This column is published as a daily feature and may not be considered as representing the editorial views of this paper. What follows is merely what one man thought at the time it was written, and the writer reserves the right to change his mind concerning any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

Dropped in on a meeting of merchants at the Eastland Chamber of Commerce this morning. They were talking about Trades Day and co-operative effort to bring people into Eastland to trade. It was the best attended meeting of merchants I had seen in Eastland and they were really interested in their subject. Someone advanced the idea of a Good Will trip through the county. If the merchants all got in on it and distributed co-operative advertising matter setting out special prices and inviting people to come to Eastland on a certain day, it would bring lots of people here.

The biggest advantage of a trip like that is bringing the merchants themselves closer together, getting them better acquainted and welding them into a sort of a unit to work together for the betterment of the town. A more friendly spirit is engendered and many a hatchet is buried through the medium of getting better acquainted with each other. Let's promote the Trade Trip.

Dr. Tanner took me around and showed me his canning outfit. He has a battery of gas hot plates on a long table, one pressure cooker here and more coming, a hot water heater and sink with drain boards, Miss Ramey is to be there Saturday to hold a canning demonstration and show how it's done.

Dr. Tanner has a good idea here. He will use some of the food to use in emergency. The Doctor is to be congratulated on his thoughtfulness. Looked around the town and didn't see a single candidate. They must be all out beating the bushes for votes today. J. W. Cockrell was in the office Tuesday afternoon. He, among others, seems to be terribly worried about the farmer. It makes a good plank in any platform to get out and shed a few tears over the farmer. And truly enough the farmer needs consideration as well as other people. And J. W. is also worried about a job in Austin which is said to pay a salary of $2400 a year for a clerk to handle the issuing of liquor licenses. He said he didn't know who is holding the job now nor didn't know for sure that it was being held. But J. W. is a good campaigner and I'm sure he'll find out and let me know. If the job is not taken, I'd like to have it.

Confidential note to Joe Jones: Dear Joe:

That copy you sent me of the letter you wrote to Thomas Blanton was received and the contents noted. You called him a couple of dirty names, if you remember, and I turned the letter over to the board of Censorship to see if we could use those words without getting sued. Of course, I know if we did sued you'd handle our side of the case. But you're so busy making a campaign that you might not have time to get us out of it, while Blanton has a son who might make his summertime job to get us out of it.

I don't think you ought to threaten to refuse me the promised appointment as postmaster at Esthan for trying to keep out of a lawsuit. Yours hurriedly . . . GUS.

While answering letters, we received an anonymous letter in beautiful handwriting, signed "One of the Many" which we would be delighted to publish if the writer would advise us of her identity. It expresses a good thought, but if we ran it without knowing who wrote it, I'd get accused to writing it myself. . . . and would feel flattered. We'll withhold the name, of course, but it's sort of a rule, you know, like signing with your knife on a book when you play hide and seek. . . . we're just not supposed to do it.

CONVENTION STADIUM, CHICAGO, June 29.—Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, stole the show from the politicians at the democratic national convention today. He was hustled from the press stand on to the platform and was introduced by Eddie Dowling, musical comedy star.

"I always thought the democratic convention was a joke and now I know it is," Rogers said. Laughter rolled across the giant stadium in one pealing blast. "The man I'm about to nominate," Will began, while the crowd laughed again. "I'm not a delegate and have no political affiliation, so if I am rotten I don't owe you anything."

PECOS AS A SUMMER RESORT

Pecos away out in the West, must be a delightful summer resort. On June 15, breaking all existing heat records, the temperature soared to a maximum of 116 degrees in the shade. Uvalde, Speaker John Nance Garner's town, was as cool as an Arctic iceberg. Uvalde only enjoyed 102 degrees in the shade. Come to "the Italy of America."

The government and the people of England wish well toward the Irish Free State. We wish to see its people happy and prosperous. We believe the prosperity of the Free State is bound up with the prosperity of Great Britain and that it is in the best interests of both countries that they should remain linked together within the British Commonwealth.—J. H. Thomas, British dominions secretary.

I read in recent press dispatches that a radical socialist deputy has introduced into the Spanish Parliament a bill prohibiting the use of Kings and Queens in playing cards in Spain. He gives as his reasons that such symbols have no place in a Republican state. This is democracy run riot with a vengeance. Whether the bill will go through is another matter. We cannot imagine even a Spanish Socialist government sitting in solemn judgment on such a measure, but we can imagine the deputy being condemned to swallow a whole Spanish onion for his frivolity.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

T. M. HEDERMAN, publisher of the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion-Ledger, says:

"Did you ever stop to think that in business you do not have to worry about the man who cuts prices, short weights and offers inferior goods as substitutes 'just as good and at a little less price'?"

"That kind of business will soon run its course during these days, when even the worst men realize that in business honesty is the best policy."

"If your salesmen come in and tell you how this type of competition is interfering with your success, just tell them not to worry about that. Time will cure that, but tell them the man to watch, the man to be afraid of, from a competitive standpoint is that man who knows his costs, who adds a legitimate profit, who backs up every word he utters and who makes good every representation of his salesmen. That is the kind of man who is going to succeed in business in the future. That is the man to watch—not the corner trimmer—he will seal his own doom."

"Another thing about business: There is lots of money in the country. Just check over the deposits in the banks of your own town and you will be surprised at the volume. Then why are the people not spending this money? Partly because business is still 'taking orders' and not 'selling.' There are high priced goods on the shelves and the owners are not willing to trim the price, take the loss at once and start over. People are shopping judiciously, but they will turn their money loose if you will make it attractive for them."

"Just try that, and check up on results."

HERE--- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

In the cover design by J. C. Leyendecker on a recent issue of a popular weekly magazine, the artist depicts Uncle Sam, with arms akimbo, hair tangled in vexation, and rugged, troubled face, clutching a saw with horny knotted fingers, and grimly working his way through rough barked and tough timber which he has already piled to one side, as he saws through the logs, finding each one a trifle more knotty than the other, but yet determined to continue his task, until all material is cut and piled.

One wonders just what the artist's idea applied to especially. The presidential timber of the hour, seems to be pretty well cut and dried and it is more of a question apparently of the quality of the timber the public is willing to use, than is the present paramount consideration.

For many years prohibition has been the pet project with many citizens of this country.

But if one ever sat through a dramatic screen story which the producer has proven was based upon actual facts that occurred in this country, among gang leaders, and illicit liquor purveyors, one wonders just what particular benefit prohibition has been to the United States.

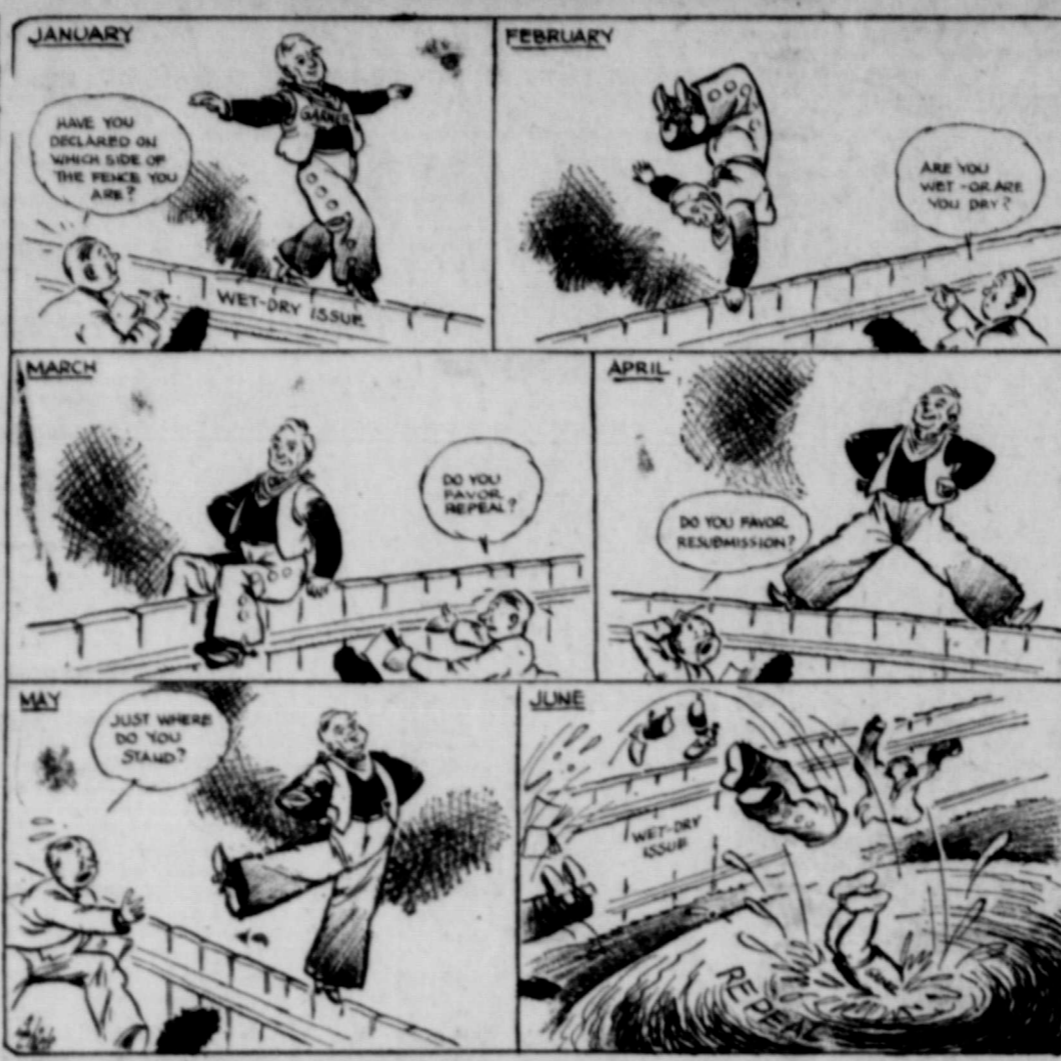

Certainly the thoughtful student of economic history realizes that there was never such wholesale murder, such unlawful gain in fortunes, such unbridled luxury, such traffic in same, during the days of anti-prohibition as has been the case the past four years.

Once a prohibitionist always a prohibitionist in principle, and private practice, and this attitude need in no wise be influenced by whether or not, liquor is legal or unlawful in United States.

In other words, now is the time for the man or woman citizen of this country to stick strictly to the private habit of drinking or not drinking just as his or her conscience dictates, but let this prohibitionist reopen for business.

Buy Tires Before Prices Go Higher Firestone Urges

Eastland automobile owners are being urged by the Hotel Garage to buy tires now in preparation for their Fourth of July trips. With a manufacturer's excise tax on tires and tubes effective June 1st it is unlikely that the prevailing tax free prices will prevail much longer.

With the Fourth of July holiday close at hand and with an eventual increase in price inevitable, no one should miss this unusual opportunity. The pleasure you derive from a motoring trip over the Fourth depends on your tires. It is the unwise economy to mar your whole day through tire failure. The money saved in trying to queue the last few miles out of a tire is insignificant compared with the expense and worry of an accident, with possible injury to the motorist and his family, as a result of smooth or worn tires falling to stop the car in an emergency.

In addition to the present low cost of tires, values have been greatly increased. In Firestone tires, the gum-dipped cords, two extra gum-dipped cord plies under the tread and the extra tough, slow wearing non-skid tread give the motorist the lowest cost per tire mile in history. These are construction features found in no other make of tire.

Political Follies of 1932

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

CHICAGO.—As if from so many booths at a gaudy carnival, the wares of the various Democratic candidates are ballyhooed at a greater number of presidential headquarters than have been established at a national convention since nearly everyone went scrambling for nominations in 1920.

If you believe all you can hear about these candidates on the second floor of the Congress hotel you fall into acute melancholia at the realization that so many cents on unequalled ability and genius must be discarded eventually.

Usually at these headquarters, however, you miss the tattooed man, the bearded lady or the three-toed tingwat which is supposed to be the main attraction. The candidate is seldom waiting to throw his arms around the visiting delegates. He delegates others for the job and is himself more likely to be in upstairs conference in a secluded upstairs room, where his more important guests are brought to see him.

Occasionally, however, he wanders into headquarters and shakes hands all around. Except Governor Roosevelt, the real behemoth of the show in point of delegate strength, and Speaker Jack Garner, who are not here.

Just a Happy Party

THE Roosevelt managers, however, have gone to enormous lengths to drive home the impression that this convention is just one big happy Roosevelt party, supplying their headquarters with everything for your convenience except beds.

Walk right in, folks! A lobby sign says: "Make the Roosevelt headquarters YOUR headquarters." And a big one 25 feet long—"Do you want to find your friends from other states?" Apply at Delegates' Service Bureau, Roosevelt Headquarters, Rooms 1102-1164.

Rooms 1102-1164—that's how big it is. A correspondent finds a "big sign directing him to the 'Roosevelt Press Bureau,' where there are free telephones and free typewriters if he wants them, along with the mimeograph from which four forth copies of statements from Roosevelt men which are scattered pretty hot.

OPEN LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE TO DEBATE

Eastland, Texas, June 27, 1932 Hon. Thomas L. Blanton, Abilene, Texas.

Dear Sir: The attacks I have made and will continue to make are against your official acts. The people of this district want to know why you and the other congressmen, in balancing the budget, found it necessary to increase taxes on countless necessities of life, rather than cut down the government expenses—included in which is the 20 cents a mile paid you for riding to and from Washington, salaries for your relatives on the government payroll, and the sending out by mail at the expense of the government tons of useless pamphlets and speeches never made on the floor of the house. Our people can hardly afford to own property in your district any longer, even under the old tax rates much less the increase which went into effect recently, as well as the increase in the postage rate which goes into effect on the 6th of next month.

Of course you are trying to play politics in suggesting that I quit my campaign plans and assist you in getting a crowd in your mud-slinging debates. This is an old trick of seasoned politicians. In order that the voters may know that I am not afraid to meet your demagoguery I accept the challenge to meet you at Cisco, Texas, July 4th. I would suggest that we meet at Abilene, in your home county, on Friday night July 15. You talked about Earp, Grisham, Scarborough, Mrs. Lee, and every other opponent of yours just like you talk about me.

Assuring you that I will be more than pleased to meet you at Cisco on the 4th of July and in Abilene, your home county, July 15. Then, Judge, you will have to draw the crowd the best you can.

Very sincerely yours, (Signed) JOE JONES.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By LEO H. PETERSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
Carey Says Best Pitching Will Win

The close race in the National League this season has convinced Max Carey, manager of the Brooklyn Robins, that the team that gets the pitching will win the 1932 pennant.

"It's all come down to pitching," Carey told the United Press. "I've never seen the likes of this race in all the years I've been in baseball. Just imagine, the difference between the first and last teams in our league is almost the same as between the first place Yankees and the second place Athletics in the American League."

"But the team that gets the most effective pitching will be the eventual winner. Especially with that crop of double headers coming along in July pitching will be a more positive factor."

He terms his own mound staff as "uncertain" and indicated that over a long stretch the Chicago Cubs appeared to have the most formidable hurling staff in the league.

When the season started, Carey announced that he was in the market for a dependable, right handed pitcher. But his efforts to obtain a pitcher of known ability have been blocked and he must wait through the campaign without an outstanding star on his staff.

Dazzy Vance still is about as good as they come on his good days, but the good days are getting few and far between. Vance was grown too old to take his regular turn on the mound and needs about four days' rest between games.

William Watson Clark never has lived up to the promise he displayed when he first came to the majors. Clark has been rated as one of the best left handers in the league, but so far this season has been an in and out.

Hollis Thurston, an American League castoff, and Van L. Mungo, Eastern League recruit, are the only members of the Brooklyn staff who have been dependable.

Mungo, a speed ball artist, thrives on work, and Carey can use him every three days in a pinch. Mungo's chief weakness is wildness.

Babe Phelps, who in 1930 was classed as one of the pitching finds of the season, has slipped back into his 1930 form when he finished only three of the 28 games he started. Phelps started out brilliantly in the first four weeks of the season, but setback by injuries, he has been unable to maintain the pace.

Freddy Heimach, Joe Shaute, and Austin Moore have been of little use and, along with old Jack Quinn, form the relief corps.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHERRY DIXON, pretty 19-year-old daughter of parents, falls in love with DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter. She quickly with her father about Dan, leaves home and taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XXXI

THE heat wave came. It arrived with scorching sun and days that seemed breathless from early morning until late at night. There was no breeze. Grass scorched in the parks where men and women and children, finding their lodgings unbearable, spread newspapers and slept on the ground. There was no rain—nothing to break the relentless succession of sultry days.

"It's going to take my last cent," Dixie admitted matter-of-factly. "I've bought a new evening dress—white lace, don't you think that's pretty?—and a white shirt with blue flannel jacket and a printed chiffon that will do for afternoon or evening. Wait, I'll show you—"

The new gowns were unwrapped and displayed hastily. Dixie held the white evening dress up for Cherry to admire, explaining that it really had been a wonderful bargain. Fifty-nine fifty reduced to $25.

Cherry looked down at her flimsy apron, her worn-out shoes. She pushed the hair back from her forehead. What a sight she must be!

UP and down the ironing board, up and down, Cherry's hand moved. The shirt sleeves, then the collar and then the front. A button off here. That must be sewed on before the shirt was folded away.

"This place is like an oven," Dan announced. "We can't eat here." "You go somewhere if you want to," Cherry told him. "I don't feel like dressing and anyhow I'm not hungry."

The waitress blundered with Dan's order and this irritated him. Cherry ate tomato salad and sipped iced tea. Somehow there seemed nothing to say. Both of them had frayed nerves. Both were tired.

They walked for a while after they left the restaurant, then went back to the apartment. At the entrance Dan said, "You don't mind if I don't come up, do you? Think I'll drop in at the office. I won't be long."

She said that she did not mind. Cherry went up the stairs alone. She was asleep when Dan finally arrived and he did not mention next morning how he had spent the evening.

DAN telephoned later to say they had an invitation. Casey, the news editor, had rented a cottage at Willow Lake, 40 miles away. Mr. and Mrs. Casey were hospitable souls. They had invited a group from the office for a moonlight beach party the following Saturday. There was good swimming at Willow Lake and it was cooler than the city.

Cherry was delighted. "But how'll we get there?" she asked. "You and I will drive down with Max. The rest are going with Casey or Jo Beach."

PARIS STYLES

PARIS.—A new grouping of accessories for smart strolls in the Bois includes the canine coat and Madame's hose! This is eye to eye information for a Parisienne, whom everyone knows is a model for the last echo in chicness, was strolling through the Bois the other day, with her pedigree building, clad in a dark blue ensemble with a matching beret. Her hose made a point of that new pinky-brown—one of the spring just shades—and her canine's sweater-blanket was of exactly the same shade! The shade for the hose is just a bit pinker than the usual sun-tan stocking, and happened also to be a shade that was particularly becoming to the little "beastie's" special type of beauty.

Discussing this important matter with the elegant in question, we learned that sleek black pony is the choice for a trim, short Eton jacket by the girl who owns a sleek black bound and that the proud possessor of a distinguished windhound, whose coat is pinky-white, picks her hosiery from a box of palest flesh tints.

It's pretty hard to be around a Chesterfield and not want one. That tempting aroma tells you the truth. It says... "Here's a milder cigarette. Here's one that tastes better."

Sure... there's a good reason. Several, in fact. Chesterfields contain the finest tobaccos grown.

These tobaccos are not only blended, they're cross-blended in Chesterfield's own special way.

In fact, there isn't any way for a cigarette to be purer, milder or better tasting.

No wonder so many millions of smokers say "THEY SATISFY."

Wherever you buy Chesterfields, you get them just as fresh as if you came by our factory door.

LONDON.—Never too late to learn has been demonstrated by Miss Eleanor Hadow, of Leamington, Spa Warwickshire, who commenced to learn typewriting when 100 years old, and, although in her hundred and fourth year is in possession of all her faculties, has a good memory, and, moreover, rides a motorcycle and sledge, of which she gained her first experience when 90 years of age.

PARIS STYLES
PARIS.—A new grouping of accessories for smart strolls in the Bois includes the canine coat and Madame's hose! This is eye to eye information for a Parisienne, whom everyone knows is a model for the last echo in chicness, was strolling through the Bois the other day with her pedigreed bulldog, clad in a dark blue ensemble with a matching beret. Her hose made a point of that new pinky-brown—one of the spring rust shades—and her canine's sweater-blanket was of exactly the same shade! The shade for the hose is just a bit pinker than the usual sun-tan stocking, and happened also to be a shade that was particularly becoming to the little "beastie's" special type of beauty.

Discussing this important matter with the elegant in question, we learned that sleek black pony is the choice for a trim, short Eton jacket by the girl who owns a sleek black bound and that the proud possessor of a distinguished windhound, whose coat is pinky-white, picks her hosiery from a box of palest flesh tints.

"Light One for ME"

It's pretty hard to be around a Chesterfield and not want one. That tempting aroma tells you the truth. It says... "Here's a milder cigarette. Here's one that tastes better."

Sure... there's a good reason. Several, in fact. Chesterfields contain the finest tobaccos grown.

These tobaccos are not only blended, they're cross-blended in Chesterfield's own special way.

In fact, there isn't any way for a cigarette to be purer, milder or better tasting. No wonder so many millions of smokers say "THEY SATISFY."
