for LOVE or MONEY by H.W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is surprised to find a diamond ring in her pocket. STEVE SACARELLI, returns to New York after three years' absence. MONA contributes largely to the support of her mother, who is a widow. KITTY, and her do-well brother, BILL.

Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, who owns a diamond mine. Together they have made the mine, believed worthless, pay handsomely. Steve owns a large diamond called "The Empress of Peru."

LOTTIE CARR, fashion model, joins MONA. BARRY meets several dinner and dancing engagements. MONA's brother, HAD, is under obligations to BILL HARRIS, night club proprietor and gangster, who plots to steal the large diamond.

Steve suspects this. One night when MONA and LOTTIE are Steve's guests, he telephones that his mother is ill. He comes to take MONA home. Later he returns and is forced to confess he meant to steal the diamond. He says that gangsters may kill him for his failure. Steve decides to send him to South America to work at the mine. They drive to Boston where this is MONA's last day, realizing her she must tell no one.

Next morning LOTTIE invites MONA, LOTTIE and Steve to spend Sunday at his uncle's palatial country home. MONA is falling in love with BARRY.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
 CHAPTER XVII
 THE air was sharp and glowing. Nestling at Steve's side, warm in her woolen sport suit, MONA considered the world about her.

On either side in the Fifth avenue traffic were other expensive motor cars. The women in those cars were dressed beautifully. The men looked confident, distinguished. No suggestion of poverty or hardship here. Nothing of the life MONA herself had known.

Steve had pulled out of that life. LOTTIE was pulling out, too. Her employer had raised her salary three times in the face of offers from competitors. And MONA was determined to pull away from Third avenue poverty.

At 5th street Steve halted the car to wait for LOTTIE. Twenty minutes passed before she appeared. Then indeed she was a vision, dressed in maroon to set off MONA's blue.

"I suppose I draw the rumble seat!" LOTTIE exclaimed. "All right" (waving a hand toward MONA), "I wouldn't rob you for the world!"

Steve started the car again and they plunged into the park. Past the mall, the pond, out again into Twilands, even from a distance, bespoke years of tradition, years of culture and care. MONA could picture the small Barry struggling about that lawn in white rompers, swimming in the pool or jogging along the country roadside on his pony.

She thought of him returning here from school bringing his friends. At the time she and Steve had been swinging along Third avenue on the backs of ice wagons, and being shoed from the neighbor's steps with their tops and jackstones Barry had been living in this beautiful place.

"Barry should appreciate his good fortune!" LOTTIE declared.

The fortunate young man met them just within the gate, emerging from the shrubbery as the car whirled inside. Steve jammed on the brakes swiftly. Barry was bareheaded, a dog nosing at his heels. He was dressed in heavy boots, riding breeches and a sweater that was not new.

"It's great to see you!" he exclaimed, springing on the running board and pushing the dog aside with one large brown hand. "Drive on Steve. We'll have another breakfast if you can stand it. I've only had coffee. Then we'll take a tramp or something."

The car crossed the gravel stretch and halted under the porte cochere where Mrs. Faxon, the Townsend's housekeeper, met them, smiling. The girls understood at once that she was more than an employee. In her 25 years of service Mrs. Faxon had been governess, secretary and now "hostess" was probably the word to express her position. As Steve put it later, she "ran the place" even when his uncle was there.

Barry introduced them, standing with his arm about Mrs. Faxon's shoulders. She was a charming woman, somewhat over 50, with soft white hair and a face far younger than her years. LOTTIE, with great restraint, refrained from mentioning the rather obvious resemblance Mrs. Faxon bore to a motion picture duchess.

She greeted the girls charmingly. "You would have thought Barry had never had guests before," she said. "I was afraid he'd walk half way to White Plains to meet you if you didn't come soon."

SHE added that Barry's uncle was away but that they would try to do the honors in his absence. MONA caught the solemn wink Barry cast in Steve's direction, and smiled.

"The boy has every fireplace in the house blazing high," Mrs. Faxon said, leading the way through the paneled hall to the living room. Here a cozy fire was burning. There was a piano, comfortable chairs, tables, reading lamps. Everything was fresh, livable and cozy.

As they entered a dog rose from the hearth, and wagging his tail, waddled toward Barry. A maid appeared and led the girls to a room upstairs to remove hats and powder their noses.

In the ruffy, taffeta bedroom MONA and LOTTIE expertly repaired damages of the journey through the wind. The maid shook out their wraps and hung them carefully in the closet, indicating that when they were needed again she would bring them downstairs. She straightened the gloves hung on the dresser, rescued MONA's handkerchief from the floor and quietly departed.

LOTTIE ran a comb with practiced skill through her carefully sculptured blond hair, cupping her hand carefully about its edges, crouching toward the mirror as she remodeled her scarlet lips.

"If you let this chance slip, you're a fool!" LOTTIE announced abruptly. "MONA glanced up in amazement. "What chance?" she asked, her eyes wide.

LOTTIE walked to the window and looked out over the wide meadows. "I don't really mean that," she said. "This isn't a chance—it's an opportunity."

SHE wheeled suddenly toward MONA. "Don't let a school girl crush you out of all this! Don't let your friendship for Steve keep you from seeing that Barry is crazy about you. All this, MONA, is yours for the taking! You don't even have to ask for it!"

MONA laughed. "Barry isn't in love with me. Don't be silly! He flirted with me at the office, but that doesn't mean anything."

LOTTIE lifted eyebrows that were regarded "by the trade" as 100% perfect. "—And Steve," MONA went on, "is—it sounds silly—but he's just a friend."

"That may be," returned LOTTIE. "I don't know. But Barry Townsend is in love with you." She struck her little finger with the forefinger of the other hand meditatively. "He moons around whenever you are near and beside that—he told me so!"

"Told you so?" "Practically."

LOTTIE opened the door and the faint odor of coffee reached them. They could hear Barry's laugh. Steve's admonition to the dogs. Someone called: "Breakfast!" but MONA did not stir.

"Barry told you he was in love with me, LOTTIE?" she demanded. "You—you didn't ask him?"

"I should say not! He told me so without the slightest assistance."

"When?" demanded MONA, incredulously. "Lottie considered. "Let me see. Just one week ago. It was last Monday at 5:30 sharp."

"Where?" "Over the tea table. At Sherry's."

 Trite Albeit True

Call out the guards, the boys are at it again. We knew it was about time. Less than a month intervenes now between the summer sun and football season preliminary workouts. We realized several days ago that we would just have to grin and bear it, or at least bear it, because ever since we can remember the same old thing has happened in the same old way. Grab your firm hold on the arms of your chair. EASTLAND IS GOING TO BE THE DARK HORSE AGAIN IN 1932.

Guzzles Guilty

None other than Gus L. Coleman, the banjo strumming, tenor crooning, whonour rube of the Eastland Telegram, springs the secret. He says, says he: "Boyce House and others preceding him have predicted Eastland as the dark horse of the district and said they might hold champions. A comparison of the above material indicates that it rates well with the material on other district teams. Coach Gibson has been attending coaching school at Lubbock. Coach Brothers in Eastland keeping the home fires burning and trying to keep cool. The fall campaign will be strenuous after it does get under way, but the Mavericks say they are ready and hope to come through with the first district flag that ever flew over the dead body of Old Rip." Pass the grapes, we're going to seed.

LESSON-SERMON GIVEN

The subject of the lesson-sermon was "Spirit" in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Aug. 7th.

I. Corinthians 12:13 furnished the golden text. "By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit."

Included with the passages read from the Bible was the following from Galatians 5:17: "The flesh justeth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh."

The service also included the following citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (pp. 356, 319):

"Jesus knew, 'It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing'... Throughout the infinite cycles of eternal existence, Spirit and matter neither concur in man nor in the universe."

Money talks louder than ever, a news item says. But the trouble with that is that it doesn't talk often enough.

As You Desire Me, Garbo Triumph Now at Arcadia

Greta Garbo in an exotic silver wig and black harlequin costume presents a vivid portrayal as the heroine of Pirandello's great play, "As You Desire Me." The screen version of this stage hit is showing the last time today at the Arcadia theatre, Ranger.

"As You Desire Me" affords Miss Garbo a dual character, as it were, later changing her personality and mood to fit the demure and fragile creature into whose memory she projects her life. Laden with metaphysics and psychology, it is a story of regeneration done in a cleverly different manner. Indeed, the story is so unusually appealing in a unique treatment, that it holds the interest of a genuine life drama.

Eclipses Previous Roles.

Miss Garbo, if it needs be said, is, as usual, magnificent. Her every inflection, slightest gesture, adds potency to the role in which she obviously submerged herself. Miss Garbo's talents are entirely individual and, in the opinion of

FIREMAN'S TRAINING SCHOOL AT A. & M.

There will be a fireman's training school to be conducted at A. & M., Aug. 8-11, inclusive. It is well to stress the point of the importance of a trained personnel in a fire department as a means of reducing the annual fire loss in Texas and which will reflect a saving in the cost of insurance to property owners the state over. That the problem of fire prevention, fire protection and fire fighting is one seriously involving the interests of taxpayers is sufficiently proved by the fact that the annual fire loss in the United States has mounted to the staggering total of $462,633,265. Indeed, the annual sum total of fire loss or waste is a problem staggering to the mind. It is pointed out by Raymond S. Mank, fire insurance commissioner, that one way of materially improving the situation is to make available specialized education for the members of the fire departments of the state. Fire losses in Texas are interesting. In 1929 premiums were $39,660,542; losses $15,664,858; loss ratio 51 per cent. In 1930 premiums were $26,983,764; losses $17,225,417; loss ratio 64 per cent. In 1931 premiums were $23,479,913; losses $17,565,457; loss ratio 75 per cent. Fire Prevention Chief Eugene Sanders furnished the information that 37 per cent of the premiums of stock fire insurance companies doing business in Texas in 1929 was written on dwellings AND 43 PER CENT OF THE LOSSES PAID THAT YEAR OCCURRED IN DWELLINGS. Forty-two per cent of the premiums of stock fire insurance companies doing business in Texas in 1930 was written on dwellings and 49 per cent of the losses paid that year occurred in dwellings. Forty-five per cent of the premiums of stock fire insurance companies doing business in Texas in 1931 was written on dwellings and 54 PER CENT OF THE LOSSES PAID THAT YEAR OCCURRED IN DWELLINGS.

Yes, importance of a trained personnel in a fire department as a means of reducing the annual fire loss needs no argument, for a trained personnel will reflect a saving in the cost of insurance to all property owners. Americans are the most waste ful people in the world. Why should the fire waste in this country in a single year touch the half billion dollar mark?

NEW LOANING POLICY BY THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

Yes, the skies are brightening. The federal reserve bank of New York, under instructions from its governor, will take care of commercial application for loans direct from the federal institution. Never before has the government bank loaned money direct to individuals or private business concerns. Character of paper which the New York and other reserve banks may accept for discounting is restricted to the same high quality as that which is now demanded from banks. Reserve banks will not make loans on security that a bank could reasonably refuse. Principal benefit expected from the remarkable change was said by financiers to lie in the possibility of helping out in isolated cases where local business developments were reported over the nation for the opening week in the month of August. Many plants the country over were reopened. Both stock and bond markets gained with main issues moving ahead early. Chicago livestock market showed signs of sturdy strength. A nationwide survey from a hundred major markets, revealed a heartening turnup in August payments and collections conditions. As for the New York stock market it went into August with a further vigorous upswing. Speaking of the bond market, it continued to forge steadily ahead. Results of the German election were construed favorably. In stocks, selling appeared first of the rails.

Ex-Gov. John S. Winant of New Hampshire has evolved what is known as the New Hampshire plan for the relief of unemployed. It is a flexible project, giving industry its choice of the five-day week, shorter work days or any other program found suitable. Gov. Winant believes that 3,000,000 men would be put back to work in the United States by the adoption of the five-day week and short work day program. The New Hampshire plan or proposal contemplates contributions from those employed, including wage earners, executives and stock holders to make possible shorter hours. There would be no increase in business costs and no expense in production or equipment.

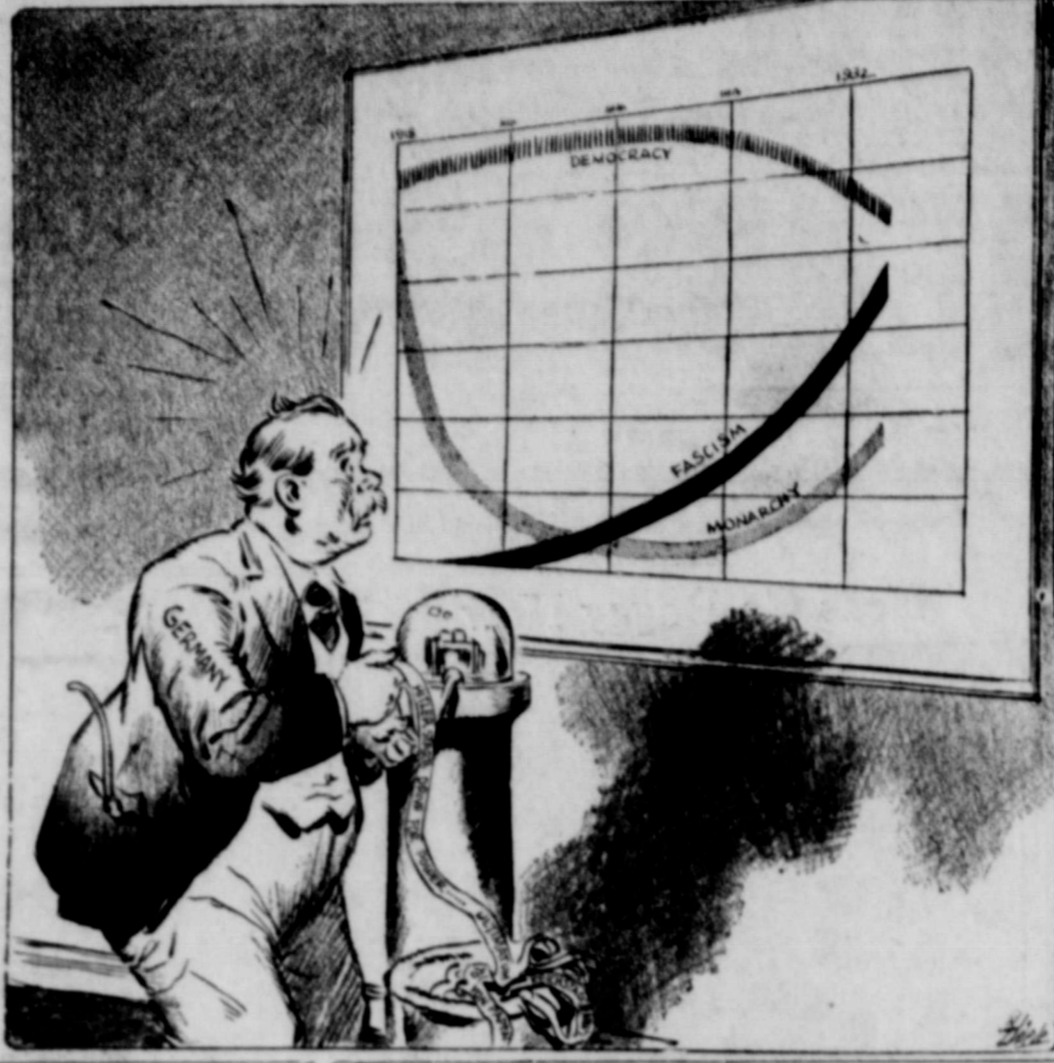

There are wise economists as well as captains of industry in the United States who believe that the five day week is on the way with shorter work days if possible. There is only one way for an adjustment of this eternal war between labor and the machine. John A. Winant has large interests in the oil fields of Southern Texas. He is a man of wealth and high class from every viewpoint. He recognized that there must be an adjustment between the machine and the man in order that the army of unemployed shall be given labor to provide for their dependents and to maintain as high a standard of living as possible until a complete readjustment of economic conditions has taken place in the industrial world.

Billions have been voted by the administration and congress to put new life into all the avenues of industry and for the relief of the millions who toil with their hands and their heads. This well. When the idle are provided with shelter and food and most of the necessities of life they are law abiding and law respecting and they never ask for charity. There is ever a beggar at the gates. He has been in evidence through all the ages. But the millions who are idle who are willing to work are not beggars by choice and they scorn the dole although their poverty compels them to take it.

GOVERNOR ELY FALLS IN LINE

Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, outstanding and hard fighting leader of the Smith forces at the Chicago convention, will go down the line until November in the New England states and elsewhere for Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Nance Garner Ely is the king of the democratic warriors of Massachusetts. He was elected two years ago. Now harmony reigns in the democratic camp in the Old Bay states and elsewhere. Mayor James J. Curlee of Boston, who led a forlorn hope for Roosevelt in the primary election for delegates, has pledged his support to Ely and the state democratic organization and hand in hand they will go, so they hope, to victory in November.

HERE— AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

How are you planning to spend your vacation? Or do you have to be one of the stay-at-homes, taking your trip through the medium of books, magazine travel-stories or newspaper descriptions of foreign places?

A breezy air from the outside comes to the home-stayer in the vast amount of literature put out by the Department of the Interior of the United States, through Horace M. Albright, director of National Park Service.

These booklets are veritable treasure lore, of the wonderful places in our country, that are open to the whole world; the gorgeous national parks, the national cave, and indeed any and all kinds of wonders of nature over which our country has any sort of supervision or maintains any interest.

Even the faraway Hawaiian National park may be enjoyed through the means of this kind of literature, free of cost.

One does not necessarily need money in order to travel, and in person see these magnificent scenic places of beauty and historic interest for the mind can soar in imagination, when filled with the pictured beauties, and printed descriptions of these goals of the traveller.

What does it matter if circumstances demand curtailment of living, lessening of expenditures, and carefully planned disbursements of the family income, when the spirit, heart and imagination can be fed, through such easily accessible channels and when care, like the Arab, "folds its tent and quietly steals away," as one revels in the vivid descriptions of those faraway places, built by the hand of God, or left as a monument of past grandeur by the hand of man.

Pecan Inspection To Be Feature of Growers' Meeting

Inspection of the Federal Pecan Experiment Station will be a feature of the meeting of the West Texas Pecan Growers Association at Brownwood Thursday, Aug. 11, it was announced today by J. C. Patterson, Chamber of Commerce joint officers of the association in inviting Eastland county pecan growers to attend this meeting and partake of the barbecue being provided by the chamber.

Pecan growers who have not visited the Pecan Experiment Station will find this a very opportune time to familiarize themselves with the experimental work that is being done for the benefit of the pecan industry.

Sports Writers To Choose Best Player

HOUSTON, Aug. 8.—Texas league sports writers will ballot Sept. 1 to determine the league's most valuable player. The ballot will be conducted by Ralph (Andy) Anderson, sports editor of the Houston press.

Each city will ballot as a unit, the combined vote being cast as one ballot. First choice counts five points, second choice three points, and third choice one point.

The Texas league will give the winner a $100 check while Charles Mangold, Dallas hotel man, has offered a trophy.

Survey being made on curves and turns on newly designated strip of road between Sabinal and Concan.

One great advantage to living in December as you did in May is that the sun tan will be gone by December.

— THIS CURIOUS WORLD —

PRIMITIVE INSECTS had two pairs of wings, but as they came down through the ages, some of them made use of one pair, so Mother Nature took away the useless set. To this group of insects belong the flies, mosquitoes and gnats, and their family name, Diptera, means two-wings. At the points once occupied by the extra wings, these insects now have protruding knobs that, according to scientists, act as balancers, for if these are cut off the insect cannot fly.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

George B. Dolliver, editor of the Battle Creek (Mich.) Moon-Journal, says:

Future generations will study in their text-books the events of 1932 and will find a resume of these events highly interesting. But to you who today read this history-in-the-making, the events are but a part of what you call "the news."

Geography matters little. There are few corners in this world so remote that what happens there today is not communicated to you within a few hours at the most—often within a few minutes. Your fathers had to wait days for news of their own country, weeks for news from Europe, months for news from more distant lands, but today you have the days news of the whole world with your meals.

For the price of a postage stamp you receive what may have cost press associations thousands of dollars to procure and, in addition, the news of your own town or city, your own county, your own state; pictures sent by wire; fiction worthy of a magazine; features galore.

Despite depression and everything else, it's a great age to be living in.

THAT there is no substitute for newspaper advertising. It is far the best by every test.

Newspaper advertising means more to a business than any other form of advertising because it makes more for a business.

Persistent, truthful advertising will afford positive and permanent relief for poor business.

A pleasing thing about well advertised goods is the fact that they sell quickly and give satisfaction.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

"Why," inquires a man with a more or less inquisitive mind, "Does Gus gripe about the weeds along the sidewalk on South Rusk street when there is a good sized crop right in front of his door, growing out of the sidewalk in front of the Times buildings?"

We refer the question to either Gripe'n Gus or the questions and Answers department. Being more or less of a columnist myself we do not try to delve into the why and wherefore of anything that any other columnist writes or try to find any reason for what we write either.

So we pass the query along and let it go at that. Maybe Gus does not have a hoe or he would chop down the three or four offending weeds in front of his office—they are really on his side of the building and not on Gus' so maybe the less said the better.

Several months ago we complimented the highway department for preserving a large oak tree on the Ranger-Strawn highway and complimented them on putting a nice table and bench around the entire tree, making a good place to stop and eat watermelons, or whatever one had to eat. Someone from the department called us up and thanked us for the compliment.

Last night we noticed that someone had used the table and had left several watermelon rinds on the table. With vast open spaces into which the rinds could have been tossed they were left on the table to draw flies and ants and other insects so that the next party wishing to use the table will be unable to do so.

We are sure that it wasn't young boys who left the rinds there, because they would have started a watermelon rind fight after eating all that was edible and the rinds would have been scattered over the whole section of the country in small chunks.

A little thoughtfulness on the part of some people would be appreciated very much by the remainder of the citizens, no doubt. We didn't have a watermelon to eat, so it didn't put us out any, but there might have been someone else who did have one and had planned on eating it under the shade of that tree.

Work is to start this morning on reconditioning the highway from Ranger to Cisco. As announced in this paper recently, the work is to start at the Eastland city limits and the crew of workers will work toward Cisco.

As soon as the 10-mile stretch from Eastland to Cisco is completed work on the Eastland-Ranger section will be started. A crew of some 50 men will be used for a period of about 30 days. Only Eastland county men will be employed and pay will be at the rate of 30 cents an hour, according to reports from the office at Eastland, where all applications for employment will be received.

The work will consist of removing, leveling and replacing the brick pavement where it has sagged and in reconditioning in the curbing along the highway. No teams are to be employed on the work as all labor can be performed by hand. The majority of the work will be done in the middle of the highway and no detours are planned if the traveling public will cooperate by observing the signs asking them to slow down on account of the men at work on the road.

The Ranger Times-Southland Greyhound Monterey vacation trip contest is to close in Ranger Tuesday night, according to announcement made by the business office of the Times and votes will be counted as rapidly as possible.

The young ladies in the contest are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the count, no doubt, and will be glad to hear the verdict of the judges.

The contest has been one of the most enthusiastic that has ever been held in Ranger and the voting is expected to run high. The contestants have been working hard for the trip and the winner will, no doubt, deserve the vacation after a summer of work.

EASTLAND PERSONALS

Mrs. William Sherriff returned Friday from a two weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brelsford of Fort Worth were guests of their parents, Senator and Mrs. H. P. Brelsford, from Saturday to Sunday night.

W. C. Campbell of the Sinclair Prairie returned Saturday from a delightful trip to California, where he was one of the prominent Sherriffs attending the convention in San Francisco.

Mailman Carried Own Love Letters

GRAPEVINE, Texas.—George E. Hurst, who carried his own love letters to woo and win his wife, will retire next May after 30 years as a rural mail carrier.

His fiancée, later his wife, lived on the postman's route. Hurst recalled it was no small advantage to carry letters from other suitors as well as his own since he was able to tell how many competitors he had and who they were.

DOGS KILLED 24 SHEEP

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—Twenty-four sheep were killed in a night here recently when a group of dogs made a raid on the ranch of George Bratton, Altamont. Eighty of Bratton's flock of sheep have been slain by the dogs thus far, and a number of suspected sheep-killing canines were executed by Ralph Homer, poundmaster.

MOTORISTS GET FREE GAS

SEATTLE.—When a large gasoline truck overturned in a ditch, passing motorists became the recipients of hundreds of gallons of free fuel. The truck had to empty its 3,000-gallon container before it could be towed out. Scores of motorists stood by to dip up the gasoline as it formed a miniature lake.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS By Blosser

for LOVE or MONEY by H.W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TODAY MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Westchester hotel, was sitting when her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCHIELLI, returns to New York after three years mysterious absence. Mona contributes largely to the support of her mother, invalid sister, KITTY, and her-or-well brother, BILL. Steve has been in North America where, largely by chance, he became acquainted with the successful BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, who owns a diamond mine. Together they have made the mine, believed worthless, pay handsomely. Steve owns a large diamond called "The Empress of Peru." LOTTIE CARL, fashion model, joins Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements. Mona's knowing the mine is under obligations to BUCK HARKINS, night club proprietor and gangster, who plots to steal the huge diamond. Steve suspects this, one night when Mona and Lottie are Steve's guests. But telephoning that his mother is ill, he returns to Mona home. Later he returns and is forced to confess he meant to steal the diamond, knowing the gangsters may kill the boy for his failure. Steve decides to send him South America to work at the mine. They drive to Boston where Buck sends a boat. Steve explains this to Mona at last, warning her she must tell no one. Steve's former lover, Lottie, invites Mona, Lottie and Steve to spend Sunday at his uncle's palatial country home. Mona is falling in love with Barry. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVII THE air was sharp and glowing. Nestling at Steve's side, warm in her woolen sport suit, Mona considered the world about her. On either side in the Fifth avenue traffic were other expensive motor cars. The women in those cars were dressed beautifully. The men looked confident, distinguished. No suggestion of poverty or hardship here. Nothing of the life Mona herself had known. Steve had pulled out of that life. Lottie was pulling out, too. Her employer had raised her salary three times in the face of offers from competitors. And Mona was determined to pull away from Third avenue poverty. At 55th street Steve halted the car to wait for Lottie. Twenty minutes passed before she appeared. Then indeed she was a vision, dressed in maroon to set off Mona's blue. "I suppose I draw the rumses seat!" Lottie exclaimed. "All right" (waving a hand toward Mona), "I wouldn't rob you for the world!" Steve started the car again and they plunged into the park. Past the mall, the pond, out again into 110th street and finally, leaving the city behind, on to Westchester. Roads dipped and swayed toward them. They drove through wooded plots, through brown fields. Here and there they ducked into villages, were delayed by straggling, dressed up Sunday crowds. Steve drove with his eyes on the road ahead, a speculative frown touching his forehead. "This is glorious!" Lottie called to them. Suddenly they reached a ridge, overlooking one of many broad, shallow valleys on the highway. A lawlwork of bare trees attempted to hide the village beyond, its few spires pricking into the sunshine like gleaming bayonets. Further still, near the broad summit at the north, was an estate. On a terraced hill, above lawns and shrubberies, there towered a huge house. A copy of a French chateau of the last century. A golf course had been laid out beyond the buildings. The terraced walls dropped to a stream below where in summer ducks, swans and peacocks would sun themselves. "That's the Twilands," Steve announced briefly, nodding toward the house. "You've been here before, Steve?" Mona asked. "Several times." "Why, it's like the movies!" crowed Lottie, in ecstasy. "I've always wanted to go inside one of these big houses where you have to send out a searching party to locate guests straying from the room without a guide. I've always wanted to semaphore a person sitting opposite me at dinner!" "It's a fine old place," Steve interrupted. INDEED it was a fine old place. Twilands, even from a distance, bespoke years of tradition, years of culture and care. Mona could picture the small Barry straggling about that lawn in white rompers, swimming in the pool or jogging along the country roadside on his pony. She thought of him returning here from school bringing his friends. At the time she and Steve had been swinging along Third avenue on the backs of ice wagons, and being shooed from the neighbor's steps with their tops and jackknives. Barry had been living in this beautiful place. "Barry should appreciate his good fortune!" Lottie declared. The fortunate young man met them just within the gate, emerging from the shrubbery as the car whirled inside. Steve jammed on the brakes swiftly. Barry was bare-headed, a dog nosing at his heels. He was dressed in heavy boots, riding breeches and a sweater that was not new. "It's great to see you!" he exclaimed, springing on the running board and pushing the dog aside with one large brown hand. "Drive on Steve. We'll have another breakfast if you can stand it. I've only had coffee. Then we'll take a tramp or something." The car crossed the gravel stretch and halted under the porte cochere where Mrs. Faxon, the Twilands' housekeeper, met them, smiling. The girls understood at once that she was more than an employee. In her 25 years of service Mrs. Faxon had been governess, secretary and now "hostess" was probably the word to express her position. As Steve put it later, she "ran the place" even when his uncle was there. Barry introduced them, standing with his arm about Mrs. Faxon's shoulders. She was a charming woman, somewhat over 50, with soft white hair and a face far younger than her years. Lottie, with great restraint, refrained from mentioning the rather obvious resemblance Mrs. Faxon bore to a motion picture duchess. She greeted the girls charmingly. "You would have thought Barry had never had guests before," she said. "I was afraid he'd walk half way to White Plains to meet you if you didn't come soon." SHE added that Barry's uncle was away but that they would try to do the honors in his absence. Mona caught the solemn wink Barry cast in Steve's direction, and smiled. "The boy has every fireplace in the house blazing high," Mrs. Faxon said, leading the way through the paneled hall to the living room. Here a cozy fire was burning. There was a piano, comfortable chairs, tables, reading lamps. Everything was fresh, livable and cozy. As they entered a dog rose from the hearth, and wagging his tail, waddled toward Barry. A maid appeared and led the girls to a room upstairs to remove hats and powder their noses. In the ruffly, taffeta bedroom Mona and Lottie expertly repaired damages of the journey through the wind. The maid shook out their wraps and hung them carefully in the closet, indicating that when they were needed again she would bring them downstairs. She straightened the gloves hung on the dresser, rescued Mona's handkerchief from the floor and quietly departed. Lottie ran a comb with practiced skill through her carefully scolded blond hair, cupping her hand carefully about its edges, crouching toward the mirror as she remodeled her scarlet lips. "If you let this chance slip, you're a fool!" Lottie announced abruptly. Mona glanced up in amazement. "What chance?" she asked, her eyes wide. Lottie walked to the window and looked out over the wide meadows. "I don't really mean that," she said. "This isn't a chance—it's an opportunity." SHE wheeled suddenly toward Mona. "Don't let a school girl crush rob you of all this! Don't let your friendship for Steve keep you from seeing that Barry is crazy about you. All this, Mona, is yours for the taking! You don't even have to ask for it!" Mona laughed. "Barry isn't in love with me. Don't be silly! He flirted with me at the office, but that doesn't mean anything." Lottie lifted eyebrows that were regarded "by the trade" as 100% perfect. "And Steve," Mona went on, "is—it sounds silly—but he's just a friend." "That may be," returned Lottie. "I don't know. But Barry Townsend is in love with you." She struck her little finger with the forefinger of the other hand meditatively. "Someone called: 'Breakfast!' but Mona did not stir. "Barry told you he was in love with me, Lottie?" she demanded. "You—you didn't ask him?" "I should say not! He told me so without the slightest assistance." "When?" demanded Mona, incredulously. Lottie considered. "Let me see. Just one week ago, it was last Monday at 6:30 sharp." "Where?" "Over the tea table. At Sherry's." (To Be Continued)

He says, says he: "Boyce House and others preceding him have predicted Sae can remember the same old thing has happened in the same old way. LESSON-SERMON GIVEN The subject of the lesson-sermon was "Spirit in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Aug. 7th. I. Corinthians 12:13 furnished the golden text. "By one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit." Included with the passages read from the Bible was the following from Galatians 5:17: "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh."

History Repeats It brings to mind the first newspaper job we ever had. It was back a long time ago. In fact it was about the time Benny Butler's hair was first turning gray, and Coleman had just retired from active business because he did not have the vitality he had during his younger days. The editor called us in and asked us what we could do, to which we flipped ashes over the horizon and replied anything, which we couldn't. "Can you," he said, "write a sports column?" "That," we replied, "depends on the name of the sport."

"As You Desire Me," Garbo Triumph Now at Arcadia

Greta Garbo in an exotic silver wig and black baroque costume presents a vivid portrayal as the heroine of Pirandello's great play, "As You Desire Me." The screen version of this stage hit is showing the last time today at the Arcadia theatre, Ranger.

"As You Desire Me" affords Miss Garbo a dual character, as it were, later changing her personality and mood to fit the demure and fragile creature into whose memory she projects her life. Laden with metaphysics and psychology, it is a story of regeneration done in a cleverly different manner. In- through with the first district flag that ever flew over the dead body of Old Rip." Pass the grapes, we're going to seed.

Eclipses Previous Roles. Miss Garbo, if it needs be said, is, as usual, magnificent. Her every inflection, slightest gesture, adds potency to the role in which she obviously submerged herself. Miss Garbo's talents are entirely individual and, in the opinion of this reviewer, the most artistic the screen has produced since its inception. As Zara, the cafe entertainer who masquerades as the missing wife of Count Bruno, distracted war veteran, Miss Garbo, eclipses her greatest triumph. While not as completely sympathetic as some of her previous parts, the Pirandello role offers her the widest latitude in emotionalism she has ever played.

Breakfast-bridge, 8 a. m. Mrs. L. Y. Morris, hostess, morning Miss Blankenship of Kaufman.
Nettopew group, Camp Fire girls, handicraft class, 9 a. m., Harrell tepee.
Lions club, luncheon, 12:05 p. m., Connelley roof, George Harper, president.
Ladies' Auxiliary, 3 p. m., devotional meeting, Church of God.
Nettopew group, Camp Fire girls, 3:30 p. m., residence guardian, Mrs. J. L. Cottingham.
Officers Home Makers class, 4 p. m., Baptist church.
Flatwood judge No. 572, I. O. O. F. hall.
Young Women's Auxiliary, 8 p. m., Baptist church, Mrs. L. J. Lambert, counsellor.

A Correction.
In Sunday's Eastland Telegram, the standing committees announced for music club, 1932-33, by Mrs. E. C. Sitterwhite, incoming president, contained a number of changes, for music week, a misprint.
The chairmen, for the junior artists musical tea, should have been, Mrs. D. L. Kinnaird and Mrs. J. B. Leonard.

Popular Visitor Welcomed By Friends.
Miss Faye Blankenship of Kaufman has been the guest of Eastland friends since last Wednesday and is being entertained by various hostesses with a number of small informal affairs.
Miss Blankenship will be here until Thursday and during her visit is the house guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Blankenship of Hillcrest.

Mrs. Edna Trigg in Town.
Mrs. Earle Johnson entertained her mother, Mrs. Edna Trigg, of Denton, Saturday and Sunday.
Mrs. Trigg's flying visit brought her in touch with several friends who always are happy when this charming woman visits in Eastland.
Mrs. Trigg, most interesting individuality, has been home demonstration agent for Denton county the past 17 consecutive years.
She has seen many changes in home demonstration work and still maintains her enthusiastic outlook on the value of this form of training and its greater value to the rural women of the counties.

Visiting in New Mexico.
Mrs. Homer F. Brelford Jr. is visiting her sister, Mrs. Griswold, in Roswell, N. M., where she will spend a month.
Dr. and Mrs. Griswold have made their home in Roswell the past three years, having been formerly located in Cisco for several years.
Mrs. Brelford will also visit another sister, Mrs. Allison, in Albuquerque, N. M., when en route home.

Mrs. J. D. Blankenship Honors Miss Faye Blankenship.
The Hillcrest home of Mrs. J. D. Blankenship was charmingly decorated with lovely flowers, developing the color motif of orchid and pink, for the delightful afternoon bridge, tendered by Mrs. Blankenship to her house guest, Miss Faye Blankenship of Kaufman, who is spending several days in Eastland, visiting among her numerous friends.

Following the informal reception in the home, guests were entertained on the lawn for three tables of bridge, with tally and score pad appointments in the color motif.
After bridge the tables were laid with dainty linens and centered with vases of rosebuds, for the tea hour.
iced fruit punch was served throughout the afternoon. Favor for high score in game, a shoe and hosiery box, with double set of drawers, and covered with quilted cotonne, was awarded Miss Sue Dean.
Second high score favor, elegance, on a clever roll, in the orchid note, was awarded Mrs. D. S. Eubanks.

Each of these favors were graciously presented by their recipients to the honoree.
Mrs. L. Y. Morris received the cut-fur-travel, a colonial lady powder puff, which was graciously presented Miss Blankenship.
Dainty refreshments of brick ice cream and cake, in the chosen color note, were served at 6 o'clock by the hostess.

This was one of the prettiest afternoon affairs of this summer season. The lawn was charmingly arranged with chairs and small stands holding bowls of roses and was a delightful out-of-doors living-room.
Guests entertained were Mrs. George Bryant, Mrs. Glen Stire, Mrs. Earle Johnson, Mrs. L. Y. Morris, Mrs. E. A. P. Pool, Mrs. W. E. Brasher, Mrs. T. L. Amis, Mrs. D. S. Eubanks; Mrs. John Bales of Breckenridge; Miss Sue Dean of Ranger; Miss Faye Blankenship of Kaufman, the honoree, and Mrs. Edna Trigg of Denton, who called during the party hour.

Eastland County Singing Societies Met At Mangum Sunday
The singing societies are obtaining a greater hold on the hearts of the people with each convention.
In these times of necessity to relieve the heart of its burden of anxiety and care through the medium of song, is a precious opportunity and one that is evidently realized as the attendance at these meetings grows larger and larger with successive conventions.
Mangum was the gathering point of the Eastland county singing societies, which drew an attendance on Sunday of 600 people, from all over the county, for a day of singing and more singing.
Business of the church were dismissed by the pastor, and the time given over entirely to the singing convention.

Among the Eastland people present, spending the day in Mangum attending convention, are Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Young and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith of Eastland were evening visitors.

Junior Auxiliary Baptist Church Doing Wonderful Work.
The junior missionary society of the Baptist church held their usual Saturday morning session, with general assembly of the three branches opened by the president, of the organization, L. J. Lambert Jr., and a good attendance.
A group of songs followed, in ensemble, the children singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Let Others See Jesus in You," and their popular favorites, which they usually ask for and contains a whistling measure, "Are We Downhearted No, No, No."
Their directors, Miss Hunt with Mrs. T. J. Pitts, at the piano, sang set to the tune of "smiles."
Prayer by Beulah Drake, completed the assembly, during which a treasurer's report by Curtis Terrell showed the auxiliary was complying with the request to send $5 as special emergency gift to mission relief offerings. This is extra money for home and foreign mission work to which all junior auxiliaries in the south are asked to send a similar sum.

The intermediate Royal Ambassadors, and Girls Auxiliary, assembled for their session. Their contest, "Building Skyscrapers," was brought to a close and the points made by the captains of opposing sides, Curtis Terrell and L. J. Lambert Jr., showed young Lambert had won with his group by 15 points. The losing side will entertain the winning group as forfeit. The contest was instrumental in bringing many new members into the auxiliary.
The lesson topic, "Make Somebody Happy Today," was conducted by Miss Opal Hunt, their director, with report of much interest shown and a good discussion held by the group.

The Junior Girls Auxiliary and Royal Ambassadors had for lesson topic "The Hand of Faith," taught by their director, Mrs. J. P. Truly.
A round table discussion was held based on each successive letter that spelled the word, "Faith."
The Sunbeams gathered for their hour with Mrs. T. J. Pitts, their director, who told them a story, written by a missionary in Chang Hwa, China, Miss Viola Humphrey, who has been at this station several years.
Miss Humphrey is a sister of Mrs. J. P. Truly.

The children are always interested in getting in touch with the customs and dress of Chinese children, and listened with avidity to the missionary's version of "God Calls a Little Sunbeam," which was a contrast of the Sunbeam in America and the Sunbeam in China.
The song, "Jesus Loves Me," and the verse, in recitation, "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me, for of Such is the Kingdom of Heaven," closed the meeting.

Those present: Fayelette Campbell, Cecil Seale, Bonnie Kate Wood, Geraldine Terrell, Rowena Cook, Beulah Drake, Mary Hall, Aline Dawson, and Catherine Cottingham, new members; Lorene McCoy, Curtis Terrell, Jim Hagne, L. J. Lambert Jr., intermediaries; Kathleen Garrett, Vern Ella Allison, Ella McCoy, Lillian Armstrong, Virginia Garrett, Dorris Lawrence; Claude Williams, Travis Cook, Ancel Owen Jr., Charles Williams, H. A. McCasles Jr., juniors.

Lone Star Employees On Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Gamble and daughter Miss Melba with Miss Charlene Harrison of Eastland, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Taft of the Cheney plant and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. McCurdy and son Burwin, of the Pueblo plant, left early Sunday morning for a vacation to be spent in parts of New Mexico and into Mexico City, Mexico. They will be away about 10 days.

J. F. Trott is spending a few days with his parents at Pecos. Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Disheroon of Wichita Falls, formerly of Ranger, were week-end guests of Mr. Disheroon's mother, Mrs. Fannie Disheroon, and brother, Arthur, at Plant No. 3.

Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Smith are spending their vacation in Oklahoma visiting relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. O. Hooks and daughter Doris are spending part of their vacation in Fort Worth and Granbury.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kelly will leave today for a motor trip through Colorado and California. They will be away for the rest of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moore of plant No. 4 will return home today after spending their vacation in Oklahoma visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Byrne of El Paso, formerly of Ranger, stopped off to visit Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Byrne this week-end on their way to Oklahoma for a visit with relatives.

Reorganized Class Elects New Officers.
The J. O. Y. Bible class of the Central Baptist church, under the leadership of the teacher, Mrs. Alice True, reorganized yesterday, electing new officers and making plans for future work.

The class is composed of the business men and women of the young people's department of the church, embodying a great number of the most outstanding young people of the city. The class has only recently been organized, the direction of Mr. Ben Whitehouse, combining with Mrs. True's group of girls.

Officers elected were: Clyde Purser, president; V. Marie Stephens, first vice president and reporter; Garland Poyall, second vice president; Joe Ruth, secretary; Kenneth Wier, group captain No. 1; Morris Jeffry, group captain No. 2; Mrs. Alice True, teacher; Mr. Ben Whitehouse, assistant teacher.

The class extends an invitation and welcomes all young business men and women of the city, assuring each a most interesting and profitable hour every Sunday morning.

Miss Thelma Stokes Complimented on Birthday.
Young Olivia White, who has had as her guest for the past week, little Miss Thelma Stokes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stokes, Mossville street, entertained with a party at her home, Leon power plant, Saturday afternoon, naming as honoree her house guest at which hour celebrated Thelma's twelfth birthday.

Lawn games were played and iced watermelon served to the guest of honor and Maggie Fowler, Helen Adams, Maxine Coleman, Fern Lee Frost, Kattie Frost, Johnnie Jarrett, G. W. Curry, Arthur Stokes, Pat Owen, Rudolph Little, Bob White, and hostess.

Martha Dorcas Class Picnic Postponed Due To Pastor and Wife's Absence
Every member of the Martha Dorcas Sunday school class of the First Methodist Church is asked to note the postponement of the Martha Dorcas class picnic formerly arranged to have been held this evening. Due to the absence of the pastor, Rev. George W. Shearer, and wife, from the city the affair will be planned for a later date.

Club to Meet

The Lone Star Ladies club will have a picnic at Butler springs on the afternoon of Wednesday, Aug. 10. All members of the club are requested to attend.

Dance Guests to Be Admitted Thursday Eve By Invitation Only

The dance to be held at the Ranger Country club Thursday evening and one which is not given by the club and its entertainment committee, but sponsored by Lewis Gregg and Nicol Crawford, promises an evening of delightful entertainment.

Each guest present during the evening will be admitted by invitation only. The Blue Boys, a popular group of peppy musicians, have been secured for this mid-summer function and the hour of dance is being anticipated with much enthusiasm, especially by the younger set and welcome visitors who are spending the month or an early part of the month of August with courteous hosts and hostesses.

The mail this week will deliver invitations to the usual group of dance lovers here and in surrounding towns, and if you are numbered among one whose name could not be obtained from an active club's register, you are at liberty to get in contact with either of the sponsors as late as one day prior to the entertainment.

Dr. Jackson Entertains Ready Class With Moring Swim

Dr. Walter L. Jackson, teacher of the Ready Sunday school class of the First Baptist church, invites all members to be present at the Willows in the morning at 7 o'clock for an hour to be spent in a swim party.

This prominent physician, who has been very successful in the organization of his class, had 14 members present for the lesson Sunday morning. This group is composed of Ranger's most choice young men, and any young man in town who is not attending some class is extended an invitation from the teacher as well as the members to join soon.

WHEREVER you buy CHESTERFIELDS on land or on sea, you get them just as fresh as if you came by our factory door—have one if you will. I think you will find that they are milder—that they taste better.

I have noticed that CHESTERFIELDS are made right—not hard and soft; no flabby cigarettes—each one well-filled. They are the right size to smoke cool and comfortable.
