Popular Texas Author Is Killed In Car Crash

RIPINGS

By GUS
When the upturn in grain, cotton and stocks, the market turned frogs took a sudden dip. Billy Blake Wood, of Will Wood, took an order for 200 frogs from a tourist a few days ago. In a few days he received a wire from Collinsville, Mo., with an order for 200 frogs at once. He filled the order from an order from Pittsburgh, Pa., for 200 more frogs. They are several boys working on getting his orders out. Wood said this morning that he had every possible of a container full of horned toads scattered about the back yard.

He was injured when the automobile in which he was riding with Roy Cullum, automobile dealer, plunged from the highway after Cullum was blinded by lights of an approaching truck. Cullum was not seriously injured.

Eccentric Recluse, Aged Sweetheart Held in 'Goat Feud' Murder

The chain of evidence in the Natchez (Miss.) "goat feud murder" mystery has tightened about Richard Dana, 61-year-old eccentric. Authorities announce they have identified finger prints at the scene of the slaying of Miss Jane Sargent Merrill as those of Dana. He is the nephew of Charles A. Dana, famous editor, and is pictured here in jail at Natchez with his housekeeper and guardian, Miss Octavia Dockrey, 60, indicted with him on a charge of murder. Miss Dockrey, daughter of a Confederate general, was Dick Dana's boyhood sweetheart whom he never married. She became his housekeeper 20 years ago. Authorities believe the slaying climaxed a long-standing quarrel between Miss Dockrey and Miss Merrill over the former's goats which strayed onto the Merrill estate.

BORAH AND HIS LONELY AND YET LOFTY FLIGHT

Christened long ago the "Lone Eagle" of Idaho, Senator William E. Borah has taken another plunge into shallow water. He traveled from Washington to Minneapolis where he delivered an address before the Minneapolis branch of the foreign association at the University of Minnesota. It is regrettable, but he delivered himself of three or four columns in small type of glittering generalities as he pictured a world returned to prosperity "if its fundamental problems are solved." He pleaded for the adjustment of every difficulty which owes its root to the World War at an international economic conference to be called in the future. He stressed the point that any program devised to restore normal business conditions the wide world over in many major nations is destined to failure unless the problems of reparations and war debts and disarmaments "are concurrently disposed of through the efforts of the community of nations." Then he delivered a foreword to the main topic. He avowed with great emphasis that cancellation of European debts owed the United States should not be considered unless "there is definite assurance that European nations will disarm and that the problem of reparations involving Germany is permanently settled."

Then this is the Borah paramount issue, in a trading sense: European disarmament of nations first, then cancellation of American war debts, or rather war debts owed by foreign nations to the American people. There is a war debt carried by American taxpayers of more than $20,000,000,000. This includes Liberty Bonds representing a value of $7,000,000,000. Senator Borah is a very famous orator. He is a very outstanding statesman. He travels alone. Except on general election day, then he votes the straight republican ticket. He did not sound a new note on the soil of Minnesota. All that he said was along the old track-beaten lines: World disarmament as the price of cancellation of American war debts, and a complete elimination of German reparations. William Jennings Bryan said the same long before he was called to the resting place of the dead. He advocated the plan of debt cancellation in return for disarmament of the warrior hell-raising nations of Europe. There has not been an advance step taken since Bryan passed out of the picture.

A republican administration, given the loyal support of the Lone Eagle enacted the Hawley-Smoot tariff act. That American-Chinese wall practically closed the ports of Europe to the merchandise and the staples of the United States. That act of a republican congress, signed by a republican president, led to the erection of Chinese walls against American salable products almost the world over including the retaliatory tariff act erected as a barrier to American goods and wares and staples erected by our Canadian lawmaking neighbors. This for American labor. In the campaign of 1928 the republican standard-bearer made this declaration after his nomination in the city of San Francisco: "The outlook of the world today is for the greatest era of commercial expansion in history." A month later, he gave utterance to these immortal words, in accepting the republican nomination: "Unemployment in the sense of distress is widely disappearing. We in America today are nearer to the final triumph over poverty than ever before in the history of any land. The poorhouse is vanishing from among us. We have not yet reached the goal, but given a chance to go forward if the policies of the last eight years are continued, we shall soon with the help of God be within sight of the day when poverty will be banished from this nation." At the time of this history-making announcement by the great engineer, distinguished Americans in the look-out chair were aware and so announced that there were millions of unemployed workers, and democratic statesmen, including Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, were appealing for the enactment of preparedness measures to guard against the evil days to come.

Where was Borah before November election day in the year 1928: Swinging around the circle in Texas and Oklahoma and other border states endorsing the Hoover proposal that "soon with the help of God poverty will be banished from this nation," provided the people voted to keep the reins in the hands of the republicans by casting their ballots for Hoover and Curtis. Hoover had no more vision than a blind bat in a cage in 1928 or the years following the Wall Street crash. Borah was in the same boat with Hoover, commanding in appearance, eloquent with his tongue, but with as small a vision of the future as a flea in the sand or a gnat in the bush. Theodore Roosevelt as President always planned for the future. Herbert Hoover as President could never plan for the future until after a deluge, economic or otherwise, covered the American world. These are facts of history, and the record of the republican administration is sufficient evidence to make refutation of the indictment impossible to those who think clearly and judge the actions or acts of public servants without bias or partisan cancer.

A FACT NEVER A FANCY

For five years and six months thousands of Texans have transacted business with the present highway department. All these know the books of the department are wide open to the public. All these who have had business transactions tell it straight from the shoulder that "there has not been a single back door or private office deal made with that department since 1925-26."

Now the people are the masters. They should be the thinkers. They should accept the evidence taken from the records where figures are not juggled nor facts distorted by the servants of those who pay the taxes and select employees by direct or indirect lawful procedure to defend their rights, guard their interests, and show a dollar in labor and material for every hundred cents expended for the highways of the commonwealth or the improvements or cost of any branch of the public service.

There is no back door to the state highway department or its books. These books are the records of what has transpired for five years and six months. There is no back trail leading to the office of State Auditor Moore Lynn. There is an open door, there is admittance to all, and appointment is not necessary, and there is no liveried flunky at the door.

Cheerful Little Earful!

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE with BILL MAYES

The life of a fireman is not the well-known "life of Riley" by any means and there is a lot more to the job than just fighting fires and riding around in big, red trucks that have right-of-way over all other vehicles. For instance Friday morning when a small blaze broke out over on Sue street the department got out the trucks and responded to the call. In a few minutes we saw one truck come back and went up to the fire station to find out what it was all about. We found Martin with a garden hose in one hand and a sponge in the other giving the big truck a bath. After telling about the fire he remarked that going to the fire and putting it out was not nearly as much work as washing down the trucks when they were brought back to the station. After each call they are carefully washed and cleaned so that they glisten like new. Just about the time the truck was being washed another alarm was turned in and out it had to go again. Back it came and the washing process had to be repeated. And the majority of fires are caused by someone's carelessness, too, which makes the job no easier. Then, when there is a real fire and several hose lines have to be laid, the fireman must wash, not only the trucks, but each section of the hose. If they were not washed water would stand inside and they would soon be rotting away, which would cost the city more money. So, each fire alarm, whether there is any damage or not, creates a lot of work for the firemen and some expense to the city. And just as we were stumped for something more to write about we got this letter: Mr. Bill Mayes, Editor, Ranger Times. Dear Sir: I see in your column yesterday where you high school football teams ain't allowed to do no playin' until the last Friday in October. I also see where Eastland is to play the Polytexnick High school in Fort Worth on the night of Sept. 30. I wish you would read the rules again and print something more about it as my team wants to play a game about that time and I don't want to violate no rules. Yours truly, HAMMAN EGGER, Coach at Tudor High.

Now, as we understand it, the first game of a season cannot be played prior to the last Friday in September. We put it October in this column by mistake. The Ranger Bulldogs are scheduled to play a game with Amarillo, at Amarillo, on the first Saturday after the opening of the season, which will be about Sept. 1, thereabouts. However, since the Oil Belt has been cut down, first by dividing it up into a smaller district and then by eliminating the Cisco Leases, unless the courts decide otherwise, there will be plenty of time in which to play out the conference schedule, whether the season opened on Sept. 30 or Oct. 30. There is one thing about making a mistake, it gives one an opportunity to come back the next day and write half a column telling how the blunder happened to be made. Which reminds us that one J. D. Nichols came in this morning and asked us to explain that it wasn't the J. D. Nichols of Ranger who was charged with shoplifting, but a man by the same name who hailed from way out in the west some where. So, if there are any other J. D. Nichols around these parts, this explanation will go for all of them.

FEDERAL AID

Recently a man by the name of Reed was arrested on a shoplifting charge and two other men by the same name wanted it explained to the readers that it was not either of them. (Continued from page 1) tions that Federal aid was never withdrawn during his wife's term as governor of Texas. Addressed to Eugene T. Smith, then chairman of the Ferguson highway commission, its first paragraph was formal notification of withdrawal of Federal aid. In part, the letter went: "Upon instructions received from the chief of the bureau of public roads, I must advise you that approval on all Federal aid projects in Texas which are not now under actual contract is hereby withdrawn. "The chief of bureau advises me that this has become necessary due to the financial situation and our withdrawal of these projects will be effective until it has been satisfactorily shown that contractors on Federal aid projects are receiving all payments due them promptly and further that funds are available and will be available, free from other obligations, to do the necessary reconconditioning of completed federal aid projects already completed. Further than that, we are restrained from approving any additional contracts until it has been shown that funds are available for the proposed new contracts." In interpreting the significance of the Losh letter, which was dated Jan. 3, 1927, the Sterling statement said: "This withdrawal of Federal aid, it will be recalled, came after exposure of the Ferguson-American Road company profiteering scandal. "During the Ferguson administration the Ferguson highway commission spent $16,885,227 for the maintenance of Texas highways, nearly $2,000,000 more than the amount spent in two years by any commission since that time. Notwithstanding this enormous expenditure for so-called road maintenance the federal bureau with-

August 12, 1919 L. W. Fargason No. 1 of the Humble Oil & Refining company will be deepened tomorrow with a probable increase in production from its present gait of 3,000 barrels, to which it has settled from its initial rate of 4,000. Jack Langford, one of Lake L. Hamon's men, and a gang of 20 are busy today clearing the site for the new town, exactly two miles south of Desdemona, which will perpetuate the subject's name. Palmer saw a year's service in France as major in infantry in the United States Expeditionary forces, only receiving his discharge a few months ago. Before America's entry into the World War he was in the French Army in the medical department. Dr. Palmer comes to Ranger direct from special post graduate work in New York and Chicago. Members of the Chamber of Commerce will hold a get-together and a membership banquet Aug. 25, it was decided at yesterday's meeting.

August 13, 1919 Traffic cops in Ranger will be equipped with regular "Stop-Gone" and the waving of arms that has been necessary to keep teamsters, truckers and drivers within bounds at the busy corners will not be necessary. Work on the temporary school building just back of the old school on Marston street is progressing rapidly. The resignation of Judge Joe Barkett as judge of the 88th district court, comprising Garfield county, removes one of the youngest district judges who ever occupied a Texas bench. More than a quarter mile of sidewalks, up to city specifications have been laid in the last two weeks, according to E. S. Sunday Off Day For Oil Belt Golf Sunday will be an off day for golfers of the Oil Belt Golf Association, the next scheduled matches being on August 21. The matches to be played on August 1 will be the last of the season, unless there are ties existing between teams in the association. At present an unofficial rating of the teams shows that Ranger is in the lead, and if the members of the Ranger country club win their match a week from today with Breckenridge, they will still be in the lead at the end of the season. Official records on the standing of the teams, which is kept by Walter Clark, secretary, were not available Saturday.

When Jack Roberson announced that Breckenridge would match every dollar that was contributed by Eastland and that they could count on Breck for $100 right now, the Eastland boys all swallowed hard. Those Breck boys believe in putting their money where their mouth is. "You'd think that after all the fuss raised about Highway 89, Breckenridge people wouldn't cooperate with Eastland on anything. But they know Judge Hickman up there and like him and are willing to overlook anything we might have done here in order to work with us in the common cause for Hickman. Their attitude is broad-minded and we ought to appreciate it."

Defeated Candidate Charges Vote Fraud

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 13.—O. R. Black, defeated in the democratic primary election by District Attorney Walter Tynan by 5,000 votes, today filed suit contesting the election. He charged there was illegal voting and that 1,000 negroes voted contrary to election rules.

The TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE) THE monkey led the Tinymites through vines and very pretty sights. Of course the little fellow could go faster than the bunch. He'd swing along from limb to limb and Scouty stayed quite close to him. He said to all the others, "Gee this was a happy hunch." "We may find Duncy way up here, 'cause I still feel that he is near. And, anyway, we'll have some fun. Are you lads getting tired?" "No, sir," snapped Copsy. "I'm a sport! I'm used to new things of this sort. The thought of finding Duncy really has me all inspired." AT last the wiry monkey reached a branch and there it stopped and screamed. "He's getting tired," said Copsy. "And he wants to rest a bit. "Let's also stop. It will be fun to hide in here out of the sun. Across this great big limb we all can very nicely sit. The monkey watched them and they watched him and all four sat upon the limb. All of a sudden Scouty cried, "Well, look who's up here now. "It's Duncy. He is safe and sound. He just came up here from the ground." "Oh, no! Duncy cried. "But I got here how. " "YOU see, I was up higher than you. Oh, my, but I have a thrill." And then he told 'bout the monkey that carried away. "At no time have I been afraid, but I am mighty glad here," said Duncy. "Now I that we should celebrate today. The friendly monkey hooped about and very promptly scrouched and came back with coconuts. The Tinies sat down. When holes were punched all drank well, agreeing the milk was swell. Said Windy, "like monkeys and I think it's fun." (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service.) (The Tinies go to Monkey in the next story.)

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma THAT it is a recognized fact that prosperity for a city come with the utmost development of business. This development will be increased immeasurably the construction of lasting highways which will afford rapid transit to and from the city. It is of the utmost importance that all business men their part to make it easy for the folks from the farms neighboring towns to come to the city. Good roads always bring good returns on the investment. With good roads, folks in the country can make money. If they can make more money they can spend more which means greater prosperity for all. The more good roads, the more travel. The more travel the better for business. Good roads bring the city close to the farms and farms closer to the city. It needs to be recognized that the acceleration of production has resulted in the creation of vast quantities of goods which are by no means essential to life. A demand has been created for them by what we call a high standard of living. Playing a great part in this is the creation of demand by newspaper advertising, which is a science upon which the very life of modern trade and industry depends which frankly and obviously sets up a demand for essential products, as well as drawing attention to sources from which can be obtained essential products. That this is so can be gleaned from the fact that a higher standard of living, better wages and a higher consumption of goods are indicated by the cities whose newspapers carry the greatest amount of advertising.

Mrs. Tom Harrell Entertains

For Visiting Girls
Mrs. Tom Harrell, assisted by Mrs. J. C. Patterson throughout the evening, entertained her night at her delightful home, a number of the younger set in honor of the house guests of Mrs.
Patterson, Frances and Marie
Harding of Thorndale.

The lawn was attractively dressed in the evening, with wild flowers and clusters of brightly shaded bells, hung from trees.
Guests assembled on the lawn,
and were received by the daughters of Mrs. Harrell, Elizabeth Ann and Mary Jane, who conducted them to the house, where they were received by the honor guests, Frances and Marie Harding, presented by hostess Mrs. Harrell, and Mrs. Patterson.

The rooms were prettily adorned with garden flowers, and many bouquets of lovely wild flowers.
An impromptu program, toward which each one contributed a number, either in piano playing, violin solo, or reading, formed an attractive feature of the entertainment.

Games on the lawn followed,
and refreshments of iced watermelon were served from a table
on the lawn, to Misses Olivette
Killough, Gladys Gates, Jane Fer-

By United Press.
FORT WORTH.—The Eagle
Mountain dam, second of two dams to be built here to impound water intended for use in the canalization of the Trinity river, will be completed by the middle of October.
Workmen now are constructing the last lap of dirt work on the structure which will hold back a lake of 630,000 acre feet of water.
The dirt work will be ended by mid-August and the entire structure ready for the fall and winter precipitation.
The Bridgeport dam, largest of the five lakes to be used in the Trinity project, already is completed and will be ready for use as soon as the Rock Island railroad tracks which run through the lake bed are removed.

HERE-- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

Character building is a wonderful thing.
In the passing of a man in our midst within recent days, who gave the fruitful years of his life to the ministry, there is noted an example of unselfishness, sincerity, and response to the call of a spiritual life, that is most marked.

Though born of wealthy parents,
and surrounded by slaves to do his every bidding, as the son of landed plantation owners of the South, this lad had every opportunity and means to develop a selfish habit of living, and an indifference to the happiness or sorrow
of those about him.
But living amongst conditions
that showed the need for enlightening of people and teaching them
the higher things of life, learned through the struggles, lives, hopeless ambitions, and happy go lucky character of the negro race, as he knew it at that time, a keen sense of responsibility was born, urging this call to the ministry, one that was followed for forty-five years,
thirty seven of these years in Texas.

Filling pulpits in small country towns, driving in backroads from farm to farm through the cold winters, through storms, often times
through blinding rains, or stifling heat to close the eyes of some man or woman passing through this world, or to give comforting words of cheer to an ailing child.
Self sacrificing and happy,
building character, day by day, and not in the large ways that are known in the outer world, but in daily actions of a daily life, actuated by a love of his Heavenly Father, and a belief in the world to come.

Happy in his pastorate, and joyous in the knowledge that he was doing his part in bringing truth to many, whom the outer world found it hard to reach, or were indifferent, and uncaring
about reaching.
It was a far call for this man,
from a rich plantation near Chartanooga, Tennessee, from the indifferent life of managing large landed estates, to that of a small town country minister, and which he entered at the mature age of thirty years, because he felt he could better the world by so doing.
Others not so fortunate as himself.
A legacy has been left in the lives and characters of the people he helped, and this monument, not built on stone or inscribed on matter, is a permanent one of saved souls; of unending influence that will be transmitted to younger generations, in time to come.

Character building. One does not need to be rich, and popular, or worldly and successful to accomplish this type of building.

the Fillmore police station on a robbery charge. From his shoes he took steel saws and cut his way out of his cell. He was busy cutting a lock on the wooden door
that alone kept him from freedom
when friends called. The jailer
then discovered Stepien's absence.

Detroit man recently slept 36
hours without even turning over.
Then the user awoke him gently

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

WHETHER it be on the porch,
in the garden, at the bridge
table or with a "dish of gossip"
and an intimate friend, a cool drink served as if by magic is an achievement for the summer hostess.

When preparing drinks for expected guests the fruit juices and syrup can be mixed hours before wanted and kept on ice. The tray and glasses and cookies or sandwiches can be arranged so that the last-minute effort creates little stir to disturb the visitors.

But when the chance guest drops
in and a quick and apparently effortless bit of refreshment is waiting, the hostess who is totally without preparation is "out of luck."

To this end the foresighted
homemaker keeps a few simple expedients in her refrigerator. A jar of sugar syrup, a bottle of chocolate syrup and one or two varieties of fruit juices make it possible to concoct delicious beverages with regular soda-fountain speed.

Another secret in making quick iced drinks is in using finely chipped ice. Less water is used when making the beverage because the ice melts and dilutes the drink as it chills it.

Sugar Syrup

To make sugar syrup put one cup of sugar and one-half cup water into a smooth sauce pan. Put over medium heat and bring to the boiling point. Cover and let boil five minutes. One to two tablespoons of this syrup to a glass of lemon juice will make the average drink sweet enough. Two tablespoons grated lemon rind can be cooked with the syrup. Strain syrup before bottling. This lemon syrup is especially good with iced tea or a fruit punch.

"Fresh Paint"

There's an advertisement for you. The sign "Fresh Paint" registers, it starts a train of thought—it's news! The skeptic may apply a doubtful finger, but most of us believe this message. Tomorrow when the paint is no longer "fresh," this sign will be gone.

Every day of the year, newspapers are crammed chock-full of such fresh news. It may be the latest information from a great international conference... it may be a description of new styles in shoes at a local store... But whether it's battleships or ladies' foot-wear, it's NEWS, fresh, vital, important, timely—the story of the present, the hint of the future.

The advertisements in a daily newspaper mirror local commerce with all the flexibility and up-to-dateness of the front page. The public is not interested in last month's baseball or football games. So the advertising in your daily paper must change day by day—just as the news columns. And, why not? Advertisements are news!

When a friend of yours shows a profound ignorance of important current events, you say—"Don't you read the papers?" You may ask the same question of all those who never know where to shop... or what's new in the world of merchandise. That's all in the papers... in advertisements... news... the latest... the true... the timeliest.

IMPORTANT

When you ask for a product by name, as a result of advertising, do not accept a substitute—substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.

EXPENSES OF COUNTY FOR MONTH JULY

Road work again accounted for the majority of the expenditures of the Eastland County Commissioners court during the month of July, though allowances and charity came in for a large number of expenditures.

A total of $108.30 was spent for printing and stationery, only $2.00 of which was spent in the county, the remainder being sent out of the county.

The individual accounts for road work ranged from amounts as low as $1.50 in some instances to as much as $120.

Following is the list of accounts allowed by the Commissioners Court for the month of July:

It turned out that Jim Thorpe, so often claimed as the world's greatest athlete after his victory in the steeplechase at Stockholm in 1912, was just a pale shadow after all.

The only event his performance at Stockholm would have won in this Olympic year was the high jump. Jim jumped 6 feet 3 3/4 inches.

Comparison

In a two-handed battle between Thorpe and Jim Bausch, this year's decathlon champion, the Sac and Fox Indian would have won five events.

How Thorpe Would Fare

THORPE would have finished far back in most of the events at Los Angeles. He would have come close in the 100 meters, where he would have been eighth in the pole vault, ninth in the shot event, tenth in the discus and 11th in the javelin.

Bausch Not So Fast

THORPE could have beaten Bausch in the 1500 meters and stepped for lunch on the way. Thorpe's time was 4 minutes 49.1 seconds.

Instructions For Drying Fruit and Vegetables Given

As Ruth Ramey, home demonstration agent of Eastland county, issued the following instructions for drying fruits and vegetables where it is not found or convenient to can and preserve these items.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES—Fruits and vegetables are dried in shallow pans. Foods are more often canned than dried, but the containers are scarce, preserve the foods in ways up yourself and others. The drying recipes for drying foods are helpful.

BEANS—Select small pods of okra, wash, blanch, three minutes in boiling soda (1/2 teaspoon soda to 1 gallon water) and dry. Young and tender pods may be dried (older pods should be cut one-fourth to one-half inch).

PEAS—Many have difficulty in keeping peas after they are dried. Extension Entomologist says that the following requirements for success start early. Infestation begins in the field and progresses in storage, especially in weather.

GRAIN—Select very tender corn and prepare immediately. Boil or steam corn on 1 to eight minutes to set the starch.

for LOVE or MONEY by H.W. CORLEY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is in love with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, whom she met through STEVE SACKA, HELL, her childhood sweetheart. Steve and Barry have just returned from South America where—largely by chance—Steve became associated with Harry in operating a diamond mine, once believed worthless but now valuable. Steve owns a huge diamond called 'The Empress of Peru.' Gangsters try to steal the stone but he outwits them. Steve has extracted Mona's gratitude by befriending her errand boy, MILO, sending him to South America and giving him a job in the mine. Mona needs $500 for hospital treatments for her invalid father. Her employer agrees to loan her the money and then makes an amazing proposal. He tells Mona her immediate wish to marry her wealthy client occupies her own mind, but she must first account for the money. He offers her $500 for one year. At the end of that time she must become a man's wife in actuality or secure a divorce. She asks the man's name and is told it is Barry Townsend. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII MONA gazed at the closed door in amazement. She stood very still, the color receding from her lovely face. Barry Townsend wished to marry her! He had given her a year after that marriage to decide whether she wished to divorce him or whether she had been able to fall in love with him. But she was in love with Barry now! She had been in love with him ever since she had first seen him. How could he fall to have understood? Why had he kept silent when he had the opportunity to speak to her at Twilands? What about Miss Dover? Yes, there was still Miss Dover to be reckoned with. And why should he make all this known to her through Mr. Garretson, his uncle's lawyer? Barry was ill, of course, but if that were the cause it seemed to Mona that the matter could have waited. But what did all this matter if she was really to have Barry? The part, so clearly explained by Mr. Garretson, about the money, was unimportant. She would have married Barry without a cent! She would have been glad to go to the tropics with him, even to dig in the mines. Anything, to be with him. As Mona returned to her desk her eyes fell on the check, still folded in her hand. That would take care of her father. Refolding it, she scribbled a note to Dr. Dean and placed it in an envelope. As she walked to the mail chute, this business of Dad's care of her mind, she felt freer to deal with her own affairs. How she wished that she could see Steve! For some inexplicable reason she felt vaguely disturbed. Reaching for the telephone, she was assured by central that Steve's number gave no answer. Well, this was something she must decide for herself. Briefly she spoke over the telephone again, this time to Mr. Garretson. She had considered the matter, she said, and was ready to accept. "Excellent!" he replied promptly. "I can assure you that you will not regret it. You have some girl friend, I suppose, who would go with you? The ceremony is to be performed at Twilands. I'll send the car for you at about 10 tomorrow morning. You can make your arrangements and drive out together. I'll meet you there. Is that satisfactory?" MONA gave him Lottie's address. She had decided that she would spend the night with Lottie instead of going home. For some reason Mona felt it unwise to tell her mother of the approaching marriage. If it all seemed strange to Mona, what would Ma say? "Then Mr. Townsend expects me tomorrow?" asked Mona timidly. Her employer laughed reassuringly. "He hardly dared expect you, but he will be very pleased when I tell him the news. And by the way, you'll want to buy a few things. I'm sending Miss Drury out with an envelope." The envelope with which Miss Drury presently appeared contained several bills. In Mr. Garretson's precise handwriting it was further explained that Mona and her friend might use the car the next morning and that they would be expected at Twilands at about one o'clock. The ceremony was to be extremely simple because Mr. Townsend was not at all well. Once more Mona lifted the telephone to apprise Lottie that she wished to spend the night with her. The excitement in her voice aroused Lottie's curiosity immediately. "Is it anything particular?" she asked hopefully. "Wait until you hear!" Mona returned. "I'm going to be married tomorrow!" Lottie was parading the tiny living room when Mona rang. "The blushing bride!" she exclaimed. "When in the world did all this happen? Who's the lucky man?" HER hat flung aside, Mona sank to the couch and told Lottie briefly of her interview with Mr. Garretson. As she talked she ran slender fingers through the usually unruffled smoothness of her carefully groomed hair. "You're nervous as a witch!" Lottie declared. "Here—let me get this straight! You got the money from the firm and sent it to the doctor. That means your Dad's all set. You don't have to go on the marriage block to lift the mortgage." She sank to the floor at Mona's feet. "Now then, old Garretson said that one of his clients wanted to marry right away and had picked you. Who is this romantic bird anyhow? Why didn't he put an ad in the paper?" Mona laughed nervously, in spite of herself. "That's what I don't understand, Lottie," she said. "You see, the man is Barry!" "Barry!" Mona nodded miserably. "That's why it's all so queer. Of course I know Barry is ill but he and his uncle aren't on good terms, you know. Why should his uncle want him to marry me, just a working girl?" "Say—he can count himself darned lucky!" Lottie began hotly. Mona interrupted to say, "I've tried to reach Steve to ask him about it but he doesn't answer his telephone." "I'll try again," the other girl offered. But there was no answer to the call. Lottie announced that they might as well eat and ordered sandwiches sent from a restaurant across the street. "Well, we can't figure out the rest of it," she said, sipping the percolator with coffee, "but at least we can plan what you're to wear. Let's see—your blue suit. No, wait a minute! Wear mine. It's newer. I brought a hat home tonight and you can have that. It will be swell with the suit. We'll get a lace blouse. Let's see—about shoes—Mona's shoes did not quite pass muster and it was decided to purchase new ones. "We could buy a complete outfit, Lottie," Mona insisted. "I have the money—" "Yes, but time is scarce. It took me 10 days to decide on that suit. It will be okay on you but it's just for tomorrow, though. I'll lend it to you for luck and then you can send it back." THEY planned practically and swiftly. The shopping list included a new blouse, gloves, shoes and hose. Flowers were considered but vetoed. "Maybe the bridegroom gets the flowers still even if he does propose through his lawyer," Lottie said. A rapid tossing through her dressing table brought forth a collection of lingerie for the wedding day. Lottie upheld Mona in her decision not to telephone her mother until the ceremony had been performed. "You can still change your mind or he can change his," Lottie pointed out as at last the girls prepared for bed. "Yes, and Barry's uncle can change his, which is more to the point," Mona agreed. The whole thing seemed so strange to her—so very strange. Mona slept but Lottie lay awake, her brows knitted in the dark. Later Mona awoke to find Lottie, still thinking, sitting up in bed, arms tightly pressed about her neck, her head bent. "So you're going to live in that brownstone Townsend house, Min," she said. "Well, here's power to you. I walked past it just the other day." "You won't do that again, Lottie," Mona answered drowsily. "Why not?" "You won't walk past with me living there. You'll come in!" Lottie squeezed her friend's hand affectionately. "You're a good kid, Min. I wish you lots of happiness." And Mona's wedding day dawned to find both of them fast asleep. (To Be Continued)

V. V. COOPER THANKS VOTERS FOR SUPPORT IN JULY PRIMARY

I desire to take this method of expressing my deep appreciation for the support given me for Commissioner on July 23rd. To those who have so loyally supported me in the past, I owe a debt of gratitude which I will never be able to repay and to those who could not find their way clear to favor me with their support in the recent campaign and election I can truthfully say that I harbor no ill feelings whatever towards them. I desire, also, to assure our entire citizenship that I keenly appreciate the cooperation extended me during the time I have been your Commissioner for without that I certainly could not have accomplished the things for this precinct and for Eastland County that I did. Yours very truly, V. V. COOPER. (Political Adv.)

PASTOR WRESTLES PROFESSIONAL

HINGHAM, Mass.—The Rev. Lex King Souter, pastor of the Hingham Congregational Church, wrestled Lee Wykoff, 220-pound professional who shortly before had beaten Sonnenberg, at a recent American Legion field day for the benefit of the unemployed. The clergyman wrestled bare-footed.

The American home is the last word in efficiency and comfort, an architect proudly states. The only thing left to do to it is to find something to keep the family in it.

PROGRESS

What has been done this year in Medical Science of which we may be proud?

Much, we would say—but the work never lags. The scientist, the research chemist, and the regular practicing Physician are unceasingly working toward the elimination of human suffering.

Cancer, asthma, hay fever, tuberculosis, the common cold, neuritis—and all the other physical ills that have not been fully conquered—are having millions of dollars, and untold scientific energy expended on their eventual extermination.

From one end of the world to the other this progress in health goes on, but no greater service is being accomplished than the gradual weakening of men and women to the good sense of PREVENTION of disease and ill-health.

Taking care of, and preserving good health, and building walls of energy against invasion—much has been accomplished along these lines of education this last year. Let's keep up the good work.

Bankhead Really Ten Stars In One

Katherine Cornell, Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer, Francine LaRimore, Ina Claire, Jeanne Eagles, Pauline Lord and half a dozen other actresses all rolled into one.

That's what Tallulah Bankhead, starred in "Devil and the Deep," which comes today to the Lyric Theatre, might well claim to be.

For during her long career on the London stage, Miss Bankhead has played roles which these other stars have portrayed on the stage and screen.

In "The Green Hat" she enacted the role which Katherine Cornell played on Broadway and Greta Garbo played on the screen.

In "Let Us Be Gay" she had the role Francis LaRimore had on Broadway and Norma Shearer had on the screen. In "Her Cardboard Lover" she appeared in the part Jeanne Eagles had on Broadway and Marion Davis had on the screen.

Ina Claire's stage role in "The Gold Diggers," Corinne Griffith's film role in "The Garden of Eden," Pauline Lord's stage role and Pola Negri's and Vilma Banky's screen roles in "They Knew What They Wanted" are among other roles she portrayed in London.

Her widely diversified experience, covering every sort of part from mystery and light comedy to the heaviest of tragedy, has made her one of the most versatile stars in Hollywood, and one of the most sought-after.

In "Devil and the Deep," playing with Gary Cooper and Charles Laughton, another veteran of the London stage, Miss Bankhead is cast as the wife of an insanely jealous submarine commander.

mon Topic, "The Friendship of Christ."

Autos Take Toll Of City Residents

WASHINGTON.—Areas within and immediately surrounding limits of five Texas cities furnished 263 of the 31,203 deaths reported by the U. S. department of commerce as occurring in the United States during 1935 due to accidents in which automobiles figured.

The cities mentioned in the report, which was nation-wide in its scope, and the automobile fatalities occurring in and near them follow: Dallas, 32; El Paso, 49; Fort Worth, 60; Houston, 106; and San Antonio, 66. Three other Texas cities used in compiling national figures were not mentioned individually in the report.

Texas is not included in the death registration area of continental United States, and therefore there are no state figures.

The report, which included states and the District of Columbia, estimated with inclusion of the remainder of Texas, the national automobile fatalities would have reached 32,550.

"SIX CYLINDERS"

THE HAPPY MEDIUM BETWEEN TWO EXTREMES

With more you sacrifice economy—
With less you sacrifice smoothness

CHEVROLET

It certainly does make a whole lot of difference—how many cylinders you have in that low-priced car of yours! With too many, you're bound to spend too much for gas, oil and upkeep. With too few cylinders, you're bound to get inherent engine-vibration.

But with SIX cylinders—no more, no less—you strike the happy medium between "too many" and "too few." Everything's in your favor—with a new six-cylinder Chevrolet!

Economy? Take the word of those who really know the facts about it, leading American business firms—the six-cylinder Chevrolet costs less for gas, oil and upkeep.

Smoothness? Take the word of motor car engineers: SIX is the fewest number of cylinders you can have in a car, and still get built-in smoothness. And built-in smoothness is to your satisfaction.

Durability? Take the enthusiastic word of millions of Chevrolet owners: the new Chevrolet Six stays dependable and trouble-free season after season! Its high gas and oil mileage stays high. Its low maintenance cost stays especially after ten thousand miles, you'll glad you bought a Chevrolet Six.

In addition to a fast, spirited, six-cylinder engine the Chevrolet Six has Free Wheeling, Syncro-gear-shifting, a new, stabilized, front-end construction, four parallel-mounted springs, four shock absorbers—plus the modern styling and the luxury of beautiful, new, Bodies by Fisher.
