KEEPING THROUGH THE KNOTHOLE

With BILL MAYES

argument with someone as whether one could drown a fish probably have been determined Sunday night if the trouble been taken to get out in the because there was enough here and there over the byside to drown a fish. though it was not done for purpose, maybe cutting the at Lake Hagaman to lower water might have saved many from drowning.

while on the subject we explain to Gus how a fish was drowned, according to we have heard—we have caught a fish large enough to it a thorough test. Any system is to catch a fish, string it up on a fish stringer or it behind a boat and row around for an hour or so. theory is that the fish, being along behind the boat, in so much water through south and out the gills that it no time to "breathe" any of water and get the life-giving particles or whatever it is a use for air.

is quite reasonable, just like near Murphy's complaint our complaint on the corner of Young street.

According to word received the Cisco Country club is a big golf tournament beginning June 17 and closing on June 19.

As we know this is the golf tournament the Cisco has put on, but they are on doing big things over here. Invitations are being sent to golfers over this section and a large crowd is expected on hand.

According to the Oil Belt schedule the held golf tournament is held at Electra on June 15 and 16, which will be a day of golf for those who both events. No doubt a of Ranger golfers will enter Cisco tournament.

T. & P. TRACKS WASHED UP BY RISING WATER

Little Damage Reported in Vicinity After Record Rainfall.

A total of seven and one-half inches of rain, falling in Ranger and vicinity Sunday night, delayed traffic over the Texas and Pacific tracks during the night and throughout the morning Monday. Two trains pulled into Ranger Monday morning, but were delayed here while crews repaired tracks about three miles west of town.

Telephone cables in both Eastland and Ranger were flooded, putting telephones in the towns out of commission, but it was announced early this morning that repair crews were at work in both towns repairing the damage done by the rain and that telephone service would be back at normal as soon as the men could repair the cables.

Highways in every direction were flooded during the night, cars being stalled at many points on account of the high water. Property loss was reported to be slight around Ranger, though many sections were temporarily flooded.

One freight train was brought into Ranger shortly after 10 o'clock this morning from Fort Worth and a passenger arrived at 11. Both trains were halted while repair work on the road west of town was completed, the passenger train being in the vicinity in town during the delay.

Lackland addition was partly under water late Sunday night and families were removed to higher ground by means of boats, but little damage was reported.

Water rose to a depth of two feet three inches in the pump station at the city waterworks plant on Lake Hagaman, drowning out the motors and stopping all machinery. The water had receded this morning, however, and men were at work getting the machinery back in working shape.

The dam at the lower end of Lake Hagaman was cut to widen the spillway and let the water recede to normal depth. The standard depth of the lake was not lowered as the spillway was merely widened enough to allow the excess water to flow over the spillway in order to save the dam.

Levellie-Maher Motor company's building on Main street was partly flooded early Monday morning, but the water had gone down before noon. Several other houses were surrounded by water, but the flood did not get high enough to enter many homes.

The watershed of the Eastland and Ringling lakes received a four inch rain Sunday night and Monday morning, which, fortunately, did no damage. It looked for a while as if Ringling lake would go out, but after reaching the top the water started falling rapidly.

The city and Ringling railroad had men on the ground in case of necessity, and aside from arousing the colored folks in the flats and having them move out as a precautionary measure, nothing else was done.

The Bankhead highway east of Eastland was flooded.

Bugs Eat His Dust

One of the first advocates of crop dusting by plane is Lieutenant Henry E. Elliott, shown in inset. Starting in Macon, Ga., in 1923, he estimates that he has dusted more than 500,000 acres of crops since then. Under ordinary conditions 300 acres can be dusted in an hour, he says. It's a rather dangerous occupation, as the plane must fly within 15 inches of the top of the crop to be dusted. Lieutenant Elliott is showing how it's done at United Airport, Burbank, Calif., in the above photo.

PLANE CRASH KILLS TWO AT CISCO TODAY

George C. Fox, about 40, and Elmer Mosley, about 20, were instantly killed when their plane, a Curtis pusher monoplane, crashed into the front yard of W. D. Hazel, 1000 Sixth street, Cisco, this afternoon.

Witnesses of the accident said that the plane was flying at an altitude of about 500 feet when it pilot tried to gain altitude and the motor stalled and the craft nose into the front yard of the residence, barely missing the house.

Fox was practically decapitated by the accident and both men were badly mangled in the wreckage of the plane.

Papers on Fox, who was piloting the plane, indicated that he was a professional wrestler. He had a commercial pilots license. Mosley worked in the Santa Fe yards at Fort Worth, according to papers found in the body.

The plane was black with white or silver stripes and bore license number NC 11830 and was registered as being owned in Fort Worth.

Business Demands Tax Cuts

Demand for governmental economy and lower taxes was voiced by American business leaders when 2000 men, representing trade, financial and agricultural organizations, joined in the national conference for the Reduction of governmental expenditures, at Chicago. Here are two of the speakers conversing before they took the rostrum: George R. Tunnell (left), commissioner of taxes of the Santa Fe railroad, and Mark Graves (right), director of the budget of the state of New York.

FAMILY ROW IS BLAMED IN THE SHOOTING

Doctors Say Both Men May Recover From Their Injuries.

FORT WORTH, June 6.—A father and son, residents of Burlington, were in hospitals here today, suffering from wounds received in an alleged family quarrel last night.

Hardin Shirley, 28, said his father wounded him in the groin with a shotgun when he attempted to stop a quarrel between his father and mother. The father, J. G. Shirley, 63, wounded in the head, said the son had struck him with a rock.

The elder Shirley was found on the floor of his home after his son and daughter had left with Hardin for a hospital. Neighbors said a second shot had been heard but Shirley denied the head wound was from a bullet and that he had shot himself. Both will recover, it was believed.

PLANE LOAD OF ALCOHOL IS CAPTURED

SAN ANTONIO, June 6.—Federal authorities here today announced the seizure of an airplane loaded with alcohol in McMullen county, 60 miles south of here, after an aerial pursuit from the border. The federal plane smashed its wings in landing but no one was injured.

The ship was described as a sixer ship to the one in which W. T. Ponder, Fort Worth, famous war ace, was arrested at San Angelo recently, and the seizure was made by Customs Agent D. S. Conner, who arrested Ponder.

A pilot who gave his name as Glen Walters was arrested as was a man giving his name as James Howard, when he arrived at the landing field with gasoline.

HOUSNER IS STILL SOUGHT ON ATLANTIC

LONDON, June 6.—Airdromes from London to Warsaw and air officials of several European nations who waited in vain for word of Stanislaus Hausner on his projected New York-Warsaw flight, feared he had been lost in the Atlantic.

The only possibility was that he might have landed somewhere in the continent where he would be out of communication with the world. His fuel supply would have been exhausted early Sunday.

A garage proprietor at Cork, Ireland, reported he heard the motor of a powerful airplane early Sunday. However, officials could find no other residents of the district who reported hearing an airplane.

BONUS ARMY MOVES INTO THE CAPITOL

WASHINGTON, June 6.—An advance guard of the veterans' bonus army marched out of its encampment along the Potomac today and, in a ragged, wavering line, toiled up Capitol Hill to wage a peace-time battle.

The platoon assigned to legislative work today left behind a woe camp, adorned with a night rail, but military discipline, enforced by the veterans themselves, was bringing order out of chaos. This morning bugles brought the 2,500 veterans out of their straw mattresses in Anacostia Park. Leaders barked out orders almost forgotten in the 14 years that have elapsed and military drill was instituted to occupy the time of the men.

All this was in preparation for a parade tomorrow night, starting at the State, War and Navy building, moving past the White House to Second street, southeast, where it will disband. Police Chief Glassford has announced the men must leave by Thursday and offers have been made to transport them 50 miles toward their homes.

Dr. Roscoe Pound Addresses Rice Senior Class

HOUSTON, June 6.—America is treading many of the paths of imperial Rome, Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard University Law School told Rice Institute seniors at the annual commencement exercises here today.

Dean Pound's subject was "Some Analogies of History." He said Henry Ford's dictum that "history of bunk" applies correctly to many nineteenth century ideas on the subject and urged acceptance of the saying that history does not repeat itself.

"Certain comparisons with past eras, if they cannot tell us whether we are going, may still help us understand where we are," he said.

"Certain analogies of the present to the Hellenistic era are obvious. There has been a diffusion of western European civilization since the fall of Rome, and there had been a diffusion of Greek civilization. One might well compare the relation of New York and Chicago to Europe as Alexandria and Antioch to Greece.

"Europe of today, unable politically and in straits financially, may well be compared with Greece, wasting by internal strife after the Peloponnesian war.

"There are no less striking analogies between the present and the end of imperial Rome. Then, as now, there had been world wide economic unification through improved transportation. Then, as now, an urban industrial society had replaced a rural agricultural society. Then, as now, cities had grown and were growing at the expense of country. Then, as now, great urban centers were replacing a multitude of local municipalities in agricultural communities. Moreover, the strengthening of executive authority throughout the world and the rise of delegated legislation suggest at once the devolutions of political power which in time turned the first citizen of a republic into an absolute monarch.

"When the supreme court of the United States is willing to hold that congress may leave the final interpretation of a statute to an administrative officer and that his interpretation is binding on the courts, we are coming to something very like a Roman lex regia."

SOAKING THE RICH AND THE NEAR RICH

Uncle Sam is going to take a billion and a quarter dollars out of the pockets of his sons and daughters the next fiscal year. Besides a high World war income tax rate imposed in the revenue bill as passed by the senate and now in conference, some of the levies are expected to fall directly on the average individual. For instance, higher postage; beginning at 3 cents. Then the excise taxes will hit the average individual: 5 per cent on radios, phonographs, mechanical refrigerators; 10 per cent on cosmetics, jewelry, sporting goods, cameras, firearms, and furs; 3 per cent on automobiles; and 2 per cent on accessories; 4 cents a gallon on lubricating oil; 1 cent on gasoline; 2 per cent on candy, chewing gum, and soft drinks. A reminder that the ladies did not escape. They are going to pay.

Then there are miscellaneous taxes, including 10 per cent on all admission tickets costing more than 40 cents; 10 to 20 per cent on telephone messages over 50 cents; 5 per cent on telegrams; 10 cents on cablegrams; 2 cents on all bank checks; 10 per cent on safety deposit charges; 3 per cent on gross receipts of electric utilities and tariffs on imported oil, coal, copper and lumber—these latter to be passed on indirectly. Income tax rates of 4 per cent on the first $4000; 8 per cent above that with a graduated surtax beginning at 1 per cent above $6000. Exemptions of $2500 for married persons and $1000 for single, in contrast to the present $3500 and $1500. The married persons' exemption is reduced to $2000 for those making more than $5000 and the net result is that a married person with no dependents will pay $20 on the first $3000, $60 on $4000, and $100 on $5000. Exemption for dependents stands as at present at $400 each. A reminder that racketeers, high or low or rich or poor, guilty of evasion of the income tax law will pay a penalty of 100 per cent.

Speaking of unemployment, the enactment of the huge revenue measure of war time proportions should give employment to all the idle bookkeepers under the skies of America. President Hoover and Secretary Mills recommended the sales tax. Their proposal was ditched. This is the record. The senate smashed the sales tax, the house smashed the sales tax, and it goes without saying that the sales tax and its attractive features may be an issue in the campaign that will be on after the major conventions adopt platforms and name standard-bearers. Another reminder is that the golden goose is going to squawk loudly when feather pulling time rolls in.

EIGHT MARRIED WOMEN "UP IN THE AIR"

It is a matter of record that the Texas and Pacific railroad ordered a dismissal or discharge of all married women on June 1. With this saving clause: "A married woman whose husband earns less than $50 per month" was excepted from the rule. Well, eight married women on the Texas and Pacific railroad filed divorce suits in the courts of Tarrant and Dallas counties. What happened? Well, they held their divorce suits but they lost their jobs just the same. It is said that a hundred married women will be replaced in the Dallas offices of the railroad. There was a reason for this drastic action: The order was issued in accordance with an agreement with union officials and its purpose was to provide employment for men needing the work.

MAN OR THE MACHINE?

Columbia is the University city of Missouri. Columbia citizens have settled a labor controversy in which 150 unemployed men three weeks ago protested against the use of a ditch digging machine in bringing a natural gas pipeline to the university city. Indeed, a utilities company agreed to replacement of the ditch digging machine with men and shovels and a minimum wage scale of 35 cents an hour. With 25 men working each day the project will require three weeks for completion. Who will be the conqueror in the long run—man or machine? This is the machine age and revolutions ever go forward—not backward.

DALLAS OFFICIALS FACE INQUISITION

Judge Charles A. Pippin of the district criminal court of Dallas county ordered a special grand jury to investigate the conduct of all Dallas county offices. Judge Pippin selected Dr. William N. Anderson, First Presbyterian church pastor; Sam P. Cochran, masonic official and insurance man; and Thomas C. Gooch, editor of the Dallas Times-Herald, to choose the grand jurors. Private auditors reported that many purchases without asking bids had been made and that a $6,000,000 bond issue had been expended without adhering to plans. There is a merry row in Dallas county politics. There are hungry "outs" clamoring to get in. As for the "ins" they are doing their level best to stay in.

An editor who serves on a committee to pick jurors is inviting trouble. Not only inviting trouble but certain to win that which he seeks. How is he going to defend his own action or rather his choice of grand jurors?

THE SUN IS SHINING IN LUMBER CAMPS

A Houston correspondent is responsible for this industrial item: "The Kirby lumber company today reopened two mills and a logging plant in East Texas giving employment to 600 men and women. In addition to the 600 some 200 others will find employment resulting from the increased activity."

Texas senators voted for a tariff on lumber. They voted for protection for the Texas lumber interests. They voted hoping that a tariff on lumber would provide jobs for hundreds of people. They voted because the republican tariff system an dtariff advocated had discriminated against Texas products. They voted for a tariff on crude for the same reason. Yes, "the tariff appears to be a local issue."

ALFALFA BILL ON HIS WAY TO NEW YORK

Alfalfa William H. Murray is on his way to New York. This after the supreme court of the United States handed down its ruling upholding the validity of the conservation and proration acts which concerned all the oil producers in all states. Quick action is the slogan of the supreme court of the United States, and quick action appeals to all litigants the American world over. It may not appeal to all the lawyers interested but then the lawyers should not be the whole show.

The Boy Who Made Good

OLDER METHODS SUPPLANT NEW ON N. C. ROADS

Raleigh, N. C.—Despite the fact North Carolina's great paved highway system is practically completed, engineers of the state highway commission must continue to devise pioneer road-building methods to meet new problems in construction.

The state's highway system and its construction have been studied at various times in recent years by engineers from other states and foreign nations.

Still another achievement had been added to the state's record in road-building with construction of a treated timber bridge, covered with asphaltic concrete, over a sunken state highway which runs through the Pasquotank River swamp between Elizabeth City and Camden in northeastern North Carolina.

Engineers faced a perplexing problem when the old paved highway through the swamp became a so-called "floating" road, with waters often covering the highway to a depth of three feet.

This problem was solved with use of a temporary wooden bridge as a detour, routing traffic around an 800-foot section of timber superstructure under construction.

The asphalt concrete was placed in strips half the width of the roadway so traffic could continue to move.

The old highway was used as foundation for the new bridge-work, because any other location through the swamp would have been no better.

W. L. Craven is bridge engineer of the state highway commission. C. B. Taylor, bridge maintenance engineer, supervised construction of the bridge project from headquarters at Raleigh. F. D. Summers was the engineer in active charge during the first part of the work, and W. K. Norman, who was his assistant during that time had charge for the balance of the job.

Political Follies of 1932

WASHINGTON—The vast outburst of campaign oratory which is about to descend upon us will undoubtedly pass through the ears of some persons willing to believe everything they hear, but it is likely to encounter a much larger group of folks who won't believe a word of it.

The extraordinary performance of the administrative and legislative branches of government during the great budget-balancing act may be counted on to attract many new converts to the latter habit.

Apparently no one in Washington was really kidded about it. But it seems as if everyone had been earnestly engaged in trying to kid everyone else into believing that Congress was really balancing the budget. Everyone was, at least until the day before the Senate actually passed the huge new tax bill.

That's no sillier than the facts themselves. On a Monday Congress was still balancing on the basis of treasury estimates of financial requirements made four months previously. Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills was still sticking to them—he had just said that "we cannot undertake to revise our estimates every month or two."

Of course the idea of balancing a budget is to make receipts equal expenses without going any further into debt. After all the best-beatings and dire warnings of the past six months you might have thought more than one statesman would have pointed out that it might be better to try to balance the budget than to make a pretense of balancing it.

EVERYONE knew that the treasury estimates of February were no longer valid. Business had grown worse and the proposed new taxes obviously would raise much less than they were expected to raise last February and the receipts from existing taxes were bound to be lower than anticipated then.

The Mills estimates also included some $200,000,000 in debt payments which we probably won't get. Dexter M. Keezer, economist and correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, carefully and elaborately calculated that the proposed new taxes would raise $700,000,000 less than was necessary, even assuming a $300,000,000 cut in expenses.

Apparently everyone from the White House to Capitol Hill was too frightened to say anything or do anything about it. But in an astonishing change of attitude which came almost like a flash everyone became too scared not to do anything about it.

That Quick Change ON a Monday the estimate that the Senate Finance committee's new taxes would raise $955,000,000 in the next fiscal year and that new taxes and economies of $1,241,000,000 were required was still official. Tydings of Maryland had been demanding new estimates, only to be blocked by the leaders.

But late that same day Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, fresh from the White House, was warning the Senate frantically that it must not pass the tax bill it intended to pass that evening because it would miss balancing the budget by at least $200,000,000, which he said would mean forcing us on the gold standard.

TUESDAY found President Hoover up at 5 a. m. He was preparing a special message, admitting everything, with which he rushed to the Senate in person. It found Mills lowering his yield estimate to $40 million and raising his requirement estimate to 1475 millions—a total upping in the estimate of $59 million. And it found the Senate writing an estimated added tax increase of 275 millions in its bill and passing the bill forthwith.

It all seems rather cockeyed, and it was. Apparently the awful truth suddenly dawned on the White House, the treasury and the leaders of Congress they weren't kidding anyone.

You have to sympathize with Ogden Mills. Treasury estimates of receipts have often gone far wide of the mark. The February estimates were brought in and the treasury then found itself wrong by about half a billion in its November estimates.

Everyone, it appears, has been betting consistently on an upturn in business. But the general reticence to face facts until the pell-mell rush to do so at the last critical moment seems rather absurd or pretty terrible or something.

GRIPINGS

This column is published as a daily feature and may be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

Practically everything you hear on the street today is something concerning the rain last night. Canal street was raging. Gander creek took on the appearance of a lake down in Lackland addition and the fire boys were called down there with their boats to rescue some of the marooned families. It was a hard night on straw hats.

Both routes between Eastland and Ranger were blocked by water running over the highway. Two bridges were washed out on the T. & P., one near Olden and one at Wiles. Traffic was at a standstill. I'm told that the rainfall was more than eight inches.

Well, John Thurman finally came in Saturday night and he and I got busy and wrote his announcement. John has a good platform all right and means well. However, he doesn't say anything about the commissioners court taking it upon itself to require that the county purchasing agent ask for bids on county printing. I wouldn't care to be quoted as saying this to be a fact, but I think there is something mentioned in the rule book about asking bids on such things as that.

Now, if John will promise me that he'll use his best efforts to see that county printing is purchased by asking for bids from various printers I'll vote for him. If he doesn't and no other candidate does, I don't think I'll cast a vote for county commissioner.

I'll admit that there are several special items of stationery that can't be produced in the county because there's no equipment here. Still, I seldom see either of the big print shops in Abilene being remembered, while one in Fort Worth and one in Dallas is seen forgotten. It might be that Hap Pender in Abilene could make 'em a better price on some of that stuff if they'd give him a chance. And I think most of the people of Eastland county would just as soon see their money spent in Abilene as in Fort Worth.

Every typewriter on the place is in use and I've got to turn this one over to Bill so he can use it to take down the press wire news. All of which will give me an opportunity to go over and see if the postoffice opened this morning or if it's another holiday.

BOA CONSTRUCTORS ARE TAMED AND KEPT AS PETS. THEY ARE USEFUL IN DESTROYING POISONOUS SNAKES AND INSECTS.

BOA CONSTRUCTORS are not poisonous. Although they inflict severe wounds with their teeth, the bite usually has no effect. The teeth are used mainly to catch and hold prey. Boas are pointed backwards. Boas devour their prey whole, usually around the victim's body. Because of the peculiar construction of the jaw, a boa constructor can swallow an object four times its normal diameter of its throat.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHAPTER XI
CHERRY said "Oh—!" and then her voice dropped in disappointment. A bell boy in blue uniform stood at the door. He held a large pasteboard box bearing in large lettering the name, "The Stanley Company."
 "Package for you, Mrs. Phillips," Cherry told him to put the box down and rummaged in her purse for a coin. The door clicked on the youth's retreating back.
 There were her purchases of the afternoon. Cherry considered the package doubtfully. Ninety-three dollars and seventy cents spent for a few simple garments. Suddenly she wished she had not gone shopping. It seemed a huge sum—$93.70. Why, it was almost $100. In the store she had thought only that the dresses were becoming, that she wanted Dan to see how well she looked in them.
 Now she would have to tell him how much they had cost. She wished she had bought something for Dan instead of for herself. Here it was, the first day of her marriage, and she had spent almost the whole time buying two dresses.
 The dresses should have been taken out and hung away so they would not be wrinkled but, in her dissatisfaction, Cherry carried the box unopened to the clothes closet and pushed it back in the shadows. Then she straightened with a sigh and returned to the window to wait for Dan.
 She thought she might see him coming down the street but half an hour later when his key turned in the lock the sound startled her.
 "Oh, Dan—I'm so glad you've come!"
 She flew into his arms. Dan's arms, so strong, so comforting. The touch of his cheek against her temple. Swift, reassuring kisses.
 She looked up at him through shining, tear-squinted lashes.
 "Why, darling! What's the matter?"
 "It's—it's because I'm so happy, Dan!"
 He crushed her close again in a quick embrace, laughing. "Is that the way you show it when you're happy—getting up when you're with tears? Someone will be saying Dan Phillips beats that beautiful young wife of his or locks her up without anything to eat."
 "Say it again, dear!"
 "Say what?"
 "I love to hear you call me your wife."
 TENDER words, softly whispered. Precious, precious moments. They stole past swiftly until the orange glow faded before the ragged city skyline and dusk settled in the streets.
 "Was it a long day, Cherry? Were you lonesome?"
 "It doesn't matter now. Everything's all right so long as you're here again."
 "What did you do this afternoon?"
 "There it was! A cold hand
 vided into three sections, each section with its individual staff of officials.
 Log cabins occupied the spots where the city's largest buildings now stand.
 In 1872, Young saw his first train when the railroad reached here.
 He remembers when flour, butter and other foods of that sort sold at $1 a pound or more, because they had to be freighted in to Pueblo.
 In 1910 he went to work as a watchman for the Colorado Fuel and Iron company here, and still maintains the position.

PUEBLO, Colo.—Pueblo's first born white boy still lives and works here.
 On July 7, 1860, Emery L. Young was born on the bleak prairie, five miles north of here near the border of Pueblo county.
 Indians were a menace in those days. The great Colorado gold rush came soon afterward. There was only a small white population, and they had only the barest of necessities.
 Young, as he grew older, enlisted in the Colorado Militia and fought the Utes. Once his horse was shot from under him, and he escaped death by capturing an Indian pony.
 Most of his youth was spent in a fort built by his father to house the little pioneer family and to protect them from the prowling Red Men.
 Game was so plentiful then that on one occasion his father shot an antelope from the window of their home.
 In 1881, Young joined the Pueblo police force. He was an assistant chief of Central Pueblo when this town was di-
