Picture Of Pluto Found

By United Press.
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — Harvard's unsurpassed collection of astronomical photographs includes the earliest known picture of Pluto, ninth and most recently discovered planet.

The Pluto photograph, taken at Harvard Observatory through a 16-inch Metcalf telescope November 11, 1914, was found in the Harvard collection by Miss Arville D. Walker, observatory secretary, recently after several months' search.

Pluto's position at the time of the picture checked very closely with the planet's very closely with the planet's orbit as calculated by Dr. E. C. Bower of University of California. Approximately 5,000 miles in diameter, Pluto travels a circle about 38,000,000 miles in circumference.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON — At Chicago in June there will be many red-hot nominating speeches and various noisy parades around the convention hall, allegedly for the presidential candidacies of various governors, senators and perhaps other public officials.

But the ballhoop will in reality be designed to promote the vice presidential aspirations of those gents and nobody will be fooled about that.

After the presidential candidacies are nominated the vice presidential possibilities will have their innings without any camouflage, but with the benefit of whatever impression they may have been able to make while shadow-boxing for first place.

Charlie a Good Bet
INASMUCH as the presidential nomination of the Republican party is certainly sewed up by Mr. Hoover and the Democratic nomination is according to most of the present dope, likely to go to Governor Roosevelt on the first or second ballot, the matter of running mates for those two may offer the delegates their only good chance for a real vote fight such as is traditionally associated with political conventions at their best.

Even that, however, assumes that the movement to scrap Vice President Charles Curtis gets somewhere among the Republicans. The chances now seem to be that Charlie will be renominated without a struggle.

Not because there is any violent enthusiasm about that renomination. There is, in fact, a widespread feeling among the more practical Republicans that a younger, more vigorous person with greater ability as a spellbinder would be useful to the 1932 ticket.

Curtis after all is 72 years old. He can't be expected to rouse many rabble-raisers. Since a president doesn't do much personal re-election campaigning, it's always a good idea for him to have a running mate who can do the barstarming.

Pat Hurley a Prospect
OTHER possibilities are Secretary of War Pat Hurley. Lately Postmaster General Walter Brown, once often mentioned, has seemed to fade from that picture and Governor Theodore Roosevelt would hardly be recalled from the Philippines. Hurley says he doesn't want the vice presidency, although his actions and speeches had led us to think that was what he wanted. Perhaps he has just been campaigning for his own job, which hangs on Hoover's return.

Anyway, the present belief is that Hoover won't throw Curtis overboard, partly because it would seem ruthless, partly because Curtis is still popular enough in Kansas to make loss of that state more likely if he were discarded. Also, whether important or not it is reported that Mrs. Dolh Gann, the Curtis official hostess, who goes around making speeches which say the depression is over, is proving popular with Republican audiences.

Barkley's Prospects
THE Democratic party seems overloaded with vice presidential possibilities, including some who will receive tribute votes of their own states on the first ballot for first place and other "favorite sons" who have bowed themselves out, with or without declarations for Roosevelt.

Except in the case of an unlikely compromise deal, the Roosevelt forces will nominate one of their own men for vice president in case they control everything.

That fact makes the outlook bright for Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, who threw his influence to Roosevelt and has been selected as the party keynoter.

Speaker John N. Garner is not an impossibility and doubtless could gain the Roosevelt support if he declared for the governor, but it is not likely that he would want the vice presidency.

In case the leaders decide on a man from a populous northern state with large electoral vote, Governor George White of Ohio would be a logical choice. Such far west senators as Wheeler of Montana, Costigan of Colorado and Dill of Washington probably would be considered "too progressive."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma
importance of buying the things they need at the present time. A dollar will now buy more and better things than ever before. Just glance through the advertising columns of your newspaper and see what bargains you can get. Just as soon as this depression, caused by the economy scare, is over, you won't get so much for your money. Read the ads and buy what you need now.

It's just too bad that in this day and time some towns are afflicted with some distorters of the truth—citizens who have no better judgment than to say all the mean THAT the majority of the people are conservative is true, but this trait of conservatism should not blind them to the things they can about the home town by finding some fancied faults and, with a vivid imagination, enlarging on them. These men should be stunned with the very picture they draw and their own picture hanged with their faces to the wall.

Pinedale, Wyoming, is a splendid little town in the heart of a cow country. It is also a tourist and hunting section. Here E. V. Cockins publishes the Pinedale Roundup, which is doing much to tell the world about that country. Mr. Cockins says that Pinedale is 104 miles from the nearest railroad, and the Roundup is published farther from a railroad than any other newspaper in the United States.

It is the duty of every citizen to support the chamber of commerce because it is the peoples' workshop for the building of the city.

The TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

POOR Duncy sat and looked around. The horse was sprawled upon the ground and seemed to be quite satisfied to stay right where he was. Then Duncy said, "What can I do? Come, help me, lad! It's up to you. The skinny should have told me of the tricks this strange horse does."

"It's your own fault," the skinny cried. "When you set out upon your ride, you slapped the horse. That isn't right. You always should be kind. I didn't blame him when he dropped. He meant that your ride should be stopped. Just pet him and he'll get right up and trot around, you'll find."

"YOU hds should take this tip from me: To all dumb animals you see, be just as kind as you know how. Then they will treat you right. "Why chase a dog or slap a cat? It's not nice, doing things like that. Just cuddle them or pat them and you'll fill them with delight."

The Tinymites agreed that the sky cop wants, in the net was just as right as he could be.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

ROUGET DE LISLE WROTE THE MARSEILLAISE, ONLY TO HEAR IT LATER AS THE BATTLE HYMN OF AN OPPOSING ARMY. WATER SPIDERS CARRY AIR-BUBBLES INTO THE WATER WITH THEIR HIND LEGS.

DE LISLE, a young French artillery officer, wrote the Marseillaise in April, 1792. He was a faithful Royalist, and did not dream that his song would be the inspirational hymn of the Revolutionary army. He was twice thrown in prison, and it was not until just before his death that he was decorated with a ribbon of the Legion of Honor.

THE WATER SPIDER builds a bell-shaped home beneath the water. When the nest is complete, the spider goes to the surface, lifts its body partly out, and then quickly jerks back. A bubble of air clings to its legs and is taken below to the dwelling. This procedure is kept up until enough air is placed inside for the brood of young that is to be raised.

the MANHUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

REIGN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY, 19 and an orphan, works in the office of ERNEST DEATH, a famous artist. One of her admirers is BEN LAMPMAN, a moody young musician who asks her to marry him. She refuses. JACK WARING, who works in the same office, asks Susan to go driving one night. Waring kisses her and Susan realizes she is in love with him. She tells her mother about it. Her mother, who is in love with a man named HOMER DITTY, is angry. Susan goes to a party and meets HOMER DITTY, who is a famous artist. She falls in love with him. Her mother is angry. Susan goes to a party and meets HOMER DITTY, who is a famous artist. She falls in love with him. Her mother is angry.

THE girl's instinct was for flight. She could find her way back to the house she thought. She could pack her things and leave a note and walk to the station. It would be childish, she knew, and perhaps cowardly but she longed terribly to be away from all this.

"You'll catch your death of cold," she heard a voice say. Susan wheeled. The young man who had sat at her left at dinner, the one they called Dum-Dum, was standing just below her on the gravel, lighting a cigar. She forced herself to speak naturally.

"I suppose I shall."

He cleared the low rattling and took her arm.

"Come along inside," he said agreeably. "They're sending out a search party for you. Denise wants to go on to 'The Blue Mouse.' It's too stuffy here."

Susan allowed herself to be led back indoors. Some of the dancers looked at her curiously as she threaded her way past them, the tall, pale young girl, with the cloud of dark hair.

A small, argumentative group was gathered in the hall of the club. Sonia, a preposterous yellow frock alighting away from her shoulders, had her hand on Ben's arm. She looked up gallantly as Susan advanced.

"Oh, here she is," she said with animation. "I told you she was around some place."

Ben looked black as a thunder cloud. He growled, "And yet you were all willing to go off without her!"

Susan's eyes searched for the face she longed yet dreaded to see. The youth, Dum-Dum murmured, reading her thoughts.

"Bobby's nearly out. Some one took him to walk around the grounds. He'll be o. k. in a few minutes."

He seemed to be a very knowing young man but considerate. Susan's eyes thanked him as she went to get her wrap. The face that looked back at her from the dressing room mirror was startling in its pallor. There were great rings under her eyes. Sonia had followed and stood staring at Susan with frank curiosity.

"Don't take it so hard," she advised.

Anger flared up in Susan. "I don't know what you mean."

"Yes, you do," Sonia adjusted her extraordinary earrings and patted her oily hair with satisfaction. "A child could see what's the matter with you," she said coolly. "Back up and show you have a little fight."

Susan squared her shoulders. "You're talking riddles."

"Oh, well, Sonia shrugged. "Don't mind me. I only meant to give you a friendly tip."

THE warm color had come back into Susan's face and her eyes had darkened. So that was it! They were all feeling sorry for her. They knew what this was about. Well, she'd show them. She threw the shawl about her shoulders, liking the picture she made.

"Come along," she said crisply. "I'm ready."

She took Dum-Dum's arm. She looked gay, even gallant. Denise, rushing in a moment later with Bob Dunbar at her heels, stared at the transfiguration. They made a great clamor in the hall. Three or four older couples, sedately waiting to the strains of an old-fashioned tune, turned to glance at them disapprovingly. Susan's laugh rang out at something Dum-Dum had said. Ben glowered.

"Hurry up, everybody," shrieked Denise. "We want to get away before the air of this tomb gets us."

She linked her fingers in Bob's. Susan managed to avoid his glance.

With desperate intentness she answered Dum-Dum's sallies. So they thought she hadn't any fight in her, did they? She'd show them! Deliberately, Bob Dunbar detached himself from Denise's grasp and walked over to Susan. He held something out and the girl saw it was a flask, incredibly long and flat.

"Have one?" he challenged. "You need it."

She put out her hand but before she could touch the flask Ben's long arm shot out and seized it. Ben said, loudly and forbiddingly, "She doesn't want it—you fool, you!"

What followed was all a sort of nightmare. There was a tussle in the course of which the flask clattered to the floor. Someone said sharply, "Get 'em outside." Denise screamed and the boy, Dum-Dum, pulled the wrestlers apart. A club attendant rushed up, with a scared white face and closed the doors on the dancers.

THEN suddenly they were all out beneath the stars. Susan shaking more with emotion than with cold and Ben holding his jaw and looking murderous.

"Take Bob away," Denise ordered. "He'll kill that fool." She glared at Ben. "If Daddy hears about this I'll be wrecked. I won't have a prayer—"

"Just a minute." That was Bob, oddly sober now. "I'm sorry. My error." He put out his hand to his adversary but his look was directed at Susan. Ben, after an instant's hesitation, took the hand. The crowd melted together again, moved by a common impulse of relief. Denise was issuing voluble directions. Arnold and Sonia and Dum-Dum in that car. She would drive with Bob. She looked around. Dunbar had melted into the shadows. And where was Susan?

The youth, Dum-Dum, lifted his eyebrows and put a hand under Denise's elbow.

"Where are those two?" Denise demanded, telly regal and clutching her white fur wrap around her slim figure. The boy shrugged. Denise stamped her foot and someone in the big car sounded a horn sharply in the night stillness.

"Let's move," Dum-Dum said easily. "I hear Bob's engine down the hill. They'll be trailing us."

There seemed nothing else to do. Denise, her head high, stepped in and raged the engine. They roared away.

Meanwhile Susan sat still and cold in the roadster's front seat. The man at her side cupped his hand over a cigarette. In the match's flare she could see his stern young profile.

"How did I get here?" she asked. "I feel as if—as if a hurricane had picked me up."

"I was it," Bob Dunbar supplied easily. He seemed quite sober now and there was a steely glint in his eye. "I kidnaped you. Now we're going to drive around a bit while I find out what this is all about."

Susan felt unaccountably happy. "I don't know what you mean," she told him.

"Yes, you do." His voice was grim. "I want to know if it's true—that you're engaged to this lad who just wallowed me."

"Who told you that?"

"I give you one guess," said Bob Dunbar.

Yea, Siam One Passenger!

These little sisters spoke up with one voice when Miss Peggy Burns, United Airlines hostess, at right, attempted to collect a second fare following a trip between San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif. The twins, Daisy and Violet Hilton, are of the Siamese variety. They took off from San Francisco with one ticket. Air line officials wired ahead, offering collection of another fare. Now the California courts may be asked to decide the difference. The girls certainly pull together.

Burned Jail Was Link Between Old Days And Present
By United Press.
LAREDO, Texas.—Destruction by fire of the Duval county jail at San Diego recently removed another link in the chain connecting present times with the hold border life of yesteryears.

The old jail which is thought to have been fired by five inmates, was one of the well known prisons of this section of Texas, and numerous notorious prisoners had been confined within its walls in decades gone by.

During the Catarino Garza revolution of about 40 years ago, the old jail held many of the border desperadoes of that day who were arrested on suspicion of being accomplices of Garza in starting his filibusters on the American side of the Rio Grande. In other days prior to the Garza period it had confined many of the roving gamblers and bad men who infested this frontier section 50 years or more ago.

Marked Coin Ends Journey
By United Press.
BAKERSFIELD, Cal.—Twenty years of travel, over thousands of miles and through many states, by the hand of honest men and thieves, ended here for a marked 50-cent piece, when Lee Bryant returned the coin to its rightful owner.

Bryant, grocery store manager, was a clerk in the C. A. Blodgett store in Spokane, Wash., on March 17, 1912, when his employer marked the 50-cent piece with his initials and the date, to commemorate the birth of a son. Bryant watched the ritual.

Blodgett put the marked coin in the office safe. It nestled alongside a prized dollar, dated 1794.

Six months later the strong box was opened by burglars. They took the two keepsake coins along with their loot.

Recently, the Bakersfield grocer was counting up the cash at his store. He noted a familiar coin. It was the marked half dollar, with "C. A. B.—March 17, 1912," scratched on its face.

Bryant sent the coin back to his former employer.

DUMAS—Wilson Funeral home established here.

GALVESTON—New municipal airport opened.

PARIS.—As far as embroidery is concerned this is going to be a "puck-a-boo" spring.
There is something about that clever type of "Hello, I see you" decoration that is the mother of illusion. After too much exposure always comes a period of semi-modesty.

In materials like linen, cotton, gingham, even printed silks and piques—eyelet embroidery is most fascinating for all times of day, and in chiffon, net, velvet, peau d'ange and all those new combinations of voile and net, marquisette and organdy (mariganza and organza), nothing can be more alluring and intriguing.

Women Voters Gathering For Annual Meet

DETROIT, April 26.—A convention of outstanding interest in political, educational, and public welfare circles opens here tomorrow. Delegates are arriving for the tenth convention of the National League of Women Voters, which will continue until Friday.

Miss Belle Sherwin, president, and the members of the Board of Directors have been engaged in preliminary meetings here since Thursday. Miss Sherwin will preside.

Planned with an eye for economy and with the desire to "fit the needs of the times," the meeting will be a working convention in every sense of the word. Discarding all frills, the delegates will settle down to a consideration of problems of particular concern during these days of economic uncertainty, and to the responsibility of the woman voter in solving them.

Such subject as unemployment insurance, employment service, the economic crisis and labor legislation for women, the married woman worker, taxation in cities and counties, disarmament, and the Sino-Japanese situation will be discussed the first two days in a series of committee conferences sometimes known as the "little convention."

Issues challenging the political party conventions will be brought forth at the public meeting on Tuesday evening.

A special committee, which has been engaged in mapping out a suggested "1932 political activity" calendar for the League, will report its suggestions to the convention on the last day.

Officers to serve during the next biennium of the league will be elected. The names of candidates will be announced on the fourth day, but before that time the delegates will vote on a proposal to reorganize the board of directors.

Complete Programs Rendered At Woman's Missionary Union.
Complete programs were rendered at the Woman's Missionary Union yesterday afternoon when members of the First Baptist church met with separate hostesses.

Mrs. Walter Keimund was hostess to Circle No. 1, with eight members present. Mrs. W. G. Lewis read the devotional from the one hundred and first Psalm. Mrs. J. N. McFatter offered prayer.

During the circle business discussion it was voted to hold an educational day service at the next meeting.

This group will also make a collection of linens of miscellaneous form to be sent to the West Texas Baptist sanitarium, at Abilene, in June. A report from this drive will be heard from Mrs. G. W. Thomas at the next program given. Much progress is expected from this particular move suggested.

Following a busy as well as interesting session the hostess served a dainty ice course.

Circle No. 2 studied at the residence of Mrs. Nora Williams with nine present. Devotional was taken from the one hundred and twenty-first Psalm. It was decided to start at the next meeting a Bible study course taken from the first chapter of Genesis and will be in complete charge of Mrs. J. F. Mitchell. Mrs. J. S. Reynolds led the group in prayer.

Mrs. J. N. McDougal received members of Circle No. 3 at her home for study opening at 2:30. An instructive lesson was heard by the members. Mrs. Nannie Walker was announced hostess for the next study lesson from the Royal Service course. Business talks were given and spring plans made.

A joint business meeting will be held at the church Monday afternoon, May 2. Yesterday's lessons proved perhaps the most impressive of any to have been heard for several meetings.

Mother's Day To Be Observed In Social At Jameson Home.
The Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church, enjoyed an unusually interesting lesson conducted by Mrs. Gid J. Bryan Monday afternoon held at the church at 3 o'clock.

Due to the unusual length of the lesson a straight Bible reading period was held varying to some extent from the ordinary study which formerly includes a devotional and special numbers. Thirty-five members were benefited from the profitable program affording added inspiration throughout the afternoon.

It was agreed by everyone present that Mother's Day would be observed in the form of a well arranged social and program. The entertainment was announced for Monday afternoon, May 2, and will be held at the home of Mrs. Rex Jameson, 1171 First Street.

Each member of the society will bring as a special guest a mother. Details will be worked out by the hospitality committee of this fine organization.

Revival Plans Discussed At Bible Lesson.
After the Bible lesson taken from the forty-fourth chapter of Genesis, members of the class taught by the Rev. D. W. Nichol at the Church of Christ yesterday afternoon, generally discussed the plans for the revival which is to begin Friday evening.

With such splendid co-operation from this group of Bible students the revival promises to be one of the greatest to have been held in the city for many months.

Members present included Mrs. Decker, Ivy Ferguson, Reese, W. S. Murray, Jewell Summerrall, Tom Burks, Aaron Williams, Frank Ames, Leola Martin, W. B. Pool, D. W. Nichol, W. M. Myers, Lum Love, J. E. Meroney, Edwin George Jr., Brown, Bradley, O. G. Lanier, and Misses Ethel Williams, Velma Williams, Beatrice Jennings, Branscom of Olden, and Rosa Williams.

Marriage Ceremony Performed At Home of Rev. Johnson.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

DIETITIAN MARY NEA Service Writer
When three meals a day must be planned and cooked for a family of growing children, some knowledge of food values and daily food requirements will make it possible for the home-maker to combine economy with adequate nourishment and well balanced meals.

Seasonable foods always will be found to be best and cheapest. Quality buying is also a means toward economy. Clever seasoning often makes it possible to use the same foods many times in succession without danger of monotony. Baked carrots for luncheon and grated raw carrots in the dinner salad have no suggestion of sameness, but healthful and economical food is supplied for two meals and definite saving is effected.

Substitution of one food for another frequently makes for economy. When eggs are cheap they make an excellent meat substitute. Cheese also can be used in place of meat economically. Although cheese may parallel meat in price pound for pound, there is no waste and one pound of cheese will furnish more than twice the number of calories found in one pound of round steak. The combination of dried beans and milk is as adequate a source of protein as beefsteak and costs about one-fourth as much. And as for minerals and vitamins, the milk and beans are more efficient than the steak.

Inferior Quality Means Waste.
Fresh fruits and vegetables that are of inferior quality mean an inordinate amount of waste. Consequently canned ones can be used with economy and equal satisfaction. Wilted and imperfect fresh products are of less food value than those canned in perfect freshness and maturity.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Stewed prunes, cereal, cream, bread, crumb cakes, brown sugar syrup, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Cream of carrot soup, croissants, hard-boiled egg and lettuce sandwiches, sliced bananas, ginger drop cookies, lemonade.
DINNER: Halibut steak, mashed potatoes, beet greens, carrot and cottage cheese salad, raisin bread pudding, milk, coffee.

Each season and each section of the country will furnish foods whose nutritive properties should be used to the best advantage. Beet greens, dandelion greens and turnip tops as well as many other spring greens often are available at almost no expense and are important foods as far as minerals and vitamins are concerned.

Foods which give rich yields of more than one food element are a decided economy. For instance, spinach is a rich source of iron and supplies vitamins in abundance. If it is bought primarily for iron, of which it is an economical source, its vitamins may be regarded as clear profit on the investment. Eggs are not only a source of protein but are rich in calcium, phosphorus and iron as well as three valuable vitamins—A, B and D. Milk is valuable on many counts, too, and plays an important part in economical menus.

It was kind of Mr. Whitney to tell us that blocking of short interests would kill the stock market. Most of us thought it was already dead.
