FERGUSON RALLY TO BE ON THURSDAY

Officers Seeking Pair Who Clubbed Spinsters

GRIPINGS

By GUS

The problem is published as a daily feature and may not be construed as representing the editorial views of this paper. It follows in merely what one man might at the time it was written, and while reserving the right to change or delete any subject, without notice, explanation or apology.

Candidates for county officers are quite upset following the election throughout the county of reported sample ballot, suggesting a complete ticket from government county commissioner. The ballot was sent anonymously and no one seems to know where they came, except they were mailed in Eastland Sunday.

Brittan is particularly upset about the matter. His name is on the ticket and his opponent is named, but Brittan says it was mailed without his knowledge and he doesn't like it. The printing was evidently done outside the county, for those familiar with such things say that the faces cannot be identified as those of any print shop in Eastland county.

It is difficult to estimate what amount it might be put on the psychological standpoint running away from certain candidates rather than to make votes for a candidate. The reaction of the average voter is against it rather than for it.

It is to be hoped that no one will pay any attention to it, and be influenced by it, but will abstain and vote for the man of their preference.

Saturday afternoon I tried to talk to Frank Judkins out of a check-up long enough to talk to him about the Ferguson rally in Eastland. But Frank didn't seem to want to talk. I guess he thought I was trying to pump him for some information to which I was not entitled. Ghent Sanderford was out on town.

Had so, by way of explanation the Ferguson readers of this paper. I'd like to say that publicity is not being withheld nor is it being withheld from the general attitude of folks and men who have considerable say and how rapidly the attitude changes when the man when no longer has money. Of course, mentioned names that can't be mentioned here.

After we had pow-powed for more than an hour and I told Flu I must be on my way, Flu said, "I have enjoyed talking with you, your presence has saved me a long and tedious interview with a book agent."

An erstwhile convict made a speech on the courthouse lawn last night in which he told his hearers of good boys and stay away from the penitentiary. I don't know he was planning to take up a new offering and didn't stay the conclusion of his oration account of my not being so well with my money and not having to be free with it.

That is the speech-making season and it's no trouble to get a crowd if you'll just get up and start talking.

That in the world is vitamin G? It is a story this morning that a young youth for the human race was brought about by the food in vitamin G. The story says that we should eat to the advantage of that desirable vitamin. Maybe it will stop the coming of gray hair in my head. I'm optimistic enough to hope it might restore it to its original color of chestnut brown. It will add resiliency to my step. It will raise my fallen arches. Is it? Is it a drink? Is it a perfume? Is it a newspaper? Some of the more erudite readers of this paper please advise?

Years ago this week marking the doings in Ranger. Election day. Maxfield beat Ferguson for Senator. Fatsa Packing Pal was in race for constable. Earl Long was attacked by Wilson... but with a minimum that was merely the forerunner of a hectic week in city government in which, if I'm not mistaken, a newspaperman got away. If I get enough requests write a story on it.

ROBBERS TAKE SAVINGS FROM TWO SISTERS

One Is Clubbed and the Other Bound and Gagged By Youths.

By United Press.

CLEBURNE, Texas, Aug. 24.—Two youthful bandits who robbed two elderly spinsters near here, clubbed and severely injured one and were still at large today as officers continued their search with only bare clues.

The youths, Monday night, presented themselves as subscription agents for a newspaper to get inside the home of Misses Jettie and Ella Moore, who live 20 miles southwest of here.

They bound Jettie to a chair and sealed her lips with adhesive tape and one struck Ella on the head with a pistol when she refused to put up her hands after the youths threatened her. Ella told them their money was hidden in a smokehouse. One forced her to go to the smokehouse and point out the hiding place.

One of the youths dug up the money—$70. They fled, leaving one sister still bound and gagged and the other in a semi-conscious condition from the head injury.

After the bandits fled Jettie worked the tape loose and rocked the chair to a position near the door. A nearby youth heard her scream and brought aid.

County authorities believed the two robbers knew the sisters.

He will make several major addresses and speak briefly at the other stops.

DERBY FLIERS AT OKLAHOMA CITY AT NOON

By United Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 24.—Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla., lead the Cord Air Derby fliers to this control point this afternoon, flashing over the white finishing line at 12:27 p. m.

His score to this stop was 1,965. Art Carnahan of Bloomington, Ill., was the second finisher. His score however, was only 658.5.

A strong tail wind aided the fliers and they zoomed low over the marker at Municipal airport. They had made the 244-mile flight from Abilene in fast time.

The contestants stopped here for lunch. A crowd of almost 10,000 greeted them, witnessed stunt flights and were entertained by civic groups.

The west flight group planned to leave at 1:40 p. m. for Bartlesville, the night control stop, where it will join the eastern flight, which has been delayed because of fog at Jackson, Miss.

Twenty-five of the 43 pilots came into Abilene port within a period of 16 minutes. They had started from Lubbock early this morning.

SECOND RALLY OF WEEK WILL BE IN RANGER

W. J. Myers of Fort Worth Will Be Principal Speaker.

W. J. (Billy) Myers of Fort Worth will be the principal speaker at a big county-wide Ferguson rally to be held in Ranger on Thursday night of this week, it was announced today by Judge R. C. Roland of Ranger and Ghent Sanderford of Eastland.

Several speakers from Eastland and Ranger will be on hand to address the crowd, making short talks prior to the introduction of the speaker of the evening, who has been secured through the efforts of the local supporters of Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson, candidate for governor.

The rally will be held at the same location on Main street that was used Monday night for the rally at which Judge W. R. Ely of Abilene was the principal speaker. The additional lights installed for the first rally will remain in place and will be used for the rally Thursday.

Arrangements have been made to have the speaking stand that was recently constructed by the members of the Ranger fire department, placed in front of the Ghoslen hotel.

The American Legion Tickleville band of Ranger will render a 30-minute program before the speaking starts. This program is scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock with the speaking starting at 8 or shortly after.

Speakers who will deliver short addresses after the program by the Tickleville band will be Frank Judkins and Ghent Sanderford, Eastland, and L. B. Fiewellen, Mr. Judkins is a lawyer of Eastland who has had considerable experience in addressing audiences and in presenting cases before juries. He is a forceful and convincing speaker.

Ghent Sanderford of Eastland was formerly secretary to Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson during her term as governor. He will have a short message to bring to the crowd concerning the candidacy of Mrs. Ferguson.

L. H. Fiewellen of Ranger, who is one of the most able speakers in this part of the country, will also have a part on the program.

Complete arrangements for the program had not been mapped out today, though it was promised that an interesting program would be presented.

A large crowd is expected to be on hand for the rally as the rally of Monday night had the largest crowd present that has been assembled in Eastland county to hear a political speech since Jim Ferguson spoke in Eastland in 1930.

Eastland Lions Hear Holloway On 'Do Your Best'

The Lions club met in regular session Tuesday night, with George M. Harper, president, conducting the affairs of the club, which was entertained by Prof. R. F. Holloway of Ranger, presented by the entertainment committee for the day, P. B. Bittle and Hubert Toombs.

Professor Holloway thoroughly covered the ground of "Do Your Best," the theme of his address, the keynote of which was shoulder your own troubles, hold your chin up, and don't whine.

President Harper called for a report of the membership committee, and Chairman Horace Conley responded with statement that time was too short for the extended report he had to submit and which was postponed until a later meeting.

As there was nothing more to come before the session, the president adjourned the meeting.

The regular Lion's song was sung with Miss Fay Crossley at the piano.

President Harper announced chairman for next weeks program, R. E. McGlamery and John A. Burke. There were 24 Lions and two guests present.

Ranger Rotarians Have Best Meeting Of Year Today

What was termed by the members as the best Rotary meeting of the year was held in Ranger at noon Wednesday with Dr. P. M. Kuykendall presiding.

A round table discussion of the objectives of the club for the year was held with many making suggestions as to what should be the objectives for the year and all entering into the discussion of these suggestions.

Among the objectives proposed were:

- Paying all dues on time and having 100 per cent meetings.
- Taking an active interest in the Boy Scouts work in Ranger.
- Backing and boosting the Ranger Junior College.
- Cleaning up and beautifying vacant buildings on Main street.
- Nine months of school with full pay for as teachers.
- Rural-urban acquaintance meetings in the various communities.
- Development of the individual Rotarian making an inventory of club to see what service each member could render.
- Giving personal attention to the high school pupils and assigning two or three senior boys to each Rotarian, having the Rotarian visit in the boys' homes and the boy visit in the home of the Rotarian, thereby giving both a broader view of the problems of the other.
- Having the club co-operate with the city commission in helping to relieve the city of bonded indebtedness.

The selection of the objectives to be followed by the club will be postponed until the meeting of next week in order that the members of the club might have time to think over the propositions made.

Visitors to the meeting were J. E. Lewis of Eastland and P. Pettit of Cisco.

The program next week will be under the direction of Morris Bon-dix and Rev. H. B. Johnson.

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—A rush of speculative buying in the cotton market sent prices shooting up $2.30 a bale to new highs for the year today.

OCEAN RACE STOPPED BY PLANE CRASH

By United Press.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 24.—A race between two American monoplane pilots to cross the Atlantic non-stop, was ended in Newfoundland last night when one plane crashed on Placentia Bay, while the other had to make a safe landing at an obscure point.

The huge Sesqui plane piloted by the Norwegian, Thor Solberg and Carl Peterson, crashed up at Darby's Harbor, Paradise Sound, on Placentia Bay, it was learned this morning.

The ship was wrecked but the two men escaped injury. They were forced down at 7 p. m. EST, yesterday after fighting through the darkness in a heavy rain.

The monoplane piloted by Clyde Allen and John Rockson made a safe landing at Vuzgoe, about 300 miles from Harbor Grace. They landed at Harbor Grace this morning at 7:20, EST. They expected to start across the Atlantic for Oslo, Norway as soon as their plane was ready.

Sun May Give Earth Power

By United Press.

SAGINAW, Mich.—How to use the power of the sun for earthly needs, when the supply of coal and other such necessities is exhausted, is the quest of science today, according to Dr. Charles E. St. John, famed astronomer.

Dr. St. John said he is organizing scientists from all over the world to co-ordinate their efforts in observation of the sun and terrestrial phenomena. He said there was a connection between what happens on the sun and events on the earth, and that science must find that connection.

The astronomer asserted that radio effects, magnetic storms and the aurora borealis were being studied in an effort to find out what happens on the earth and sun at the same moment.

The scientists referred to those vast whirlpools on the sun's surface, which he said, may be as much as 50,000 miles across. These whirlpools may have some part in the vast solar system, he said.

He pointed out that the sun is now known as a gaseous body, though of tremendous density at the center, while discussing the accepted theory of matter.

Steam Cool Off Office Building

By United Press.

DETROIT.—A system for cooling business offices by steam has been tried here and proven successful, according to the Detroit Edison company.

The method of cooling is to pass steam under pressure through a nozzle at high velocity, where it acts as a pump to remove the air and vapor from a tank of water. This produces a vacuum and causes a rapid evaporation of some of the water in the tank, cooling the remaining water to 45 degrees.

The cool water from the tank is pumped through cooling coils and the air is cooled as it is blown over the water by a ventilating fan.

The apparatus is compact and can be installed in a space nine feet long, two feet wide, and six feet high.

DISTRICT ATTORNEYS DECLARE FOR HONEST BALLOT IN TEXAS

District attorneys in seven counties have ordered investigations in connection with the record-breaking vote in the race for governor in the first primary. Many law enforcement officials the state over are said to be taking all necessary precautions to prevent illegal voting in the run-off primary Aug. 27. Citizens are organizing in many counties and will name supervisors who will challenge any voter or vote believed to be cast illegally in the August finals. District Attorney John E. Taylor of Gregg blazed the trail. He pointed the way. He is ready for the finals. He promises to fill the jails of his district should political racketeers attempt to crash the ballot boxes and he has the patriotism and courage and loyalty to oath of office to go all the way. Think of it. In many counties there were more votes polled in July than there were poll tax receipts or the estimated 15 per cent exemptions and in these counties according to tabulated returns there are no republicans or socialists or independents or prohibitionists who follow their own flag and vote their own national ticket. There was "no negro in the wood pile." That was impossible for the reason that the blacks were barred from participation with the exception of three or four counties of the state. Crimes against the purity of the ballot are crimes against the liberty of the people. They are crimes against the constitution and the law. They are crimes against the fundamentals and principles of a democracy. They should be smashed in Texas and those responsible for the July balloting scandals should be prosecuted to the limit of the law.

HOOSIER LAWMAKERS ORDER A REFERENDUM

Indiana has the most drastic pro enforcement act, with the exception of Texas, to be found under American skies. By a vote of 33 to 14 the senate of Indiana general assembly passed a bill providing for a referendum at the fall election on important phases of the liquor question. A similar measure had been passed by a huge majority by the Indiana house. Now the voters of Indiana will be given an opportunity in November to express their desires as to the repeal of the state enforcement regulations applicable to the state. Leaders of the two major parties in the Hoosier state predict that the enforcement act will be repealed by a large majority and that the incoming legislature will not pass a substitute for what is known as the Wright bone-dry act.

President Hoover's flip flop as well as repudiation of the republican plank of the Chicago platform captured the strict regulars of his party the nation over. He is said to have received a million messages. There are that number of federal office holders in the nation who think they would lose their jobs if the democrats turned them out in November. It was a very smooth play for votes nevertheless. A drastic step to uphold a dying cause as well as an administration on which appears to be destined to overwhelming defeat at the polls next November.

A VOICE FROM THE COOPERATIVE WORLD

From Washington was wired a dispatch that further reduction of cotton acreage "is imperative and that some think that the need for more educational work could be emphasized best were a cotton conference called this autumn at which all of the cotton producing states would be represented." Then came, from the American Cotton Cooperative association publicity department, the following criticism: "Is the conference to educate the farmer to the fact, after all the oratory and pamphleteering of the past two years, we are again entering on a new season with a two-year supply of cotton smothering the market? Then the effort is futile, for the cotton farmer knows it; he is reminded of it every time he looks into the empty pocket-book; but he also knows that the pocketbook would have been still emptier, for him as an individual farmer, if he had grown more of the corn and oats that paid him $5 and $6 an acre instead of the cotton that paid him $8 an acre." Well, the fact remains that there is a carry-over of millions of bales of cotton. The fact remains there is at least a 11,000,000-bale crop this year. How would it be possible to obtain a high price for cotton with a carry-over and a season's fair crop that makes it impossible to sell in the world market for the prices of wartime levels. There is an over-production of cotton. There is more cotton than the consumer world demand needs. Why shouldn't the acreage of cotton be decreased until the surplus of carry-over has been consumed?

WHY NOT WATCH THE TICKING OF THE TICKER?

All this happened Friday, Aug. 19: Cotton closed at gains of 10 to 13 points on trade buying; wheat advanced on bullish news; steady to strong livestock price. In other words, the cotton market is more than active; the wheat market is jumping; the livestock market showed jumps in price levels, and the Boston wool market was reported enjoying the largest concentrated buying in a given period for years, with prices rebounding buoyantly to the manufacturers' increased demand. Indeed, it said, in reference to wool, that the sharpest advance in prices experienced for a long period occurred in the Boston market this week, recording an average gain of 10 per cent, recording an average gain of 10 per cent while asking prices, indicating the trend, were 15 per cent higher than a week ago. Fluctuations of prices in the market are interesting, but they are likewise encouraging. There is a wild onward rush. They has been a steady gain in commodity prices since the month of June.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT everybody wants to save money; you save money when you buy advertised goods and buy it in your own home city.

There are two ways to spend money. You can spend it at home where you and your city will get some benefit from it, or spend it in some other city—HELP YOUR OWN HOME CITY!

Economy is not only in the saving of money, but it is also in the intelligent spending of it.

Opportunity is knocking at the door of every thrifty bargain-wise person who reads the ads.

Newspapers are the great get-together medium for the buyer and the seller.

There has always been, and in many places there always will exist, a feeling on the part of a large number of people that prices charged by the home merchants are higher than those charged by the merchants of either cities.

It is quite natural that this mistake should be made in some cities, especially in cities where the merchants do little advertising and the people have little knowledge of what is sold at home.

Cities where the merchants are heavy advertisers always draw much trade from those cities whose merchants are not up-to-date and do not advertise.

From the arguments of the different countries who desire to retain armaments or in any way increase their military or naval strength, it will be found that all base their claims to do so on the necessity for security. In pre-war days a place in the sun was considered a good enough excuse. This country says nothing about a place in the sun, but does demand security. This is sound common sense, for while a place in the sun may glorify a country, it does not provide security, and security is what America needs.

I recently attended a meeting of the Oklahoma Press Association. One of the editors in attendance told me that human nature is slowly climbing the ladder of perfection and that a time will come when all our actions will be governed by reason and all our thoughts lightened by wisdom. Personally, I don't expect the present generation will see such a happy condition.

PEEPING THRU THE KNOTHOLE

with BILL MAYES

Coach Eck Curtis has received and unpacked the new maroon suits to be worn by the Ranger Bulldogs this year. They are the same maroon suits about which he talked so much last spring and he is just as enthusiastic about the suits now as he was then. However, he has been reluctant to let us have a peep at them. In fact he has almost issued an ultimatum or something along those lines. He does admit that they are all that he expected.

And at the same time the old suits, renovated, patched and otherwise worked over, have been returned. They will be used for practice sessions and the new suits will be used only in games, just like when we had two suits we wore one on week-days and the other on Sundays and holidays.

Call for the first workout has been issued for Sept. 1 and the entire squad will get its first limbering-up exercises on that day in the old suits. The new maroon suits will be issued real soon, however and will then be carefully laid away in moth balls until the first game of the season, which will be played in Amarillo.

A good story is being told at one of the Ranger barber shops. No names will be mentioned as it might be advertising or maybe advertising of the wrong kind.

Anyway, one of the barbers bought a new pair of clippers that has an attachment on them that would gradually cut hair longer and longer. In other words when the clippers were started at the back of the neck they would clip closely, then as they were moved up they would move out from the head, giving the right slope to the trim in the back. All this was done automatically so that the hair would be trimmed absolutely true to specifications. But there was an attachment that could be moved over and the clippers would clip just as closely at the top of the operation as it would near the bottom.

The clippers were unpacked, admired and commented on and finally it was decided to try them out. One barber got in the chair and the other began operating the automatic clippers. But the dingus that made them automatic was turned the wrong way. He started clipping at the back of the neck, going toward the top of the head and the hair began to fly. When he got to the northeast corner he discovered that they were set to clip close to the head all the way up instead of being graduated and the barber who was submitting to the experiment had a nice bald strip from the top of his collar to a point well under his hat, when he had his hat on.

The clippers now repose in the back room of the barber shop and are not being used on cash customers, if any.

Letters have been received in Ranger from Baylus Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Hicks, and a former Ranger High school pupil and for a number of years a newsboy in Ranger. He is a radio apprentice and is learning much.

Young Hicks is now in the navy on the west coast and writes that he has recently gone from San Diego, Calif., to Bremerton, Wash., on the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, the flagship of the Pacific fleet. He will remain in Bremerton some six weeks.

While in San Diego he got time off to see the Olympic games and to make a trip to San Francisco. He is now planning a short trip to Seattle. The sea trip from San Diego to Bremerton took five days, but he did not say whether he got seasick. If he did we know how to sympathize with him.

We were ones asked if we were ever seasick. Were we! For a time we were so sick we were afraid that we would die. Then we got worse and for a while we were very much afraid that we would live. And at that time living was the most undesirable thing we could think of. And we did lots of thinking.

Anyway, young Hicks expects to go to the Atlantic some time within the next year, but in the navy, like in the army, one never knows where he will be in a years time.

Angler Catches Fish and Whisky

By United Press.
SCRANTON, Pa.—Capt. C. D. Smith, Chincilla, near here, reeled in two objects on his fishing line in one haul—one a fish, the other a bottle of whisky.

Smith explained the oddity by claiming the fish, in seeking to escape after being hooked, wound the line around the neck of the whisky bottle.

The bottle was grimy and muddied but its contents were dated by those who sampled it as "pre-prohibition."

Prosperity note: Washington item says sales tax is again being considered. That's proof that something is being sold somewhere.

The TINMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

THE monkey jumped around the tree, as busy as a monkey could be. It started throwing coconuts at Duncy, down below.

They came so fast poor Duncy ducked each time a coconut was plucked. The sight was very funny, which the monkey seemed to know.

So, faster he began to pick, because he wished to play a trick. I'll make him run, the monkey thought, or else he will be hit.

The monkey was right 'cause Duncy jumped, as right near him a large nut thumped. And then he dashed away and cried, "That isn't fair a bit."

THE monkey chattered gleefully. "Ah, ha!" The lad is scared of me," he cried in monkey language. Duncy loudly yelled back, "Stop!"

The beast then did as it was told. It stopped to hear wee Duncy scold. And then, instead of throwing coconuts, it let them drop.

By now the pile of nuts was high and Duncy shouted, "Me, oh my! We have more than enough down here. Don't pick any more."

"You'd best come down join me now. We'll get the judge, somehow. Gee, I'm picked up so many that my ears are getting sore."

THE monkey then jumped on the ground. A large weebarrow soon was found and Duncy started filing it. It didn't hurt him long.

"And now to hike to jail," he. "The judge is bound to let you free. And after that, speeding, lad. You should be it is wrong."

The monkey jumped up on a load and chattered loudly a note. Soon Duncy grew a tired out and said, "I'm going stop."

"You'll have to push a while. It's only 'bout another mile." The monkey glared while wee Duncy sat on top.

Indians Ask For Buffalo Preserve

By United Press.
GREYBULL, Wyo.—A buffalo reservation may be established in the Crow Indian reservation east of the Big Horn river.

The Indians suggested the preserve be established and offered to gladly give up a portion of their land providing they be permitted to kill some of the bison for food.

Only buffalo in excess of the number the range could conveniently hold would be slaughtered.

Cost of College Education Cut

By United Press.
FORT WORTH.—The cost of a college education in Texas has been cut approximately $200. Reports from major institutions in the state revealed that room, tuition, and fees of private colleges have been reduced in line with a general reduction in the cost of books and supplies.

State-supported colleges have made minor reductions in fees. A student can live comfortably, attend an occasional football game or baseball contest, and perhaps take a short week-end excursion during his academic year for less, according to estimates by deans and registrars.

A student who once spent about $400 at Texas Christian university to continue his college education is now able to do so for less. Board, tuition and fees for dormitory rooms there has been cut nearly $100. Most of the economies are effected in rentals and cafeteria prices.

Students may attend Texas Wesleyan's college here two semesters for as low as $373. This plan, however, is open only to students attending four hours weekly. They thereby paid $495 a year for tuition.

At Baylor university dormitory rates for men have been cut from $2180 to a scale ranging from $27 to $113. Farmer rates are $50 to $192 in the Memorial dormitory for women have been cut to $54 to $135. Board has been reduced from $288 to $203, and only minor changes made in $288 tuition fees.

Southern Methodist university has reduced room and board for men from $400 to $328; for women from $495 to $375.

Garner Learns of Nomination

While President Hoover was putting his opponents on the griddle at his formal notification ceremony in Washington, Speaker Jack Garner, Democratic vice presidential nominee, was casually putting a couple of tasty fish on the griddle at his fishing camp in Texas—and here you see him doing it. In the interests of economy, Garner refused to permit any formal notification ceremony in his case, so the official notification was delivered to his camp by mail. Don't you suppose it was quite a shock when he opened the letter and learned of his nomination?

Prince of Wales Furnishes Color At Golf Match

By United Press.
SANDWICH, Kent., Eng.—Gene Sarazen, the genial little American golfer, played "fire-work" golf here to win the British Open championship, but he could not compare with the July 4th-like scintillation of attire worn by players n spectators, alike.

The climax was provided by the Prince of Wales, who arrived on the last day of the championship, in what experts declared to be a new fashion in hats. It was a white felt, with brim turned down all around. It had a green band, and the under brim also was green, forming an excellent shade for the eyes.

With it the Prince wore a double-breasted gray flannel suit, a gray shirt and collar, and a regimental tie. His shoes were the modern black and white kind, favored by many modern golfers.

Among the players, Sarazen, always perfectly attired, and Arthur Havers, who at one time had a wore almond green sweaters and stockings. Others wore wine-colored slip-overs and bright blue stockings. At least one spectator wore a set of deep orange woolies.

On the whole, the professionals were more carefully dressed than the amateurs. Even Henry Cotton, the Beau Brummel of the "pro's," was quieter in his tastes. He discarded the vivid scarf and sweater he is accustomed to wear, although he continued to sport the very baggy trousers and peculiar "gauche," or pork-pie hat, for which he is famous.

Tommy Armour, always inconspicuous in dark kray plus fours, sweaters and stockings, rather spoiled the effect by his habit of pulling a large cap well down over his ears.

MacDonald Smith looked the "well-dressed business man-golfer" in well-cut light gray plus-four suits.

OIL BUSINESS IS BETTER IN PAST MONTH

By United Press.
AUSTIN.—During July the oil business took a definite and decided turn for the better, it was stated in the monthly report on the petroleum industry prepared by the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas. The optimism resulted from a number of favorable factors.

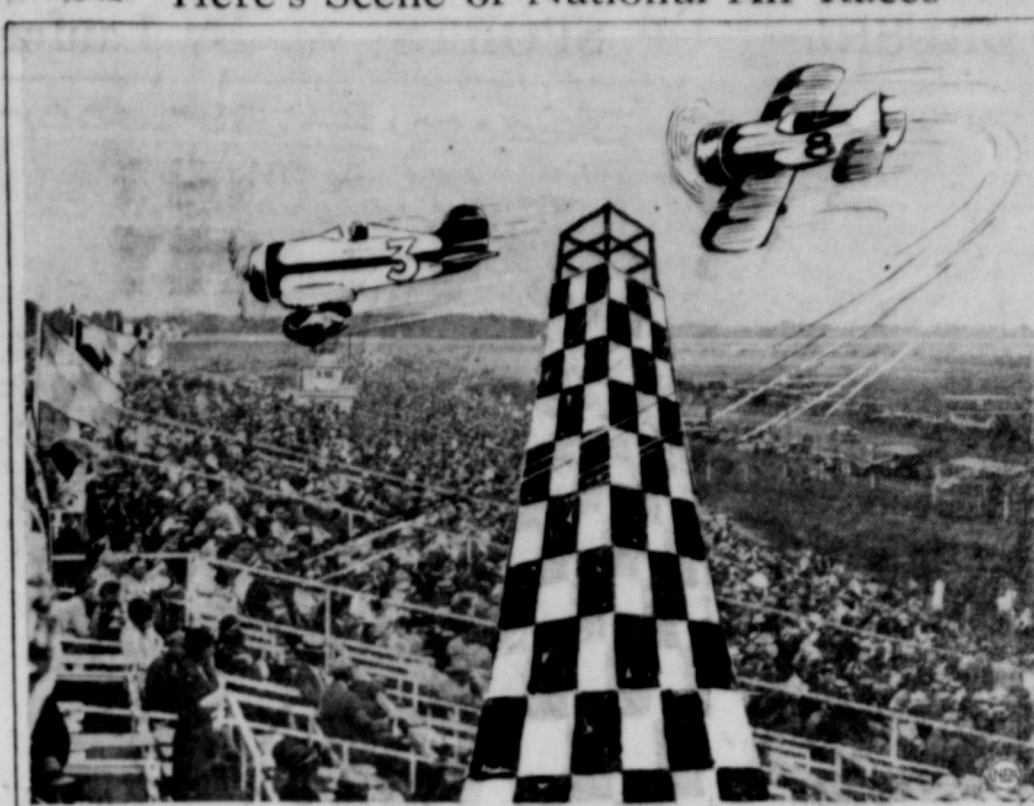

"First," the report said, "the mid-year financial reports of the oil companies showed a great improvement over a year ago, as shown by the following figures of their earnings for the two periods: Amerada Corporation, $552,000 as compared with a $478,000 deficit for the first half of 1931; Associated Oil, $1,358,000 as compared with $1,111,000; Atlantic Refining, $2,185,000 as compared with a $4,015,000 deficit; Continental Oil, $265,000 deficit as compared with $6,528,000 deficit; Mid-Continent Petroleum, $731,000 deficit as compared with $2,991,000 deficit; Pacific Western, $225,000 deficit as compared with $688,000 deficit; Phillips Petroleum, $812,000 deficit as compared with $2,674,000 deficit; Plymouth Oil, $946,000 as compared with $219,000; Sun Oil, $2,950,000 as compared with $1,049,000; Texas Pacific Coal and Oil, $416,000 as compared with $690,000 deficit; Tide-Water Associated, $2,099,000 as compared with $1,077,000 deficit.

"Second, a federal court order upheld the legality of proration as practiced in East Texas, showing definitely that production can be controlled. Third, production was slightly less than consumption by refineries, indicating a draft on domestic stocks. Fourth, Consolidate Oil company, a Sinclair company, and Standard Oil company of California both bid large sums for Richfield Oil company, a financially embarrassed oil concern operating in California. The Standard Oil company of California offered $17,000,000; the Consolidated Oil company paid $22,000,000. These high amounts of money asserted clearly a strong confidence in the future of the oil business.

"The only unfavorable factors to cool the air of optimism during July was a continued decline in exports, particularly of gasoline, and an increase in the number of new refineries. Export movement of all the major refined products showed a decline. July 2 exports amounted to 220,000 gallons, and July 6 exports were down to 75,000 gallons. During the last few months, at least 20 refineries have been erected in East Texas, and tend to increase the production of gasoline locally.

"Production decreased, drilling was curtailed, and no new discoveries of major interest were announced during the past four weeks. The most interest was caused by a wildcat well which struck only a show of oil in the Woodbine sand in Franklin county. The news, however, was sufficient to cause a large number of scouts and lease-men to travel to the new prospect. Although not yet proving to be a new field, it indicates more interest in new production than has been shown for time. A wildcat well drilled by Stanolind Oil and Gas company in San Patricio county in South Texas also struck oil and gas and furnished indications of a new pool in the Coastal district. Developments in other areas were insignificant."

Aviation's "speedway of the air" will get under way Aug. 27, when the National Air Races open in Cleveland, Ohio. More than 40 special speed creations have been designed for participation in the races, and it is expected that speeds of more than 300 miles an hour will be reached. The country's leading pilots will compete in the various events, and six international pilots have been brought from other countries to thrill spectators. The above scene shows the crowded grandstands at the Cleveland airport before which planes will cut capers this year.

India Plans Trade Office In The U. S.

By United Press.
LONDON.—The Indian government intends to establish a trade bureau in New York City to handle matters relating to trade between India and North and South America. It will be under the direction of a permanent official, called the Indian Trade commissioner, and will seek to gain a bigger share in Western Hemisphere markets.

Plans also are under consideration for the establishment of a similar office in Milan, to handle trade matters for Southern Europe. These offices will be opened when conditions improve and funds become available.

Recently, the Indian Government established an office in Hamburg, which deals with all of North Europe. The London office is directed by the Indian Trade commissioner, H. A. F. Lindsay.

Citizens Organize For Lower Rates From Utilities

By United Press.
FORT WORTH.—Believing utilities in Texas are about to "kill the goose that laid the golden eggs," citizens in many West Texas communities are organizing fights for lower utility rates.

A delegation of five has been named by Handley citizens to protest a proposed increase in gas rates at a hearing before the Texas railroad commission Sept. 6, at Austin.

A proposal of the Community Natural Gas company to hike consumer rates from $1.18 to $1.50 for the first 1,000 cubic feet of gas was declared "preposterous" by John L. Davidson, chairman of the Handley committee.

He claimed while other businesses in Texas were taking losses, the Lone Star Gas company, of which the Community Natural Gas company is a subsidiary, made $9,000,000 profits in Texas.

A delegation representing 76 North and West Texas towns unincorporated or under 500 population, may be chosen to petition the commission for relief from asserted "oppressive" rates.

Representatives of the Community Natural Gas company, operating in these towns, declare the new rate schedule will not mean big increases in the consumers' bills. Although the cost of gas will be higher in the winter, there are corresponding reductions for summer consumption, they have urged.

The city of Fort Worth will attempt to secure the dissolution of an injunction here secured by the Lone Star Gas company to block municipal ownership. If the city is successful next month, a path will be opened to the county court where Lone Star's properties here may be condemned.

Eastern capital is sought to finance the city's purchase of the Lone Star gas system. Construction of a pipe line from the Panhandle field to supply gas to the municipal system has been proposed.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

By JACK CUDDY, United Press Staff Correspondent, Young and Old Share Big League Spotlight.

Youngsters and old-timers are sharing the spotlight in the major leagues this season.

Several newcomers have made sensational debuts in baseball this year; other young players, second or third year men, have figured prominently in the headlines, and many of the old-timers have proved pillars of strength for their clubs.

Those who crashed into the big time this season include: Vaughan, Piet and Swift of the Pirates, Allen and Crosetti of the Yankees, Hildebrand of the Indians, Brown of the Braves, Weaver of the Senators, etc.

The young players who have performed for a season or two, but who are playing excellent ball this year, are Gomez of the Yankees, Warneke of the Cubs, Walker of the Tigers, Cramer of the Athletics, Levey of the Browns, Urbanski of the Braves, Herman and Judges of the Cubs, Burns of the Pirates, Huck Betts of the Braves, and of course, George Herman Ruth.

Among the old-timers who are staging rallies are Rabbit Maranville of the Braves, Joey Sewell and Earl Combs of the Yankees, Egges Stephenson of the Cubs, Steve Swetonic of the Pirates, Huck Betts of the Braves, and of course, George Herman Ruth.

Tony Piet and Floyd Vaughan, second baseman and shortstop, respectively, of the Pirates, probably are the most sensational youngsters in the majors. They are the types whom George Gibson struck into the middle of a second division club to make a possible pinwheel winner out of it.

On the other hand, Rabbit Maranville, who is 40, was believed washed up last season. The Braves talked of releasing him so that he might manage a minor league club. But, since being moved to second base, he is staging a remarkable campaign, and actually is the nucleus of the club.

Joey Sewell, Yankee third baseman, was another who was headed for the bench last spring, but when Crosetti blew up at third base, Sewell stepped in and became the steadiest player in the Yankee lineup. Crosetti later came back as shortstop and has done well there.

Riggs Stephenson, whose legs went bad two years ago, has been the Cubs' main source of hitting strength this year.

Archers Hunt Bears With Bow-Arrows

By United Press. CODY, Wyo. — Not since the day when the Indian tribes hunted the plains of Wyoming, until a few days ago have bears been hunted with bow and arrow.

They were guided by Ned Frost of Cody, hunter. Hill is from Miami, Fla., and from 1922 to 1930 was the world's "flight A" archery champion. He is the present president of the National Archery Golf association, the members of which play golf using bows and arrows instead of balls and clubs.

The Faith of O'Leary

IN the recent investigation of Rogers Hornsby's business deals by Judge Landis, one of those questioned was baseball's sage of sages, Charley O'Leary. O'Leary admitted he had loaned the Rajah $2000 last September from a checking and savings account.

He testified the money had not been repaid. "But I am not worried about that," said O'Leary. "He told me he wanted to pay off a mortgage. You know how those things are, I'll wait."

Good old O'Leary! He would "go all the way for a pal."

Waiting for a Street Car. THEY tell a great many stories about Charley O'Leary, who, man and boy, has wandered up and down the land along the baseball trails for more than 30 years.

One concerning the time he was "waiting for a street car." The scene was laid in Ravenswood, a suburb of Chicago. O'Leary's home town. The only character was O'Leary. It was a cold winter's night. Snow drifted and swirled into the middle of the street where O'Leary stood on a corner.

He stood there for hours. Finally the long arm and the big foot of the law came lumbering along. There were the usual questions. "I'm waiting for a street car," said O'Leary, and there was a bit of a frown in his voice, the night being what it was, and the schedules so irregular.

"Then you had better walk three blocks east," replied the copper. "Divide a bit of a strafe car will you get on this street where they ain't even so much as a track?"

Mr. O'Leary presumably left for points east.

The Broken Leg. O'LEARY got into baseball because of a broken leg, and "the best of it was," as Charley says, "it was not my own."

Frank Shugart, shortstop of the White Sox, broke his leg in 1909. O'Leary was a South Side boy who happened to know some of the right people. The right people recommended him for the job, and O'Leary got it. The White Sox won the pennant.

Next year they shipped O'Leary to Des Moines. Charley was there several years, and finally the Tigers bought him. He played short until 1911, serving on the team that won three straight pennants and lost three straight world series.

By Cobb, Walter Sam Crawford and Wild Bill Donovan were on that club, and Hughey Jennings was manager.

"When we couldn't pick a fight with some other team," says Charley, "we would put on a battle in the clubhouse among ourselves."

The Phoney Foliage. GERMANY SCHAEFFER was on that team, too, and Charley remembers the time when Schaeffer, incensed at Tommy Connolly for what he thought was a bum strike, put on a pair of false whiskers and stood glaring fiercely at Tommy.

Charley has seen a lot of baseball country. In 1912 he was playing-manager at Indianapolis. In 1912 he went to St. Louis and played beside Miller Huggins with the Cardinals. Then he played third for San Francisco. For three years he played with Mike Keiley at St. Paul.

In 1918 he was playing-manager at San Antonio, and covered any position where a man was needed.

Finally he landed with the Yankees as coach under Huggins, where he stayed 10 years and helped the great Yankee teams of the last decade win pennants. Now he is coach of the Cubs, as cucky as ever and as ready for a battle—and willing "to go all the way for a pal."

Abilene Doing Well. Which brings to mind that Abilene's new stadium will be ready for the visiting teams this fall. They say it is quite an elaborate affair with seats and everything. Some of the Abilene boosters declare it was built right in the middle of the biggest mudhole in Taylor county, but of course we have no way of knowing whether the truth or not inasmuch as Taylor county. However, it could be submerged in the event of the Wooten Hotel still be a better field than the used at the fair park. That, in opinion, was the worst plant department has ever had trying to get into.

What Other Scribes Are Saying Pertaining Mostly To Comment Concerning High School Football in the Oil Belt.

BOBBY CAMPBELL in Breckenridge American Hay, Hay! Yes sir, times are getting rather tough in athletic circles. Nothing like such hard times in athletic circles. Time was when those in charge of athletics just tossed money around like it was a bad mulberry or an old hat or something. But not so now. No sir, not so now. When Mr. N. S. Holland, who superintends a very mean superintendence of the Breckenridge public schools returned from New York with much knowledge and a couple of boxes of extremely palatable cigars with his name on the wrappings, he strolled out to Buckaroo Field and surveyed what he saw was a field of glowing Bermuda grass that would make horses very happy and cows very contented if they were able to munch same. Even so it would handicap football players more than somewhat if that grass as it is against the rules for a football player to carry the ball in one hand and a scythe in another.

Now Brownwood. Brownwood has access to college stadium and it holds number of souls. The press for instance, occupies a post right to the left of the stadium, for the laboring scribbler's excellent view of things from the eyes hold out. The seats in press box are rather naughty, being inclined to reach up and one at intervals, but there is telephone handy to make up it. Only press box was known of this area with a telephone for one to get a wrong number over.

Ranger Also. Ranger used to have a good dium but Fire Chief Marjory about worn it out walking up down with his swagger stick, used to have desks up there for scribes to write on, but a came such fellows as Gus L. man and Wily William Mayer they tossed monkey wrench things by using the desks to on, dangling their brogans and dandruff of the unsuspecting sitting below. No more desks now, unless they have been re-rected within the last few mo-

Deduction. Inasmuch as the football players didn't want the hay and the horses and cows did, it was not a hard matter for the school superintendent to deduct that it should be removed from there immediately. He made a deal. Fifty bales of hay were cut from Buckaroo Field and given to the man that sliced same. Fifty bales of good, fresh, new mown hay. Now we know why some of the bleacherites refer to the referees sometimes as farmers.

Read It and Cheap. Eastland High school's gridiron has a grass raiment. Football players whose ears, eyes, noses and throats, have been subjected to the fine sand of the down on the valley gridiron will, no doubt, sigh a sigh of relief. They planted that grass in 1927, early in the fall. It's marvelous the way things spring out of the ground in West Texas. But there is no joy without regret. While the grass is growing the Eastland fence is being repaired. This will make it a bit harder for the cracker to crash, although we entertain no hopes that it will eliminate them entirely.

Abilene Doing Well. Which brings to mind that Abilene's new stadium will be ready for the visiting teams this fall. They say it is quite an elaborate affair with seats and everything. Some of the Abilene boosters declare it was built right in the middle of the biggest mudhole in Taylor county, but of course we have no way of knowing whether the truth or not inasmuch as Taylor county. However, it could be submerged in the event of the Wooten Hotel still be a better field than the used at the fair park. That, in opinion, was the worst plant department has ever had trying to get into.

Yet every day an army of salesmen comes marching into your living-room. They take your time only when you can spare it. They present their products to you briefly and politely, without a single interruption during your moments of consideration. They retire at your wish, or tell you more if you desire. Are you learning all you can from these salesmen—the advertisements in your daily paper! They come from the market places of the world. They bring the latest facts about the things you want and need, suggest other things you might want or need. They can make life more pleasant, efficient and economical. But you—and you alone—are the judge! Can you afford to deny an audience to these salesmen? They do more than try to sell you something. They bring you the news of what your neighbor and your countrymen are doing in the world of business. Advertisements do not ring doorbells—but they receive cordial reception from intelligent, discriminating people everywhere. Again and again they point out the only true bargains—sound merchandise at fair prices. When you read the advertisements, you are helping yourself to better things. IMPORTANT When you ask for a product by name, as a result of advertising, do not accept a substitute—substitutes are offered not as a service to you, but for other reasons.'

HERE-- AND THERE

By ELVIE H. JACKSON

This is the month of "Safety" and this slogan would apply to all phases of life and pastimes that of our daily existence, of motoring.

This is the month of the candidate, and it might be well to refer to the safety first slogan of "Danger! Stop at the corner! Go Slow for Safety! Your Right Curve Carefully! The Playground Safely! and, with the Steep Grade of the Hill! Especially is it timely to "slow down" for dangerous corners.

The second primary election will hold Saturday, and friends of candidates should observe these first signs with as much interest as the candidate himself. We are all prone to drive roughshod over the convictions and extended political platforms of other candidates, often ignoring their right to suit themselves, and might have an equal right, to climb a steep grade of an opposing opinion, or one that is opposed to opinions of others.

When a "stop corner" is reached by the voter when he receives such circulars describing the opinion of some political candidate and the voter is often led in his expressed preference for candidates for office, he reads these uninvited and ambiguous statements, and there is the unsigned polling circular that floats around, that, in its printed lists, divides the voter to scratch this or that name, and vote for this or other man or woman.

Such circulars, the curve, right left, is reached, and the voter of judge for himself, whether he takes the right turn, based on own convictions of the fitness of the man of his choice for the job, or whether to take the left turn, subtly influenced by the obvious instructions he has received from mysterious sources, should pause at the danger corner! signal and determine whether he will vote as he wanted or as he is mysteriously ordered.

There is the hill or "steep grade" of difficulties, always entered in a political campaign, differences arising between opposing factions, and contending candidates, which often unfortunately result in an arrangement of party ties, and often of family ties.

This is deplorable as long friends are precious and based on years of growth, and a political alliance is for now and ends at its end time.

We all know that no matter how the candidates for one job, we can be ultimately put one against another man in the office. We should use our rights as American citizens to acquaint ourselves personally with the life, and deeds of the men or women, whom we choose to vote and stick to that choice, based on American right of citizen, and not dictated to by pollsters, outside opinions, or anonymous messages.

Simply said, "I'll bind myself that which once being right, but be less right, when I shrink in it."

Tallulah Bankhead Ten Stars In One

Katherine Cornell, Greta Garbo, Norma Shearer, Francine Larrimore, Ina Claire, Jeanne Eagles, Pauline Lord and half a dozen other actresses all rolled into one.

That's what Tallulah Bankhead, starred in "Devil and the Deep," which comes Thursday and Friday to the Arcadia theatre, Ranger, might well claim to be.

For during her long career on the London stage, Miss Bankhead has played roles which these other stars have portrayed on the stage and screen.

In "The Green Hat" she enacted the role which Katherine Cornell played on Broadway and Greta Garbo played on the screen in "Let Us Be Gay" she had the role Francis Larrimore had on Broadway and Norma Shearer had on the screen. In "Her Cardboard Lover" she appeared in the part Jeanne Eagles had on Broadway and Marion Davies had on the screen.

Ina Claire's stage role in "The Gold Diggers," Corinne Griffith's film role in "The Garden of Eden," Pauline Lord's stage role and Pola Negri's and Vilma Banay's screen roles in "They Knew What They Wanted" are among other roles she portrayed in London.

Her widely diversified experience, covering every sort of part from mystery and light comedy to the heaviest of tragedy, has made her one of the most versatile stars in Hollywood, and one of the most sought-after.

In "Devil and the Deep," playing with Garp Cooper and Charles Laughton, another veteran of the London stage, Miss Bankhead is cast as the wife of an insanely jealous submarine commander. Suspecting her of an affair with Garp Cooper, Laughton, as the husband, gets them both on board his craft and rams it into another vessel. In the crippled sub, on the floor of the sea, takes place an extremely dramatic denouement.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MONA MOHAN, born on New York's East Side, married JOHN HARRISON TOWNSEND, millionaire. The strange marriage is arranged by Mona's employer, also Townsend's lawyer, who tells her a wealthy client wishes to marry her with the understanding that she will accept her own apartment and have unlimited charge accounts for one year. At the end of that time she must decide whether to become Townsend's wife in actuality or secure a divorce.

Mona believes her bridegroom to be young BARRY TOWNSEND whom she loves. Not until just before the ceremony does she learn the man is Barry's uncle, Young Barry, who is not friendly with his uncle. Barry has returned to South America where he and STEVE SACCHARINI are partners in a diamond mine. Believing Young Barry lost to her, Mona goes through with the marriage. LUTHER TOWNSEND, fashion model, is Mona's closest friend.

Six months pass. Only occasionally does Mona see her husband. He buys a huge diamond, called "The Empress of Peru," for her. Mona tries to soften her husband's bitterness toward his nephew. He tells her that if she will agree that their marriage shall be permanent he will "do the right thing by Barry."

Townsend, who has been ill, dies suddenly on Christmas night.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXI

THREE days later Mona faced Mr. Garretson in the Townsend library, that room she loved so deeply. The sun, pouring in through the stained glass windows, touched the slender, black garbed figure. Mona's hands, restless and nervous, clutched a fine linen handkerchief spasmodically.

The funeral for John Barnard Townsend was over. Rich and poor alike had crowded into the church to pay their last respects. Elizabeth was there with her husband and the eldest of the children. Mrs. Faxon, Mr. Garretson, Mr. Amesbury and Mr. Lawton from the office. Mona's family, in a side pew were the servants, looking grief-stricken. John Townsend had been a good man, a good employer. "It seems horrible to talk about money now," Mona said to the lawyer, "but you must believe me, Mr. Garretson. My husband meant to leave that money to Barry. He told me so. It was his own suggestion. We were both to think things over."

She flushed a trifle, then went on. "The truth of the matter is, my husband agreed that if I would forget the divorce arrangement he would do the right thing by Barry." The lawyer nodded. He was thinking he had never seen anyone look so pitifully young, so tragic and desperate. "Did he explain to you what the right thing might be?"

"The right thing?" Mona stared at the man who, hands clasped behind him, was pacing the floor, pausing now and then to straighten the rug with a well-groomed foot.

"Yes, the right thing."

"Why I don't know. Sign papers, I suppose, so that Barry can have his money."

Mr. Garretson looked at her strangely. "What money, Mona?"

"Why, his own money!"

The man's eyes narrowed. "You mean you believe that Townsend was keeping young Barry's own money from him?" His tone was incredulous.

Neither observed that he had relapsed into the friendly diminutive by which John Townsend was known among his closest friends. But its use meant one thing. Mr. Garretson was on the defensive.

MONA faltered. "Something like that. It was talked of at the office, you know. Barry used to come there to get money. I knew—everybody knew—that he came north to arrange for money to use in buying mining machinery."

"For a worked-out old diamond mine," Mr. Garretson expostulated. Mona shook her head. "Not worked-out at all. The Empress came from that mine."

"The Empress?" Mr. Garretson gazed at her without understanding. "That huge diamond. John bought it for me."

At this Mr. Garretson laughed abruptly. "I remember," he nodded. "But let me tell you about Barry's money, as you term it. Under the terms of his father's will Barry's money, what there was of it, was placed in trust. He can touch it only when he is 35. Until that time it remains with his uncle. Or with us. When Barry Townsend came to the office he was merely asking for an advance on what we considered a fair allowance, particularly in view of the fact that he was acting against his uncle's wishes and his own father's wishes by continuing his residence in South America."

Mona considered. "Won't you explain to me then just what John could have done to help Barry?"

For answer the lawyer motioned Mona to a chair and sank into the one by the fire.

"Almost anything. Townsend was a very rich man. Few people guessed exactly how rich. He could have signed over half of his fortune or all of it to Barry. But as for Barry's own money, which will be his when he is 30, your husband had no more power over that than I have at this moment. In fact, precisely the same power. I cannot at law force Barry to touch it. He has his allowance. He has always had his allowance and that is that!"

MONA was so stunned that she could not speak for a moment. "But John—John agreed! What did he mean to do when he said he would do the right thing by Barry?"

"That is what I would like to impress upon you. John Townsend agreed, on your behalf, to make Barry Townsend partial heir to his own fortune. This was, of course, not Barry's own at all. He was going to settle $10,000,000 on Barry because he thought it would please you. But this was his own money—not Barry's. Rather more than right by Barry, don't you think?"

Mona's anxious face cleared happily. "Then everything is all right," she asked.

"Townsend drew the will. Or rather I drew it."

"He expected me to agree!" Mona exclaimed.

"He expected nothing of you except that you should be happy. He ordered a new will drawn simply to please you. If you preferred to be poorer by $10,000,000 after his death he was agreeable."

Mona spread her hands and laughed. "I who have never had $10 before that I could spend without feeling guilty! What are $10,000,000 more or less? Then Barry has his money!"

Mr. Garretson scowled. "Unfortunately, no. Barry does not have the money. Townsend did not sign the will."

"But—" Mona started. "He wanted it that way!"

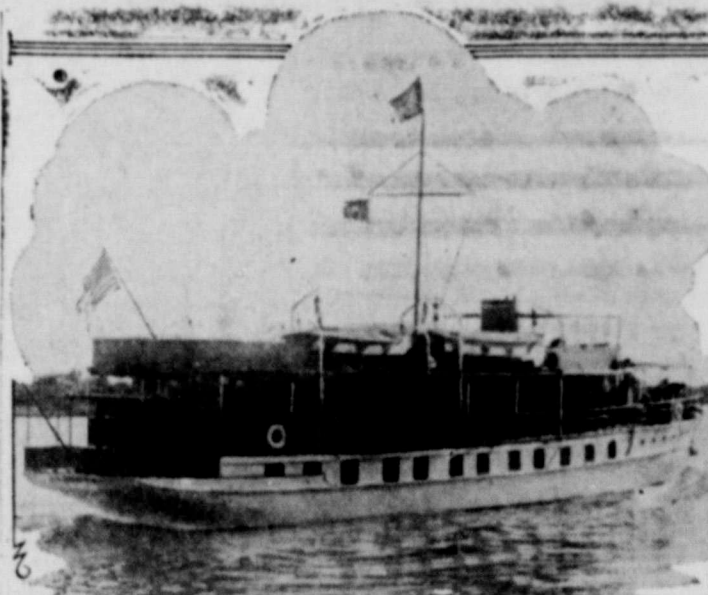

The lawyer's voice was dryness itself. "The courts prefer signatures in such cases." His tone became mild again. "My child, matters are as they were. Elizabeth is remembered in the will. You, needless to say, are remembered. Save for a few small legacies to the servants and others, you receive the bulk of the estate."

SHE had automatically expected that, if he had anticipated surprise or delight, Mr. Garretson was mistaken.

"Barry was not remembered?" the girl repeated.

"Barry receives one dollar."

Beware, Fish! Here Comes Presidential Angler

Deer Charged Car's Headlights

COLUSA, Calif. — This deer must have had some of the blood of Old Spain in his veins, Dr. E. L. Hicock believes.

Driving along the highway near here recently Dr. Hicock brought his car to a stop when he saw a deer bound out onto the road. Hicock says the deer charged the headlights with all the fury of an enraged bull.

Seeing he was accomplishing nothing, the deer leaped to one side and just as Hicock started to drive away the animal took another lunge at the automobile.

Paris Told of Lie Detector

PARIS. — Assistant Attorney General of Illinois, Emory J. Smith, has reached here with news of a "lie detector" and a "truth serum."

Smith visited many professional criminal experts in various nations of Europe and enthusiastically explained how criminal detection has advanced in the United States, and particularly in the west, with the use of the scientific lie detector, which records the troubled emotions of the man or woman to whom it is applied.

"Europe is much ahead of the United States in fingerprint and footprint detection of criminals," Smith said, "but I believe we have discovered an even more scientific means of getting evidence and of detecting crime."

Smith declared that much of the credit was due the crime detection laboratory of the Northwestern university of Chicago, of which he is a staff member. He said, "being a unique institution in the world, the crime detection laboratory is gradually equipping itself with the most perfected and most scientific means of criminal detection. Our students include state prosecutors, head detectives, lawyers and doctors, and in the field of physiological and psychological study is being profoundly observed to give our experiments practical application."

The European criminal detection services were notably impressed with Smith's explanations of the so-called lie detector.

What's the Reason for this swing to Chesterfield

We believe it's Mildness and Better Taste

IF YOUR cigarette is mild—that is, not strong, not bitter, but smokes cool and smooth—then you'll like it and don't worry about how many you smoke.

If your cigarette tastes right; if it tastes better—that is, not overtart; and if it has a pleasing aroma—then you enjoy it the more.

Everything known to Science is used to make

Chesterfield Cigarettes milder and taste better and to give them a pleasing aroma.

First, the right kind of ripe, sweet leaf tobacco—Domestic and Turkish. Then these tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to make sure that Chesterfields are milder and better-tasting. That's why "They Satisfy." Give Chesterfields a trial. They are certain to please you.
